(c) Any party or the attorney of such party sends notice to set a hearing on issues ripe for adjudication to opposing parties or their attorneys. The director of the office of administrative courts shall determine the place and time or times during which settings can be made. At such setting, the party requesting the setting shall submit a completed request for hearing form. Any notice to set shall be mailed to opposing parties at least ten days prior to the setting date.

(d) If any person requests a hearing or files a notice to set a hearing on issues which are not ripe for adjudication at the time such request or filing is made, such person shall be assessed the reasonable attorney fees and costs of the opposing party in preparing for such hearing or setting.

(e) Except in claims in which compensability is contested or a hearing is requested in response to a final admission of liability or to overcome a conclusion in a division-sponsored independent medical examination, the party filing an application for a hearing shall certify on the application that the party attempted to resolve with the other parties all issues listed in the application for a hearing.

Law reviews. For article, "Dispute Resolution in Worker's Compensation", see 18 Colo. Law. 921 (1989). For article, "A Different Kind of Representative: DBA v. PUC Revisited", see 36 Colo. Law. 53 (December 2007).

Annotator's note. Since § 8-43-215 is similar to § 8-53-109 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of this title, a relevant case construing that provision has been included in the annotations to this section.

Administrative law judge abused his discretion when he deprived petitioner of the right to substantiate its claim that its petition for review was timely filed, by ruling on pending motions without setting the matter for a full evidentiary hearing and complying with the notice provisions of subsection (1)(c). Pueblo Sch. Dist. No. 60 v. Clementi, 776 P.2d 1152 (Colo. App. 1989).

Question of whether an appeal was filed in bad faith could not be decided until the appeal was adjudicated and appellant was entitled to attorney fees and costs pursuant to subsection (2)(d) from appellee who applied for a hearing requesting penalties against appellant for filing a frivolous appeal before such appeal was adjudicated. BCW Enters. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 964 P.2d 533 (Colo. App. 1997).

Selection of an authorized treating physician as ordered by a medical utilization review committee was ripe for a hearing notwithstanding that the injured employee's appeal of the order was still pending; thus the denial of attorney fees was proper. The statute requires the parties to act quickly to select a new authorized treating physician regardless of whether an appeal has been filed. Franz v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 250 P.3d 1284 (Colo. App. 2010).

8-43-212. Compulsion of testimony. When any person upon whom a subpoena issued in the name of the division has been served fails or refuses to appear, the party who requested the subpoena may apply to the district court in the county in which the person served resides for an order compelling attendance before the division of the witness or the production of the documents subpoenaed. Violation of such an order shall be treated as contempt of the court issuing the order.

8-43-213. Transcripts. (1) All testimony and argument of all hearings held pursuant to section 8-43-207 concerning any issue arising under articles 40 to 47 of this title shall either be taken verbatim by a hearing reporter or shall be electronically recorded by the division.

(2) Any party in interest may order a transcript at any time from a hearing reporter, a court reporter provided by any party, or, if the hearing is recorded, from the division. For purposes of a petition to review, a transcript shall be all testimony taken that is relevant to the issue being appealed. In the preparation of transcripts, hearing reporters shall give preference to transcripts as part of the record in a petition to review; except that all transcripts shall be prepared and filed with the office of administrative courts within twenty-five working days after the date they were ordered. Hearing reporters shall be paid for transcripts and copies at the rate set by the supreme court for reporters in courts of record. If a court reporter is unable to meet the time limit specified in this section, any party, at its own expense, or the administrative law judge may contract with another court reporter to ensure the timely preparation of transcripts.

(3) Upon a satisfactory showing to the director in writing that a party petitioning to review is indigent and unable to pay for the preparation of the transcript, the director may order a transcript to be prepared at the division's expense, and, if the transcript was prepared by a hearing reporter, the division shall pay the hearing reporter the fee therefor.

(4) When a transcript is ordered as part of the record on a petition to review, the original of the transcript shall be filed with the division where it shall be available to all parties in interest.

Editor's note: This section is similar to former § 8-53-106 as it existed prior to 1990.

8-43-214. Transcript certified - evidence. A transcribed copy of the evidence and proceedings, or any specific part thereof, of any investigation or hearing which was prepared at the direction of the director shall be certified by the hearing reporter, or the division if the hearing was recorded, to be a true and correct transcript of the testimony on the investigation or hearing of a particular witness, or a specific part thereof, carefully compared to original notes or to the original recording, and to be a correct statement of the evidence and proceedings had on such investigation or hearing. A transcribed copy which is so certified may be received as evidence by the director, the panel, and any court with the same effect as if the person who prepared the transcript were present and testified to the facts so certified.

Editor's note: This section is similar to former § 8-53-107 as it existed prior to 1990.

8-43-215. Orders. (1) No more than fifteen working days after the conclusion of a hearing, the administrative law judge or director shall issue a written order allowing or denying said claim. Such written order shall either be a summary order or a full order. A full order shall contain specific findings of fact and conclusions of law. If compensation benefits are granted, such written order shall specify the amounts thereof, the disability for which compensation benefits are granted, by whom and to whom such benefits shall be paid, and the method and time of such payments. A certificate of mailing and a copy of such written order shall be served by regular or electronic mail or by facsimile to each of the parties in interest or their representatives, the original of which shall be a part of the records in said case. If an administrative law judge has issued a summary order, a party dissatisfied with the order may make a written request for a full order within seven working days after the date of mailing of the summary order. The request shall be a prerequisite to review under section 8-43-301. If a request for a full order is made, the administrative law judge shall have ten working days after receipt of the request to issue the order. A full order shall be entered as the final award of the administrative law judge or director subject to review as provided in this article.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. The following annotations include cases decided under former provisions similar to this section.

The only awards which are final and therefore reviewable are those which either allow or deny a claim or in some manner fix the rights or responsibilities of the parties. Indus. Comm'n v. Globe Indem. Co., 145 Colo. 453, 358 P.2d 885 (1961); Stanley Hotel v. Thomas, 153 Colo. 503, 387 P.2d 27 (1963); Hayward v. Majestic Wax Co., 170 Colo. 203, 460 P.2d 74 (1969).

And where hearing officer directs party to prepare written form of order, the order is not final until signed by the hearing officer. Neoplan USA Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 721 P.2d 157 (Colo. App. 1986).

And the order of the referee (now hearing officer) is the order of the industrial commission (now director) if a petition for review is not filed. Carlson v. Indus. Comm'n, 79 Colo. 124, 244 P. 68 (1926).

But compensation matter pending on petition of review not final award. Where a workmen's compensation matter is still pending on the employer's petition to review a previous award, the referee (now hearing officer) still has statutory authority to modify or amend the award; it is not a final award. Colo. Fuel & Iron Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 151 Colo. 18, 379 P.2d 153 (1962).

Order of hearing officer in workers' compensation cases does not enter until it is set forth in writing and copy is mailed to parties in interest. Wait v. Jan's Malt Shoppe, 736 P.2d 1265 (Colo. App. 1987).

"Parties in interest" construed. Where the claimant was represented by an attorney, she was not required to receive her own separate copy of the order. Brodeur v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 159 P.3d 810 (Colo. App. 2007).

Effective date of permission for change of treating physician is date of ALJ's oral summary order, not the date of the written order required by this section. Consolidated Landscape v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 883 P.2d 571 (Colo. App. 1994).

Order which was drafted by retired hearing officer, but was signed by substitute, was invalid, as retired hearing officer had no authority to enter order where he was retired at time order was presented in written form and mailed to the parties. Wait v. Jan's Malt Shoppe, 736 P.2d 1265 (Colo. App. 1987).

Section gives administrative law judge discretion to order that a portion of the benefits payable to claimant be reimbursed to claimant's automobile insurance company pursuant to statute seeking to prevent duplication of benefits. Oxford Chemicals, Inc. v. Richardson, 782 P.2d 843 (Colo. App. 1989).

Administrative law judge did not lack jurisdiction to enter an order merely because the order was entered after the 15-day time limit found in this section. The section is directory rather than mandatory, as the general assembly did not evidence a contrary intent to the general rule that time limits imposed on public bodies are construed as directory rather than mandatory. Langton v. Rocky Mountain Health Care, 937 P.2d 883 (Colo. App. 1996).

A party does not have the right to receive specific findings of fact and conclusions of law unless the division of administrative services receives the request within 15 days. Mailing the request within the 15 days does not suffice. The office must receive the request within 15 days; otherwise, the administrative law judge lacks jurisdiction to issue such specific findings. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 24 P.3d 1 (Colo. App. 2000).

Injured worker exit survey. (1) Upon closure of a claim, each insurer shall survey the claimant or, if deceased, the decedent's dependents regarding the claimant's satisfaction with the insurer for claims that are reported to the division pursuant to section 8-43-101. The survey shall be conducted in a form and manner as prescribed by the director. The director shall develop the form and manner of the survey with input from insurers that provide workers' compensation policies pursuant to articles 40 to 55 of this title, and with the least administrative burden as possible. The survey shall include questions regarding courtesy, promptness of medical care, promptness of handling the claim, promptness of resolving the claim, and overall satisfaction with the experience with the insurer. An employer or an insurer shall not take disciplinary action or otherwise retaliate against a claimant or his or her dependents for completing the survey.

(2) The insurer shall report the survey results annually to the division. The director shall post the results of the surveys on the division's web site.

PART 3

REVIEW PROCEDURES

Law reviews: For article, "Worker's Compensation Appeals", see 19 Colo. Law. 1853 (1990).

8-43-301. Petitions to review. (1) Any order, corrected order, or supplemental order is final unless a petition to review or appeal has been filed in accordance with this article.

(2) Any party dissatisfied with an order that requires any party to pay a penalty or benefits or denies a claimant any benefit or penalty may file a petition to review with the division, if the order was entered by the director, or at the Denver office of the office of administrative courts in the department of personnel, if the order was entered by an administrative law judge, and serve the same by mail on all the parties. The petition shall be filed within twenty days after the date of the certificate of mailing of the order, and, unless so filed, the order shall be final. The petition to review may be filed by mail, and shall be deemed filed upon the date of mailing, as determined by the certificate of mailing, if the certificate of mailing indicates that the petition to review was mailed to the division or to the Denver office of the office of administrative courts in the department of personnel, as appropriate. The petition to review shall be in writing and shall set forth in detail the particular errors and objections of the petitioner. A petitioner shall, at the same time, order any transcript relied upon for the petition to review, arrange with the hearing reporter to pay for the same, and notify opposing parties of the transcript ordered. Opposing parties shall have twenty days after the date of the certificate of mailing of the petition to review to order any other transcript not ordered by the petitioner and arrange with the hearing reporter to pay for the same.

(3) If transcripts of hearings are ordered as part of the record in a petition to review, the director or administrative law judge cannot rule on the petition until the transcripts are lodged with the division.

(4) When the record upon which a petition to review has been filed is complete, the parties shall be notified in writing. The petitioner shall have twenty days after the date of the certificate of mailing of the notice to file a brief in support of the petition. The opposing parties shall have twenty days after the date of the certificate of mailing of the petitioner's brief to file briefs in opposition thereto. After the briefs are filed or the time for filing has run, the director or administrative law judge shall have thirty days to enter a supplemental order or transmit the file to the industrial claim appeals office for review.

(5) In ruling on a petition to review, the director or administrative law judge may issue a supplemental order labeled as such limited to the matters raised in the petition to review, and, as to those matters, the director or administrative law judge may amend or alter the original order or set the matter for further hearing. In any event, if it has not already been done, the administrative law judge or director, following a petition to review an order, shall make findings of fact and conclusions of law necessary to support such order.

(6) A party dissatisfied with a supplemental order may file a petition for review by the panel. The petition shall be filed with the division if the supplemental order was issued by the director or at the Denver office of the office of administrative courts in the department of personnel if the supplemental order was issued by an administrative law judge. The petition shall be filed within twenty days after the date of the certificate of mailing of the supplemental order. The petition shall be in writing, shall set forth in detail the particular errors and objections relied upon, and shall be accompanied by a brief in support thereof. The petition and brief shall be mailed by petitioner to all other parties at the time the petition is filed. All parties, except the petitioner, shall be deemed opposing parties and shall have twenty days after the date of the certificate of mailing of the petition and brief to file with the division or the Denver office of the office of administrative courts, as appropriate, briefs in opposition to the petition.

(7) When any petition for review by the panel is filed, the division or the Denver office of the office of administrative courts shall, when all briefs are submitted to the division or the Denver office of the office of administrative courts or within fifteen days after the date briefs were due, certify and transmit the record to the industrial claim appeals office along with the petitions and briefs. The division or the Denver office of the office of administrative courts, as appropriate, shall simultaneously send notice to the parties including the date that the record has been transmitted to the industrial claim appeals office.

(8) The industrial claim appeals office shall have sixty days after receipt of the certified record to enter its order. The panel may issue a summary order affirming the order of the administrative law judge or director. The panel may correct, set aside, or remand any order but only upon the following grounds: That the findings of fact are not sufficient to permit appellate review; that conflicts in the evidence are not resolved in the record; that the findings of fact are not supported by the evidence; that the findings of fact do not support the order; or that the award or denial of benefits is not supported by applicable law. If the findings of fact entered by the director or administrative law judge are supported by substantial evidence, they shall not be altered by the panel.

(9) The panel shall have the power to issue such procedural orders as may be necessary to carry out its appellate review under subsection (7) of this section, including but not limited to, orders concerning completion of the record and filing of briefs. In those cases where the parties file a stipulated motion requesting that consideration of the appeal be deferred pending ongoing settlement negotiations, the panel may extend the time for entry of its order up to a maximum of thirty days.

(10) The panel's order shall be mailed to all parties of record. Any party dissatisfied with the panel's order shall have twenty days after the date of the certificate of mailing of such order to commence an action for judicial review in the court of appeals.

(11) If the panel has failed to enter its order within sixty days of the receipt of the certified record, the order of the director or administrative law judge shall be deemed the order of the panel and final unless, within thirty days after the end of the sixty-day period, the petitioner commences an action for judicial review in the court of appeals. If the panel has not acted on the sixtieth day, the industrial claim appeals office shall send a written notice to all parties stating that the parties have thirty days after the date of the certificate of mailing of the notice to commence such an action.

(12) If a petition to review is filed, a hearing may be held and orders entered on any other issue in the case during the pendency of the petition to review. If the order which is under petition to review concerns compensability, orders entered on these later issues are final and appealable when entered, but not enforceable until the review of the order on compensability is completed.

(13) If the order which is under petition to review does not concern compensability, but concerns the respective liability of two or more employers or insurance carriers, and the injury or illness was found compensable in a hearing held pursuant to section 8-43-215, the employer or insurance carrier found liable by the director or administrative law judge shall pay benefits in accordance with the order under review until the review process is completed, at which time it shall be reimbursed by the other employer or carrier if reimbursement is necessary to comply with the final order.

(14) The signature of an attorney on a petition to review or brief in support thereof constitutes a certificate by the attorney that such attorney has read the petition or brief; that, to the best of the attorney's knowledge, information, or belief formed after reasonable inquiry, it is well grounded in fact and is warranted by existing law or a good faith argument for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law, and that it is not interposed for any improper purpose, such as to harass, cause delay, or unnecessarily increase the cost of litigation. If a petition or brief is signed in violation of this subsection (14), the director, the administrative law judge, or the panel shall award reasonable attorney fees and costs to the party incurring the fees and costs as a result of the improper actions.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Law reviews. For article on "Colorado Practice in Workmen's Compensation", see 31 Rocky Mt. L. Rev. 500 (1959). For comment on the administrative review of workmen's compensation claims, see 45 U. Colo. L. Rev. 195 (1973). For article, "Update on Colorado Appellate Decisions In Workers' Compensation Law", see 32 Colo. Law. 87 (March 2003). For article, "Update on Colorado Appellate Decisions in Workers' Compensation Law", see 33 Colo. Law. 83 (April 2004).

Annotator's note. The following annotations include cases decided under former provisions similar to this section.

Constitutionality. The general assembly's grant of limited authority in this section to administrative law judges and the industrial claim appeals office over the area of workers' compensation matters does not create a substantial threat to the separation of powers doctrine under article III of the Colorado Constitution, nor does it violate the requirement that district courts have original jurisdiction in civil cases as mandated in article VI, § 9(1), of the Colorado Constitution. Dee Enters. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 89 P.3d 430 (Colo. App. 2003).

Requirements of this section are jurisdictional in nature, and if there is a failure to comply with the requirements of this section, there can be no subsequent review or appeal. Sanchez v. Straight Creek Constructors, 41 Colo. App. 19, 580 P.2d 827 (1978); Brodeur v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 159 P.3d 810 (Colo. App. 2007); Speier v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 181 P.3d 1173 (Colo. App. 2008).

Panel may remand only on grounds enumerated in subsection (7) (now subsection (8)). London v. El Paso County, 757 P.2d 169 (Colo. App. 1988).

Administrative procedure act inapplicable. The appeal procedures under the workmen's compensation act are complete and definitive and constitute an organic act which is self-operational without the need of supplementation from the administrative procedure act. Zappas v. Indus. Comm'n, 36 Colo. App. 319, 543 P.2d 101 (1975); Maxon v. Indus. Comm'n, 40 Colo. App. 196, 571 P.2d 319 (1977).

Designation of record. When the brief referred to specific portions of the record which were relied upon, the petition, together with the transcript on file, was sufficient compliance. Goegelein v. Indus. Comm'n, 686 P.2d 1377 (Colo. App. 1984).

Neither an employer nor an employer's insurer is a claimant as that term is used in the Workers' Compensation Act, but subsection (2) nonetheless does not deny an employer or its insurer the right to review of an order denying recovery of a penalty. However, an immediate right of appeal exists for the denial of a penalty only when the denial is no longer an interlocutory order. BCW Enters. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 964 P.2d 533 (Colo. App. 1997).

Because the administrative law judge's order is not a final order, and because the order neither denies nor awards benefits but instead continues benefits previously ordered, the order is interlocutory and not subject to review under subsection (2). Jefferson County Pub. Sch. v.

Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 181 P.3d 1199 (Colo. App. 2008).

Decision to hold additional hearing or to refer case is at the discretion of the hearing officer or director. Coven v. Indus. Comm'n, 694 P.2d 366 (Colo. App. 1984).

Industrial claim appeals office order setting aside award of permanent partial disability benefits is not subject to judicial review. Natkin & Co. v. Eubanks, 775 P.2d 88 (Colo. App. 1989).

Subsection (8) does not violate due process in limiting the agency's review to determining whether the administrative law judge's decision is supported by substantial evidence. So long as judicial review is provided, due process does not require administrative review as well. Also, where administrative review is provided, the extent of the agency's review authority may be statutorily limited without due process implications. Wecker v. TBL Excavating, Inc., 908 P.2d 1186 (Colo. App. 1995).

Applied in City of Aurora v. Indus. Comm'n, 44 Colo. App. 132, 609 P.2d 129 (1980); Cibere v. Indus. Comm'n, 624 P.2d 920 (Colo. App. 1980); Gates Rubber Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 647 P.2d 244 (Colo. App. 1982); Indus. Comm'n v. Riley, 653 P.2d 723 (Colo. 1982); Hanson v. Indus. Comm'n, 716 P. 2d 477 (Colo. App. 1986); Potomac Ins. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 744 P.2d 765 (Colo. App. 1987); Mosley v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 78 P.3d 1150 (Colo. App. 2003).

II. FINAL ORDERS.

Order granting claimant's petition to reopen claim was not final order subject to review, since it neither required nor denied payment of penalty or benefits. Dir., Div. of Labor v. Smith, 725 P.2d 1161 (Colo. App. 1986).

Referee's order requiring an insurer to pay claimant's medical expenses was an order to pay "benefits" under subsection (2) and was thus reviewable. Am. Express v. Indus. Comm'n, 712 P.2d 1132 (Colo. App. 1985); Bestway Concrete and TIG Ins. Co. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 984 P.2d 680 (Colo. App. 1999).

It is not necessary that all aspects of a claim be ruled upon before there is a final order. Bestway Concrete and TIG Ins. Co. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 984 P.2d 680 (Colo. App. 1999).

In the context of subsection (2), the term "penalty" is a "term of art" and applies to statutory sanctions imposed on a party for failing to obey orders or for failing to take required procedural steps. Am. Express v. Indus. Comm'n, 712 P.2d 1132 (Colo. App. 1985).

view. U.S. Fidelity Guar., Inc. v. Kourlis, 868 P.2d 1158 (Colo. App. 1994).

An order denying sanctions under C.R.C.P. 37 is not a final order; therefore, subsection (2) does not apply. Reed v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 13 P.3d 810 (Colo. App. 2000).

III. METHODS OF REVIEW.

Annotator's note. Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the enactment of 1986 Senate Bill No. 12 which abolished said commission and transferred its powers, duties, and functions under this section to the industrial claim appeals panel.

Petition for review serves same purpose as motion for new trial in court procedure, the petition calling attention to concrete matters so that any errors indicated may be corrected. It thus defines the limits of inquiry for courts and any errors or objections not specified in the petition will not be considered in subsequent judicial proceedings. London Guarantee & Accident Co. v. Sauer, 92 Colo. 565, 22 P.2d 624 (1933).

Under this section, any party dissatisfied with an order entered by the referee or director may petition to review the same. The order may be amended or modified and shall be a final award unless objection be made thereto by further petition for review. Colo. Fuel & Iron Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 151 Colo. 18, 379 P.2d 153 (1962).

The procedure of reopening a claim, being jurisdictional, requires no findings. Even if it be determined that certain of the findings were not supported by the record, such determination would not justify a reversal of the judgment entered by the trial court. Zurek v. Gates Rubber Co., 163 Colo. 321, 430 P.2d 465 (1967).

Where no appeal is taken from an award, it becomes final. Colo. Dept. of Agriculture v. Wayne, 30 Colo. App. 311, 493 P.2d 683 (1971).

Except that this section does not preclude a change or modification of an award under § 8-53-119 (now § 8-53-113), even though no petition for a review has been filed. State Comp. Ins. Fund v. Indus. Comm'n, 80 Colo. 130, 249 P. 653 (1926); Employers' Mut. Ins. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 83 Colo. 315, 265 P. 99 (1928); Colo. Fuel & Iron Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 151 Colo. 18, 379 P.2d 153 (1962); Colo. Dept. of Agriculture v. Wayne, 30 Colo. App. 311, 493 P.2d 683 (1971).

Thus, there are two methods of reviewing an award: That prescribed by this section and that prescribed by § 8-53-119 (now § 8-53-113). Tyler v. Hagerman, 88 Colo. 60, 291 P. 1033 (1930); Hoover v. Indus. Comm'n, 156 Colo. 147, 397 P.2d 223 (1964).

Parties must be advised whether proceeding is under this section or § 8-53-119 (now

§ 8-53-113). Where an award of a referee or the commission is to be reviewed, claimant, insured and insurer must be advised whether the proceeding is to be under this section or § 8-53-119, in order that they may protect themselves accordingly. Tyler v. Hagerman, 88 Colo. 60, 291 P. 1033 (1930).

"Final award" means only that the matter has been concluded unless reopened as provided by § 8-53-119 (now § 8-53-113). Graden Coal Co. v. Yuarralde, 137 Colo. 527, 328 P.2d 105 (1958).

Remand for failure to make supplemental findings unnecessary. Where no supplemental findings were made by the referee, this failure normally would necessitate a remand of the matter to the commission for further findings, but where the petitioners filed a petition for review requesting that the matter be referred to the commission without further hearing or order by the referee, a procedure which was permitted under this section, such remand is unnecessary. Keystone Int'l, Inc. v. Gale, 33 Colo. App. 216, 518 P.2d 296 (1973).

Issuance of supplemental order is discretionary in ruling on a petition for review. It is not an abuse of discretion for ALJ to decline to issue supplemental order in ruling on a petition for review when party represents that a fact is uncontested, awaits outcome of ALJ's order, and then presents a question for the first time in petition for review. Broadmoor Ins. Co. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 939 P.2d 460 (Colo. App. 1996).

Statement of stipulated facts equivalent of transcript. Where the record necessary for judicial review consists of a statement of stipulated facts, that statement should be considered the equivalent of a transcript. Riley v. Indus. Comm'n, 628 P.2d 147 (Colo. App. 1981), aff'd, 653 P.2d 723 (Colo. 1982).

IV. HEARING OFFICER OR DIRECTOR AS FACT FINDER.

Annotator's note. Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the 1973 amendment which transferred fact-finding powers from the industrial commission to the director of the division.

Due process requires second referee to hear or read evidence prior to issuing order, although an employee was not denied due process of law on the basis that the referee who issued the order had not read the transcript of the first hearing where the referee issued a supplemental order after reading the transcript. Ski Depot Rentals, Inc. v. Lynch, 714 P.2d 516 (Colo. App. 1985).

In workmen's compensation cases the industrial commission is the fact finder. Skinner

v. Indus. Comm'n, 152 Colo. 97, 381 P.2d 253 (1963); State v. Richards, 158 Colo. 155, 405 P.2d 675 (1965); Clodfelter v. Indus. Comm'n, 160 Colo. 39, 413 P.2d 700 (1966); Breit v. Indus. Comm'n, 160 Colo. 205, 415 P.2d 858 (1966); Levy v. Everson Plumbing Co., 171 Colo. 468, 468 P.2d 34 (1970); Sena v. World of Sleep, Inc., 173 Colo. 348, 478 P.2d 671 (1970).

The industrial commission is the fact finder upon petition for review commission shall make findings of fact. Upon petition for review the commission may do one of several things, but in any event, if it has not already done so, it shall, following a petition to review the order, make findings of fact which shall include all evidentiary and ultimate facts necessary to support the order. Alvin H. Watkins, Inc. v. Hamilton, 159 Colo. 257, 411 P.2d 15 (1966).

Thus, section operates prospectively. The statutory provision that findings of fact shall be made which shall include all evidentiary and ultimate facts necessary to support an order operates prospectively and not retroactively. Game & Fish Dept. v. Pardoe, 147 Colo. 363, 363 P.2d 1067 (1961).

It is the duty of the commission to make specific findings of fact from the evidence adduced, and mere recitals of the evidence taken and conclusions of law do not meet that test. Parrish v. Indus. Comm'n, 151 Colo. 538, 379 P.2d 384 (1963); State Comp. Ins. Fund v. Foulds, 167 Colo. 123, 445 P.2d 716 (1968); Womack v. Indus. Comm'n, 168 Colo. 364, 451 P.2d 761 (1969).

The hearing officer must make only findings of fact sufficient to make review possible. Ferguson v. Rockwell Int'l Corp., 734 P.2d 131 (Colo. App. 1986).

However, it is necessary only that evidentiary and ultimate facts be specific. It is not required that the degree of specificity of the findings encompass the specific rejection of evidence which was not persuasive. In order to comply with the requirements of this section, it is necessary only that the evidentiary and ultimate findings be specific as to that evidence which is deemed to be persuasive and determinative of the issues to be resolved. In re Claim of Crandall v. Watson-Wilson Transp. Sys., 171 Colo. 329, 467 P.2d 48 (1970); Tague v. Coors Porcelain Co., 29 Colo. App. 226, 481 P.2d 424 (1971); Churchill v. Sears, Roebuck & Co., 720 P.2d 171 (Colo. 1986).

Evidentiary and ultimate facts. Evidentiary facts are those facts which are necessary for determination of the ultimate facts. Ultimate facts are the substance of the conclusions from the evidence. Parrish v. Indus. Comm'n, 151 Colo. 538, 379 P.2d 384 (1963); Womack v. Indus. Comm'n, 168 Colo. 364, 451 P.2d 761 (1969); Tague v. Coors Porcelain Co., 29 Colo. App. 226, 481 P.2d 424 (1971); Apache Corp. v.

Indus. Comm'n, 717 P.2d 1000 (Colo. App. 1986).

Ultimate facts, as opposed to evidentiary facts, involve a conclusion of law or a determination of a mixed question of law and fact, and settle the rights and liabilities of the parties. Therefore, commission may alter findings of ultimate fact. Raisch v. Indus. Comm'n, 721 P.2d 693 (Colo. App. 1986) (decided prior to 1986 abolishment of industrial commission).

Unless the commission first finds the evidentiary and ultimate facts, it is futile for the reviewing court to examine the record, because it cannot sit as a fact-finding body to ascertain facts from the testimony in the first instance, and it cannot on review determine whether the testimony is sufficient to establish facts that have not been found by the commission. Metros v. Denver Coney Island, 110 Colo. 40, 129 P.2d 911 (1942); United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 128 Colo. 68, 259 P.2d 869 (1952); Alvin H. Watkins, Inc. v. Hamilton, 159 Colo. 257, 411 P.2d 15 (1966); Tague v. Coors Porcelain Co., 29 Colo. App. 226, 481 P.2d 424 (1971).

Determination of whether disability has causal connection with original accident is conclusive. In a workmen's compensation case it is for the commission, in the exercise of sound discretion, to determine whether, under the evidence, a permanent disability has a causal connection with the original accident, and its determination of that issue is conclusive on the courts. London Guarantee & Accident Co. v. Sauer, 92 Colo. 565, 22 P.2d 624 (1933).

Where the original referee does not enter an order and a second referee who was not at the hearing is called upon to enter the order, the second referee must base his findings and conclusions on an independent examination of the facts contained in the record. State Compensation Ins. Fund v. Fulkerson, 680 P.2d 1325 (Colo. App. 1984); Legouffe v. Prestige Homes, Inc., 689 P.2d 697 (Colo. App. 1984); El Paso County Sch. Dist. No. 11 v. Bunger, 713 P.2d 935 (Colo. App. 1985).

For discussion of what constitutes an evidentiary fact, see F.R. Orr Constr. v. Rinta, 717 P.2d 965 (Colo. App. 1985).

Where hearing officer entered supplemental order only addressing and altering findings unrelated to claim of entitlement to workmen's compensation death benefits made by claimant and where hearing officer elected not to supplement his order concerning claimant's contentions, the hearing officer should have forwarded the file to the panel and the claimant was not required to file a second petition for review of order of hearing officer as first petition for review was still pending. Michalski v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 757 P.2d 1146 (Colo. App. 1988).

Jurisdictional challenge to hearing officer. Additional hearing required where claimant alleged that hearing officer lacked jurisdiction to enter an order after the hearing officer had terminated his employment. Welch v. Indus. Comm'n, 722 P.2d 439 (Colo. App. 1986).

V. REVIEW BY THE INDUSTRIAL CLAIM APPEALS PANEL.

Annotator's note. Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the enactment of 1986 Senate Bill No. 12 which abolished said commission and transferred its powers, duties, and functions under this section to the industrial claim appeals panel. Cases which refer to referees were decided prior to the 1983 repeal and reenactment which changed the term to hearing officer.

Procedural changes in statute are applicable to all cases pending at the time the new statute became effective unless a contrary legislative intent is expressed and, since the procedural changes were imposed in conjunction with the abolition of the industrial commission and the creation of the industrial claim appeals office, it would be illogical to conclude that the general assembly intended the panel to apply a standard of review other than that set forth in its grant of authority. Kininger v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 759 P.2d 766 (Colo. App. 1988).

Further petition for review. In a case first heard by a referee, where a petition for a review had been duly filed after the award, and the entire case is thereafter referred to the commission (now director), this section clearly contemplates a further petition for review. Carlson v. Indus. Comm'n, 79 Colo. 124, 244 P. 68 (1926).

Commission may reject claim as untimely. The commission may reject a claim for disfigurement which is asserted for the first time in a petition for review, on the ground that it has not been timely presented. Dziewior v. Michigan Gen. Corp., 672 P.2d 1026 (Colo. App. 1983).

It is commission's responsibility independently to review entire record and either make new findings or adopt the referee's findings of fact. Thompson v. Indus. Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 369, 520 P.2d 139 (1974).

Meaningful review not possible when referee makes no findings of evidentiary fact. Beech Aircraft, Inc. v. Reif, 678 P.2d 1049 (Colo. App. 1983); Raisch v. Indus. Comm'n, 721 P.2d 693 (Colo. App. 1986).

Referee's findings part of record which commission considers in reaching decision. The fact that a referee is required by law to make findings of fact sufficient to support his award presupposes that the referee's findings will be a part of the record and that the commission will consider such findings in reaching its independent decision. Thompson v. Indus.

Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 369, 520 P.2d 139 (1974).

Commission may adopt referee's findings. The commission is not required to make independent findings of fact, but may adopt the referee's findings when affirming a decision. Mattison v. Indus. Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 203, 516 P.2d 1143 (1973).

Adopted findings should be adequate. While generally the commission's adoption of specific factual findings entered by the referee suffices, this procedure presupposes that the adopted findings are adequate. Grand Valley Enters., Inc. v. Claimants in re Death of Wonders, 39 Colo. App. 166, 562 P.2d 1119 (1977).

Commission cannot avoid being influenced by referee's findings and conclusions, when he had the only opportunity to observe the manner and demeanor of the witnesses, including that of the claimant. Thompson v. Indus. Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 369, 520 P.2d 139 (1974).

Prior to 1973, the commission was not limited merely to review of the director's order, but could on the record make findings of its own and enter an award thereon. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 96 Colo. 571, 45 P.2d 895 (1935); Colo. Dept. of Agriculture v. Wayne, 179 Colo. 258, 499 P.2d 1188 (1972).

To hold that the commission had no independent fact-finding authority would in effect emasculate the commission's function to that of a mere rubber stamp approving the referee's findings. Harrison W. Corp. v. Hicks' Claimants, 185 Colo. 142, 522 P.2d 722 (1974).

The statutory phrase in former § 8-53-106 "contrary to the weight of the evidence" means unless the findings are not supported by a preponderance of the evidence and the preponderance standard is met when the existence of a contested fact is more probable than not. Therefore, the commission properly exercised its authority when it found that the claimant failed to sustain its burden of showing by a preponderance of the evidence that the cause of his symptoms was a prior injury. Indus. Comm'n v. Jones, 688 P.2d 1116 (Colo. 1984).

If the findings of fact by the administrative law judge are supported by substantial evidence they are binding on the panel, leaving only conclusions of law to be fully reviewed. The difference in the language of this section and that of comparable provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act exhibits a conscious legislative intent to abolish this section's previous distinction between evidentiary and ultimate findings. May D & F v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 752 P.2d 589 (Colo. App. 1988) (decided under law in existence prior to 1987 amendment).

Findings of fact by the ALJ are binding upon the panel if supported by substantial evidence. Conversely, if the ALJ's findings of fact are not supported by substantial evidence, or if the ALJ's orders are not supported by the findings of fact or applicable law, then they are not binding upon the panel and may be corrected or set aside. Matter of Death of Smithour, 778 P.2d 302 (Colo. App. 1989).

Under the substantial evidence standard established in subsection (8), the evidence supporting a finding is not substantial if it is overwhelmed by other evidence or if it constitutes a mere conclusion. Wecker v. TBL Excavating, Inc., 908 P.2d 1186 (Colo. App. 1995).

This section requires the panel to accept the ALJ's findings of ultimate facts as well as evidentiary facts, if supported by substantial evidence in the record; however, both the panel and this court may review a conclusion of law for error. Schrieber v. Brown & Root, Inc., 888 P.2d 274 (Colo. App. 1993).

Commission may rule de novo on weight and sufficiency of evidence. The industrial commission, as the ultimate fact finder, is not bound by the referee's findings but may rule de novo on the weight and sufficiency of the evidence in a workmen's compensation case. Casa Bonita Restaurant v. Indus. Comm'n, 624 P.2d 1340 (Colo. App. 1981).

Commission's findings are binding upon appellate review. The industrial commission's findings, where supported by substantial evidence, are binding upon appellate review. Casa Bonita Restaurant v. Indus. Comm'n, 624 P.2d 1340 (Colo. App. 1981).

Commission's order reversing the hearing officer's denial of benefits is interlocutory and not reviewable until issues of the extent of disability and duration of benefits are determined. Indus. Comm'n v. Fort Logan, 682 P.2d 1185 (Colo. 1984).

Commission determines proper characterization of employment relationship. The determination of the proper characterization of the employment relationship depends upon the facts in each case. This determination must properly be made by the commission rather than the court, even though the facts are largely undisputed, because this matter is not within the court's scope of review. Schultz v. Indus. Comm'n, 34 Colo. App. 122, 523 P.2d 164 (1974).

Commission authorized to make its own finding of ultimate conclusions of fact. City & County of Denver v. Indus. Comm'n, 690 P.2d 199 (Colo. 1984); State Comp. Ins. Fund v. Bldg. Sys., 713 P.2d 940 (Colo. App. 1985).

Causation may in certain circumstances be an ultimate fact and in other circumstances be an evidentiary fact. Baca v. Helm, 682 P.2d 474 (Colo. 1984); Raisch v. Indus. Comm'n, 721 P.2d 693 (Colo. App. 1986).

Whether an injury "caused" a disability, i.e., had a role in the chain of events leading to the disability, is a question of evidentiary fact. Baca v. Helm, 682 P.2d 474 (Colo. 1984).

The determination of causation may involve an evidentiary fact or an ultimate fact and an ultimate fact may involve a mixed question of law and fact or solely a question of law. If facts are undisputed and reasonable minds could draw but one inference from them, causation is a question of law for the court. Smith v. State Compensation Ins. Fund, 749 P.2d 462 (Colo. App. 1987); Schrieber v. Brown & Root, Inc., 888 P.2d 274 (Colo. App. 1993).

Whether an evidentiary fact of causation justifies the legal conclusion that a disability was "proximately caused" by a work-related injury is an ultimate fact, i.e., a question of statutory interpretation. Baca v. Helm, 682 P.2d 474 (Colo. 1984).

Credibility of witnesses. Resolution of the credibility of witnesses by the hearing officer is a question of evidentiary fact which is binding on review. Prestige Homes, Inc. v. Legouffe, 658 P.2d 850 (Colo. 1983); Varsity Contractors & Home Ins. Co. v. Baca, 709 P.2d 55 (Colo. App. 1985).

There is a clear distinction between the terms "no evidence" and "no credible evidence" and, where the record failed to support the finding that there was no evidence of causation regarding worker's claim to total disability benefits for occupational lung disease, the industrial claim appeals panel should have set the order aside and remanded the cause for additional findings. Hall v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 757 P.2d 1132 (Colo. App. 1988).

The scope of the "quasi-course of employment doctrine", like the scope of the doctrine of duty, can be a question of law involving public policy considerations and there was no error in Panel's failure to remand to the ALJ for an initial determination of that question of law. Schrieber v. Brown and Root, Inc., 888 P.2d 274 (Colo. App. 1993).

VI. PROCEDURAL REQUIREMENTS.

The filing of the petition as provided by this section is jurisdictional. Indus. Comm'n v. Plains Utils. Co., 127 Colo. 506, 259 P.2d 282 (1953); Brodeur v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 159 P.3d 810 (Colo. App. 2007).

Timely filing of a petition for certiorari is a jurisdictional requirement. Accordingly, statutory provisions governing appellate review must be strictly enforced. Picken v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 874 P.2d 485 (Colo. App. 1994); Schneider Nat'l Carriers, Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 969 P.2d 817 (Colo. App. 1998).

Mailing to attorney triggers 20-day period under subsection (2). The claimant, represented by an attorney, was not required to receive her own separate copy of the order. Brodeur v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 159 P.3d 810 (Colo. App. 2007).

General rule on time computation does not affect specific provision of subsection (10). A party to a proceeding who received notice of the panel's order by mail was not entitled to the additional three days allowed by C.A.R. 26(c) for service by mail, in view of the fact that mailing time is already accounted for in this section. Indus. Claim Appeals Office v. Zarlingo, 57 P.3d 736 (Colo. 2002).

General three-day mailing provision in C.R.C.P. 6(e) does not modify the 20-day time limit set forth in subsection (2). Speier v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 181 P.3d 1173 (Colo. App. 2008).

Filing deadline may not be extended for excusable neglect. Speier v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 181 P.3d 1173 (Colo. App. 2008).

Court of appeals lacked authority to extend time for filing of petition for writ of certiorari in workers compensation case. Neither this statute nor C.A.R. 46.1 permit an extension of time within which to file petition. Picken v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 874 P.2d 485 (Colo. App. 1994).

Failure to specify in detail in a petition the alleged errors committed is not jurisdictional and the industrial claim appeals office has jurisdiction to consider such a petition if it elects to do so. Oxford Chemicals, Inc. v. Richardson, 782 P.2d 843 (Colo. App. 1989).

Failure to file a brief or the untimely filing of a brief under subsection (3) is not a jurisdictional defect. Ortiz v. Indus. Comm'n, 734 P.2d 642 (Colo. App. 1986).

A second ALJ did not lack jurisdiction under subsection (12) to consider a petition to reopen because the first ALJ's order was on appeal. Ward v. Ward, 928 P.2d 739 (Colo. App. 1996).

Procedure for review must be followed. In order to avail oneself of the provisions of the workmen's compensation act the procedure for review of findings or awards must be followed, and, unless followed, the order or award may not be reviewed. Indus. Comm'n v. Plains Utils. Co., 127 Colo. 506, 259 P.2d 282 (1953); Vigil v. Indus. Comm'n, 160 Colo. 23, 413 P.2d 904 (1966); Miller v. Indus. Comm'n, 28 Colo. App. 462, 474 P.2d 177 (1970).

The words "must" and "shall" as used in this section are not susceptible of any construction except as mandatory. Indus. Comm'n v. Plains Utils. Co., 127 Colo. 506, 259 P.2d 282 (1953); Logan County Hosp. v. Slocum, 165 Colo. 232, 438 P.2d 240 (1968).

Thus, award "shall be final" unless challenged in manner prescribed. Under the provisions of the statute, an award "shall be final" unless challenged in the particular manner and within the time provided by the act. Stearns-Roger Mfg. Co. v. Casteel, 128 Colo. 289, 261 P.2d 228 (1953).

The commission's order after consideration of the referee's award is final, except during the pendency before the commission of a petition for review. Carver v. Indus. Comm'n, 40 Colo. App. 126, 570 P.2d 256 (1977).

Award will be res judicata. The statute clearly contemplates that all objections to an award shall be raised, if at all, by specified procedures and shall be barred from later relitigation by virtue of the doctrine of res judicata. The whole policy of the law is against the retrial of issues already litigated by the parties. State Comp. Ins. Fund v. Luna, 156 Colo. 106, 397 P.2d 231 (1964).

More specifically, a petition for review "shall be in writing and specify in detail the particular errors and objections". Gadbois v. Allan, 105 Colo. 19, 94 P.2d 688 (1939); Stearns-Roger Mfg. Co. v. Casteel, 128 Colo. 289, 261 P.2d 228 (1953); Williams v. New Amsterdam Cas. Co., 136 Colo. 458, 319 P.2d 1078 (1957).

Phrase "any party dissatisfied", as used in subsection (2), includes an independent claims adjustment service acting for a self-insured employer. Tozer v. Scott Wetzel Servs., Inc., 883 P.2d 496 (Colo. App. 1994).

Standing to request review of an ALJ's order arises under this section only when a party is dissatisfied with an order which requires a party to pay a penalty or benefits and, therefore, insurer did not have standing to challenge an ALJ's determination as to the award of attorney fees which award did not impose a penalty upon the insurer, did not assess any additional benefits nor deny any benefit to the claimant, or place additional liability on the insurer. Bradley v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 841 P.2d 1071 (Colo. App. 1992).

Sufficiency of writing and specificity of objections. This section, providing that a petition for review of an award of the commission shall be in writing and specify in detail the particular errors or objections, is sufficiently complied with where a referee of the commission advises a claimant that a petition, filed by claimant, lacks detail, and extends the time within which to secure a transcript of the testimony and present a petition in compliance with the rules; the fact that the referee order is a more detailed statement and grants time within which to file it, cannot work a default or a forfeiture of a claimant's right to review. Williams v. New Amsterdam Cas. Co., 136 Colo. 458, 319 P.2d 1078 (1957).

Letter as petition for review. A letter sent by counsel for petitioner, marked as being received, and entered as part of the record, which prompts the referee's order to hold a supplemental hearing, is in sufficient compliance with the requirements set forth by the statute and acts as a valid petition for review when it states specific reasons for necessity of amending the order. Miller

v. Indus. Comm'n, 28 Colo. App. 462, 474 P.2d 177 (1970).

In addition, a petition for review must be submitted within 15 days (now 20 days) after the referee's order, and unless filed within this allotted period the petition for review must be stricken and the order declared final. Midget Consol. Gold Mining Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 69 Colo. 218, 193 P. 493 (1920); Indus. Comm'n v. Bracken, 83 Colo. 72, 262 P. 521 (1927); Pollard v. Indus. Comm'n, 95 Colo. 572, 37 P.2d 1093 (1934); Zimmerman v. Indus. Comm'n, 108 Colo. 552, 120 P.2d 636 (1941); Miller v. Indus. Comm'n, 28 Colo. App. 462, 474 P.2d 177 (1970); Irrigation Motor & Pump Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 30 Colo. App. 289, 494 P.2d 144 (1971).

A petition for review, whether it is denominated an appeal or a cross appeal, must be filed within 20 days after the date of the certificate of mailing of the industrial claim appeals panel's final order and this deadline may not be extended. Western Empire v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 769 P.2d 1089 (Colo. App. 1989).

Actions are not commenced in the court of appeals until they are actually received by the court; they are not commenced on the day they are mailed. Therefore, petition was filed late where petitioner mailed it on the 20th day after the Industrial Claim Appeals Office entered its order. Rice v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 937 P.2d 893 (Colo. App. 1997).

Claimant's petition for review of decision was timely filed despite fact that certificate of mailing did not indicate petition was mailed to ALJ where cover letter attached to petition disclosed that petition was mailed within 20 days of order. Rendon v. United Airlines, 881 P.2d 482 (Colo. App. 1994).

Twenty-day limit within which to file a petition for writ of certiorari set forth in this section and C.A.R. 46.1 is applicable to injuries occurring on or after July 1, 1991. Picken v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 874 P.2d 485 (Colo. App. 1994).

Effect of failure to seek timely administrative review. Where a claimant fails to seek, within the statutorily prescribed 15-day (now 20-day) period, administrative review of an order entered pursuant to a hearing, that failure deprives the court of appeals of jurisdiction to consider the merits of claimant's alleged denial of due process. Wallace v. Indus. Comm'n, 629 P.2d 1091 (Colo. App. 1981).

Where further time was granted by the referee within 15 days (now 20 days) after the date when the order was entered, the statute does not require that a subsequent granting of additional time must also be sought and obtained prior to the expiration of the extended time within which to file the petition for review. The supreme court is disinclined to judicially establish such a strict rule of procedure where the request for additional time was filed before the expiration of the extended time theretofore granted by the referee. City & County of Denver v. Phillips, 166 Colo. 312, 443 P.2d 379 (1968).

Furthermore, a transcript of the proceedings must be filed within 30 days (now 20 days) after submission of the petition for review. Logan County Hosp. v. Slocum, 165 Colo. 232, 438 P.2d 240 (1968); Vieweg v. B. F. Goodrich Co., 170 Colo. 71, 459 P.2d 759 (1969); Miller v. Indus. Comm'n, 28 Colo. App. 462, 474 P.2d 177 (1970).

For without submission of the transcript of the first proceedings, the referee is without jurisdiction to hold a second hearing on the matter, and the commission is correct in declaring the order of the second hearing a nullity, and in reinstating the order made after the first hearing. Miller v. Indus. Comm'n, 28 Colo. App. 462, 474 P.2d 177 (1970).

Claimant's timely filed petition for review of hearing officer's order was sufficient despite failure simultaneously to order record and transcript of hearings. Martinez v. Indus. Comm'n, 709 P.2d 49 (Colo. App. 1985).

Order filed by administrative law judge more than 30 days after filing of briefs is void. Hillebrand Const. Co. v. Worf, 780 P.2d 24 (Colo. App. 1989).

Failure of commission to act within time period does not bar review. Where petitioner timely files a motion for extension of the period for filing the transcript, pursuant to subsection (3), he does not lose his right to review simply because the commission does not rule on the motion until the 30-day period expires. Hewgley v. Indus. Comm'n, 657 P.2d 989 (Colo. App. 1982).

Brief not required. There is no requirement under this section that a brief be filed in support of a petition to review a referee's decision or an order of the commission. Saxton v. Indus. Comm'n, 41 Colo. App. 309, 584 P.2d 638 (1978).

Withdrawal of attorney and claimant's ignorance of necessity for petition do not excuse noncompliance with this section. Suver v. Indus. Comm'n, 80 Colo. 429, 252 P. 361 (1927).

Procedural requirements may not be waived, enlarged, diminished, or destroyed by consent, and cannot be estopped. Vieweg v. B. F. Goodrich Co., 170 Colo. 71, 459 P.2d 759 (1969).

The procedural requirements for review under this act constitute limits on the commission's jurisdiction and cannot be waived or destroyed by consent. Hasbrouck v. Indus. Comm'n, 685 P.2d 780 (Colo. App. 1984).

Failure to effect service upon an opposing party within the time limits of this section and § 8-53-119 is not jurisdictionally fatal. Dept. of Inst. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 780 P.2d 72 (Colo. App. 1989).

Where a claimant fails to deliver a petition for review to the office designated in the order of the administrative law judge, and such failure results in an untimely filing, the petition is jurisdictionally defective and a review of the claim on the merits is barred. Buschmann v. Gallegos Masonry, Inc., 805 P.2d 1193 (Colo. App. 1991).

Court not at liberty to imply a "mailing window" analogous to that provided under C.R.C.P. (6)(e) into the plain language of subsection (2). Digital Equip. Corp. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 894 P.2d 54 (Colo. App. 1995).

Commission has no authority to grant an extension of time for filing a petition with court of appeals and, therefore, failure to timely seek review deprives court of appeals of jurisdiction. Cornstubble v. Indus. Comm'n, 722 P.2d 448 (Colo. App. 1986) (decided prior to 1986 abolishment of industrial commission).

Time at which awards become final where separate hearings had on two claims arising out of same accident. Where claims are filed against the insurance carrier of a lessee and the lessor for compensation growing out of the same accident, each being heard and determined separately, the award becomes final in each case at the expiration of 15 days, and not at the expiration of 15 days from the time of the last award. Indus. Comm'n v. Bracken, 83 Colo. 72, 262 P. 521 (1927).

Requirements for filing petition with court of appeals. Prior to filing a petition for review with the court of appeals, the claimant must not only petition the referee and the commission to review the referee's order, but he must also petition the commission to review its own action on the referee's decision, so that any error may be corrected without the necessity of judicial review. Maxon v. Indus. Comm'n, 40 Colo. App. 196, 571 P.2d 319 (1977).

Objection for failure to file in time may be waived. An objection to a review under this section, because the petition therefor was not filed within the statutory or extended time, should be sustained, but the objection is waived if the hearing is had and the objecting party participates therein. Tyler v. Hagerman, 88 Colo. 60, 291 P. 1033 (1926).

Parties are estopped to complain of non-compliance by taking part in supplemental proceedings. Parties to a workmen's compensation proceeding by their conduct in applying for, and taking part in, supplemental proceedings before the director, held estopped to complain of noncompliance with this section. Indus. Comm'n v. Employers' Liab. Assurance Corp., 78 Colo. 267, 241 P. 729 (1925).

Parties thereby waive question of authority of director to enter additional award. After original award by the director, on petition to reopen the case, of which employer and insurance carrier have notice, if they appear and participate in further proceedings without objection, they will be deemed to have waived any question of the authority of the director to enter an additional award. Indus. Comm'n v. State Ins. Comp. Fund, 71 Colo. 106, 203 P. 215 (1922).

VII. NOTICE.

Presumably, a person's address is the place of his domicile and residence. Devore v. Indus. Comm'n, 129 Colo. 10, 266 P.2d 774 (1954).

Claimant has duty to provide place for delivery of notice. For the purpose of receiving mail or notice, the address of a claimant is the designation of the place where delivery is desired. That place is best known to claimant and it is his duty to provide the place of residence or other designation of place for delivery of notice for inclusion in the files of his claim. Devore v. Indus. Comm'n, 129 Colo. 10, 266 P.2d 774 (1954).

Filing period commences to run against party who receives actual notice. An interpretation that until such time as all parties in interest are given due notice of the award, the statutory time within which a petition to review may be filed does not commence to run, even as against the party in interest who has in fact received actual notice, is not supported by the statute. Davis v. Indus. Comm'n, 161 Colo. 80, 420 P.2d 147 (1966).

Effect of no notice or insufficient notice. Where no notice or an insufficient notice of an award is given the parties in interest in a workmen's compensation case, the time within which a petition for review must be filed does not run. Indus. Comm'n v. Martinez, 102 Colo. 31, 77 P.2d 646 (1938).

Ruling on merits impliedly accepts petitioner's notice allegation. When the industrial commission rules upon a petition for administrative review, having before it the affidavits of petitioner's attorney and his two employees stating that notice of the commission's order had not in fact been received by them, the commission impliedly accepts petitioner's allegation that notice had not been received by her attorney, thereby making the filing of the petition timely. Cline v. Indus. Comm'n, 43 Colo. App. 123, 599 P.2d 973 (1979).

Notice misstating date of entry of award insufficient. Notice of an award which misstates the date of entry, resulting in a curtailment of time within which the petition for review may be filed, is insufficient. Zimmerman v. Indus. Comm'n, 108 Colo. 552, 120 P.2d 636 (1941).

Supreme court not inclined to favor ruling which forecloses right to review. Where the jurisdiction of the district court in a workmen's compensation case is questioned, unless the provisions of this section concerning notice of an award have been strictly followed, the supreme court, in reviewing the judgment, will not be inclined to favor a ruling which would foreclose the right of a party to a judicial review of the commission's action. Zimmerman v. Indus. Comm'n, 108 Colo. 552, 120 P.2d 636 (1941).

Thus, review of an award without notice to the claimant is unlawful. Indus. Comm'n v. Nissen, 84 Colo. 19, 267 P. 791 (1928).

8-43-302. Corrected orders. (1) The director, an administrative law judge, or the panel may issue a corrected order:

(a) At any time within thirty days after the entry of an order, to correct any clerical errors in the order. Clerical errors are grammatical or computational errors.

(b) At any time within thirty days of the entry of an order, to correct any errors caused by mistake or inadvertence.

(2) Any order corrected for clerical error, mistake, or inadvertence shall be labeled "corrected order" and mailed by the division. Any corrected order may be appealed in the manner provided in this article for any other order.

Editor's note: This section is similar to former § 8-53-112 as it existed prior to 1990.

8-43-303. Reopening. (1) At any time within six years after the date of injury, the director or an administrative law judge may, after notice to all parties, review and reopen any award on the ground of fraud, an overpayment, an error, a mistake, or a change in condition, except for those settlements entered into pursuant to section 8-43-204 in which the claimant waived all right to reopen an award; but a settlement may be reopened at any time on the ground of fraud or mutual mistake of material fact. Upon a prima facie showing that the claimant received overpayments, the award shall be reopened solely as to overpayments and repayment shall be ordered. In cases involving the circumstances described in section 8-42-113.5, recovery of overpayments shall be ordered in accordance with said section. If an award is reopened on grounds of an error, a mistake, or a change in condition, compensation and medical benefits previously ordered may be ended, diminished, maintained, or increased. No such reopening shall affect the earlier award as to moneys already paid except in cases of fraud or overpayment. Any order entered under this subsection (1) shall be subject to review in the same manner as other orders.

(2) (a) At any time within two years after the date the last temporary or permanent disability benefits or dependent benefits excluding medical benefits become due or payable, the director or an administrative law judge may, after notice to all parties, review and reopen an award on the ground of fraud, an overpayment, an error, a mistake, or a change in condition, except for those settlements entered into pursuant to section 8-43-204 in which the claimant waived all right to reopen an award; but a settlement may be reopened at any time on the ground of fraud or mutual mistake of material fact. Upon a prima facie showing that the claimant received overpayments, the award shall be reopened solely as to overpayments and repayment shall be ordered. In cases involving the circumstances described in section 8-42-113.5, recovery of overpayments shall be ordered in accordance with said section. If an award is reopened under this paragraph (a) on grounds of an error, a mistake, or a change in condition, compensation and medical benefits previously ordered may be ended, diminished, maintained, or increased. No such reopening shall affect the earlier award as to moneys already paid except in cases of fraud or overpayment. Any order entered under this paragraph (a) shall be subject to review in the same manner as other orders.

(b) At any time within two years after the date the last medical benefits become due and payable, the director or an administrative law judge may, after notice to all parties, review and reopen an award only as to medical benefits on the ground of an error, a mistake, or a change in condition, except for those settlements entered into pursuant to section 8-43-204 in which the claimant waived all right to reopen an award; but a settlement may be reopened at any time on the ground of fraud or mutual mistake of material fact. If an award is reopened under this paragraph (b), medical benefits previously ordered may be ended, diminished, maintained, or increased. No such reopening shall affect the earlier award as to moneys already paid. Any order entered under this paragraph (b) shall be subject to review in the same manner as other orders.

(3) In cases where a claimant is determined to be permanently totally disabled, any such case may be reopened at any time to determine if the claimant has returned to employment. If the claimant has returned to employment and is earning in excess of four thousand dollars per year or has participated in activities which indicate that the claimant has the ability to return to employment, such claimant's permanent total disability award shall cease and the claimant shall not be entitled to further permanent total disability benefits as a result of the injury or occupational disease which led to the original permanent total disability award. Any subsequent permanent partial disability benefits awarded for the same injury or occupational disease shall be decreased by the amount of permanent total disability benefits previously received by the employee.

(4) The party attempting to reopen an issue or claim shall bear the burden of proof as to any issues sought to be reopened.

A. In General.

Law. 1927 (1993).

Annotator's notes. (1) The following annotations include cases decided under former provisions similar to this section.

(2) Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the 1969 amendment which vested power in the director of the division of labor previously exercised by the industrial commission or were decided prior to the enactment of 1986 Senate Bill No. 12 which abolished said commission and transferred its powers, duties, and functions to the industrial claim appeals panel.

This section does not violate due process or equal protection by placing time limits on a claimant's right to reopen an award, whereas an employer may reopen at any time after an injured worker has resumed employment. Claimants and employers are not similarly situated, and there is a rational basis for the distinction. Calvert v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 155 P.3d 474 (Colo. App. 2006).

Section 8-40-201 (16.5)(a) and subsection (3) of this section are distinguishable because they affect persons who are not similarly situated to each other. The purpose of § 8-40-201 (16.5)(a) is to define permanent total disability for purposes of initially determining whether a claimant is eligible for permanent total disability benefits. In contrast, the purpose of subsection (3) of this section is to set a standard which employers must meet before a case can be reopened to determine whether an employee who has already been awarded permanent total disability benefits should continue to receive such benefits. Christie v. Coors Transp. Co., 933 P.2d 1330 (Colo. 1997).

The clear intent and purpose of this section was to give the industrial commission, within six years from the date of the accident, authority to review the proceeding which resulted in the conclusion that compensation had been paid, whether it is designated an "order", "decision", "judgment", or "finding and award". Brofman v. Indus. Comm'n, 117 Colo. 248, 186 P.2d 584 (1947).

Furthermore, the purpose of this statute is not to place arbitrary power in the hands of the commission, but to give it power, on request, to make equitable adjustments increasing awards where time has shown a change of condition. Mascitelli v. Giuliano & Sons Coal Co., 157 Colo. 240, 402 P.2d 192 (1965).

Legislative intent. The general assembly, in enacting this section, authorized the director to review awards, sua sponte. Gates Rubber Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 647 P.2d 244 (Colo. App. 1982).

Where a claim has been closed, it is necessary to seek reopening under this section. Lewis v. Scientific Supply Co., Inc., 897 P.2d 905 (Colo. App. 1995).

Uncontested admission of liability became a "final" award, which could not be reopened except pursuant to statute, despite parties' assertion that fraud rendered award void ab initio. Lewis v. Scientific Supply Co., Inc., 897 P.2d 905 (Colo. App. 1995).

This section provides a procedure, not a benefit. The ability to reopen an award is established under this article of the Workers' Compensation Act, which describes the procedures for notices, reports, settlement, hearings, petitions for review, enforcement, and penalties. It is not a benefit within the meaning of article 42 of the Act. Landeros v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 214 P.3d 544 (Colo. App. 2008).

The reopening authority under the provisions of this section is indicative of a strong legislative policy that, in workers' compensation matters, the goal of achieving a fair and just result overrides the interest of litigants in obtaining a final resolution of their dispute. Renz v. Larimer County Sch. Dist. Poudre R-1, 924 P.2d 1177 (Colo. App. 1996).

In the context of workers' compensation matters, a "final" award means only that the matter has been concluded subject to later reopening if warranted under the applicable statutory criteria. Renz v. Larimer County Sch. Dist. Poudre R-1, 924 P.2d 1177 (Colo. App. 1996).

The division-sponsored independent medical examination (DIME) scheme and the reopening procedures under this section as they concern a determination of MMI are not inconsistent and irreconcilable. MMI marks the point at which a claimant's condition has stabilized, and no further treatment can be reasonably expected to improve the condition. MMI is also considered a matter of diagnosis. A mistake in diagnosis has previously been held sufficient to justify reopening. Berg v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 128 P.3d 270 (Colo. App. 2005).

Upon its own motion on the ground of error, mistake or change in condition, the commission may review any award, and if the statutory conditions are present may reopen any award whether interim or final, and adjust compensation in accordance with the standards of the act. Graden Coal Co. v. Ytuarralde, 137 Colo. 527, 328 P.2d 105 (1958); Colo. Fuel & Iron Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 151 Colo. 18, 379 P.2d 153 (1962).

Even if a compensation agreement or statement has been entered between the parties and thereafter there is a change in the condition of the employee, on proper application or petition the agreement or settlement may be reviewed, and compensation increased or diminished, or the payment of compensation may be suspended or terminated. Colo. Fuel & Iron Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 151 Colo. 18, 379 P.2d 153 (1962).

However, the commission is limited in its review to "error, mistake, or a change in conditions." Coursey v. Indus. Comm'n, 83 Colo. 490, 267 P. 202 (1928); Colo. Fuel & Iron Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 85 Colo. 237, 275 P. 910 (1929); Independence Coffee & Spice Co. v. Taylor, 97 Colo. 242, 48 P.2d 798 (1935).

Collateral estoppel applies to all issues except "error, mistake, or a change in condition." Despite the fact that collateral estoppel does not usually apply to the same case, and the case is considered reopened under this section, the procedural posture should be considered to be analogous to a new proceeding. Therefore, when the elements of collateral estoppel are met, and the issue is not one of those enumerated in this section, collateral estoppel applies to previously decided issues. Cooper v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 998 P.2d 5 (Colo. App. 1999).

ALJ has no inherent authority to order repayment in cases of fraud, but may terminate future payments. Lewis v. Scientific Supply Co., Inc., 897 P.2d 905 (Colo. App. 1995).

It is immaterial on the question of the validity of a review who moves for the review or whether anyone does. Indus. Comm'n v. Nissen, 84 Colo. 19, 267 P. 791 (1928); Serv. Supply Co. v. Vallejos, 169 Colo. 14, 452 P.2d 387 (1969).

And there is no restriction in this section as to the number of times a case may be reopened, and when based upon new or different evidence no such limitation may be imposed by the courts, that being a matter for legislative expression. Graden Coal Co. v. Ytuarralde, 137 Colo. 527, 328 P.2d 105 (1958).

So that a claimant is not precluded from filing a first and second petition to reopen a compensation case, even though the award first entered has become final, since this section expressly grants the commission power to reopen any case within the time provided therein; there being no restrictions in the statute as to the number of times a case may be reopened based upon new or different evidence, no such limitation may be imposed by the courts. Graden Coal Co. v. Ytuarralde, 137 Colo. 527, 328 P.2d 105 (1958).

Petition is merely a means of calling attention to right to reopen. This section grants the exclusive right to reopen to the commission, and a claimant's petition is merely a means of calling attention to the fact such action should be taken. Univ. of Denver v. Indus. Comm'n, 138 Colo. 505, 335 P.2d 292 (1959).

"Change in condition" means a change in the claimant's physical or mental condition and does not include a change in his economic conditions. Lucero v. Climax Molybdenum Co., 710 P.2d 1191 (Colo. App. 1985), aff'd, 732 P. 2d 642 (Colo. 1987); Brasher v. Indus. Comm'n, 717 P.2d 990 (Colo. App. 1986), aff'd sub nom. Lucero v. Climax Molybdenum Co., 732 P. 2d 642 (Colo. 1987).

The phrase "change in condition" in this section refers to a change in the physical condition of claimant and not to changes in economic circumstances alone. George v. Indus. Comm'n, 720 P.2d 624 (Colo. App. 1986).

"Change in condition" exception applies to the physical condition of an injured worker and is inapplicable where the injured worker dies and the disability benefits are replaced by death benefits payable to the decedent's dependents. Ward v. Ward, 928 P.2d 739 (Colo. App. 1996).

"Change in condition" refers to the underlying condition, not to a change in the medication used to treat it. Richards v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 996 P.2d 756 (Colo. App. 2000).

The word "mistake", as used in this section, means any mistake, whether of law or fact. State Comp. Ins. Fund v. Indus. Comm'n, 80 Colo. 130, 249 P. 653 (1926); Gregorich v. Indus. Comm'n, 117 Colo. 423, 188 P.2d 886 (1948).

A "mistake of law" which justifies reopening of a workers' compensation matter under this section may be established if an original order is inconsistent with a subsequent judicial interpretation of a controlling statutory provision. Further, it is immaterial to the reopening analysis under the foregoing statutory criteria whether the prior order premised on a mistake of law has been upheld by an appellate court. Renz v. Larimer County Sch. Dist. Poudre R-1, 924 P.2d 1177 (Colo. App. 1996); Cesario v. Bldg. Servs. Sys. Inc., 962 P.2d 292 (Colo. App. 1997).

Mistake of fact may result when the state of the medical art advances to the point that new evidence becomes available, and such new evidence was not and could not have been previously available to the treating physician. Standard Metals Corp. v. Gallegos, 781 P.2d 142 (Colo. App. 1989).

Mistake in diagnosis held sufficient to justify reopening a claim. Berg v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 128 P.3d 270 (Colo. App. 2005).

Parties' mistaken belief that claimant was ineligible for dependent benefits constituted sufficient basis for reopening the case. Exeter Drilling v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 801 P.2d 20 (Colo. App. 1990).

"Mistake" includes fraud. Lewis v. Scientific Supply Co., Inc., 897 P.2d 905 (Colo. App. 1995).

But the words "due and payable" present a slight ambiguity as here used, because the general assembly has not stated whether it applies to commuted payments or to periodic payments or to a combination of such payments. Univ. of Denver v. Indus. Comm'n, 138 Colo. 505, 335 P.2d 292 (1959).

In any event, a payment of compensation cannot be "due and payable" when it never has been considered or ordered. Dr. Pepper Bottling Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 134 Colo. 238, 301 P.2d 710 (1956).

Payment in full does not bar the review under this section. Employers' Mut. Ins. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 83 Colo. 315, 265 P. 99 (1928); Employers' Mut. Ins. Co. v. Jacoe, 102 Colo. 515, 81 P.2d 389 (1938).

Nor does the failure to award claimant any compensation. The failure of the commission to award claimant any compensation did not operate to prevent that body, by a supplemental or subsequent award, if it had jurisdiction to make a supplemental award, from providing compensation in such sum as it deemed the evidence warranted. This would be proper under this section because an award of a substantial sum would be a larger sum than no award at all. Indus. Comm'n v. Employers' Liab. Assurance Corp., 78 Colo. 267, 241 P. 729 (1925).

A reopening under subsection (1) reopens an award not just specific issues raised by claimant in a petition to reopen. Avalanche Indus. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 166 P.3d 147 (Colo. App. 2007), aff'd on other grounds, 198 P.3d 589 (Colo. 2008).

Reopening a case is not warranted if, once reopened, no additional benefits may be awarded. Richards v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 996 P.2d 756 (Colo. App. 2000).

Commission not required to give reason for reopening case. Colo. Fuel & Iron Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 85 Colo. 237, 275 P. 910 (1929).

Likewise, it is not obligated to state the reasons for refusal to reopen a case. Kokel v. Indus. Comm'n, 111 Colo. 188, 139 P.2d 259 (1943); Beckley v. Indus. Comm'n, 112 Colo. 135, 146 P.2d 990 (1944); Maryland Cas. Co. v. Kravig, 153 Colo. 282, 385 P.2d 669 (1963); Hoover v. Indus. Comm'n, 156 Colo. 147, 397 P.2d 223 (1964); Serv. Supply Co. v. Vallejos, 169 Colo. 14, 452 P.2d 387 (1969).

Since the question of the right to reopen a workmen's compensation case is jurisdictional, a denial of the petition to reopen requires no findings. Maryland Cas. Co. v. Kravig, 153 Colo. 282, 385 P.2d 669 (1963); Hoover v. Indus. Comm'n, 156 Colo. 147, 397 P.2d 223 (1964).

To warrant a reopening of a case, it is not necessary to make a showing that a worker's industrial disability has increased because a reopening is also appropriate where additional medical and temporary disability benefits are warranted. Dorman v. B & W Const. Co., 765 P.2d 1033 (Colo. App. 1988).

An authorized treating physician's finding of increased impairment does not require re- opening as a matter of law. Heinicke v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 197 P.3d 220 (Colo. App. 2008).

Even if the evidence does not support the denial, no error occurs because in this type of reopening, being jurisdictional, no findings are required. Hoover v. Indus. Comm'n, 156 Colo. 147, 397 P.2d 223 (1964).

Only if a petition to reopen is granted are specific findings mandatory as to the particular error, mistake, or change of condition. Sherratt v. Rocky Mt. Fuel Co., 94 Colo. 369, 30 P.2d 270 (1934); Rocky Mt. Fuel Co. v. Canivez, 96 Colo. 198, 40 P.2d 618 (1935); Rocky Mt. Fuel Co. v. Sherratt, 96 Colo. 463, 45 P.2d 643 (1935); Mishmish v. Hayden Coal Co., 98 Colo. 373, 56 P.2d 21 (1936); Century Indem. Co. v. Klipfel, 99 Colo. 213, 61 P.2d 842 (1936); Nat'l Lumber & Creosoting Co. v. Kelly, 99 Colo. 442, 63 P.2d 457 (1936); Allan v. Gadbois, 100 Colo. 141, 66 P.2d 331 (1937); Kokel v. Indus. Comm'n, 111 Colo. 188, 139 P.2d 259 (1943); Maryland Cas. Co. v. Kravig, 153 Colo. 282, 385 P.2d 669 (1963); Hoover v. Indus. Comm'n, 156 Colo. 147, 397 P.2d 223 (1964).

When acting on a petition to reopen, the industrial commission is required to include findings concerning workers' compensation claimant's request for vocational rehabilitation in its order where claimant was potentially entitled to vocational rehabilitation based on industrial disability. George v. Indus. Comm'n, 720 P.2d 624 (Colo. App. 1986).

Finding of director on employee's application for admission to major medical fund was not binding on hearing officer concerning employee's petition to reopen and in determining whether employee was entitled to additional benefits. Brothers v. Indus. Comm'n, 733 P.2d 1217 (Colo. App. 1987).

For once having reopened a case the commission is obligated to decide the issues presented in all respects, as upon original hearing. Cain v. Indus. Comm'n, 136 Colo. 227, 315 P.2d 823 (1957).

After reopening, an order dismissing application to reopen will not be upheld. Where the commission reopens a case, holds a hearing and takes evidence, an order providing that a claimant's application to reopen the case is dismissed will not be upheld. Cain v. Indus. Comm'n, 136 Colo. 227, 315 P.2d 823 (1957).

Furthermore, an order denying a petition to reopen a claim entered without hearing or notice to the claimant is invalid and the director of the division of labor has jurisdiction to correct the error. James v. Irrigation Motor & Pump Co., 180 Colo. 195, 503 P.2d 1025 (1972).

Likewise, once an award is reopened, the commission is required to give notice of a hearing to the parties interested, and to make specific findings of fact as to the error or mistake or change of condition, whether it modifies the original award or affirms it. Serv. Supply Co. v. Vallejos, 169 Colo. 14, 452 P.2d 387 (1969).

Director must give notice of claims. The director who reopens the case on his own motion must necessarily give the opposing parties notice as of the claims they will be required to defend. Berkley Moving & Storage Co. v. Eubank, 193 Colo. 334, 566 P.2d 359 (1977).

When the director reopens a case on his own motion, notice must be given to opposing parties of the claims they would be required to defend. Gates Rubber Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 647 P.2d 244 (Colo. App. 1982).

Notice to interested parties. The essential requirement of this section is that the claimant give the commission notice of his intention to reopen the award. State Comp. Ins. Fund v. Indus. Comm'n, 697 P.2d 807 (Colo. App. 1985).

After an award becomes final, the only way the case may be reopened is by the commission upon its own motion. Clayton Coal Co. v. Zak, 94 Colo. 171, 29 P.2d 374 (1933); Indus. Comm'n v. Kokel, 108 Colo. 353, 116 P.2d 915 (1941).

Since the courts have no authority to order a reopening. Wintoroth v. Indus. Comm'n, 93 Colo. 38, 22 P.2d 865 (1933).

In absence of formal award, the approval of an admission of liability coupled with payments constitutes award. Although no formal award was ever ordered, the commission does not retain continuing jurisdiction, since the action which the commission took when it approved the insurance carrier admission of general liability together with the payment to the claimant of benefits constituted an award for all intents and purposes under the statute. Harlan v. Indus. Comm'n, 167 Colo. 413, 447 P.2d 1009 (1968); Irrigation Motor & Pump Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 30 Colo. App. 289, 494 P.2d 144 (1971).

Last payment operates to close matter of award. Under the clear provision of this section it is the last payment of benefits which is significant and which operates to close the matter of an award. Harlan v. Indus. Comm'n, 167 Colo. 413, 447 P.2d 1009 (1968).

But order reopening award is not final award. An order reopening an award for purpose of determining whether mistake, error, or change of condition is present is not a final order and is not reviewable by the courts, only awards which are final being reviewable. Stanley Hotel v. Thomas, 153 Colo. 503, 387 P.2d 27 (1963).

If an order grants or denies temporary benefits and does not address the issue of permanent benefits, but expressly reserves jurisdiction over the latter subject, no award has been entered, and thus, no petition for reopening is required, until a proper order closing the matter is entered. Brown & Root v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 833 P.2d 780 (Colo. App.

1991); El Paso County DSS v. Donn, 865 P.2d 877 (Colo. App. 1993).

The commission retains jurisdiction to deal with any further disability appearing that can be directly traced to the original injury if such appears for consideration within the six-year period of limitations provided by this section. It makes no difference if the disability manifests itself at first or at a later time. Compensation is to be allowed for such further disability, within the limitation period, even though it was not contemplated in the first award. Safeway Stores v. Newman, 123 Colo. 362, 230 P.2d 168 (1951).

Evidentiary hearing required upon petition to reopen. A petition to reopen, under this section, based on alleged error, mistake or change in condition after a final order of the commission, requires the referee (now hearing officer) to hold a further evidentiary hearing. Eisnach v. Indus. Comm'n, 633 P.2d 502 (Colo. App. 1981).

Testimony of medical experts and lay witnesses is competent as to changes in claimant's physical condition and the weight to be given to such testimony is a matter for the commission. Wierman v. Tunnell, 108 Colo. 544, 120 P.2d 638 (1941).

Continued medical treatment is not inconsistent with award of permanent partial disability. Though worker may reach maximum medical improvement, continued medical treatment may be necessary to prevent deterioration in worker's physical condition. Grover v. Indus. Comm'n, 759 P.2d 705 (Colo. 1988).

Use of word "award" by commission to designate the decision not to reopen a case under the provisions of this section is not to be commended, since that word properly designates only a decision upon the merits of a presented claim. Indus. Comm'n v. Kokel, 108 Colo. 353, 116 P.2d 915 (1941).

Error by ALJ referring to claimant meeting her "burden of proof in establishing a worsening of condition" was harmless where ALJ focused on causation between the industrial injury and claimant's back condition. El Paso County DSS v. Donn, 865 P.2d 877 (Colo. App. 1993).

Administrative law judge's order that reserved jurisdiction over permanent disability benefits is not an award under this section. Thus, a petition to reopen claim to pursue such benefits is not required until an order is entered that closes the matter. Brown & Root v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 833 P.2d 780 (Colo. App. 1992).

Determination of whether a prior order constitutes an "award" within the meaning of this section requires an analysis of the prior order itself and cannot be made by application of a "same issue" or "res judicata" analysis.

A medical utilization review order under § 8-43-501 is not an award within the scope of this section and the director is not authorized to reopen such an order. Cramer v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 885 P.2d 318 (Colo. App. 1994).

In considering the propriety of reviewing an award the commission is not required to conduct a hearing to determine the validity of the facts recited in the petition therefor where in its opinion such facts, if accepted as alleged, would present no basis for reopening the final award. Contes v. Metros, 113 Colo. 1, 153 P.2d 1000 (1944).

Excusable neglect is not a ground for reopening. Klosterman v. Indus. Comm'n, 694 P.2d 873 (Colo. App. 1984).

The word "work" in this section has not been interpreted to mean "all work". Instead, where a claimant possesses residual unimpaired job skills, the critical inquiry is whether these skills are such as to enable the claimant to obtain suitable, remunerative employment. Osborne v. Indus. Comm'n, 725 P.2d 63 (Colo. App. 1986).

The same inquiry is appropriate whether or not the claimant has used these residual skills to obtain employment. Otherwise, any claimant who, because of necessity or efforts to make the best of his misfortune, has accepted unsuitable or unremunerative employment would be disqualified from vocational rehabilitation. Osborne v. Indus. Comm'n, 725 P.2d 63 (Colo. App. 1986).

Settlement agreement in workers' compensation case may relinquish any no-fault auto benefit claims. Settlement agreement in workers' compensation case which waived future medical and rehabilitation benefits under workers' compensation act resulted in relinquishment of claims for benefits under no-fault act as a result of § 10-4-707 (5). Comiskey v. Valley Forge Ins. Co., 781 P.2d 188 (Colo. App. 1989).

Administrative law judge properly found settlement was voidable on ground claimant was mentally incompetent at time he entered into settlement agreement. Powderhorn Coal Co. v. Weaver, 835 P.2d 616 (Colo. App. 1992).

Applied in Colo. Auto Body, Inc. v. Newton, 160 Colo. 113, 414 P.2d 480 (1966); Dziewior v. Michigan Gen. Corp., 672 P.2d 1026 (Colo. App. 1983); Chavez v. Indus. Comm'n, 714 P.2d 1328 (Colo. App. 1985); Swerdfeger v. Swerdfeger, 793 P.2d 618 (Colo. App. 1990).

B. Statute of Limitations.

Statutes of limitation are remedial in nature. The application of a remedial statute of limitation to an existing claim for relief does not violate the prohibition against retrospective legislation. Vetten v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 986 P.2d 983 (Colo. App. 1999).

Time limits on the ability to reopen are necessary to avoid inherent administrative and practical difficulties such as the proof problems associated with old injuries, the need to preserve full case records indefinitely, and the inability of insurance carriers to predict their future liability. Calvert v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 155 P.3d 474 (Colo. App. 2006).

The time limits set forth in this section operate as a statute of limitations and apply when complications develop directly from the original injury, even if the claimant attempts to classify the condition as a new disability. Calvert v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 155 P.3d 474 (Colo. App. 2006).

Review barred by lapse of time. Where more than six years have elapsed from the date of an accident before claimant's "petition to reopen" is filed, and more than two years have expired after the approval of the statutory amendment, declining to reopen the case under this section is correct. Brofman v. Indus. Comm'n, 117 Colo. 248, 186 P.2d 585 (1947).

The statute of limitations does not begin to run until the award is in fact made. Dr. Pepper Bottling Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 134 Colo. 238, 301 P.2d 710 (1956).

Distinction between triggering events. Aside from the general six-year limitation period in subsection (1), there is a two-year limitation period under subsection (2)(b) that is specifically applicable to medical benefits. Calvert v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 155 P.3d 474 (Colo. App. 2006).

The six-year period of limitation begins running on the date of injury. The limitation period is not extended when changes of condition manifest themselves after the period has expired. Thye v. Vermeer Sales & Serv., 662 P.2d 188 (Colo. App. 1983).

Statute of limitation for reopening workers' compensation claim begins to run from the date of the onset of disability, and not from the date of the last exposure to the occupational disease. Because claimant's petition to reopen was filed more than six years after the date of the onset of disability, that claim is barred from being reopened under this section. Ortiz v. Charles J. Murphy & Co., 964 P.2d 595 (Colo. App. 1998).

The "last injurious exposure rule" governs the apportionment of liability for an occupational disease between multiple employers or insurers, but does not determine the date on which a claimant has sustained a compensable occupational disease. Ortiz v. Charles J. Murphy & Co., 964 P.2d 595 (Colo. App. 1998).

For purposes of this section, the onset of disability occurs when the occupational disease impairs the claimant's ability effectively and properly to perform his or her regular employment, or rendered the claimant incapable of returning to work except in a restricted capacity.

Ricks v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 809 P.2d 1118 (Colo. App. 1991); Ortiz v. Charles J. Murphy & Co., 964 P.2d 595 (Colo. App. 1998).

Time within which commission can reopen fixed as of date of final award. The time provided by this section within which the commission can reopen a case on any of the statutory grounds becomes fixed as of the date of a final award regardless of whether the sum is paid periodically or later commuted. Univ. of Denver v. Indus. Comm'n, 138 Colo. 505, 335 P.2d 292 (1959).

If only one claim for dependency benefits has been filed, the time period for filing a petition to reopen is governed by the payment of compensation to any dependent listed in the initial claim. Exeter Drilling v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 801 P.2d 20 (Colo. App. 1990).

In case of full payment, statute of limitations based on termination date if paid periodically. Where a claimant under the workmen's compensation statute has been awarded compensation and has received a lump sum in settlement and executed a receipt therefor acknowledging it to be received in full payment of the award for all injuries or disablement, the statutory period of time under this section, relating to the time within which the commission may reopen the case due to a change in condition begins to run, not from, the date of the payment, but from the date when periodic payments would terminate if such payments were made in monthly installments as originally ordered. Univ. of Denver v. Indus. Comm'n, 138 Colo. 505, 335 P.2d 292 (1959).

However, where award operates retroactively, statute runs from date award ordered. Where an award of compensation is made to operate retroactively, the statute of limitations governing such claim under the workmen's compensation act runs from the date on which the commission orders the award to be made, rather than from the date the last payment would have been made had there been continuous monthly payments during the time covered by the final award. Dr. Pepper Bottling Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 134 Colo. 238, 301 P.2d 710 (1956).

Thus, the statute of limitations applies differently where no compensation has been paid than it does where compensation has been paid. James v. Irrigation Motor & Pump Co., 180 Colo. 195, 503 P.2d 1025 (1972).

The time limitation of this section is not a limitation of authority or jurisdiction. Ball v. Indus. Comm'n, 30 Colo. App. 583, 503 P.2d 1040 (1972).

Rather, the limitation is a legal defense which may be pled as a bar to a claim. Ball v. Indus. Comm'n, 30 Colo. App. 583, 503 P.2d 1040 (1972).

And if it were held that the time limit in this section was jurisdictional, it would be denying assistance to workers who are unable to act within the statutory period for reasons commonly recognized as sufficient to prevent the barring of a cause of action. Ball v. Indus. Comm'n, 30 Colo. App. 583, 503 P.2d 1040 (1972).

Petition to reopen received before the time for review expires tolls the statute pending final determination of the petition. Irrigation Motor & Pump Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 30 Colo. App. 289, 494 P.2d 144 (1971); James v. Irrigation Motor & Pump Co., 180 Colo. 195, 503 P.2d 1025 (1972).

Failure to notify claimant's attorney of admission of liability tolls the two-year statute of limitations. Hall v. Home Furniture Co., 724 P.2d 94 (Colo. App. 1986).

Statute of limitations remains tolled until final disposition of appeal and subsequent proceedings directed as a result thereof, where prior action which determines the propriety of a petition to reopen remains unresolved, and where such prior claim was timely and limitation period expired during substantial delay unattributable to claimant. Valdez v. United Parcel Serv., 728 P.2d 340 (Colo. App. 1986).

Voluntary authorization of additional medical treatment by former employer after order closing case was issued effectively extended the time within which the claimant could file a petition to reopen the case for additional medical benefits. Garrett v. Arrowhead Imp. Ass'n, 815 P.2d 979 (Colo. App. 1991).

Once the statute of limitations is raised as an affirmative defense, the burden shifts to the plaintiff to show that the statute has been tolled. Garrett v. Arrowhead Imp. Ass'n, 826 P.2d 850 (Colo. 1992).

Equity will toll a statute of limitations if a party fails to disclose information that the party is legally required to reveal when such failure results in prejudice to the opposing party. Garrett v. Arrowhead Imp. Ass'n, 826 P.2d 850 (Colo. 1992).

Determination as to whether two-year statute of limitations on a petition to reopen the issue of permanent disability should have been equitably tolled requires factual finding as to whether claimant was prejudiced by failure of employer to furnish claimant with a copy of a medical report disclosing a worsened medical condition. Garrett v. Arrowhead Imp. Ass'n, 826 P.2d 850 (Colo. 1992).

And once a claimant properly files his notice within the statutory period, he is within its protection. Mascitelli v. Giuliano & Sons Coal Co., 157 Colo. 240, 402 P.2d 192 (1965).

Filing a notice to have a claim reopened before the end of the period effectively tolls the running of the statute. Claimant's petition to reopen his claim was not time barred, and the six-year period to reopen a claim is tolled on the date claimant files a petition to reopen. Fed.

Express v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 51 P.3d 1107 (Colo. App. 2002).

Determination of jurisdiction is only a determination that statute has not run. A determination by the commission that it has jurisdiction to decide whether there was error, mistake, or a change in a claimant's condition, and to enter an award of further compensation if it finds that such error, mistake, or change of condition is present, is a determination by the commission only that the six-year statute of limitations has not run of the particular case before it. As such it was not a final order of the commission. Stanley Hotel v. Thomas, 153 Colo. 503, 387 P.2d 27 (1963).

Effect of disability of claimant on statute of limitations. The time limitation of the statute which allows the director to change previous awards within six years of an accident is tolled by § 13-81-103 which provides that if a person who has a right of action and is under disability is represented by legal representative appointed after the right accrues, the representative has not less than two years from his appointment to bring action for the disabled person even though the two-year period expires after the expiration of the six-year period. Ball v. Indus. Comm'n, 30 Colo. App. 583, 503 P.2d 1040 (1972).

If injured employee was under disability at time his right to compensation occurred and continued to be under disability at time he filed petition to reopen, the statute of limitations could not run against employee for whom a legal representative had not been appointed. James v. Brookhart Lumber Co., 727 P.2d 1119 (Colo. App. 1986).

A DIME is not a medical benefit, therefore it does not extend the statute of limitations period to reopen an award set forth in subsection (2)(b). Jones v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 216 P.3d 619 (Colo. App. 2009).

The defense of laches is not available where the award is made under this provision. Employers' Mut. Ins. Co. v. Jacoe, 102 Colo. 515, 81 P.2d 389 (1938).

Review of invalid award is without legal effect. Where a review under § 8-53-106 (now § 8-53-111) is void because no petition therefor was filed in apt time, a subsequent review upon the commission's own motion, pursuant to this section, conducted without notice to the employer or insurance carrier, does not validate the award made on the first review, and the entire proceedings are without legal effect. Tyler v. Hagerman, 88 Colo. 60, 291 P. 1033 (1930).

Industrial commission was not proper forum in which to raise or decide the issue of whether workers' compensation claimant was under a disability for purposes of tolling workers' compensation statute of limitations. An interested person must petition the court for a specific finding as to the existence of a legal disability. James v. Brookhart Lumber Co., 727

P.2d 1119 (Colo. App. 1986) (decided prior to 1986 abolishment of industrial commission).

II. DISCRETIONARY POWER OF REVIEW.

A. In General.

Under this section the commission has power to review any award. Coursey v. Indus. Comm'n, 83 Colo. 490, 267 P. 202 (1928).

The reopening authority under the provisions of this section is permissive and is in the sound discretion of the administrative law judge. The appropriate inquiry is whether the claimant has suffered a deterioration in his condition that justifies additional benefits. Maximum medical improvement evidence would be relevant, but the original determination is not questioned. Therefore, the opinion of a division-sponsored independent medical examination carries no special weight and need not be overcome by clear and convincing evidence. The opinions of such a physician have only been given presumptive effect when expressly required by the statute. Cordova v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 55 P.3d 186 (Colo. App. 2002).

Effect of settlements on reopening. In view of prior cases, the beneficial purposes of the act and the language of § 8-51-108 and this section, the conclusion is inescapable that the general assembly has given the director authority to reopen a case within requisite time limitations regardless of whether there was a settlement. Padilla v. Indus. Comm'n, 696 P.2d 273 (Colo. 1985) (decided prior to 1985 amendment).

A judgment of the district court that an award of the commission is in full force and effect gives it no additional virtue; it is still an award subject to modification or vacation by it, under the powers conferred by this section. Coursey v. Indus. Comm'n, 83 Colo. 490, 267 P. 202 (1928).

A bona fide settlement is the equivalent of an award or judgment reached upon evidence. In the absence of proof that fraud was practiced or that a fundamental mistake occurred without the fault of the claimant, it is presumed that the facts upon which a compensation settlement is based were fully presented to each other by the contracting parties. Independence Coffee & Spice Co. v. Taylor, 97 Colo. 242, 48 P.2d 798 (1935).

And may be held conclusive. An amicable, bona fide settlement between an employer and an employee of a claim for injuries sustained in the course of employment by the latter, and which is approved by the commission, held conclusive under the circumstances of the case, and the action of the commission in reopening the case on its own motion and making an award of compensation for permanent injuries 10 years after the happening of the accident under investigation, is set aside. Independence Coffee & Spice Co. v. Taylor, 97 Colo. 242, 48 P.2d 798 (1935), distinguishing London Guarantee & Accident Co. v. Sauer, 92 Colo. 565, 22 P.2d 624 (1933).

However, parties cannot by contract abrogate requirements of conditions affecting public policy. While in the usual contractual sense, the payment of an award in a lump sum leaves nothing further due and payable to a claimant, parties cannot by private contract abrogate statutory requirements of conditions affecting the public policy of the state. Univ. of Denver v. Indus. Comm'n, 138 Colo. 505, 335 P.2d 292 (1959).

The power given to the commission to review an award of its own motion is discretionary. State Comp. Ins. Fund v. Indus. Comm'n, 80 Colo. 130, 249 P. 653 (1926); Mantor v. Indus. Comm'n, 89 Colo. 90, 299 P. 11 (1931); Indus. Comm'n v. Lockard, 90 Colo. 333, 9 P.2d 286 (1932); Winteroth v. Indus. Comm'n, 93 Colo. 38, 22 P.2d 865 (1933); Pollard v. Indus. Comm'n, 95 Colo. 572, 37 P.2d 1093 (1934).

This section confers ample power upon the commission to reopen a case in its sound discretion for a supplemental hearing whenever any natural development of an industrial injury, uninfluenced by an independent intervening cause, becomes apparent. Post Printing & Publ'g Co. v. Erickson, 94 Colo. 382, 30 P.2d 327 (1934); Employers Mut. Ins. Co. v. Jacoe, 102 Colo. 515, 81 P.2d 389 (1938).

Discretion of commission is absolute. When a matter is before the commission, on its own motion to reopen on the ground of error, mistake or change of condition after a notice of hearing to the interested parties, the problem of making a prima facie showing and thereby shifting the burden of proof to the defendants does not arise. The discretion of the commission, in the absence of fraud or a clear abuse of discretion, has been held to be absolute. Hoover v. Indus. Comm'n, 156 Colo. 147, 397 P.2d 223 (1964).

And this section is a permissive statute. It permits, but does not require, the commission to reopen a case upon certain grounds. Mantor v. Indus. Comm'n, 89 Colo. 90, 299 P. 11 (1931); Indus. Comm'n v. Cutshall, 164 Colo. 240, 433 P.2d 765 (1967).

This section is a permissive statute. This section is purely permissive and vests broad discretion to reopen or not to reopen a case in the commission of the division of labor, subject to review by the commission. Wallace v. Indus. Comm'n, 629 P.2d 1091 (Colo. App. 1981).

But the commission cannot change its findings and award, once made, through caprice or without stated reasons; but there will be no interference with its discretion to review its findings and change its award — unless there is an abuse of discretion or a showing of fraud — when there is evidence which will reasonably support a change. Rocky Mt. Fuel Co. v. Canivez, 96 Colo. 198, 40 P.2d 618 (1935).

Referee's (now hearing officer's) mistake of law provides ample cause for reopening claimant's case. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 646 P.2d 399 (Colo. App. 1981).

B. Abuse of Discretion.

The discretion of the director in reopening claims is absolute unless there is fraud or a clear abuse of discretion. In re Brunetti v. Indus. Comm'n, 670 P.2d 1246 (Colo. App. 1983); Osborne v. Indus. Comm'n, 725 P.2d 63 (Colo. App. 1986); Wilson v. Jim Snyder Drilling, 747 P.2d 647 (Colo. 1987).

The court will not interfere with the commission's (now director's) actions except in case of fraud or abuse of discretion. State Comp. Ins. Fund v. Indus. Comm'n, 80 Colo. 130, 249 P. 653 (1926); Mantor v. Indus. Comm'n, 89 Colo. 90, 299 P. 11 (1931); Indus. Comm'n v. Lockard, 89 Colo. 428, 3 P.2d 416 (1931); Lockard v. Indus. Comm'n, 91 Colo. 212, 13 P.2d 1117 (1932); Pollard v. Indus. Comm'n, 95 Colo. 572, 37 P.2d 1093 (1934); Indus. Comm'n v. Kokel, 108 Colo. 353, 116 P.2d 915 (1941); Kokel v. Indus. Comm'n, 111 Colo. 188, 139 P.2d 259 (1943); Beckley v. Indus. Comm'n, 112 Colo. 135, 146 P.2d 990 (1944); Contes v. Metros, 113 Colo. 1, 153 P.2d 1000 (1944); Cain v. Indus. Comm'n, 136 Colo. 227, 315 P.2d 823 (1957); Indus. Comm'n v. Vigil, 150 Colo. 356, 373 P.2d 308 (1962); Indus. Comm'n v. Cutshall, 164 Colo. 240, 433 P.2d 765 (1967); Travelers Ins. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 646 P.2d 399 (Colo. App. 1981); Osborne v. Indus. Comm'n, 725 P.2d 63 (Colo. App. 1986).

Evidence failing to show abuse of discretion in refusing to reopen. Where employee failed to mention to the original attending physicians an alleged ankle injury in addition to a knee injury for which he was allowed compensation, upon which his request for a reopening was based, and none of those physicians discovered any simultaneous injury to the ankle on the very leg examined by them shortly after the accident to the knee, the evidence failed to show that the commission abused its discretion in refusing to reopen the case for purpose of showing injury to the ankle. Indus. Comm'n v. Kokel, 108 Colo. 353, 116 P.2d 915 (1941); Kokel v. Indus. Comm'n, 111 Colo. 188, 139 P.2d 259 (1943).

Where a doctor's report was sufficient to assist the division in determining whether claimant could present a prima facie case of changed condition, the failure of the hearing officer to deny claimant's petition to reopen for failure to comply with a commission rule requiring the doctor's report to contain an estimate of the percentage of impairment and the additional periods of temporary disability, if any, did not constitute an abuse of discretion. Osborne v. Indus. Comm'n, 725 P.2d 63 (Colo. App. 1986).

And to justify a court in interfering the showing of fraud or of an abuse of discretion must be very clear indeed. Pollard v. Indus. Comm'n, 95 Colo. 572, 37 P.2d 1093 (1934); Contes v. Metros, 113 Colo. 1, 153 P.2d 1000 (1944).

But courts may require the commission to exercise its discretion in a proper case. Lockard v. Indus. Comm'n, 91 Colo. 212, 13 P.2d 1117 (1932).

And this is true where the refusal is based upon the erroneous view that the commission has no jurisdiction. Indus. Comm'n v. Lockard, 89 Colo. 428, 3 P.2d 416 (1931); Gregorich v. Indus. Comm'n, 117 Colo. 423, 118 P.2d 886 (1948).

If fraud or abuse of discretion is shown, the case should be remanded to the commission for further proceedings. Indus. Comm'n v. Lockard, 90 Colo. 333, 9 P.2d 286 (1932).

But no abuse of discretion when right to review lost by inaction. The fact that the director refused to reopen a case to permit him to substitute action under this section for the right to review granted him by § 8-53-106 (now § 8-53-111) which he lost by inaction, does not amount to an abuse of discretion. Indus. Comm'n v. Cutshall, 164 Colo. 240, 433 P.2d 765 (1967); Colo. Dept. of Agric. v. Wayne, 30 Colo. App. 311, 493 P.2d 683 (1971).

And court cannot demand statement of commission's reasons for refusing to review. On review by district court of proceedings before the commission, an order of court calling for a statement of the reasons for the refusal to reopen the case for further proceedings on its own motion is erroneous. Indus. Comm'n v. Lockard, 90 Colo. 333, 9 P.2d 286 (1932).

III. CHANGE OF AWARD.

Where commission changes award it is assumed that commission concluded that it had previously erred. Where the commission on its own motion enters a supplemental award of compensation for permanent disability, the original award being for temporary disability only, it will be assumed on review that the commission concluded that it had previously erred, and an award correcting the error will not be disturbed. Clayton Coal Co. v. Zak, 94 Colo. 171, 29 P.2d 374 (1933).

Example of error by commission. If the commission was led or induced to find from the showing on a hearing that a claimant's injury was not suffered in the course of his employment, but was due to diseases from which he suffered long before, and if the evidence then produced before the commission upon which such finding was made was false or perjured testimony, the commission might, according to the plain terms of this section, set aside its award or order and enter a different award if the showing before it was sufficient to prove that the finding was based upon false testimony. It certainly was an error or mistake upon the part of the commission, if it was led by the false testimony of a witness to believe, and so find, that the injury sustained by the claimant was not received in the course of his employment. Indus. Comm'n v. Employers' Liab. Assurance Corp., 78 Colo. 267, 241 P. 729 (1925).

Issues on reopening are whether original award in conformity with law and supported by evidence. Where the commission reopens a case on its own motion, sets a date for a hearing, and holds a hearing pursuant thereto, the issues are then the same as those presented in any other action for a review of a decision of the commission, namely, whether the award was entered in conformity with the law and supported by competent evidence. Cain v. Indus. Comm'n, 136 Colo. 227, 315 P.2d 823 (1957).

A subsequent award will affect an earlier award as to moneys already paid only if the claimant is required actually to pay back moneys from the initial award. Kuziel v. Pet Fair, Inc., 948 P.2d 103 (Colo. App. 1997).

Awards which change or modify the effect of the original award must be based upon specific findings supported by competent evidence. Sherratt v. Rocky Mt. Fuel Co., 94 Colo. 269, 30 P.2d 270 (1934).

And if not they cannot be affirmed by the courts. Sherratt v. Rocky Mt. Fuel Co., 94 Colo. 269, 30 P.2d 270 (1934).

For example, a finding that a "mistake in all probability existed in the receipt of testimony at original hearing" does not meet the mandatory requirements of a specific finding of error, mistake, or change of condition justifying the reopening of an award. Maryland Cas. Co. v. Kravig, 153 Colo. 282, 385 P.2d 669 (1963).

Sufficiency of commission's reason for change. The finding "that on prior reviews, the commission improperly weighed the evidence", would be a sufficient statement of a conclusion upon which to grant a rehearing, and on such rehearing — if the same conclusion persisted — to change the award, there being a sufficient statement of reasons for the change, but to enter an award upon the simple statement that the evidence had been improperly weighed on prior reviews, and to do so without additional hearings, or evidence, and this upon the heels of consistent contrary findings, establishes with crystal clearness that the prohibited "change of mind" without stated reasons, occurred. Allan v. Gadbois, 100 Colo. 141, 66 P.2d 331 (1937).

Sufficient evidence to justify extended award. Where new evidence is to the effect that claimant's injury is more extensive than had appeared from an earlier inquiry, not that his condition had "become worse", as the commission recited, the import of the finding is that from the beginning claimant's condition justified the extended award. The evidence warranted that determination, and the law authorized it. The procedure was apt. Rocky Mt. Fuel Co. v. Canivez, 96 Colo. 198, 40 P.2d 618 (1935); Moffat Coal Co. v. Podbelsk, 96 Colo. 355, 42 P.2d 1001 (1935); Century Indem. Co. v. Klipfel, 99 Colo. 213, 61 P.2d 842 (1936).

Findings by the hearing officer were supported by substantial evidence and therefore not subject to alteration by the commission. Matter of Death of Corbin, 724 P.2d 677 (Colo. App. 1986).

Effect of change of award on moneys already paid. Where claimant's final receipt for temporary disability was approved "subject to any future claim for disability as provided by law", and upon further hearing, it was determined that claimant was totally and permanently disabled, that such disability was due to the accident, and accordingly he was awarded compensation for his lifetime, it was held that the "moneys already paid" were for temporary disability only, whereas the moneys ordered paid on the subsequent hearing were for permanent disability only; hence the prohibition of this section did not apply. Russell Coal Co. v. Zinge, 112 Colo. 171, 147 P.2d 365 (1944); Moffat Coal Co. v. Giankos, 112 Colo. 585, 152 P.2d 681 (1944).

Where rehearing of change of award allowed. There being no evidence whatever concerning error in the prior award, or any finding pointing out the possibility of such error, it is apparent that plaintiffs, affected by an increased award, had no way of anticipating it; that they were surprised thereby and were entitled to the rehearing for which they petitioned in due time. Nat'l Lumber & Creosoting Co. v. Kelly, 99 Colo. 442, 63 P.2d 457 (1936).

Award on review may be retroactive. This section does not provide that no review shall have a retroactive effect, or that no review shall affect a prior award as to any period for which payment has been made. The only limitation is that no review shall affect "moneys already paid". This limitation precludes the commission from finding that moneys already paid to a claimant under a previous award are not the property of the claimant and must be returned to the insurer. It does not preclude the commission from giving an award on review a retroactive effect so as to require the payment of additional compensation for a period before the previous award was reviewed. Morrison v. Clayton Coal Co., 116 Colo. 501, 181 P.2d 1011 (1947).

To warrant a reopening of a case, it is not necessary to make a showing that a worker's industrial disability has increased because a reopening is also appropriate where additional medical and temporary disability benefits are warranted. Dorman v. B & W Const. Co., 765 P.2d 1033 (Colo. App. 1988).

Neither this section nor § 8-42-107.5 addresses the situation of further temporary total disability benefits being awarded after the limit on combined temporary total and permanent partial benefits has been paid. But in view of underlying policies, in this situation the employer should be entitled to offset any permanent partial disability benefits paid against temporary total disability benefits. Donald B. Murphy Contractors v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 916 P.2d 611 (Colo. App. 1995).

8-43-304. Violations - penalty - offset for benefits obtained through fraud - rules.

(1) Any employer or insurer, or any officer or agent of either, or any employee, or any other person who violates any provision of articles 40 to 47 of this title, or does any act prohibited thereby, or fails or refuses to perform any duty lawfully enjoined within the time prescribed by the director or panel, for which no penalty has been specifically provided, or fails, neglects, or refuses to obey any lawful order made by the director or panel or any judgment or decree made by any court as provided by said articles shall be subject to such order being reduced to judgment by a court of competent jurisdiction and shall also be punished by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars per day for each such offense, to be apportioned, in whole or part, at the discretion of the director or administrative law judge, between the aggrieved party and the workers' compensation cash fund created in section 8-44-112 (7) (a); except that the amount apportioned to the aggrieved party shall be a minimum of fifty percent of any penalty assessed.

(1.5) (a) (I) An insurer who knowingly or repeatedly violates any provision of articles 40 to 47 of this title shall be subject to a fine as determined by the director. If necessary, the director may conduct a hearing or may refer the matter to the office of administrative courts for the entry of findings of fact. The director shall promulgate rules that specify, with respect to an insurer's willful or repeated violations that are subject to this subsection (1.5):

(A) The circumstances pursuant to which the director may issue an order imposing a fine; and

(B) Criteria for determining the amount of the fine.

(II) If the division determines, as part of a compliance audit of an insurer or self-insured pool, that an injury or occupational disease was not reported to the division within the time specified in sections 8-43-101 and 8-43-103 because the insurer or self-insured pool did not have notice or knowledge of the injury, occupational disease, or fatality within a period of time that would allow the information to be reported to the division within the time specified in sections 8-43-101 and 8-43-103, the director shall not impose a fine for late reporting under this subsection (1.5). The director may impose a fine under this subsection (1.5) for late reporting under sections 8-43-101 and 8-43-103 as part of findings from a compliance audit if the director finds that the late reporting constituted a knowing or repeated pattern of noncompliance with the reporting requirements of sections 8-43-101 and 8-43-103 and was not caused by the insurer or self-insured pool's lack of notice or knowledge of the injury, occupational disease, or fatality within a period of time that would allow the information to be reported to the division within the time specified in sections 8-43-101 and 8-43-103.

(b) Fines imposed pursuant to this subsection (1.5) shall be transmitted to the state treasurer, who shall credit seventy-five percent of such fines to the general fund and twenty-five percent to the workers' compensation cash fund, created in section 8-44-112.

(2) An insurer or self-insured employer may take a credit or offset of previously paid workers' compensation benefits or payments against any further workers' compensation benefits or payments due a worker when the worker admits to having obtained the previously paid benefits or payments through fraud, or a civil judgment or criminal conviction is entered against the worker for having obtained the previously paid benefits through fraud. Benefits or payments obtained through fraud by a worker shall not be included in any data used for rate-making or individual employer rating or dividend calculations by any insurer or by Pinnacol Assurance.

(3) The director and each administrative law judge shall report to the division each time a penalty is imposed pursuant to this section. Each such report shall include the amount of the penalty, the name of the administrative law judge awarding the penalty, if applicable, and the name of the offending party.

(4) In any application for hearing for any penalty pursuant to subsection (1) of this section, the applicant shall state with specificity the grounds on which the penalty is being asserted. After the date of mailing of such an application, an alleged violator shall have twenty days to cure the violation. If the violator cures the violation within such twenty-day period, and the party seeking such penalty fails to prove by clear and convincing evidence that the alleged violator knew or reasonably should have known such person was in violation, no penalty shall be assessed. The curing of the violation within the twenty-day period shall not establish that the violator knew or should have known that such person was in violation.

(5) A request for penalties shall be filed with the director or administrative law judge within one year after the date that the requesting party first knew or reasonably should have known the facts giving rise to a possible penalty.

Annotator's note. The following annotations include cases decided under former provisions similar to this section.

Subsection (1) does not violate a claimant's constitutional rights. A claimant's share of the penalty imposed on an employer may be reduced without effecting an unconstitutional taking of claimant's property. Moland v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 111 P.3d 507 (Colo. App. 2004).

The plain language of subsection (1) defines and limits a penalty and a resultant benefit in favor of a claimant, and the general assembly has the power and authority to set and limit benefits. Moland v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 111 P.3d 507 (Colo. App. 2004).

Subsection (1) applies only in the absence of another, more specific penalty provision. Sears v. Penrose Hosp., 942 P.2d 1345 (Colo.

App. 1997), overruled in Holliday v. Bestop, Inc., 23 P.3d 700 (Colo. 2001).

For purposes of the penalty provision in subsection (1), failure to comply with a procedural rule is a failure to obey a lawful order. Pioneers Hosp. of Rio Blanco County v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 114 P.3d 97 (Colo. App. 2005); Fera v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 169 P.3d 231 (Colo. App. 2007).

Where an employer does not obey a procedural rule requiring written notice and permission from the administrative law judge (ALJ) prior to taking a witness' deposition, the ALJ may impose a fine of up to $500 per day upon finding the employer's action to be unreasonable. Pioneers Hosp. of Rio Blanco County v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 114 P.3d 97 (Colo. App. 2005).

Penalties under subsection (1) for failing, neglecting, or refusing to obey "any lawful order made by the director or panel or any judgment or decree made by any court as provided by [the Workers' Compensation Act]" are available even though penalties for such conduct are elsewhere specifically provided in the Workers' Compensation Act. Holliday v. Bestop, Inc., 23 P.3d 700 (Colo. 2001) (overruling Sears v. Penrose Hosp., 942 P.2d 1345 (Colo. App. 1997)).

Penalties under subsection (1) do not apply to the Colorado insurance guaranty association (CIGA) by virtue of the immunity provided to CIGA in § 10-4-517, which is both more recent and more specific than this section. Mosley v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 119 P.3d 576 (Colo. App. 2005).

Under the rules of statutory construction, the phrase “for which no penalty has been specifically provided” defines “fails or refuses to perform any duty lawfully enjoined within the time prescribed by the director or panel”. The use of the disjunctive conjunction “or” demarcates four different acts within this section that give rise to penalties. Holliday v. Bestop, Inc., 23 P.3d 700 (Colo. 2001) (overruling Sears v. Penrose Hosp., 942 P.2d 1345 (Colo. App. 1997)).

The limiting clause “for which no penalty has been specifically provided” also applies to acts and omissions contrary to articles 40 to 47 of this title. Pena v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 117 P.3d 84 (Colo. App. 2004).

Subsection (1) was applicable to an insurer that refused to provide medically necessary transportation and, thus, refused medical treatment, although no bill for medical benefits was submitted and the insurer did not delay or stop payment of such a bill, which would have invoked the specific penalty set forth in § 8-43-401 (2)(a). Pena v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 117 P.3d 84 (Colo. App. 2004).

Subsection (1) penalizes only those persons with the authority to bind an insurer with respect to actions required by a lawful order and whose actions violate the order. An attorney who lacked the authority to bind an insurer did not violate subsection (1) by advising an insurer to violate a lawful order. Dworkin, Chambers & Williams, P.C. v. Provo, 81 P.3d 1053 (Colo. 2003).

An ALJ may impose additional penalties pursuant to this section even though a specific penalty is provided by § 8-43-404. Kennedy v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 100 P.3d 949 (Colo. App. 2004).

This section does not extend to a claim against an attorney who allegedly acts with fraud or malice in advising an insurer to violate a lawful order. Dworkin, Chambers & Williams, P.C. v. Provo, 81 P.3d 1053 (Colo. 2003).

An order of an ALJ is an order “made by the director or panel”; violation of such order provides an independent basis for the imposition of a penalty for the refusal to perform a duty for which no penalty has been specifically provided, and may be in addition to a penalty imposed under § 8-43-401. Giddings v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 39 P.3d 1211 (Colo. App. 2001).

If the general assembly intended to create two penalties for the late payment of medical benefits, § 8-43-401 (2) would have provided that it is in addition to the penalty authorized by subsection (1) of this section. Holliday v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 997 P.2d 1212 (Colo. App. 1999), vacated and claimant’s appeal dismissed, 23 P.3d 700 (Colo. 2001).

ALJ has authority to issue penalty. Penalty for failure to obey a lawful order need not be entered by “court of competent jurisdiction”, but may be entered by ALJ. CCIA v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 907 P.2d 676 (Colo. App. 1995).

Penalty may be imposed based on an objective standard of negligence, which is determined by the reasonableness of the insurer’s actions and does not require the insurer’s knowledge that its conduct was unreasonable. Diversified Veterans Corporate Ctr. v. Hewuse, 942 P.2d 1312 (Colo. App. 1997).

Where an employer disputes that it must respond to an IME pursuant to § 8-42-107.2 (4) and that such dispute is a rational argument based on law or fact, the employer must establish a higher burden greater than proving that the employer neglected to act as a reasonable employer would have acted in response to an IME pursuant to § 8-42-107.2. The court may impose penalties pursuant to subsection (1) of this section when the employer is unable to prove this higher burden. City Market, Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 68 P.3d 601 (Colo. App. 2003).

No penalty for offset preceding ALJ’s order. Although § 8-42-105 (1) sets the rate for temporary total disability benefits, that section does not mandate a legal duty upon the employer to pay that rate without regard to any claimed offset prior to the ALJ’s determination of benefits. Allison v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 916 P.2d 623 (Colo. App. 1995).

No penalty during time review of award is sought. This section and § 8-53-127 (now § 8-53-117) should not be construed to impose a penalty during the time that an employer, acting under statutory permission, is seeking in good faith to have a judicial review of an award. Indus. Comm’n v. Cont’l Inv. Co., 85 Colo. 475, 277 P. 303 (1929).

Subsection (5) requires a request for penalties to be filed within one year after the requesting party first becomes aware of the circumstances that constitute a violation and support the imposition of a penalty, even if that violation was ongoing. Spracklin v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 66 P.3d 176 (Colo. App. 2002).

Penalties may be assessed under former § 8-53-116 against an insurer neglecting to take action that a reasonable insurer would take to comply with either a lawful order or a provision of the Workers’ Compensation Act. Pueblo Sch. Dist. No. 70 v. Toth, 924 P.2d 1094 (Colo. App. 1996) (decided under law in effect prior to 1992 repeal and reenactment).

Where insurance authority failed to abide by rule requiring insurer to send certain information to the provider or injured employee within 45 days after receipt of a bill if payment was not possible within that period, penalties were properly assessed against insurance authority. Pueblo Sch. Dist. No. 70 v. Toth, 924 P.2d 1094 (Colo. App. 1996) (decided under law in effect prior to 1992 repeal and reenactment).

Insurance authority lacked standing to assert that former § 8-53-116 violated its procedural due process rights where the authority was an “arm of the state” and its engagement in private corporate functions did not affect its governmental and political character. Pueblo Sch. Dist. No. 70 v. Toth, 924 P.2d 1094 (Colo. App. 1996) (decided under law in effect prior to 1992 repeal and reenactment).

Even if insurance authority was entitled to procedural due process protection, adequate procedural protections were afforded to the authority where the rule provided notice of the standard of conduct that was expected of the authority and the authority had opportunity to present evidence concerning the reasonableness of its actions. Pueblo Sch. Dist. No. 70 v. Toth, 924 P.2d 1094 (Colo. App. 1996) (decided under law in effect prior to 1992 repeal and reenactment).

Insurance authority lacked standing to assert that fines imposed under former § 8-53-116 violated the excessive fines clause of § 20 of article II of the state constitution where the authority was an “arm of the state” and where, even if the authority had standing, the $6540 fine imposed for delay in reimbursing workers’ compensation claimant for medical bill was not excessive. Pueblo Sch. Dist. No. 70 v. Toth, 924 P.2d 1094 (Colo. App. 1996) (decided under law in effect prior to 1992 repeal and reenactment); Diversified Veterans Corporate Ctr. v. Hewuse, 942 P.2d 1312 (Colo. App. 1997).

Treating physician’s letter was a “medical report” the withholding of which was not predicated on a rational argument in law or fact, hence the imposition of a penalty under subsection (1) was proper. Diversified Veterans Corporate Ctr. v. Hewuse, 942 P.2d 1312 (Colo. App. 1997).

Cure provision in subsection (4) is substantive, hence, not applicable in a case in which the injury occurred prior to its effective date. Diversified Veterans Corporate Ctr. v. Hewuse, 942 P.2d 1312 (Colo. App. 1997).

The 1991 amendment to subsection (1) that raised the penalty from $100 to $500 and awarding the penalty to the injured claimant, did not directly state or imply that this award precludes a claimant’s common law bad faith claim against his workers’ compensation insurance carrier. Vaughan v. McMinn, 945 P.2d 404 (Colo. 1997).

Although subsection (1) was amended in 1991, 1992, 1994, and 1997, the legislature never explicitly abrogated the common law tort of bad faith despite many opportunities to do so. Vaughan v. McMinn, 945 P.2d 404 (Colo. 1997).

Applied in Coursey v. Indus. Comm’n, 82 Colo. 311, 259 P. 514 (1927).

8-43-304.5. Penalties in rate-making. For purposes of rate-making under sections 10-4-401, 10-4-402, and 10-4-403, C.R.S., insurers shall not include, nor shall the insurance commissioner consider, any penalties paid under section 8-43-304 or any damages awarded in suits founded upon breach of duty in handling a claim for compensation under section 8-41-102.

8-43-305. Each day separate offense. Every day during which any employer or insurer, or officer or agent of either, or any employee, or any other person fails to comply with any lawful order of an administrative law judge, the director, or the panel or fails to perform any duty imposed by articles 40 to 47 of this title shall constitute a separate and distinct violation thereof. In any action brought to enforce the same or to enforce any penalty provided for in said articles, such violation shall be considered cumulative and may be joined in such action.

Editor’s note: This section is similar to former § 8-53-117 as it existed prior to 1990.

8-43-306. Collection of fines, penalties, and overpayments. (1) A certified copy of any final order of the director or an administrative law judge ordering the payment of any penalty or repayment of overpayments pursuant to articles 40 to 47 of this title may be filed with the clerk of the district court of any county in this state at any time after the period of time provided by articles 40 to 47 of this title for appeal or seeking review of the order has passed without appeal or review being sought or, if appeal or review is sought, after the order has been finally affirmed and all appellate remedies and all opportunities for review have been exhausted. The party filing the order shall at the same time file a certificate to the effect that the time for appeal or review has passed without appeal or review being undertaken or that the order has been finally affirmed with all appellate remedies and all opportunities for review having been exhausted. The clerk of the district court shall record the order and the filing party's certificate in the judgment book of said court and entry thereof made in the judgment docket, and it shall thenceforth have all the effect of a judgment of the district court, and execution may issue thereon out of said court as in other cases. Any such order may be filed by and in the name of the director or by and in the name of the party in the worker's compensation action who was injured by the violation of any provision of articles 40 to 47 of this title or who was found to be entitled to repayment of overpayments under said articles.

(2) All such penalties when collected shall be payable to the division and transmitted through the state treasurer for credit to the subsequent injury fund, created in section 8-46-101.

8-43-307. Appeals to court of appeals. (1) The final order of the director or the panel shall constitute the final order of the division. Any person in interest, including Pinnacol Assurance, being dissatisfied with any final order of the division, may commence an action in the court of appeals against the industrial claim appeals office as defendant to modify or vacate any such order on the grounds set forth in section 8-43-308.

(2) All such actions shall have precedence over any civil cause of a different nature pending in such court, and the court of appeals shall always be deemed open for the trial thereof, and such actions shall be tried and determined by the court of appeals in the manner provided for other civil actions.

(3) (Deleted by amendment, L. 95, p. 235, § 3, effective April 17, 1995.)

(4) In any case before the court of appeals pursuant to this section, the court may apply the sanctions of rule 38 of the Colorado appellate rules if the court finds such application to be appropriate.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. The following annotations include cases decided under former provisions similar to this section.

Failure to state the commission's name in the caption of a petition for review does not, in itself, violate the terms of this statute. Newman v. McKinley Oil Field Serv., 696 P.2d 238 (Colo. 1984).

Limiting review of workers' compensation case denied by industrial claim appeals office to certiorari is unconstitutional denial of access to the courts. Allison v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 884 P.2d 1113 (Colo. 1994).

Right of parties to have disputes considered by judges subject to popular vote is protected by authorization of judicial review by direct appeal to the court of appeals. MGM Supply Co. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 62 P.3d 1001 (Colo. App. 2002).

Requirement of "final order". Although an order no longer needs to dispose of all issues pending before the agency in order to be received by the court of appeals, there still must be agency action which administratively resolves the issue in dispute and which may be considered a "final order" for purposes of this statute. CF&I Steel Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 731 P.2d 144 (Colo. App. 1986).

Final order is lacking and decision by industrial claim appeals office is not yet subject to review where penalty was imposed and matter was remanded to administrative law judge for further determination. Oxford Chemicals, Inc. v. Richardson, 782 P.2d 843 (Colo. App. 1989).

Order remanding for further proceedings on the merits of the penalty issue was not a final order and was not ripe for appellate review. U.S. Fidelity Guar., Inc. v. Kourlis, 868 P.2d 1158 (Colo. App. 1994).

The amount of the penalty must be determined before the ruling as to the penalties is final for judicial review. UPS, Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 988 P.2d 1146 (Colo. App. 1999).

Employer's agreement to pay one of claimant's expenses does not alter the industrial claim appeals office order to remand the matter to the administrative law judge for determination of the benefits and compensation payable to the claimant and does not constitute an award of benefits by the office or the judge. Therefore, the office's decision is not a final order and is not ripe for review. Flint Energy Servs., Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 194 P.3d 448 (Colo. App. 2008).

Colorado appellate rules govern service of petition for review under this section and, accordingly, service upon the industrial commission may be effectuated by serving the attorney general. Butkovich v. Indus. Comm'n, 723 P.2d 1306 (Colo. 1985).

Failure to effect service upon an opposing party within the time limits of this section and § 8-53-111 and this section is not jurisdictionally fatal. Dept. of Inst. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 780 P.2d 72 (Colo. App. 1989).

Director correctly reopened case on basis of mistake. Where order is ambiguous, the director correctly determined that a "good faith dispute exists between the parties as to the meaning of the order," regarding the proper amount of benefits owed to claimant. Edlund v. Indus. Comm'n, 725 P.2d 75 (Colo. App. 1986), rev'd on other grounds, 759 P.2d 7 (Colo. 1988) (decided prior to 1986 amendment).

Petitioner's failure to name employer in petition for review of industrial commission order does not constitute a jurisdictional defect under subsection (1). Pittsinger v. Indus. Comm'n, 711 P.2d 707 (Colo. App. 1985) (decided prior to 1986 abolishment of industrial commission).

Court will not address issue raised in answer brief absent respondent's petition for review. Beatrice Foods Co., Inc. v. Padilla, 747 P.2d 685 (Colo. App. 1987).

Industrial claim appeals office order setting aside award of permanent partial disability benefits is not subject to judicial review. Natkin & Co. v. Eubanks, 775 P.2d 88 (Colo. App. 1989).

Notice of appeal sufficient to satisfy requirements of this section and to invoke the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals where the document complied with the requirements of C.A.R. 3.1(d) and this section but merely failed to bear the caption "Petition for Review". Hawkins v. State Comp. Ins. Auth., 790 P.2d 893 (Colo. App. 1990).

1991 amendments to the Workers' Compensation Act, which took effect on July 1, 1991, and specifically to this section authorizing the imposition of sanctions under C.A.R. 38 could not be applied retroactively to cases in which a work injury occurred prior to July 1, 1991, since the amendments to the Act apply to cases in which a worker's injury occurred on or after that date. Martinez v. Reg'l Transp. Dist., 832 P.2d 1060 (Colo. App. 1992).

Subsection (4), allowing sanctions under C.A.R. 38, cannot be applied retroactively. Even if it is assumed that the statute is procedural, it does not automatically follow that the statute can be applied retroactively. Although a change in procedural law is generally applicable to existing causes of action, this rule is inapposite when the general assembly has expressed a contrary intent. Martinez v. Reg'l Trans. Dist., 832 P.2d 1060 (Colo. App. 1992).

The administrative and judicial review provisions of the Act are complete, definitive, and organic, without the need of supplementation from other legislative acts or the procedural relief afforded by C.R.C.P. 16. Gardner v. Friend, 849 P.2d 817 (Colo. App. 1992).

Applied in F.R. Orr Construction v. Rinta, 717 P.2d 965 (Colo. App. 1985).

8-43-308. Causes for setting aside award. Upon hearing the action, the court of appeals may affirm or set aside such order, but only upon the following grounds: That the findings of fact are not sufficient to permit appellate review; that conflicts in the evidence are not resolved in the record; that the findings of fact are not supported by the evidence; that the findings of fact do not support the order; or that the award or denial of benefits is not supported by applicable law. If the findings of fact entered by the director or administrative law judge are supported by substantial evidence, they shall not be altered by the court of appeals.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Annotator's notes. (1) The following annotations include cases decided under former provisions similar to this section.

(2) Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the 1973 amendment which vested in the director of the division of labor fact-finding powers previously exercised by the industrial commission or were decided prior to the enactment of 1986 Senate Bill No. 12 which abolished said commission.

Neither the district court nor the supreme court can usurp the functions of the commission. Hatterman v. Indus. Comm'n, 171 Colo. 370, 467 P.2d 820 (1970).

And the commission is vested with the widest possible discretion. In determining the extent or degree of disability of an injured workman upon the facts of each case, it is axiomatic that the commission is vested with the widest possible discretion with the exercise of which the courts will not interfere. Also the presumption exists that in making an award the commission considered and gave due weight to all of the factors therein enumerated. New Jersey Zinc Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 165 Colo. 482, 440 P.2d 284 (1968).

For the commission is the fact finder, and it must be the one to evaluate the evidence and draw conclusions therefrom. Passini v. Indus. Comm'n, 64 Colo. 349, 171 P. 369 (1918); Weaver v. Indus. Comm'n, 72 Colo. 79, 209 P. 642 (1922); Rogers v. Indus. Comm'n, 94 Colo. 56, 28 P.2d 343 (1933); Empire Zinc Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 94 Colo. 98, 28 P.2d 337 (1933); Poole v. Indus. Comm'n, 94 Colo. 163, 28 P.2d 809 (1934); Hayden Bros. Coal Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 94 Colo. 211, 29 P.2d 637 (1934); Central Sur. & Ins. Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 94 Colo. 341, 30 P.2d 253 (1934); Boulder Valley Coal Co. v. Shipka, 94 Colo. 394, 30 P.2d 852 (1934); Jabot v. Indus. Comm'n, 94 Colo. 424, 30 P.2d 871 (1934); C.S. Card Iron Works Co. v. Radovich, 94 Colo. 426, 30 P.2d 1108 (1934); Allen v. Gettler, 94 Colo. 528, 30 P.2d 1117 (1934); United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 96 Colo. 571, 45 P.2d 895 (1935); Adolph Coors Co. v.

Hollaus, 108 Colo. 360, 117 P.2d 822 (1941); Miller v. Denver Post, Inc., 137 Colo. 61, 322 P.2d 661 (1958); Indus. Comm'n v. Klaczkowski, 146 Colo. 11, 360 P.2d 104 (1961); Skinner v. Indus. Comm'n, 152 Colo. 97, 381 P.2d 253 (1963); State v. Richards, 158 Colo. 155, 405 P.2d 675 (1965); Clodfelter v. Indus. Comm'n, 160 Colo. 39, 413 P.2d 700 (1966); Breit v. Indus. Comm'n, 160 Colo. 205, 415 P.2d 858 (1966); Levy v. Everson Plumbing Co., 171 Colo. 468, 468 P.2d 34 (1970); Sena v. World of Sleep, Inc., 173 Colo. 348, 478 P.2d 671 (1970); Indus. Comm'n v. Ewing, 174 Colo. 133, 482 P.2d 981 (1971).

Legislative intent that commission be fact finder apparent from section. That the general assembly intended the commission should be a fact-finding body whose conclusions on disputed testimony should be binding on the courts of review is apparent from this section, which sets forth the only grounds upon which awards may be set aside by the district court. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 96 Colo. 571, 45 P.2d 895 (1935).

The commission as the fact finder is the sole judge of the credibility of witnesses appearing before it. Regal Coal Co. v. Jackvich, 105 Colo. 479, 99 P.2d 196 (1940); Moffat Coal Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 108 Colo. 388, 118 P.2d 769 (1941).

And the weight to be given to medical testimony is a matter exclusively for the commission. Cordillo v. Indus. Comm'n, 110 Colo. 581, 136 P.2d 671 (1943).

Also, the weight to be given the opinion of a physician is for the commission to determine. White v. Dir. of Div. of Labor, 30 Colo. App. 393, 493 P.2d 676 (1972).

Furthermore, the commission has the duty and sole power to find the facts from conflicting evidence. Rogers v. Indus. Comm'n, 94 Colo. 56, 28 P.2d 343 (1933); Boulder Valley Coal Co. v. Shipka, 94 Colo. 394, 30 P.2d 852 (1934); Montgomery Ward & Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 105 Colo. 22, 94 P.2d 689 (1939).

Ernest Irvine, Inc.*, 72 Colo. 573, 212 P. 829 (1923); Bohmann v. Indus. Comm'n, 76 Colo. 588, 233 P. 621 (1925); *Indus. Comm'n v. Which evidence is respectable. It is the function of the commission to find the facts in workmen's compensation cases, and such findings, having respectable evidentiary support, are controlling. Indus. Comm'n v. White, 97 Colo. 322, 49 P.2d 434 (1935).

An appellate court does not decide the facts and may not substitute its judgment for that of the fact-finder. Martinez v. Reg'l Transp. Dist., 832 P.2d 1060 (Colo. App. 1992); Cary v. Chevron U.S.A., Inc., 867 P.2d 117 (Colo. App. 1993); Metro Moving & Storage Co. v. Gussert, 914 P.2d 411 (Colo. App. 1995); Wilson v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 81 P.3d 1117 (Colo. App. 2003).

Ample. Courts are powerless to interfere with findings of the commission, in cases in which the facts are disputed, where such findings are amply supported by the evidence. London Gold Mines Co. v. Custer, 101 Colo. 477, 74 P.2d 679 (1937); Martin v. Indus. Comm'n, 101 Colo. 540, 74 P.2d 1243 (1937); *Montgomery Ward & Co. v. Indus. Or substantial. Findings of the commission as to facts must be accepted by the courts if there is any substantial evidence to support them. Platt-Rogers, Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 101 Colo. 458, 74 P.2d 673 (1937); Consolidated Coal & Coke Co. v. Lazaroff, 109 Colo. 248, 124 P.2d 755 (1942); Zuzich v. Leyden Lignite Co., 120 Colo. 21, 206 P.2d 833 (1949); Raisch v. Indus. Comm'n, 721 P.2d 693 (Colo. App. 1986).

Evidentiary and ultimate findings need be specific only as to persuasive and determinative matters. Roe v. Indus. Comm'n, 734 P.2d 138 (Colo. App. 1986).

The ALJ's determination must be upheld if supported by substantial evidence. Christie v. Coors Transp. Co., 919 P.2d 857 (Colo. App. 1995), aff'd, 933 P.2d 1330 (Colo. 1997); Joslins Dry Goods Co. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 21 P.3d 866 (Colo. App. 2001); Loveland Police Dept. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 141 P.3d 943 (Colo. App. 2006).

Where substantial evidence supports the findings of the industrial claim appeals office the court is bound by that finding. Pub. Serv. Co. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 979 P.2d 584 (Colo. App. 1999).

Substantial evidence is that which is probative, credible, and competent, such that it warrants a reasonable belief in the existence of a particular fact without regard to contradictory testimony or inference. Allen Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 762 P.2d 677 (Colo. 1988); Colo. State Bd. of Med. Exam'rs v. Davis, 893 P.2d 1365 (Colo. App. 1995); Loveland Police Dept. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 141 P.3d 943 (Colo. App. 2006).

Even though the commission has never seen the witnesses. From this section, it is apparent that even in a case where the commission has never seen the witnesses, it was the legislative intent that the findings of fact nevertheless should be binding on the district court and the supreme court. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 96 Colo. 571, 45 P.2d 895 (1935); Zuzich v. Leyden Lignite Co., 120 Colo. 21, 206 P.2d 833 (1949).

And although three different findings are made. In a workmen's compensation case, although three different findings of fact are made, this did not nullify the rule that fact findings based on conflicting evidence are binding on the courts, and the last finding is conclusive. Indus.

Comm'n v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 88 Colo. 82, 292 P. 229 (1930).

But findings of fact are not conclusive unless supported by evidence. Determinations of fact are not final and conclusive unless they are substantially supported by the evidence. Indus. Comm'n v. W. A. Hover & Co., 82 Colo. 335, 259 P. 509 (1927); London Guarantee & Accident Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 95 Colo. 306, 35 P.2d 1010 (1934).

Or a reasonable and fair inference therefrom. Findings which are not supported by the evidence, or a reasonable and fair inference therefrom, form no basis upon which to predicate an award. Gates v. Central City Opera House Ass'n, 107 Colo. 93, 108 P.2d 880 (1940).

Undisputed evidence may be treated as findings of fact. Where the evidence is short and undisputed, it may be treated on review as the findings of fact and considered accordingly. Prouse v. Indus. Comm'n, 69 Colo. 382, 194 P. 625 (1920); Indus. Comm'n v. Big Six Coal Co., 72 Colo. 377, 211 P. 361 (1922); Frink Dairy Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 78 Colo. 71, 239 P. 727 (1925); Winteroth v. Indus. Comm'n, 93 Colo. 38, 22 P.2d 865 (1933).

And other undisputed facts may be considered with findings. In an action involving an award, the district court has the right to consider, with the findings, other undisputed facts. Indus. Comm'n v. Cornelius, 81 Colo. 111, 253 P. 828 (1927).

Furthermore, where the facts are undisputed, the entire question is one of law and courts are not bound by the commission's conclusions of law. Indus. Comm'n v. Int'l. Minerals & Chem. Corp., 132 Colo. 256, 287 P.2d 275 (1955); Vanadium Corp. of Am. v. Sargent, 134 Colo. 555, 307 P.2d 454 (1957); Denver Truck Exch. v. Perryman, 134 Colo. 586, 307 P.2d 805 (1957); Indus. Comm'n v. London & Lancashire Indem. Co., 135 Colo. 372, 311 P.2d 705 (1957); Indus. Comm'n v. Havens, 136 Colo. 111, 314 P.2d 698 (1957); Marotte v. State Comp. Ins. Fund, 145 Colo. 99, 357 P.2d 915 (1960); Johnson v. Indus. Comm'n, 148 Colo. 561, 366 P.2d 864 (1961).

Order which reached correct result was affirmed even if wrong reasons for result given. A & R Concrete Const. v. Lightner, 759 P.2d 831 (Colo. App. 1988).

Commission's jurisdiction limited to determining right to compensation and liability. The jurisdiction of the commission is limited to a determination of the right of an employee to compensation and to a determination of who is liable for the award under the statute, and collateral issues relating to the contractual rights and liabilities between the employers are of no concern to the employee and should be resolved by a court in an independent proceeding in which the employee should not be required to participate. Archer Freight Lines v. Horn Transp., Inc., 32 Colo. App. 412, 514 P.2d 330 (1973).

No jurisdiction to enforce awards where claimant asks only that the court "assist" her in recovering the money she was awarded. Enforcement of awards is to be sought through the district courts pursuant to § 8-44-107 (3) (decided under former law). Passaretti v. Indus. Comm'n, 711 P.2d 1285 (Colo. App. 1985).

II. SCOPE OF REVIEW.

A. In General.

The orderly functioning of judicial review requires that the grounds upon which an administrative agency acts be clearly disclosed and adequately sustained. Hall v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 757 P. 2d 1132 (Colo. App. 1988).

The determination of the weight and sufficiency of the evidence is for the commission. London Guarantee & Accident Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 72 Colo. 177, 210 P. 70 (1922); Indus. Comm'n v. Big Six Coal Co., 72 Colo. 377, 211 P. 361 (1922); Pub. Serv. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 89 Colo. 440, 3 P.2d 799 (1931).

And the court can review questions of law only. Olson-Hall v. Indus. Comm'n, 69 Colo. 518, 194 P. 212 (1921).

This section restricts appellate review to a review of legal errors in workers' compensation cases. Martinez v. Reg'l Transp. Dist., 832 P.2d 1060 (Colo. App. 1992).

For courts are without power to determine questions of fact in workmen's compensation cases. Ellerman v. Indus. Comm'n, 73 Colo. 20, 213 P. 120 (1923); Colo. Fuel & Iron Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 85 Colo. 237, 275 P. 910 (1929).

On review the court may consider only the legal question of whether there is evidence to support the findings. McPhee & McGinnity Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 67 Colo. 86, 185 P. 268 (1919); Kokotovich v. Indus. Comm'n, 69 Colo. 572, 195 P. 646 (1921); Indus. Comm'n v. Ernest Irvine, Inc., 72 Colo. 573, 212 P. 829 (1923); Nat'l Lumber & Creosoting Co. v. Kelly, 99 Colo. 442, 63 P.2d 457 (1936); Wood v. Indus. Comm'n, 100 Colo. 209, 66 P.2d 806 (1937); Vanadium Corp. of Am. v. Sargent, 134 Colo. 555, 307 P.2d 454 (1957); Indus. Comm'n v. Navajo Freight Lines, 149 Colo. 86, 367 P.2d 894 (1962); Univ. of Denver Colo. Sem. & Univ. Park Campus v. Johnston, 151 Colo. 465, 378 P.2d 830 (1963); Steel Placers, Inc. v. Reese, 169 Colo. 360, 455 P.2d 874 (1969).

And the court exceeds its jurisdiction if it attempts to pass upon the weight of the evidence introduced before the commission. Indus. Comm'n v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 88 Colo. 82, 292 P. 229 (1930).

Appellate court is bound by the administrative law judge's resolution of credibility issues. Riddle v. Ampex Corp., 839 P.2d 489 (Colo. App. 1992).

For under the provisions of the workmen's compensation act, reviewing courts are precluded from passing upon the weight or sufficiency of the evidence, or its probative effect, and if the findings of fact made by the commission are upheld by the evidence, they will be affirmed. Weaver v. Indus. Comm'n, 72 Colo. 79, 209 P. 642 (1922).

The weight and sufficiency of the evidence and the inferences drawn therefrom are matters solely within the prerogative of the industrial commission. Archer Freight Lines v. Horn Transp., Inc., 32 Colo. App. 412, 514 P.2d 330 (1973).

Where findings support the award, it is not for the court to say whether the evidence justifies the commission's findings. Lindsay v. Indus. Comm'n, 77 Colo. 424, 236 P. 1005 (1925).

Furthermore, the court cannot review a case on the evidence where any of the facts are in dispute. Billick v. Indus. Comm'n, 69 Colo. 471, 195 P. 114 (1921).

Court may not substitute its findings. Where there is sufficient competent evidence to support the findings and award, they are binding on review, and courts are not at liberty, although they may disagree with the conclusions reached by the commission, to substitute therefor findings which to them may seem more compatible with the evidence. Am. Mining Co. v. Zupet, 101 Colo. 238, 72 P.2d 281 (1937); Univ. of Denver-Colorado Sem. & Univ. Park Campus v. Johnston, 151 Colo. 465, 378 P.2d 830 (1963).

Inferences and conclusions to be drawn from the evidence in workmen's compensation cases, are for the commission and not for the courts. Indus. Comm'n v. Valdez, 101 Colo. 482, 74 P.2d 710 (1937); Consolidated Coal & Coke Co. v. Lazaroff, 109 Colo. 248, 124 P.2d 755 (1942); Indus. Comm'n v. Menegatti, 111 Colo. 484, 143 P.2d 274 (1943); Zuzich v. Leyden Lignite Co., 120 Colo. 21, 206 P.2d 833 (1949).

And the court cannot create a presumption, unsupported by the record, which would nullify the commission's findings. Platt-Rogers v. Indus. Comm'n, 101 Colo. 458, 74 P.2d 673 (1937).

Thus, judgment arbitrarily rejecting findings will be reversed. A judgment of the court arbitrarily rejecting the findings of the industrial commission, and plainly inconsistent with such findings, was reversed and the cause remanded with directions to approve such findings and enter judgment accordingly. Indus. Comm'n v. Johnson, 66 Colo. 292, 181 P. 977 (1919).

But courts may examine record to determine whether there is evidence to support the findings. What constitutes evidence is a question of law, and if there is no evidence to support the findings, it follows that the commission acted in excess of its powers. Colo. Contracting Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 74 Colo. 206, 219 P. 1075 (1923); United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 96 Colo. 571, 45 P.2d 895 (1935).

Fact-findings based on conflicting evidence will not be disturbed on review. Nat'l Lumber & Creosoting Co. v. Kelly, 101 Colo. 535, 75 P.2d 144 (1937); State Comp. Ins. Fund v. Russell, 105 Colo. 274, 96 P.2d 846 (1939); Olson v. Erickson, 105 Colo. 489, 99 P.2d 199 (1940); Barker v. Indus. Comm'n, 108 Colo. 338, 117 P.2d 319 (1941); Deline v. Indus. Comm'n, 108 Colo. 351, 116 P.2d 916 (1941); Rand v. Indus. Comm'n, 110 Colo. 240, 132 P.2d 784 (1942); Cordillo v. Indus. Comm'n, 110 Colo. 581, 136 P.2d 671 (1943); Sims v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 797 P.2d 777 (Colo. App. 1990).

The court is bound by the administrative law judge's factual determinations, even when the evidence is conflicting and would have supported a contrary result. Cary v. Chevron U.S.A., Inc., 867 P.2d 117 (Colo. App. 1993).

Although the court may not agree with conclusions of the commission which are based upon conflicting testimony in a workmen's compensation case, notwithstanding, if there is sufficient competent evidence to sustain the findings, they should not be disturbed on judicial review. Coors Co. v. Hollaus, 108 Colo. 360, 117 P.2d 822 (1941).

But courts may draw own conclusions where evidence is without substantial conflict. In workmen's compensation cases where the evidence as disclosed by the record is without substantial conflict as to the controlling issues involved, courts may properly draw their own conclusions therefrom and enter judgment accordingly, notwithstanding the determination may be contrary to the findings and award. Indus. Comm'n v. Betz, 111 Colo. 401, 142 P.2d 389 (1943); Arvas v. McNeil Coal Corp., 119 Colo. 289, 203 P.2d 906 (1949).

For when commission makes fact-finding contrary to the uncontradicted evidence, it acts in excess of its powers. In such circumstances, a court in reviewing the action of the commission is passing upon a question of law and not making a finding of fact; consequently it is not usurping the fact-finding function. O. P. Skaggs Co. v. Nixon, 97 Colo. 314, 50 P.2d 55 (1935).

When court authorized to direct a finding of fact. There must be no competent evidence in the record that claimant's disability was not caused by the accident and uncontroverted competent evidence that it was so caused before a court is authorized to direct a finding of fact by the commission. O. P. Skaggs Co. v. Nixon, 97 Colo. 314, 50 P.2d 55 (1935); Indus. Comm'n v. Wetz, 100 Colo. 161, 66 P.2d 812 (1937); Indus. Comm'n v. Menegatti, 111 Colo. 484, 143 P.2d 274 (1943).

Courts are forbidden to pass upon the referee's rulings at the hearing, such as objections to the admission of testimony, the weight of evidence, credibility of witnesses and mere irregularities in procedure. Zook v. Indus. Comm'n, 75 Colo. 41, 223 P. 751 (1924); Compstock v. Biven, 78 Colo. 107, 239 P. 869 (1925).

And an award cannot be reversed because of the admission of hearsay evidence. Vaughn v. Indus. Comm'n, 79 Colo. 257, 245 P. 712 (1926).

Court may not set aside or amend a finding of fact and order award amended accordingly. Indus. Comm'n v. General Accident, Fire & Life Assurance Corp., 71 Colo. 115, 204 P. 338 (1922).

And judgment setting aside finding held to be error. The commission in adopting and making his own the findings of the referee, that "claimant's condition is not the result of an accidental injury within the meaning of the workmen's compensation act; that said condition is in the nature of an occupational disease", determined by necessary inference that the condition from which claimant was suffering was not caused by accident, but was caused by the pressure on his knee incident to the character of the work in which he was engaged. There being evidence to support the finding it was binding upon the court, and it was error for the court to set aside such finding and order an award of compensation. Indus. Comm'n v. Barton, 98 Colo. 51, 52 P.2d 670 (1935).

Judgment beyond court's jurisdiction. Where commission awarded monthly payments to claimant in proceeding for compensation, the court was without jurisdiction to enter judgment for the maximum sum which might thereafter accrue under the award. L. B. Cole Produce Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 123 Colo. 278, 228 P.2d 808 (1951).

Correctness of legal conclusions matter for appellate court. Correctness of a legal conclusion drawn by the industrial commission from undisputed facts is properly a matter for the appellate court. Dorsch v. Indus. Comm'n, 185 Colo. 219, 523 P.2d 458 (1974); Gruntmeir v. Tempel & Esgar, Inc., 730 P.2d 893 (Colo. App. 1986).

Evidence supported determination by panel that claimant was not an "employee" at time of accident. Younger v. City and County of Denver, 796 P.2d 38 (Colo. App. 1990).

ALJ's determination to use an alternate method to compute claimant's average weekly wage rather than by the piecework method set forth in subsection (2)(e) was supported by substantial evidence and could not be disturbed on review where claimant's contract contemplated 10 to 12 hours per day for five days per week on a piecework basis and claimant had worked on a piecework basis for a short period of time prior to injury. Drywall Prods. v. Constuble, 832 P.2d 957 (Colo. App. 1991).

This section establishes the standard of appellate review for grants of summary judgment in workers' compensation claims. Fera v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 169 P.3d 231 (Colo. App. 2007).

ALJ's summary judgment order may be set aside upon review where the appellate court finds in the record a disputed issue of material fact. Fera v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 169 P.3d 231 (Colo. App. 2007).

Appellate court must accept ALJ's statements of undisputed facts pertaining to a claimant's request for penalties against an employer if substantial evidence in the record supports that statement of facts, but must set aside the grant of summary judgment in an employer's favor if the court determines that conflicts in the evidence are not resolved in the record or the order is not supported by applicable law. Fera v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 169 P.3d 231 (Colo. App. 2007).

B. Acts Not Supported by Law.

The findings of the director are binding unless set aside for one or more of the reasons named in this section. Indus. Comm'n v. London Guarantee & Accident Co., 66 Colo. 575, 185 P. 344 (1919).

For instance, that the commission exceeded its lawful power, in other words, acted without, or in excess of, its jurisdiction is one of the grounds upon which the courts are permitted to set aside awards under the workmen's compensation act. Indus. Comm'n v. Employers' Liab. Assurance Corp., 78 Colo. 267, 241 P. 729 (1925).

And where the decision of the commission is based upon improper application of the law, a district court may set aside the award. Western Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Swort, 134 Colo. 421, 306 P.2d 661 (1957); Indus. Comm'n v. Havens, 136 Colo. 111, 314 P.2d 698 (1957); Booher v. Las Animas County Sch. Dist. R-88, 30 Colo. App. 233, 491 P.2d 104 (1971).

As where it makes fact-finding contrary to uncontradicted evidence. O.P. Skaggs Co. v. Nixon, 97 Colo. 314, 50 P.2d 55 (1935).

Or where final award is revoked. Where no contention is made that a lump-sum disability award was not validly entered in the first instance, or that its propriety was contested by the state compensation insurance fund at the time it was made or thereafter, the award becomes, at the time of entry, tantamount to a final judgment and a vested right which survived the employee's death. Revocation of the award was an invalid act on the part of the commission, and its order to such effect is reversed. Schenfeld v. Shaffer, 29 Colo. App. 425, 487 P.2d 818 (1971).

C. Findings of Fact.

To sustain an award of compensation, the director must find all of the essential facts required by § 8-52-102, i.e., that employer and employee are subject to the act; that the employee was performing services in the course of his employment when an accident occurred; that the injury was caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. An absence of any one of such essential facts defeats an award. Miller v. Denver Post, Inc., 137 Colo. 61, 322 P.2d 661 (1958).

Award to be set aside when no evidence to support it. The award in a workmen's compensation case is to be treated like the verdict of a jury and set aside by the courts when there is not evidence to support it. Indus. Comm'n v. Elkas, 73 Colo. 475, 216 P. 521 (1923).

And detailed findings of fact should be made so that courts can determine whether award is supported by the facts. Prouse v. Indus. Comm'n, 69 Colo. 382, 194 P. 625 (1920); Billick v. Indus. Comm'n, 69 Colo. 471, 195 P. 114 (1921); North Park Coal Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 90 Colo. 500, 10 P.2d 326 (1932); Hayden Bros. Coal Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 90 Colo. 503, 10 P.2d 325 (1932); Duras v. Indus. Comm'n, 90 Colo. 565, 11 P.2d 213 (1932).

For otherwise court cannot say finding and awards supported by evidence. If no findings of fact are made, it is absolutely impossible for the court to say whether the award is supported by the findings or whether there is any evidence to support the findings. Hayden Bros. Coal Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 90 Colo. 503, 10 P.2d 325 (1932).

And award cannot be based upon speculation or conjecture. There is no explanation as to how the employee met his death. There is not evidence in the record that any of these speculative events actually did occur. Awards in compensation cases cannot be based upon speculation or conjecture. Indus. Comm'n v. London & Lancashire Indem. Co., 135 Colo. 372, 311 P.2d 705 (1957).

Just as mere inferences will not suffice to uphold an award. Vanadium Corp. of Am. v. Sargent, 134 Colo. 555, 307 P.2d 454 (1957).

Thus, imperative for court to have complete statement of facts. This section is not to be treated as without a purpose, and inasmuch as it prohibits the court from disturbing the findings of fact, it is imperative that the court have before it a sufficiently complete statement of the facts by the commission, as will enable it to render an independent conclusion as to the law to be applied. Weaver v. Indus. Comm'n, 69 Colo. 507, 194 P. 941 (1921).

For unless the commission first finds the evidentiary and ultimate facts, it is futile for the reviewing court to examine the record, for it cannot sit as a fact-finding body to ascertain facts from the testimony in the first instance, and it cannot on review determine whether the testimony is sufficient to establish facts that have not been found by the commission. Metros v. Denver Coney Island, 110 Colo. 40, 129 P.2d 911 (1942); Womack v. Indus. Comm'n, 168 Colo. 364, 451 P.2d 761 (1969).

And the sufficiency of the finding must appear upon its face. Womack v. Indus. Comm'n, 168 Colo. 364, 451 P.2d 761 (1969).

However, it is not any part of the commission's function to find that the claimant has not sustained the burden of proof of any or all of the essential elements that he must establish to entitle him to compensation. If the commission is of the opinion, after weighing the evidence, that it does prove any element of claimant's case, he should find that element as a fact, and similarly, if of the opinion that claimant has failed to prove any element of his case he should find that element not to be a fact. Metros v. Denver Coney Island, 110 Colo. 40, 129 P.2d 911 (1942).

Change of former award should contain specific findings of changed condition. The award of the commission since it changed and increased the former award, should have contained specific findings, based upon the testimony, as to a changed condition, if such was found, as well as specific findings as to error in the former findings. Because the award does not contain such specific findings, it is attacked for insufficiency, the attack being based upon numerous decisions of this court which have clearly stated that it is the duty of the commission to make sufficiently detailed findings of fact so that the courts may determine whether the order or award is supported by the facts. Nat'l Lumber & Creosoting Co. v. Kelly, 99 Colo. 442, 63 P.2d 457 (1936).

If commission fails to find specific facts cause will be remanded. In a proceeding under the workmen's compensation act, it is the duty of the commission to make sufficient specific findings of fact, and where it fails to do so, a cause which has been brought to the supreme court for review will be remanded for further findings. Olson-Hall v. Indus. Comm'n, 69 Colo. 518, 194 P.212 (1921); Crawford v. Indus. Comm'n, 71 Colo. 378, 206 P. 1073 (1922); Berkley v. Consolidated Lower Boulder Reservoir & Ditch Co., 73 Colo. 483, 216 P. 548 (1923); Indus. Comm'n v. Carpenter, 102 Colo. 22, 76 P.2d 418 (1938); Metros v. Denver Coney Island, 110 Colo. 40, 129 P.2d 911 (1942).

Unless general finding is right and conclusion is reasonable inference from evidence. An award will not be disturbed on review on the ground of insufficient findings, where the general finding is right and the conclusion is a reasonable inference from the evidence. Picardi v. Indus. Comm'n, 70 Colo. 266, 199 P. 420 (1921); Central Sur. & Ins. Corp. v. Indus.

Comm'n, 94 Colo. 341, 30 P.2d 253 (1934), see Globe Indem. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 67 Colo. 526, 186 P. 522 (1919); *Brock-Haffner Press Co. v. Indus. If the evidence is conflicting, the commission's duty is to resolve the conflict, determine what is true and what is false, and announce the fact in accordance with his findings. Metros v. Denver Coney Island, 110 Colo. 40, 129 P.2d 911 (1942); United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 128 Colo. 68, 259 P.2d 869 (1953); Bowlus v. Indus. Comm'n, 152 Colo. 535, 383 P.2d 789 (1963); Alvin H. Watkins, Inc. v. Hamilton, 159 Colo. 257, 411 P.2d 15 (1966); Hirschfield v. Indus. Comm'n, 159 Colo. 350, 411 P.2d 776 (1966); Sena v. World of Sleep, Inc., 173 Colo. 348, 478 P.2d 671 (1970).

However, where there is no conflict in the testimony and the award is based on unwarranted inferences or improper application of the law, the court is at liberty to set aside the award. Deines Bros. v. Indus. Comm'n, 125 Colo. 258, 242 P.2d 600 (1952).

Findings held to support award. London Guarantee & Accident Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 70 Colo. 256, 199 P. 962 (1921); Canon Reliance Coal Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 72 Colo. 477, 211 P. 868 (1922); Columbine Laundry Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 73 Colo. 397, 215 P. 870 (1923); Ortiz v. Indus. Comm'n, 734 P.2d 642 (Colo. App. 1987); Mountain Meadows Nursing Center v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 990 P.2d 1090 (Colo. App. 1999).

Findings of fact were held not to support an award denying compensation to employee kicked by horse which he was beating. Indus. Comm'n v. Cornelius, 81 Colo. 111, 253 P. 828 (1927).

Findings not supported by evidence. Gruntmeir v. Tempel & Esgar, Inc., 730 P.2d 893 (Colo. App. 1986); Hobbs v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 804 P.2d 210 (Colo. App. 1990).

Insufficient finding. It is not a finding of the required facts for the commission to say "that if the occasion occurred as the claimant has testified, it would not constitute a compensable accident". This is in effect but a demurrer by the commission to claimant's evidence, and is not authorized by the compensation act. Metros v. Denver Coney Island, 110 Colo. 40, 129 P.2d 911 (1942).

Error of the industrial commission in affirming an award based on findings not supported by evidence in the record requires that the award be set aside. Associated Grocers of Colo., Inc. v. Bendickson, 36 Colo. App. 239, 538 P.2d 476 (1975).

There is a clear distinction between the terms “no evidence” and “no credible evidence” and the record failed to support the finding that there was no evidence of causation regarding worker’s claim to total disability benefits for occupational lung disease. Hall v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 757 P.2d 1132 (Colo. App. 1988).

Findings of the ALJ sufficient to permit appellate review. In concluding that claimant failed to prove that a whole person impairment rating was applicable, the ALJ adopted the physicians’ opinions that claimant suffered a loss of range of motion in the upper extremity. This finding is sufficient to permit review. Walker v. Jim Fuoco Motor Co., 942 P.2d 1390 (Colo. App. 1997).

Applied in Martinez v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 176 P.3d 826 (Colo. App. 2007); Cabela v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 198 P.3d 1277 (Colo. App. 2008).

8-43-309. Actions in court tried within thirty days. Any such action commenced in the court of appeals to set aside or modify any order shall be heard within thirty days after issue shall be joined, unless continued on order of the court for good cause shown. No continuance shall be for longer than thirty days at one time.

It is the general assembly’s intent that this section be directory and not mandatory or jurisdictional.

Aviado v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 228 P.3d 177 (Colo. App. 2009).

8-43-310. Error disregarded unless prejudicial. The appeal shall be upon the record returned to the court by the industrial claim appeals office. Upon the hearing of any such action, the court shall disregard any irregularity or error of the director or the panel unless it affirmatively appears that the party complaining was damaged thereby.

ANNOTATION

Annotator’s note. The following annotations include cases decided under former provisions similar to this section.

One of the purposes of the compensation act was to avoid the delay attending ordinary litigation. Kosmos v. Indus. Comm’n, 96 Colo. 90, 39 P.2d 780 (1934).

Thus, report of accident by employer need not be formally introduced in evidence at a hearing in order that it may be considered. New Jersey Fid. & Plate Glass Ins. Co. v. Patterson, 86 Colo. 580, 284 P. 334 (1929).

And reversal is not required because of untrue but unnecessary recitation in award. Under the provisions of this section, the supreme court is not called upon to reverse the district court, which affirmed the commission’s award, simply because of an untrue, although unnecessary, recitation in the award itself, unless it affects the substantial rights of the parties. Fuel & Iron Co. v. Indus. Comm’n, 85 Colo. 237, 275 P. 910 (1929).

Rules limiting introduction of evidence. It was not the intention of the general assembly, in directing the courts by this section to disregard certain errors of irregularities of the commission (now the industrial claim appeals panel), to allow the latter to put into effect rules limiting the introduction of evidence, which the courts are without authority to adopt. Western Auto Supply Co. v. Washburn, 112 Colo. 430, 149 P.2d 804 (1944).

The court cannot reverse an award simply because of the erroneous admission of incompetent or improper evidence; an award may be reversed if there be no competent evidence to support it. Game & Fish Dept. v. Pardoe, 147 Colo. 363, 363 P.2d 1067 (1961).

But it is not error to exclude original evidence at the trial in the district court. Nat’l Fuel Co. v. Arnold, 121 Colo. 220, 214 P.2d 784 (1950).

If the decision turns on a legal question, any error in commission’s fact-finding pro- cess would not be prejudicial. Featherstone v. Loomix, Inc., 726 P.2d 246 (Colo. App. 1986).

Even if the commission's interpretation of the law is erroneous, its order will be sustained if a proper interpretation would produce the same legal result. Featherstone v. Loomix, Inc., 726 P.2d 246 (Colo. App. 1986).

No procedural irregularity affecting claimant's substantive rights was found where claimant, while not furnished a copy of the vocational evaluation report, was allowed to examine and present his objections to the report prior to entry of the hearing officer's order, where hearing officer elicited pertinent information from a pro se claimant or where claimant's attorney wrote to hearing officer that the parties were ready for an order. Smith v. Indus. Comm'n, 735 P.2d 921 (Colo. App. 1986).

Where hearing officer strictly followed medical opinion in determining the degree of claimant's industrial disability, it was not harmless error for the hearing officer to have excluded counselor's testimony on the degree of industrial disability merely because it embraced an ultimate issue to be decided by the trier of fact. Chambers v. CF & I Steel Corp., 757 P.2d 1171 (Colo. App. 1988).

8-43-311. Court record transmitted to industrial claim appeals office - when. It is the duty of the clerk of the court of appeals, without order of court or application of the panel, to transmit the record in any case to the industrial claim appeals office within twenty-five days after the order or judgment of the court unless in the meantime further appellate review is granted by the supreme court. If the supreme court grants further appellate review, the clerk shall return the record immediately upon receipt of remittitur from the supreme court, unless the order of the supreme court requires further action by the court of appeals, and then within twenty-five days after such further action.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. The following annotations include cases decided under former provisions similar to this section.

This section operates as a short statute of limitations. Kosmos v. Indus. Comm'n, 96 Colo. 90, 39 P.2d 780 (1934).

It is an express mandate in form, its purpose is to secure speedy compensation for those in need, and to relieve from the law's delay those unable to bear it. General Chem. Co. v. Thomas, 71 Colo. 28, 203 P. 660 (1922).

And appellate review which is not granted within the time provided will be denied on motion. General Chem. Co. v. Thomas, 71 Colo. 28, 203 P. 660 (1922); Kosmos v. Indus. Comm'n, 96 Colo. 90, 39 P.2d 780 (1934).

Under this section an aggrieved party has only 25 days within which to obtain a grant of Error by administrative law judge referring to claimant meeting her "burden of proof in establishing a worsening of condition" was harmless where ALJ focused on causation between the industrial injury and claimant's back condition. El Paso County DSS v. Donn, 865 P.2d 877 (Colo. App. 1993).

Where record does not indicate claimant's emotional condition was raised as an affirmative defense, record contains some evidence of claimant's mental impairment but such evidence was limited to claimant's medical records, claimant did not object to their admission, and second ALJ did not rely on them in determining whether claimant had sustained an industrial injury, claimant's substantial rights were not affected even if evidence of claimant's mental impairment was improperly allowed. Bodensieck v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 183 P.3d 684 (Colo. App. 2008).

appellate review. Hull v. Denver Tramway Corp., 97 Colo. 523, 50 P.2d 791 (1935).

Even where the grant of appellate review is actually issued before the record is transmitted to the commission (now the industrial claim appeals office), the grant of appellate review will be denied for the words "in the meantime" mean within the 25 days, not before the issue of the grant of appellate review, and the delay of the clerk in transmitting the record, being a disobedience of the law, cannot avail. General Chem. Co. v. Thomas, 71 Colo. 28, 203 P. 660 (1922).

And inability to secure judge's signature to bill of exceptions is no excuse. The fact that the applicant was unable to secure the signature of the trial judge to the bill of exceptions afforded no legal excuse for delaying the application for the grant of appellate review until after the expiration of the prescribed period. Hull v. Den- ver Tramway Corp., 97 Colo. 523, 50 P.2d 791 (1935).

8-43-312. Court may remand case or order entry of award. Upon setting aside of any order, the court may recommit the controversy and remand the record in the case for further hearing or proceedings by the director, administrative law judge, or panel, or it may order entry of a proper award upon the findings as the nature of the case shall demand. In no event shall such order for award be for a greater amount of compensation than allowed by articles 40 to 47 of this title, or in any manner conflict with the provisions thereof.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's notes. (1) The following annotations include cases decided under former provisions similar to this section.

(2) Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the 1973 amendment which vested fact-finding powers in the director of the division of labor which were previously exercised by the industrial commission.

The power of the trial court to remand the cause to the industrial commission is limited by the statute. Bennett Props. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 165 Colo. 135, 437 P.2d 548 (1968).

And court will not remand if evidence is uncontradicted. If the evidence is short and uncontradicted, the court, upon review, may treat the record itself as the findings of fact and may consider it accordingly. Bennett Props. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 165 Colo. 135, 437 P.2d 548 (1968); Tillman v. Capitol Hill Transf. & Storage Co., 165 Colo. 514, 440 P.2d 152 (1968).

For the commission does not have jurisdiction to change its previous findings of fact fully and finally made. The matter was not before it for further proceedings or additionally for different determination. The commission has limited power to alter, affirm, modify, amend, or rescind its finding only if there are issues not theretofore heard and considered by it, and then only after rehearing on those issues. Bennett Props. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 165 Colo. 135, 437 P.2d 548 (1968).

Where the evidence would support either of contrary findings by the commission, the court may not set aside an award and remand it. Coors Porcelain Co. v. Grenfell, 109 Colo. 39, 121 P.2d 669 (1942).

But court may remand for additional evidence. Where the court cannot decide a workmen's compensation case because of the lack of evidence, the commission could not properly have done so, and the entire case should be remanded for the taking of additional evidence. Home Ins. Co. v. Hepp, 91 Colo. 495, 15 P.2d 1082 (1932).

And court may order commission to consider evidence he had rejected. Upon setting aside any order or award, the trial court may recommit the controversy and remand the record in the case to the commission for further hearing or proceedings, as the nature of the case shall demand. The trial court may order the commission to consider evidence which it had erroneously rejected or to allow time to secure further reports and enter a new order, assigning reasons for its decisions. Indus. Comm'n v. McKenna, 106 Colo. 323, 104 P.2d 458 (1940); Warrenburg v. Cline, 108 Colo. 179, 114 P.2d 302 (1941); Indus. Comm'n v. Fotis, 112 Colo. 423, 149 P.2d 657 (1944); Serv. Supply Co. v. Vallejos, 169 Colo. 14, 452 P.2d 387 (1969).

Furthermore, the court may remand for entry of proper award. The trial court, having found as a matter of law, that there was uncontroverted evidence showing exertion and that exertion, under the circumstances, was an adequate cause of heart dilation which produced death, it was proper for the court to order the commission to enter the proper award. Indus. Comm'n v. Wetz, 100 Colo. 161, 66 P.2d 812 (1937).

Although evidence would support finding, if commission has not made finding, it will be given opportunity. The trial court's analysis of the medical evidence demonstrates that there is ample evidence here to support a finding of causation, if such a finding had been made. It does not appear that this evidence is so overwhelming as to justify a holding that causation was established as a matter of law. The commission, having made no finding as to causation, should be given the opportunity of making this determination of fact. Indus. Comm'n v. Riley, 165 Colo. 586, 441 P.2d 3 (1968).

Since not supreme court's function to make findings of fact. Where the referee did not make the evidentiary findings necessary to support his ultimate findings, the court may remand since it is not the court's function to make findings of fact. Womack v. Indus. Comm'n, 168 Colo. 364, 451 P.2d 761 (1969).

General recitation will not fulfill commission's duty to make findings of fact. A general recitation that the commission had rated partial permanent disability at 12% after giving "due consideration" to age, education, and experience will not fulfill the duty to make sufficiently detailed findings of fact to enable the courts to determine whether the award was supported by the facts. Steel Placers, Inc. v. Reese, 169 Colo. 360, 455 P.2d 874 (1969).

Award by commission on remand is part of original court review. Where a compensation case is remanded by a trial court to the commission for further hearing, with a duty to hear the issues so presented and to return its new or reaffirmed award to the court, such award when final is but a part of the original court review, and such action is not subject to dismissal by the employer, the jurisdiction of the court being a continuing one for all matters relating to a claimant's injuries. Graden Coal Co. v. Ytuarralde, 137 Colo. 527, 328 P.2d 105 (1958).

Applied in Casias v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 261, 554 P.2d 1357 (1976).

8-43-313. Summary review by supreme court. Any affected party dissatisfied with the decision of the court of appeals may seek review by writ of certiorari in the supreme court. If the supreme court reviews the judgment of the court of appeals, such review shall be limited to a summary review of questions of law. Any such action shall be advanced upon the calendar of the supreme court, and a final decision shall be rendered within sixty days after the date the supreme court grants further appellate review. The director, an administrative law judge, the industrial claim appeals office, or any other aggrieved party shall not be required to file any undertaking or other security upon review by the supreme court.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. The following annotations include cases decided under former provisions similar to this section.

In a workmen's compensation case, review by the supreme court is limited to a summary review of questions of law. James v. Irrigation Motor & Pump Co., 180 Colo. 195, 503 P.2d 1025 (1972).

For the supreme court is not a fact-finding body and can only affirm or reverse the judgment of a lower court or, if the circumstances require, order a remand for further findings. Miller v. Denver Post, Inc., 137 Colo. 61, 322 P.2d 661 (1958).

And findings of fact are controlling on the supreme court on review. Indus. Comm'n v. Enyeart, 81 Colo. 521, 256 P. 314 (1927).

Thus, the supreme court will not on review disturb findings based upon conflicting evidence. Vanadium Corp. of Am. v. Sargent, 134 Colo. 555, 307 P.2d 454 (1957).

Especially, where there is sufficient competent evidence in the record to support the award, it is the duty of the lower court to affirm such award; and it is the duty of the supreme court to affirm the judgment of the lower court. Indus. Comm'n v. Royal Indem. Co., 124 Colo. 210, 236 P.2d 293 (1951); Peter Kiewit Sons' Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 124 Colo. 217, 236 P.2d 296 (1951); Continental Cas. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 124 Colo. 295, 238 P.2d 196 (1951).

Inferences drawn from the facts are not binding on the supreme court. Deines Bros. v. Indus. Comm'n, 125 Colo. 258, 242 P.2d 600 (1952).

And court not bound by conclusions of law. Where the facts are undisputed the question is one of law and the supreme court on review of a case is not bound by the conclusions of law. Indus. Comm'n v. Bonfils, 78 Colo. 306, 241 P. 735 (1925); Deines Bros. v. Indus. Comm'n, 125 Colo. 258, 242 P.2d 600 (1952); *Vanadium Corp. of Am. v. Question whether evidence supports award is one of law. While the supreme court is only permitted to consider questions of law in workmen's compensation cases, whether an award is supported by evidence, is such a question and may be considered on review. Indus. Comm'n v. Elkas, 73 Colo. 475, 216 P. 521 (1923).

However, the supreme court may consider only the legal question of whether there is evidence to support the findings, and not whether its probative effect has been misconstrued. The award is conclusive upon all matters of fact properly in dispute, where supported by evidence, or reasonable inference to be drawn therefrom. *Passini v. Indus. Giving erroneous reason for proper award will not prevent affirmance. The reason given for a proper award, if erroneous, will not prevent an affirmance of the award by the supreme court on review. Indus. Comm'n v. Bonfils, 78 Colo. 306, 241 P. 735 (1925).

Bill of appeal will lie only to final judgment of lower court. A bill of appeal will lie to a judgment of the lower court entered upon the review of an order or award; but this means a final judgment, and not a mere interlocutory order. Continental Cas. Co. v. Connell, 87 Colo. 577, 290 P. 273 (1930).

8-43-314. Fees - costs - duty of district attorneys and attorney general. No fee shall be charged by the clerk of any court for the performance of any official service required by articles 40 to 47 of this title. On proceedings to review any order or award, costs as between the parties shall be allowed in the discretion of the court, but no costs shall be taxed against said director or industrial claim appeals office. In any action for the review of any order or award and upon any review thereof by the supreme court, it is the duty of the district attorney in the county wherein said action is pending, or of the attorney general if requested by the director or industrial claim appeals office, to appear on behalf of either or both, whether any other party defendant should have appeared or been represented in the action.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. The following annotations include a case decided under a former provision similar to this section.

Court of appeals has discretion to award cost. Since the appellate courts are the only state courts which have jurisdiction over industrial commission matters, the court of appeals has the discretion to award costs between parties. Bourn v. T & T Loveland Chinchilla Ranch, Inc., 32 Colo. App. 315, 514 P.2d 787 (1973).

8-43-315. Witnesses and testimony - mileage - fees - costs. The director or any agent, deputy, or administrative law judge of the division has the power to issue subpoenas to compel the attendance of witnesses or parties and the production of books, papers, or records and to administer oaths. Any person who serves a subpoena shall receive the same fee as the sheriff. Each witness who is subpoenaed on behalf of the director and who appears in obedience thereto shall receive for attendance the fees and mileage provided for witnesses in civil cases in the district court, which shall be audited and paid from the state treasury in the same manner as other expenses are audited and paid, upon the presentation of a proper voucher approved by the director. The director has the discretion to assess the cost of attendance and mileage of witnesses subpoenaed by either party to any proceeding against the other party to such proceeding when, in the director's judgment, the necessity of subpoenaing such witnesses arises out of the raising of any incompetent, irrelevant, or sham issues by such other party.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's notes. (1) The following annotations include cases decided under former provisions similar to this section.

(2) Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the enactment of 1986 Senate Bill No. 12 which abolished said commission.

A compensation claimant is not a "witness" within the meaning of the provision of this section for assessing the cost of attendance and mileage of a witness against a party to the proceeding when the necessity for subpoenaing the witness arises out of the raising of any incompetent, irrelevant, or sham issues by that party. Maryland Cas. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 116 Colo. 58, 178 P.2d 426 (1947).

Expert witness fees cannot be assessed as part of award. The workmen's compensation act contains no provision empowering the assessment of costs against either party in proceeding. Not having such power, expert witness fees cannot be assessed as part of the award. Arkin v. Indus. Comm'n, 145 Colo. 463, 358 P.2d 879 (1961).

Witness fees can be assessed only when the witness is subpoenaed to a proceeding. There is no provision for assessment of witness fees when a witness appears voluntarily. Compton v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 13 P.3d 844 (Colo. 2000).

An allowance of costs against the state compensation insurance fund is not against the "commission", which latter term means the industrial commission. State Comp. Ins. Fund v. Howington, 133 Colo. 583, 298 P.2d 063 (1956).

8-43-316. Appearance by officer for closely held corporation. An officer of a closely held Colorado corporation as defined in section 13-1-127 (1) (a), C.R.S., may appear on behalf of any such corporation, which has obtained coverage as required by articles 40 to 47 of this title in proceedings authorized under the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of this title, where the amount at issue does not exceed ten thousand dollars, except in proceedings before the industrial claim appeals office under this part 3, appeals to the court of appeals under section 8-43-307, and summary reviews by the supreme court under section 8-43-313.

ENFORCEMENT AND PENALTIES

8-43-401. District attorney or attorney of division to act for director or office - penalties for failure of insurer to pay benefits. (1) Upon the request of the director or the industrial claim appeals office, the district attorney of any district or any attorney-at-law employed by the division shall institute and prosecute the necessary actions or proceedings for the enforcement of any of the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title, or any award or order of the director, an administrative law judge, or the industrial claim appeals office, or for the recovery of any money due to Pinnacol Assurance, or any penalty provided in said articles, and shall defend in like manner all suits, actions, or proceedings brought against the director, an administrative law judge, or the industrial claim appeals office.

(2) (a) After all appeals have been exhausted or in cases where there have been no appeals, all insurers and self-insured employers shall pay benefits within thirty days after any benefits are due. If any insurer or self-insured employer knowingly delays payment of medical benefits for more than thirty days or knowingly stops payments, such insurer or self-insured employer shall pay a penalty of eight percent of the amount of wrongfully withheld benefits; except that no penalty is due if the insurer or self-insured employer proves that the delay was the result of excusable neglect. If any insurer or self-insured employer willfully withholds permanent partial disability benefits within thirty days of when due, the insurer or self-insured employer shall pay a penalty to the division of ten percent of the amount of such benefits due. The penalties shall be apportioned, in whole or part, at the discretion of the director or administrative law judge, among the aggrieved party, the medical services provider, and the workers' compensation cash fund created in section 8-44-112 (7) (a).

(b) All moneys collected as penalties by the division pursuant to this subsection (2) shall be transmitted to the state treasurer who shall credit the same to the workers' compensation cash fund created in section 8-44-112.

Where specific penalty provision in subsection (2)(a) applies, general penalty provisions in § 8-43-304 (1) do not. Sears v. Penrose Hosp., 942 P.2d 1345 (Colo. App. 1997), overruled in Holliday v. Bestop, Inc., 23 P.3d 700 (Colo. 2001).

Under the rules of statutory construction, the phrase "for which no penalty has been specifically provided" defines "fails or refuses to perform any duty lawfully enjoined within the time prescribed by the director or panel". The use of the disjunctive conjunction "or" demarcates four different acts within this section that give rise to penalties. Holliday v. Bestop, Inc., 23 P.3d 700 (Colo. 2001) (overruling Sears v. Penrose Hosp., 942 P.2d 1345 (Colo. App. 1997)).

General penalty in § 8-43-304 (1) was applicable to an insurer that refused to provide medically necessary transportation and, thus, refused medical treatment, although no bill for medical benefits was submitted and the insurer did not delay or stop payment of such a bill, which would have invoked the specific penalty set forth in subsection (2)(a). Pena v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 117 P.3d 84 (Colo. App. 2004).

If the general assembly intended to create two penalties for the late payment of medical benefits, subsection (2) would have provided that it is in addition to the penalty authorized by § 8-43-304 (1). Holliday v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 997 P.2d 1212 (Colo. App. 1999), vacated and claimant's appeal dismissed, 23 P.3d 700 (Colo. 2001).

A penalty imposed for the willful failure to timely pay benefits may be in addition to a penalty for violation of an order made by the director or panel under § 8-43-304. Giddings v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 39 P.3d 1211 (Colo. App. 2001).

Deliberate intent is required to trigger penalties under subsection (2)(a). Sears v. Penrose Hosp., 942 P.2d 1345 (Colo. App. 1997).

Term "wrongfully" in subsection (2)(a) implies that the withholding of benefits must be unlawful or unjust before penalties may be assessed. Sears v. Penrose Hosp., 942 P.2d 1345 (Colo. App. 1997); Miller v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 49 P.3d 334 (Colo. App. 2001).

A finding that employer acted reasonably under the circumstances precludes a finding of willfulness. Sears v. Penrose Hosp., 942 P.2d 1345 (Colo. App. 1997).

"Wrongful" withholding shown where respondents knew or should have known their conduct was unreasonable, and, as a result, they violated their obligation to provide necessary medical care. Miller v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 49 P.3d 334 (Colo. App. 2001).

Claims asserted against the state attorney general must be dismissed where the ground for the claim is that she is charged under Colorado law with enforcing Colorado's statutory provisions governing the business of insurance, including the enforcement of workers' compensation statutes, when in fact she is not responsible for enforcing either insurance or workers' compensation laws and may become involved in prosecuting related matters only at the request of the commissioner of insurance or the director of workers' compensation. Fuller v. Norton, 881 F. Supp. 468 (D. Colo. 1995).

There is no practical difference between failure to authorize treatment and failure to pay medical benefits. It is not impossible to assess the penalty provided for in subsection (2)(a) when the dispute involves the failure to authorize treatment. Holliday v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 997 P.2d 1212 (Colo. App. 1999), vacated and claimant's appeal dismissed, 23 P.3d 700 (Colo. 2001).

8-43-401.5. Financial incentives to deny or delay claim or medical care - prohibition - penalties. (1) No insurer, employee or contractor of an insurer, self-insured employer, employee or contractor of a self-insured employer, health care provider, or employee or contractor of a health care provider treating an injured worker under the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title shall pay or receive any form of financial remuneration that is based on any of the following:

- (a) The number of days to maximum medical improvement;
- (b) The rate of claims approval or denial;
- (c) The number of medical procedures, diagnostic procedures, or treatment appointments approved; or
- (d) Any other criteria designed or intended to encourage a violation of any provision of articles 40 to 47 of this title.

(2) (a) Payment of remuneration in violation of this section constitutes an unfair act or practice in the business of insurance, and the insurer or self-insured employer who pays or directs the payment of the remuneration shall be subject to penalties in accordance with part 11 of article 3 of title 10, C.R.S.

(b) In addition to, or as an alternative to, any penalties imposed pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (2), an insurer or self-insured employer who is found to have violated subsection (1) of this section may be subject to fines as determined by the director pursuant to section 8-43-304 (1.5).

(3) Nothing in this section:

- (a) Restricts or limits the ability of a claims adjuster or employee or contracted claims personnel to investigate, detect, or prevent fraud; or
- (b) Limits the payment or receipt of financial incentives for any other lawful purpose.

8-43-402. False statement - felony. If, for the purpose of obtaining any order, benefit, award, compensation, or payment under the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title, either for self-gain or for the benefit of any other person, anyone willfully makes a false statement or representation material to the claim, such person commits a class 5 felony and shall be punished as provided in section 18-1.3-401, C.R.S., and shall forfeit all right to compensation under said articles upon conviction of such offense.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Update on Colorado Appellate Decisions in Workers' Compensation Law", see 32 Colo. Law. 113 (October 2003). For article, "Update on Colorado Appellate Decisions in Workers' Compensation Law", see 33 Colo. Law. 117 (November 2004).

Term "compensation" does not include medical benefits. Accordingly, claimant who was convicted of a felony for making a false statement or representation material to a claim for recovery did not forfeit her right to ongoing medical benefits. Support, Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 968 P.2d 174 (Colo. App. 1998).

Benefits unrelated to false statements are not forfeited. A conviction under this section requires forfeiture of only the compensation that was obtained as a result of false statements. Wolford v. Pinnacol Assurance, 107 P.3d 947 (Colo. 2005).

There must be a nexus between the false statements and the compensation forfeited. Wolford v. Pinnacol Assurance, 107 P.3d 947 (Colo. 2005).

Statutory limitation period does not apply because forfeiture under this section is a criminal sanction, automatic upon conviction. Wolford v. Pinnacol Assurance, 81 P.3d 1079 (Colo. App. 2003), rev'd on other grounds, 107 P.3d 947 (Colo. 2005).

This section does not violate double jeopardy prohibitions. Wolford v. Pinnacol Assurance, 81 P.3d 1079 (Colo. App. 2003), rev'd on other grounds, 107 P.3d 947 (Colo. 2005).

Forfeiture under this section does not constitute an excessive fine. Wolford v. Pinnacol Assurance, 81 P.3d 1079 (Colo. App. 2003), rev'd on other grounds, 107 P.3d 947 (Colo. 2005).

This section does not require the person accused of false statements or representations to file or cause to be filed a claim. The statute applies to "anyone [who] willfully makes a false statement or representation material to the claim". In using this language, the general assembly chose not to limit the statute to the filing of a claim or to false statements or representations made on a particular claim form. People v. Witek, 97 P.3d 240 (Colo. App. 2004).

8-43-403. Attorney fees. (1) No contingent fee shall be applied to any medical benefits that have been previously incurred and will be paid to the claimant or directly to the medical care provider, in a permanent disability award, either by admission or settlement. In the event that medical benefits are the only contested issue, the fee agreement shall provide for reasonable fees calculated on a per-hour basis or, subject to approval by the director, may provide for a contingent fee not to exceed the limitations imposed by this section. On unappealed contested cases, a contingent fee exceeding twenty percent of the amount of contested benefits shall be presumed to be unreasonable. At the request of either an employee or the employee's attorney, the director shall determine what portion of the benefits awarded were contested, or the reasonableness of the fee charged by such attorney, or both. At the request of the employer or its insurance carrier or the attorney for either of them, the director shall determine the reasonableness of the fee charged by the attorney for the insurance carrier. No request for determination of the reasonableness of fees shall be considered by the director if received later than one hundred eighty days after the issuance of the final order, judgment, or opinion disposing of the last material issue in the case and the expiration of any right to review or appeal therefrom. In making this determination, the director shall consider fees normally charged by attorneys for cases requiring the same amount of time and skill and may decrease or increase the fee payable to such attorney. If the director finds that a review by the industrial claim appeals office or an appeal to the court of appeals or to the supreme court was perfected or if the director finds that such attorney reasonably devoted an extraordinary amount of time to the case, the director may award or approve a contingent fee or other fee in a percentage or amount that exceeds twenty percent of the amount of contested benefits. In determining the reasonableness of fees charged by an attorney for an employer or employer's insurance carrier, the director shall compare the fees of such attorney with the fees charged by the claimant's attorney in the same case and shall not approve an amount substantially greater than the reasonable amount charged by the said claimant's attorney or, if the claimant did not prevail, the reasonable amount the said claimant's attorney would have charged had the claimant prevailed, unless the director finds, based on a showing by the attorney for the employer or carrier, that higher fees are objectively justifiable. Legal costs not found reasonable shall not be allowed as an expense in fixing premium rates by the commissioner of insurance.

(2) Any attorney who represents any party in a workers' compensation case shall provide the party with a written fee agreement which sets forth, in full, the attorney's specific fee arrangement, including the criteria upon which the attorney bases his hourly or set fee and the circumstances in which any modifications or adjustments to such fee will be made, and specifying whether the client will be charged for the attorney's expenses or advances made by the attorney on behalf of the party, including without limitation costs of copying, research, telephone calls, postage, and any other expenses incident to the litigation which the attorney may be ethically bound to undertake on behalf of the party pursuant to law or pursuant to any court rule including the code of professional responsibility as adopted by the supreme court of Colorado. Contingent fee agreements shall be in conformity with all applicable provisions of the said code or of rules of the supreme court, and, in addition, such agreements shall set forth the provisions of this section in easy to understand language in at least ten-point bold-faced type. No such fee agreement may be enforced against any party unless it complies with the requirements of this section and is signed by both parties. Any attempt by an attorney who intentionally does not comply with this section and who seeks to enforce a fee agreement which does not comply with the requirements of this section shall be presumed to be a violation of the code of professional responsibility as adopted by the supreme court of Colorado.

8-43-404. Examination - refusal - personal responsibility - physicians to testify and furnish results - injured worker right to select treating physicians - injured worker right to third-party communications - definitions - rules. (1) (a) If in case of injury the right to compensation under articles 40 to 47 of this title exists in favor of an employee, upon the written request of the employee's employer or the insurer carrying such risk, the employee shall from time to time submit to examination by a physician or surgeon or to a vocational evaluation, which shall be provided and paid for by the employer or insurer, and the employee shall likewise submit to examination from time to time by any regular physician selected and paid for by the division.

(b) (I) At least three business days in advance of an examination under paragraph (a) of this subsection (1), if requested by the claimant, the employer or insurer shall pay to the claimant the claimant's estimated expenses of attending the examination, including transportation, mileage, food, and hotel costs. Failure to provide payment in accordance with this subparagraph (I) constitutes grounds for the claimant to refuse to attend the examination.

(II) If an employer pays estimated expenses under this paragraph (b) and the claimant does not attend the examination, the employer or insurer may recover the costs paid for the employee's expenses from future indemnity benefits.

(2) (a) The employee shall be entitled to have a physician, provided and paid for by the employee, present at any such examination. If an employee is examined by a chiropractor at the request of the employer, the employee shall be entitled to have a chiropractor provided and paid for by the employee present at any such examination. After any examination conducted under this section, the examiner shall prepare a written report giving a description of the examination performed, the written documents or any other materials reviewed, and all findings or conclusions of the examiner. The employee shall be entitled to receive from the examining physician or chiropractor a copy of any report that the physician or chiropractor makes to the employer, insurer, or division upon the examination, and the copy shall be furnished to the employee at the same time it is furnished to the employer, insurer, or division. The employee shall also be entitled to receive reports from any physician selected by the employer to treat the employee upon the same terms and conditions and at the same time the reports are furnished by the physician to the employer. All such examinations shall be recorded in audio in their entirety and retained by the examining physician until requested by any party. Prior to commencing the audio recording, the examining physician shall disclose to the employee the fact that the exam is being recorded. If requested, an exact copy of the recording shall be provided to the parties. Nothing in this subsection (2) shall be construed to prevent any party to the claim from making an audio recording of the examination. The division shall promulgate rules regarding such recordings that shall include provisions for the protection of the audio recordings and the privacy of information contained in such recordings. The employer shall be entitled to receive reports from any physician or chiropractor selected by the employee to treat or examine the employee in connection with such injury upon the same terms and at the same time the reports are furnished by the physician or chiropractor to the employee.

(b) The amendments made to paragraph (a) of this subsection (2) by Senate Bill 09-168, enacted in 2009, are declared to be procedural and were intended to and shall apply to all workers' compensation claims, regardless of the date the claim was filed.

(3) So long as the employee, after written request by the employer or insurer, refuses to submit to medical examination or vocational evaluation or in any way obstructs the same, all right to collect, or to begin or maintain any proceeding for the collection of, compensation shall be suspended. If the employee refuses to submit to such examination after direction by the director or any agent, referee, or administrative law judge of the division appointed pursuant to section 8-43-208 (1) or in any way obstructs the same, all right to weekly indemnity which accrues and becomes payable during the period of such refusal or obstruction shall be barred. If any employee persists in any unsanitary or injurious practice which tends to imperil or retard recovery or refuses to submit to such medical or surgical treatment or vocational evaluation as is reasonably essential to promote recovery, the director shall have the discretion to reduce or suspend the compensation of any such injured employee.

(4) Any physician or chiropractor who makes or is present at any such examination may be required to testify as to the results thereof. Any physician or chiropractor having attended an employee in a professional capacity may be required to testify before the division when it so directs. A physician or chiropractor will not be required to disclose confidential communications imparted to said physician or chiropractor for the purpose of treatment and which are unnecessary to a proper understanding of the case.

(5) (a) (I) (A) In all cases of injury, the employer or insurer shall provide a list of at least two physicians or two corporate medical providers or at least one physician and one corporate medical provider, where available, in the first instance, from which list an injured employee may select the physician who attends said injured employee. The two designated providers shall be at two distinct locations without common ownership. If there are not two providers at two distinct locations without common ownership within thirty miles of each other, then an employer may designate two providers at the same location or with shared ownership interests. Upon request by an interested party to the workers' compensation claim, a designated provider on the employer's list shall provide a list of ownership interests and employment relationships, if any, to the requesting party within five days of the receipt of the request. If the services of a physician are not tendered at the time of injury, the employee shall have the right to select a physician or chiropractor. For purposes of this section, "corporate medical provider" means a medical organization in business as a sole proprietorship, professional corporation, or partnership.

(B) If there are fewer than four physicians or corporate medical providers within thirty miles of the employer's place of business who are willing to treat an injured employee, the employer or insurer may instead designate one physician or one corporate medical provider, and subparagraphs (III) and (IV) of this paragraph (a) shall not apply. A physician is presumed willing to treat injured workers unless he or she indicates to the employer or insurer to the contrary.

(II) (A) If the employer is a health care provider or a governmental entity that currently has its own occupational health care provider system, the employer may designate health care providers from within its own system and is not required to provide an alternative physician or corporate medical provider from outside its own system.

(B) If the employer has its own on-site health care facility, the employer may designate such on-site health care facility as the authorized treating physician, but the employer shall comply with subparagraph (III) of this paragraph (a). For purposes of this sub-subparagraph (B), "on-site health care facility" means an entity that meets all applicable state requirements to provide health care services on the employer's premises.

(III) An employee may obtain a one-time change in the designated authorized treating physician under this section by providing notice that meets the following requirements:

(A) The notice is provided within ninety days after the date of the injury, but before the injured worker reaches maximum medical improvement;

(B) The notice is in writing and submitted on a form designated by the director. The notice provided in this subparagraph (III) shall also simultaneously serve as a request and authorization to the initially authorized treating physician to release all relevant medical records to the newly authorized treating physician.

(C) The notice is directed to the insurance carrier or to the employer's authorized representative, if self-insured, and to the initially authorized treating physician and is deposited in the United States mail or hand-delivered to the employer, who shall notify the insurance carrier, if necessary, and the initially authorized treating physician;

(D) The new physician is on the employer's designated list or provides medical services for a designated corporate medical provider on the list;

(E) The transfer of medical care does not pose a threat to the health or safety of the injured employee;

(F) An insurance carrier, or an employer's authorized representative if the employer is self-insured, shall track how often injured employees change their authorized treating physician pursuant to this subparagraph (III) and shall report such information to the division upon request.

(IV) (A) When an injured employee changes his or her designated authorized treating physician, the newly authorized treating physician shall make a reasonable effort to avoid any unnecessary duplication of medical services.

(B) The originally authorized treating physician shall send all medical records in his or her possession pertaining to the injured employee to the newly authorized treating physician within seven calendar days after receiving a request for medical records from the newly authorized treating physician.

(C) The originally authorized treating physician shall continue as the authorized treating physician for the injured employee until the injured employee's initial visit with the newly authorized treating physician, at which time the treatment relationship with the initially authorized treating physician shall terminate.

(D) The opinion of the originally authorized treating physician regarding work restrictions and return to work shall control unless and until such opinion is expressly modified by the newly authorized treating physician.

(E) The newly authorized treating physician shall be presumed to have consented to treat the injured employee unless the newly authorized treating physician expressly refuses in writing within five days after the date of the notice to change authorized treating physicians. If the newly authorized treating physician refuses to treat the injured employee, the employee may return to the employer to request an alternative authorized treating physician. If the employer does not provide an alternative authorized treating physician within five days after the employee's request, rules established by the division shall control.

(V) If the authorized treating physician moves from one facility to another, or from one corporate medical provider to another, an injured employee may continue care with the authorized treating physician, and the original facility or corporate medical provider shall provide the injured employee's medical records to the authorized treating physician within seven days after receipt of a request for medical records from the authorized treating physician.

(VI) In addition to the one-time change of physician allowed in subparagraph (III) of this paragraph (a), upon written request to the insurance carrier or to the employer's authorized representative if self-insured, an injured employee may procure written permission to have a personal physician or chiropractor treat the employee. If permission is neither granted nor refused within twenty days, the employer or insurance carrier shall be deemed to have waived any objection to the employee's request. Objection shall be in writing and shall be deposited in the United States mail or hand-delivered to the employee within twenty days. An insurance carrier, or an employer's authorized representative if self-insured, shall track how often an injured employee requests to change his or her physician and how often such change is granted or denied and shall report such information to the division upon request. Upon the proper showing to the division, the employee may procure the division's permission at any time to have a physician of the employee's selection treat the employee, and in any nonsurgical case the employee, with such permission, in lieu of medical aid, may procure any nonmedical treatment recognized by the laws of this state as legal. The practitioner administering the treatment shall receive fees under the medical provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title as specified by the division.

(b) Any private insurer or self-insured employer acting as its own insurance carrier as provided in section 8-44-201 providing workers' compensation coverage shall pay for chiropractic care as provided in paragraph (a) of this subsection (5).

(c) A treating physician shall not communicate with the employer or insurer of an injured worker regarding that injured worker unless:

(I) The injured worker is present for the communication; or

(II) The treating physician makes an accurate written record of the communication, containing all relevant and material information that was communicated, and provides the injured worker access to the writing in the same manner as medical records disclosures as required by director rules.

(6) Application or prosecution of a claim for benefits shall be a waiver of any privilege concerning communications relating to all medical issues raised by the claim, for the purposes of a utilization review conducted pursuant to section 8-43-501.

(7) An employer or insurer shall not be liable for treatment provided pursuant to article 41 of title 12, C.R.S., unless such treatment has been prescribed by an authorized treating physician.

(8) Upon request by an employee who has not reached maximum medical improvement and whose authorized treating physician is not level II accredited, an insurer or self-insured employer shall select a level II accredited physician as the authorized treating physician.

(9) (a) Health care services provided shall be deemed authorized if the claim is found to be compensable when:

(I) Compensability of a claim is initially denied;

(II) The services of the physician selected by the employer are not tendered at the time of the injury; and

(III) The injured worker is treated:

(A) At a public health facility in the state;

(B) At a public health facility within one hundred fifty miles of the residence of the injured worker; or

(C) Through a publicly funded program.

(b) A claimant shall not be liable for payment for treatment by the provider under this subsection (9) if the treatment is reasonably needed and related to the injury.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Law reviews. For article, "A Significant Change in the Colorado Workmen's Compensation Act: 'Accidents', 'Injuries', and 'Heart Attack'", see 41 Den. L. Ctr. J. 189 (1964).

Annotator's note. (1) Since § 8-43-404 is similar to § 8-51-110 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of this title, relevant cases construing that provision have been included in the annotations to this section.

(2) Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the 1969 amendment which vested the director of the division of labor with the power previously exercised by the industrial commission to enforce the provisions of this section.

Resumption of benefits after suspension. This section permits a resumption of benefits after a period of suspension when the disqualifying condition has been removed. Dziewior v. Michigan Gen. Corp., 672 P.2d 1026 (Colo. App. 1983).

Industrial claim appeals office finding that claimant had failed to remove the disqualifying condition was supported by substantial evidence and justified director's refusal to reinstate benefits. Bacon v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 746 P.2d 74 (Colo. App. 1987).

Effective date of division's "permission" is date of ALJ's oral summary order. Delaying change of physician until written order is issued would be contrary to statutory goal of assuring quick and efficient delivery of medical benefits. Consolidated Landscape v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 883 P.2d 571 (Colo. App. 1994).

Administrative law judge properly excluded custody evaluation from custody case as being outside the scope of the worker's compensation case and therefore not of aid to the understanding of the worker's compensation case. Powderhorn Coal Co. v. Weaver, 835 P.2d 616 (Colo. App. 1992).

Applied in Safeway Stores v. Indus. Comm'n, 678 P.2d 1078 (Colo. App. 1984).

II. EMPLOYEE'S REFUSAL TO BE TREATED.

Where risks do not justify claimant's refusal to submit to operation, no full compen- sation. While a claimant has the option to refuse corrective surgery, he may not do so and continue to receive full compensation where it appears that the risk involved in the recommended surgery is not such as to justify claimant's refusal thereof. Hays v. Indus. Comm'n, 138 Colo. 334, 333 P.2d 617 (1958).

The industrial commission must determine no unusual risks before denying relief. Before the commission would be justified in denying relief to an applicant because of his refusal to submit to treatment or surgery it must appear that the proposed treatment or surgery is such as to be free of unusual risks and calculated to effect a cure. Cain v. Indus. Comm'n, 136 Colo. 227, 315 P.2d 823 (1957); MGM Supply Co. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 62 P.3d 1001 (Colo. App. 2002).

The reasonableness of claimant's refusal to submit to operative treatment is a question of fact to be determined by the commission. Overton v. City & County of Denver, 106 Colo. 114, 102 P.2d 474 (1940); Cain v. Indus. Comm'n, 136 Colo. 227, 315 P.2d 823 (1957); Hays v. Indus. Comm'n, 138 Colo. 334, 333 P.2d 617 (1958); MGM Supply Co. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 62 P.3d 1001 (Colo. App. 2002).

The burden of proof is on the employer to establish that a tendered operation is simple, safe, and reasonably certain to effect a cure. Cain v. Indus. Comm'n, 136 Colo. 227, 315 P.2d 823 (1957).

So that evidence will not support the suspension of compensation where there is no showing of a refusal to submit to surgery or that claimant persisted in any unsanitary or injurious practice which tended to imperil or retard his recovery. Padillo v. F.H. Linneman Constr. Co., 29 Colo. App. 137, 479 P.2d 990 (1971).

In any event, this section specifically gives the industrial commission discretion in matters of this kind, and those seeking to attack the result must show that it abused its discretion. Andrews v. Indus. Comm'n, 73 Colo. 456, 216 P. 256 (1923); Nat'l Lumber & Creosoting Co. v. Kelly, 101 Colo. 535, 75 P.2d 144 (1937).

In the absence of an abuse of discretion, the decision of the industrial commission as to the reasonableness of a claimant's refusal to submit to corrective surgery, is not subject to revision by the courts. Hays v. Indus. Comm'n, 138 Colo. 334, 333 P.2d 617 (1958); MGM Supply Co. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 62 P.3d 1001 (Colo. App. 2002).

Claimant not to be penalized for acting on advice of personal physician. Nat'l Lumber & Creosoting Co. v. Kelly, 101 Colo. 535, 75 P.2d 144 (1937).

A claimant who refuses corrective surgery because of his religious convictions cannot subject his employer to greater liability than would obtain if claimant's faith permitted him to undergo surgery required. Indus. Comm'n v. Vigil, 150 Colo. 356, 373 P.2d 308 (1962).

On the other hand the elements of fear and anxiety may be taken into consideration by the commission as a proper basis for the award of compensation in a workmen's compensation case. Nat'l Lumber & Creosoting Co. v. Kelly, 101 Colo. 535, 75 P.2d 144 (1937).

Suspension of benefits not sanction. Decision to suspend worker's compensation benefits was based on inference that worker's attempt to impede testing of his alleged disability was indicative of lack of disability, and was not based on statute allowing hearing officer to impose sanctions for failure to comply with discovery. Nova v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 754 P.2d 800 (Colo. App. 1988).

Vocational rehabilitation. The right which accrues to a claimant because of the failure of the director to approve a vocational rehabilitation plan is the right not to begin complying with the plan. Once the plan is implemented and claimant voluntarily submits to it, and in the absence of the director's express disapproval, the lack of approval by the director does not excuse the claimant's failure to cooperate. Bacon v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 746 P.2d 74 (Colo. App. 1987).

Provisions of this statute applicable to refusal to undergo vocational rehabilitation do not require that claimant be directed to cooperate with vocational rehabilitation prior to the issuance of an order to suspend claimant's receipt of benefits. Bacon v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 746 P.2d 74 (Colo. App. 1987) (decided under law in effect prior to 1987 amendment).

Applied in Walton v. Indus. Comm'n, 738 P.2d 66 (Colo. App. 1987).

III. EMPLOYER'S RIGHT TO SELECT PHYSICIAN.

Law reviews. For article, "A Review of Medical Issues in Worker's Compensation", see 19 Colo. Law. 667 (1990).

The employer or insurer has the right in the first instance to select the physician and services requisite to proper treatment of the employee. State Comp. Ins. Fund v. Luna, 156 Colo. 106, 397 P.2d 231 (1964).

This section authorizes the employer to select the treating physician "in the first instance". Granite Constr. Co. v. Leonard, 40 Colo. App. 20, 568 P.2d 500 (1977).

Based on the plain language of subsection (5)(a) and cases interpreting that subsection, an employer's right of first selection of a treating physician precludes an award of medical benefits for treatment received before the decedent's workers' compensation claim was filed. Bunch v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 148 P.3d 381 (Colo. App. 2006).

Where medical services are tendered to an injured employee in the first instance, the employee's secondary right of selection is lost. Vanadium Corp. of Am. v. Sargent, 134 Colo. 555, 307 P.2d 454 (1957).

Furthermore, an employer cannot give an employee carte blanche to select a different doctor, especially when the employee's selection has resulted in surgical expense to not only the employer but also the fund. Vanadium Corp. of Am. v. Sargent, 134 Colo. 555, 307 P.2d 454 (1957).

Employer or insurer may designate a medical care facility rather than an individual physician. Although subsection (5)(a) refers to the right of the employer or insurer to select a "physician", the statute's use of the singular does not, without more, establish that only a single individual may be designated. Andrade v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 121 P.3d 328 (Colo. App. 2005).

Right to select physician is independent of the right to contest liability. The employer or insurer may deny liability and still retain the right to select a treating physician in the event they later admit liability or are found liable for the injury. Yeck v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 996 P.2d 228 (Colo. App. 1999).

If a claimant wants to change physicians, he or she has a statutory obligation to request that change in accordance with subsection (5)(a). Yeck v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 996 P.2d 228 (Colo. App. 1999).

Where employer fails to exercise its right to select treating physician and notifies employee that medical treatment will not be tendered, employee's right to select her own physician becomes vested. Rogers v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 746 P.2d 565 (Colo. App. 1987); Brickell v. Business Mach., Inc., 817 P.2d 536 (Colo. App. 1990).

Claimant's use of another physician requires consent of the industrial commission before employer may be held liable. Fuel & Iron Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 129 Colo. 353, 269 P.2d 1070 (1954); Vanadium Corp. of Am. v. Sargent, 134 Colo. 555, 307 P.2d 454 (1957); Wishbone Restaurant v. Moya, 162 Colo. 30, 424 P.2d 119 (1967).

Employee is not required to obtain permission to consult physician chosen by employee, where employer did not offer to provide medical treatment, and where employee initially consulted physician provided by employee's insurance plan who declined to treat employee because employee's injuries were work-related. Ruybal v. Univ. Health Sciences Ctr., 768 P.2d 1259 (Colo. App. 1988).

Notice and consent necessary to change or add physicians. The workmen's compensation act does not permit an injured employee to change physicians or to employ additional physicians without notice to his employer or its insurer and consent of the division of labor. Pickett v. Colo. State Hosp., 32 Colo. App. 282, 513 P.2d 228 (1973).

A unilateral declaration of intent to change physicians is not a "request" to change physicians. Subsection (5)(a) requires a claimant to request a new physician before switching physicians, but a declaration of intent to change physicians does not meet the requirement that the claimant request a new physician. Lutz v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 24 P.3d 29 (Colo. App. 2000).

Employer's failure to respond to worker's request for authorization to seek treatment from second physician waived any objection to second physician's treatment. Denny's Restaurant, Inc. v. Husson, 746 P.2d 63 (Colo. App. 1987).

The act of the employee, in engaging his own surgeon, does not relieve the employer from all responsibility for the payment of benefits provided by law for disability incurred by the employee in an industrial accident. Colo. Fuel & Iron Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 129 Colo. 353, 269 P.2d 1070 (1954); Vanadium Corp. of Am. v. Sargent, 134 Colo. 555, 307 P.2d 454 (1957); Mennonite Hosp. v. Corley, 28 Colo. App. 585, 476 P.2d 274 (1970).

Where insurer refuses to pay expenses for operation reducing disability, insurer may not benefit. If there has been a significant reduction in the percentage of permanent disability suffered by the employee due to an operation successfully performed by the employee's own physician, and the insurance carrier refuses to defray this expense, the insurer is not entitled to accept the benefits thereof which take the form of substantially reduced payments of compensation for permanent disability. State Comp. Ins. Fund v. Luna, 156 Colo. 106, 397 P.2d 231 (1964); Wishbone Restaurant v. Moya, 162 Colo. 30, 424 P.2d 119 (1967).

Employer or insurer not liable for unauthorized medical expenses. When an injured employee incurs unauthorized medical expenses, the employer or its insurer is not liable for such expenses. Pickett v. Colo. State Hosp., 32 Colo. App. 282, 513 P.2d 228 (1973).

An employee may engage medical services if the employer has expressly or impliedly conveyed to the employee the impression that the employee has authorization to proceed in this fashion, or, with full knowledge over a sustained period of time, has failed to object to claimant's change of physician. Greager v. Indus. Comm'n, 701 P.2d 168 (Colo. 1985).

Also insurer's refusal to pay claimant's unauthorized medical expenses does not entitle claimant to compensation for a higher degree of permanent disability than that which she actually suffered. Pickett v. Colo. State Hosp., 32 Colo. App. 282, 513 P.2d 228 (1973).

Claimant's letter, which did not unambiguously set forth a request to have own physician treat claimant, did not require rejection by insurer as a request to be treated by claimant's own physician. Insurer's action of informing claimant, who was represented by counsel, that insurer could not communicate directly with claimant was appropriate and did not constitute a failure to respond within the meaning of § 8-43-110 (5) (a). Brown & Root v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 833 P.2d 780 (Colo. App. 1991).

However, employer's or carrier's objection to treatment by a second physician is not waived where claimant, who was represented by counsel, sent an ambiguous letter to the claims service requesting permission to obtain additional information about her condition and other doctors for more opinions, and was sent a response from the claims service informing the claimant that she would have to correspond with the claims service through her attorney. The industrial claims panel erred in setting aside the administrative law judge's finding that treatment of the claimant by an orthopedic surgeon was not authorized by default under this section. Brown & Root v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 833 P.2d 780 (Colo. App. 1992).

This section requires only that a claimant request permission for alternative care from the employer or the insurer. It does not restrict the request to the insurer if an employer is separately insured. Denny's Restaurant, Inc. v. Husson, 746 P.2d 63 (Colo. App. 1987).

Initial denial by insurer of claimant's request for a change of physician did not negate its obligation to respond to subsequent requests for a change of physician and failure to do so pursuant to subsection (5)(a) within 20 days of request rendered denial waived. Jacoby v. Metro Taxi, Inc., 851 P.2d 245 (Colo. App. 1993).

No authority exists for an employer to appoint an agent, other than an insurer, and unilaterally vest it with the rights and responsibilities assigned either to employers or insurers by the Workmen's Compensation Act. Denny's Restaurant, Inc. v. Husson, 746 P.2d 63 (Colo. App. 1987).

Emergency creates exception to requirements of subsection (5)(a), relieving employee of duty to notify employer or await employer's choice of physician before seeking medical attention. Sims v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 797 P.2d 777 (Colo. App. 1990).

Once emergency has ended, employee must notify employer of need for further treatment and employer may select physician, or services are not compensable. Sims v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 797 P.2d 777 (Colo. App. 1990).

Panel properly construed subsection (5)(a) to require that an insurer respond to an authorization request within 20 days of mailing of the written request. Gianetto Oil v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 931 P.2d 570 (Colo. App. 1996).

Claimant was entitled to a change in physicians after having reached maximum medical improvement to the extent that the change was for purposes of obtaining future medical treatment to relieve the effects of her industrial injury or to prevent future deterioration of her work-related condition. Story v. Indus. Claims Appeals Office, 910 P.2d 80 (Colo. App. 1995).

A claimant's physician, as an accredited provider, does not possess an express or implied statutory right to treat any claimant for his or her work-related injury or to provide further treatment. Carlson v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 950 P.2d 663 (Colo. App. 1997).

IV. EMPLOYEE'S REFUSAL TO SUBMIT TO EXAM OR EVALUATION.

An administrative law judge may impose additional penalties pursuant to § 8-43-304 even though this section provides a specific penalty. Kennedy v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 100 P.3d 949 (Colo. App. 2004).

It was proper for benefits to be restored after a suspension when an employee initially refused to submit to an examination but the employee and the employer later stipulated to an examination and no order was entered requiring the employee to submit to an examination. Magnetic Eng'g, Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 5 P.3d 385 (Colo. App. 2000).

8-43-405. Payment as discharge of liability - conflicting claims. Payment of death benefits to one or more dependents shall protect and discharge to that extent all compensation under articles 40 to 47 of this title unless and until any other person claiming to be a dependent has given the division notice of said person's claim and until the division has notified the employer or the employer's insurance carrier of such claim. In such case, the director or an administrative law judge shall determine the respective rights of said rival claimants, and thereafter such death benefits shall be paid to such dependents as the director or the administrative law judge may find so entitled under the provisions of said articles.

Editor's note: This section is similar to former § 8-50-117 as it existed prior to 1990.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. Since § 8-43-405 is similar to § 8-50-117 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of this title, a relevant case construing that provision has been included in the annotations to this section.

The purpose of this section is, of course, to enable the employer, when an award has been made, to rest upon it and make his payments in safety, secure that other dependents could not appear and say he had paid the wrong person. Colo. Fuel & Iron Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 74 Colo. 228, 220 P. 498 (1923).

And the employer is not bound to search out the dependents. The dependents must appear and make their rights known. Colo. Fuel & Iron Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 74 Colo. 228, 220 P. 498 (1923).

8-43-406. Compensation in lump sum. (1) At any time after six months have elapsed from the date of injury, the claimant may elect to take all or any part of the compensation awarded in a lump sum by sending written notice of the election and the amount of benefits requested to the carrier or the noninsured or self-insured employer. The carrier or self-insured employer shall file the calculation of the lump sum due and notice that the lump sum has been paid to the claimant within ten days after the election. When the claimant is unrepresented, the director shall calculate amounts to be paid based on the present worth of partial payments, considering interest at four percent per annum, and less a deduction for the contingency of death. The director shall make the method of calculation of lump sums available to all parties at all times, including posting the information on the division's web site. Neither the director nor an administrative law judge shall in any way attempt to condition the lump sum payment on the claimant waiving the right to pursue permanent total disability benefits.

(2) The aggregate of all lump sums granted to a claimant who has been awarded compensation shall not exceed sixty thousand dollars.

Editor's note: This section is similar to former § 8-52-103 as it existed prior to 1990.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. (1) Since § 8-43-406 is similar to § 8-52-103 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of this title, relevant cases construing that provision have been included in the annotations to this section.

(2) Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the enactment of 1986 Senate Bill No. 12 which abolished said commission and transferred its powers, duties, and functions under this section to the director of the division of labor.

Subsection (1) is not unconstitutionally vague and does not constitute an unconstitutional delegation of power to an administrative agency. A "best interests" standard has been relied on by the general assembly in other instances to govern the resolution of conflicting interests. Warren v. Southern Colo. Excavators, 862 P.2d 966 (Colo. App. 1993).

Since the general assembly may place valid limitations upon any remedy, the section does not violate § 6 of article II of the Colorado Constitution. Warren v. Southern Colo. Excavators, 862 P.2d 966 (Colo. App. 1993).

This section is to be construed liberally for the protection of the employee. Employers' Mut. Ins. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 65 Colo. 283, 176 P. 314 (1918).

And there is no fixed rule as to the allowance of a lump sum. No fixed rule can be laid down for determining whether weekly compensation or a lump sum should be allowed a claimant under this section. In most cases the controlling factor must be the character, capacity, and business ability of the claimant. Kokotovich v. Indus. Comm'n, 69 Colo. 572, 195 P. 646 (1921); Rinehart v. Indus. Comm'n, 719 P.2d 729 (Colo. App. 1986).

For the allowance of a lump sum award is left to the discretion of the commission. The award may be in part a lump sum, and if the commission thinks it is for the best interest of the parties, the balance due may be ordered to be paid monthly. The matter is left to the discretion of the commission and not subject to review. Indus. Comm'n v. Big Six Coal Co., 72 Colo. 377, 211 P. 361 (1922); Rinehart v. Indus. Comm'n, 719 P.2d 729 (Colo. App. 1986).

Where claimant's primary purpose in requesting a partial lump sum settlement was to pay his attorney fees in a single payment, the commission did not act in excess of its statutory authority in considering the reasonableness of the attorney fees in concluding that it should deny a lump sum settlement. Rinehart v. Indus. Comm'n, 719 P.2d 729 (Colo. App. 1986) (decided prior to 1986 abolishment of industrial commission).

Also, within commission's discretion to determine amount and manner of payment of lump sum. Indus. Comm'n v. Big Six Coal Co., 72 Colo. 377, 211 P. 361 (1922).

Furthermore, a lump sum award becomes a vested right which survives. McBride v. Indus. Comm'n, 97 Colo. 166, 49 P.2d 386 (1935).

Phrase "the aggregate of all lump sums granted" as used in subsection (2) requires that the aggregate of all lump sum payments, whether they be for permanent total disability and/or permanent partial disability, be considered in determining the limitation. Ritter v. Indus. Comm'n, 44 Colo. App. 32, 615 P.2d 40 (1980).

To interpret subsection (2) retrospectively could create chaos in the operations of workmen's compensation insurers whose premium rates and loss reserves are computed on their potential liability inherent in the statutory scheme that was in effect upon issuance of the insurance. Eight Thousand W. Corp. v. Stewart, 37 Colo. App. 372, 546 P.2d 1281 (1976).

The limit on the aggregate of all lump sums granted to a claimant in subsection (2) of this section, as amended, is procedural and prospective and, thus, applies to transactions that occur after its enactment even though the claimant applied for and was granted a lump-sum payment before subsection (2) was amended in 2007. Nelson v. Indus. Claim Ap- peals Office, 219 P.3d 416 (Colo. App. 2009), aff'd sub nom. Specialty Rests. Corp. v. Nelson, 231 P.3d 393 (Colo. 2010).

Statute as basis for jurisdiction. See Tavenor v. Royal Indem. Co., 84 Colo. 521, 272
P. 3 (1928).

8-43-407. Election to waive vocational rehabilitation benefits and become subject to permanent partial disability provisions. In all cases arising under articles 40 to 47 of this title prior to July 1, 1987, the employee, the employer, and, if insured, the insurance carrier may elect, upon unanimous agreement, in writing to waive vocational rehabilitation which was awarded pursuant to section 8-49-101 as it existed prior to July 1, 1987, and become subject to the permanent partial disability provisions pursuant to section 8-42-110, as said section existed prior to July 1, 1991. Such election shall be made in a form prescribed by the director and shall not affect payments made prior to the filing of such agreement. Failure to agree to the options available under the provisions of this section shall not be evidence of bad faith in any future litigation by either party.

8-43-408. Default of employer - additional liability. (1) In any case where the employer is subject to the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title and at the time of an injury has not complied with the insurance provisions of said articles, or has allowed the required insurance to terminate, or has not effected a renewal thereof, the employee, if injured, or, if killed, the employee's dependents may claim the compensation and benefits provided in said articles, and in any such case the amounts of compensation or benefits provided in said articles shall be increased fifty percent.

(2) In all cases where compensation is awarded under the terms of this section, the director or an administrative law judge of the division shall compute and require the employer to pay to a trustee designated by the director or administrative law judge an amount equal to the present value of all unpaid compensation or benefits computed at the rate of four percent per annum; or, in lieu thereof, such employer, within ten days after the date of such order, shall file a bond with the director or administrative law judge signed by two or more responsible sureties to be approved by the director or by some surety company authorized to do business within the state of Colorado. The bond shall be in such form and amount as prescribed and fixed by the director and shall guarantee the payment of the compensation or benefits as awarded. The filing of any appeal, including a petition for review, shall not relieve the employer of the obligation under this subsection (2) to pay the designated sum to a trustee or to file a bond with the director or administrative law judge.

(3) A certified copy of any award of the director, administrative law judge, or panel ordering the payment of compensation entered in such case may be filed with the clerk of the district court of any county in this state at any time after the order of the administrative law judge awarding compensation, and the same shall be recorded by said clerk in the judgment book of said court and entry thereof made in the judgment docket, and it shall thenceforth have all the effect of a judgment of the district court, and execution may issue thereon out of said court as in other cases. Upon the reversal, setting aside, modification, or vacation of said order or award and upon payment to the trustee or furnishing of bond in accordance with the terms of this section, then, upon certification thereof by the director, administrative law judge, or panel, said record in the judgment book and the entry in the judgment docket shall be vacated, and any execution thereon shall be recalled.

(4) Any employer who fails to comply with a lawful order or judgment issued pursuant to subsection (2) or (3) of this section is liable to the employee, if injured, or, if killed, said employee's dependents, in addition to the amount in the order or judgment, for an amount equal to fifty percent of such order or judgment or one thousand dollars, whichever is greater, plus reasonable attorney fees incurred after entry of a judgment or order.

ANNOTATION

- I. General Consideration.
- II. Fifty Percent Penalty.
- III. Requirement of Bond.
- IV. Entry of Judgment.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Annotator's note. Since § 8-43-408 is similar to § 8-44-107 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of this title, relevant cases construing that provision have been included in the annotations to this section.

The penalty provisions included in this section extend only to the failure to secure insurance and do not apply to the violation of other insurance-related provisions. U.S. Fidelity & Guar., Inc. v. Kourlis, 868 P.2d 1158 (Colo. App. 1994).

The plain language of subsection (1) recognizes that there are statutory limitations on various types of workers' compensation, however, it is also a provision for additional compensation for the amounts already provided. Merchants Oil, Inc. v. Anderson, 897 P.2d 895 (Colo. App. 1995).

This section is designed to encourage cooperation with the mandatory insurance requirements and to provide for additional compensation when the employer neglects or refuses to purchase insurance. Merchants Oil, Inc. v. Anderson, 897 P.2d 895 (Colo. App. 1995).

Because employer secured compensation for claimant, employer's failure to give the notice described in § 8-44-101 (1)(b) is not grounds for the imposition of penalties under subsection (1) of this section. McManus v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 81 P.3d 1074 (Colo. App. 2003).

Applied in Smart v. Radetsky, 86 Colo. 93, 278 P. 609 (1929); Melnick v. Indus. Comm'n, 656 P.2d 1318 (Colo. App. 1982).

II. FIFTY PERCENT PENALTY.

This section provides for 50% increase in compensation in event of employer's failure to comply with insurance provisions of the act. Index Mines Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 82 Colo. 272, 259 P. 1036 (1927); DeBeque Producers' Ass'n v. Indus. Comm'n, 83 Colo. 158, 262 P. 1019 (1928); Connell v. Continental Cas. Co., 87 Colo. 573, 290 P. 274 (1930); Publix Cab Co. v. Colo. Nat'l Bank, 139 Colo. 205, 338 P.2d 702 (1959); Tri-State Ins. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 151 Colo. 494, 379 P.2d 388 (1963).

And courts have no discretion in the imposition of the penalty of 50% imposed for failure to carry compensation insurance. Kamp v. Disney, 110 Colo. 518, 135 P.2d 1019 (1943).

The liability imposed by this section is not determined by good faith or willful neglect. The only question is: Has the employer insurance? Where the employer has none, its liability for the additional compensation necessarily follows. McKune v. Indus. Comm'n, 94 Colo. 523, 31 P.2d 322 (1934); Anderson v. Dutch Maid Bakeries, 106 Colo. 201, 102 P.2d 740 (1940).

Where a subcontractor is uninsured, and the primary contractor is insured, the contractor is the only employer contemplated by this section. Herriott v. Stevenson, 172 Colo. 379, 473 P.2d 720 (1970).

And where the primary contractor is insured, the 50% penalty does not apply, regardless of the fact that the subcontractor is uninsured. Herriott v. Stevenson, 172 Colo. 379, 473 P.2d 720 (1970).

Section does not violate Colo. Const., art. II, § 20. This section, providing a 50% increase in awards where no insurance is carried by the employer, is not unconstitutional as violative of Colo. Const., art. II, § 20. The section is not penal in its nature, but simply provides additional compensation in the class of cases mentioned. Flick v. Indus. Comm'n, 78 Colo. 117, 239 P.2d 1022 (1925).

Moreover, it is not "class legislation" and is not unconstitutional on that ground. Flick v. Indus. Comm'n, 78 Colo. 117, 239 P. 1022 (1925).

But this section does not provide for 50% increase in medical payments. Jacobson v. Doan, 136 Colo. 496, 319 P.2d 975 (1957).

And the words "compensation or benefits" in this section cannot be construed as including medical expenses. Indus. Comm'n v. Hammond, 77 Colo. 414, 236 P. 1006 (1925); Jacobson v. Doan, 136 Colo. 496, 319 P.2d 975 (1957).

For § 8-49-101 imposes upon an employer the duty of furnishing medical, surgical, nursing and hospital treatment and supplies and apparatus for a fixed time and to a fixed minimum regardless of the compensation allowed, and where such bills are not paid but are included in the award they are paid direct to those who have rendered the service or furnished the supplies. Jacobson v. Doan, 136 Colo. 496, 319 P.2d 975 (1957).

No election of remedies where claimant has no legal action. Where claimant has no legal cause of action under this section against the subcontractor in whose employ the deceased was at the time of injury, the bringing of an action does not constitute an election of remedies, and the claimant is not estopped by reason thereof from recovering compensation. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Clifton, 117 Colo. 547, 190 P.2d 909 (1948).

For where an employer has workmen's compensation insurance coverage, an employee has no election to make under this section. Sharman Nursing Home v. Indus. Comm'n, 160 Colo. 197, 416 P.2d 161 (1966).

But an employee whose employer's workmen's compensation insurance coverage has lapsed, has alternative remedies due to his employer's noncompliance with the act: He can sue at common law or he can claim workmen's compensation benefits plus a 50% penalty for the noncompliance of his employer. Sharman Nursing Home v. Indus. Comm'n, 160 Colo. 197, 416 P.2d 161 (1966).

The concept of primary reimbursement does not impliedly grant a cause of action to third parties against an uninsured employer. Absent a specific provision in the act governing no-fault insurance or in the Workers' Compensation Act, the general assembly may not be deemed to have created a private tort remedy favoring no-fault carriers for an employer's failure to obtain workers' compensation coverage. United Security Ins. Co. v. Sciarrotta, 885 P.2d 273 (Colo. App. 1994).

The term "election" in the present context connotes a conscious choice between one of two or more distinct and separate alternatives. It applies to a situation where different remedies are provided for a given wrong upon one and the same set of facts. Sharman Nursing Home v. Indus. Comm'n, 160 Colo. 197, 416 P.2d 161 (1966).

Factual question as to election of remedies. Where plaintiff contends that employer coerced plaintiff to believe that defendant was insured at the time of workmen's compensation filing and acceptance of benefits, and that plaintiff filed a civil action as soon as he became aware that civil relief was available, the plaintiff presented a factual question as to whether he made a valid election to pursue his workmen's compensation remedy. Baker v. Redystick Prods. Co., 674 P.2d 1011 (Colo. App. 1983).

Pursuit of one remedy bars the other. If an employee of a nursing home whose workmen's compensation insurance coverage has lapsed elects to pursue one of the remedies under this section, recovery via the other is barred. Sharman Nursing Home v. Indus. Comm'n, 160 Colo. 197, 416 P.2d 161 (1966).

Deduction of compensation for violation of a safety rule made after the addition under this section. Under § 8-52-104 50% of the compensation to which an injured employee is entitled may be deducted for the violation of a reasonable safety rule, and where the compensation is increased 50% for failure of employer to carry insurance, under this section, deduction for violation of the safety rule is to be made after the addition of the 50% for failure to insure. McKune v. Indus. Comm'n, 94 Colo. 523, 31 P.2d 322 (1934).

Insurance company's failure to cover liability as promised does not affect employee's right to recover from employer. The fact that an insurance company assured an employer that his workmen's compensation insurance policy would be made to cover injuries to employees engaged in work at a distant location by notation on its books, which notation was not made, does not affect the rights of an employee to recover from the employer compensation for injuries received, the employer's remedy, if any, being by an action against the insurance company. Connell v. Continental Cas. Co., 87 Colo. 573, 290 P. 274 (1930).

Realty company's construction activities not within insurance coverage. A real estate company's home construction operation is an unrelated business activity not included within its insurance policy with the state compensation insurance fund. Evergreen Inv. & Realty Co. v. Baca, 666 P.2d 166 (Colo. App. 1983).

Fifty percent increase in benefits pursuant to subsection (1) not penal in nature, but rather simply a provision for additional compensation. Eachus v. Cooper, 738 P.2d 383 (Colo. App. 1986).

III. REQUIREMENT OF BOND.

Requirement of bond is for advantage of employer and he is not obliged to give such bond unless he elects to do so. Indus. Comm'n v. Hammond, 77 Colo. 414, 236 P. 1006 (1925).

IV. ENTRY OF JUDGMENT.

Claim within section's purview absent determination of claimant's eligibility for compensation. Since a claim arises at the time of the accident for purposes of the workmen's compensation act, it is a claim within the purview of § 15-12-803, notwithstanding the fact that a department of labor referee has not made a determination in a workmen's compensation proceeding concerning the claimant's eligibility for compensation nor an order entered pursuant to subsection (3) of this section. First Nat'l Bank v. Long, 44 Colo. 317, 616 P.2d 180 (1980).

Reduction to judgment of award. The award having become final by reason of respondent's failure to pursue administrative review, it is proper for the claimant to reduce the award to judgment. Hard v. Indus. Comm'n, 174 Colo. 51, 482 P.2d 353 (1971).

Entry of judgment by clerk constitutional. Entry of judgment by a clerk of the district court on an award does not violate § 1 of art. VI, Colo. Const. Ontario Mining Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 86 Colo. 206, 280 P. 483 (1929).

For the act of a clerk in entering judgment on an award is a ministerial act and not the exercise of a judicial function. The judgment so entered is not a judgment rendered, but a judgment of the industrial commission, which thenceforth has the effect of a judgment of the district court. Ontario Mining Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 86 Colo. 206, 280 P. 483 (1929).

8-43-409. Defaulting employers - penalties - enjoined from continuing business - fines - procedure - definition. (1) An employer subject to the terms and provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title who fails to insure or to keep the insurance required by such articles in force, allows the insurance to lapse, or fails to effect a renewal of the insurance shall not continue business operations while such default in effective insurance continues. Upon receiving information that an employer is in default of its insurance obligations, the director shall investigate and, if the information can be substantiated, shall notify the employer of the opportunity to request a prehearing conference on the issue of default. As part of the director's investigation, the director may verify that all employees of that employer are insured through the employer's workers' compensation plan. The director may forward any workers' compensation coverage issue to the employer's workers' compensation carrier for further investigation by the carrier. Thereafter, if necessary, the director may set the issue of the employer's default for hearing in accordance with hearing time schedule and procedures set forth in articles 40 to 47 of this title and rules promulgated by the director. Upon a finding that the employer is in default of its insurance obligations, the director shall take either or both of the following actions:

(a) Order the employer in default to cease and desist immediately from continuing its business operations during the period such default continues;

(b) For every day that the employer fails or has failed to insure or to keep the insurance required by articles 40 to 47 of this title in force, allows or has allowed the insurance to lapse, or fails or has failed to effect a renewal of such coverage, impose a fine of:

(I) Not more than two hundred fifty dollars for an initial violation; or

(II) Not less than two hundred fifty dollars or more than five hundred dollars for a second and any subsequent violation. For purposes of this subparagraph (II) only, if an employer has been fined pursuant to subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (b) and the director determines that substantially the same people or entities were involved in forming a subsequent employer, the initial violation referred to in subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (b) shall be deemed to have already occurred with regard to violations committed by the subsequent employer.

(2) A cease-and-desist order issued or fine imposed by the director under subsection (1) of this section shall include specific findings of fact that reflect:

(a) The employer received notice of a hearing, when applicable;

(b) The employer employs employees for whom it must carry workers' compensation insurance under the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title;

(c) The employer does not or did not have a policy of workers' compensation insurance in effect; and

(d) The employer continues or continued to operate its business in the absence of such coverage.

(3) Notwithstanding any other provision of articles 40 to 47 of this title, after the entry of a cease and desist order and upon the request of the director, the attorney general shall immediately institute proceedings for injunctive relief against the employer in the district court of any county in this state where such employer does business. In any such district court proceeding, a certified copy of any cease and desist order entered by the director in accordance with the provisions of subsection (1) of this section based upon evidence in the record shall be prima facie evidence of the facts found in such record. Such injunctive relief may include the issuance of a temporary restraining order under rule 65 of the Colorado rules of civil procedure, which order shall enjoin the employer from continuing its business operations until it has procured the required insurance or has posted adequate security with the court pending the procurement of such insurance. The court, in its discretion, shall determine the amount that shall constitute adequate security.

(4) The issuance of an order to cease and desist, the imposition of a fine pursuant to subsection (1) of this section, or the issuance of an order for injunctive relief against an employer for failure to insure or to keep insurance in force as required by articles 40 to 47 of this title shall be the penalty for such failure within the meaning of section 8-43-304 (1) and such penalty shall be in addition to the increase in benefits that section 8-43-408 requires.

(5) The director or administrative law judge shall report to the division each time a fine is imposed pursuant to subsection (1) of this section. Each such report shall include the amount of the fine and the name of the offending party.

(6) A certified copy of any final order of the director ordering the payment of a fine imposed pursuant to subsection (1) of this section may be filed with the clerk of the district court of any county in this state at any time after the period of time provided by articles 40 to 47 of this title for appeal or seeking review of the order has passed without appeal or review being sought or, if appeal or review is sought, after the order has been finally affirmed and all appellate remedies and all opportunities for review have been exhausted. The party filing the order shall at the same time file a certificate to the effect that the time for appeal or review has passed without appeal or review being undertaken or that the order has been finally affirmed with all appellate remedies and all opportunities for review having been exhausted. The clerk of the district court shall record the order and the filing party's certificate in the judgment book of the court and entry thereof made in the judgment docket, and it shall thereafter have all the effect of and constitute a judgment of the district court, and execution may issue thereon from said court as in other cases. Any such order may be filed by and in the name of the director.

(7) Fines collected pursuant to this section shall be transmitted to the state treasurer, who shall credit twenty-five percent of such fine to the workers' compensation cash fund, created in section 8-44-112, which shall be used to offset the premium surcharge. The state treasurer shall credit the remainder of the fine to the general fund.

(8) For the purposes of this section, "construction site" means a location where a structure that is attached or will be attached to real property is constructed, altered, or remodeled.

ANNOTATION

Subsection (1) does not violate an employer's right to due process by requiring that the employer timely request a prehearing conference as a prerequisite to an administrative hearing. The statute, as clarified by the notice to show compliance, provides an employer with the opportunity to respond and present supporting evidence of the employer's compliance or exempt status. Therefore, it affords the necessary procedural protections and does not violate the employer's right to due process. Kuhndog, Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 207 P.3d 949 (Colo. App. 2009).

8-43-410. Right to compensation operates as lien - interest on award. (1) The right of compensation granted by articles 40 to 47 of this title and any awards made thereunder shall have the same preference or lien without limit of amount against the assets of the employer or the employer's insurer or both as may be allowed by law for a claim for unpaid wages for labor.

(2) Every employer or insurance carrier of an employer shall pay interest at the rate of eight percent per annum upon all sums not paid upon the date fixed by the award of the director or administrative law judge for the payment thereof or the date the employer or insurance carrier became aware of an injury, whichever date is later. Upon application and satisfactory showing to the director or administrative law judge of the valid reasons therefor, said director or administrative law judge, upon such terms or conditions as the director or administrative law judge may determine, may relieve such employer or insurer from the payment of interest after the date of the order therefor; and proof that payment of the amount fixed has been offered or tendered to the person designated by the award shall be such sufficient valid reason.

The subsequent injury fund is an "employer or insurance carrier of an employer" under the provisions of subsection (2) and is liable for interest on compensation. Providing subsequently injured workers with the full value of their benefits requires payment of interest when payment of benefits is delayed. Subsequent Injury Fund v. Trevethan, 809 P.2d 1098 (Colo. App. 1991).

Relief from interest discretionary. Only portion of this statute which is discretionary is whether, upon application and satisfactory showing, the director sees fit to relieve the employer or the insurer from interest payments. *Bourn v. Upon application and satisfactory showing, the director has discretionary authority to relieve the employer or insurer from interest payments. Harrison W. Corp. v. Hicks' Claimants, 185 Colo. 142, 522 P.2d 722 (1974).

Interest assessed pursuant to this section is not a penalty but is a method to insure that the claimant receives the full value of the compensation to which he or she is entitled. *Subsequent Injury Fund v. ### PART 5

UTILIZATION REVIEW PROCESS - INDEPENDENT MEDICAL EXAMINATIONS

8-43-501. Utilization review process - legislative declaration - cash fund. (1) The general assembly hereby finds and determines that insurers and self-insured employers should be required to pay for all medical services pursuant to this article which may be reasonably needed at the time of an injury or occupational disease to cure and relieve an employee from the effects of an on-the-job injury. However, insurers and self-insured employers should not be liable to pay for care unrelated to a compensable injury or services which are not reasonably necessary or not reasonably appropriate according to accepted professional standards. The general assembly, therefore, hereby declares that the purpose of the utilization review process authorized in this section is to provide a mechanism to review and remedy services rendered pursuant to this article which may not be reasonably necessary or reasonably appropriate according to accepted professional standards.

(2) (a) An insurer, self-insured employer, or claimant may request a review of services rendered pursuant to this article by a health care provider. Requests for utilization review shall be submitted on forms promulgated by the director by rule. At the time of submission of a review request, the requester shall pay the division a fee prescribed by the director by rule. Such fee shall cover the division's administrative costs and the costs of compensating utilization review committee members. If a claimant is successful in a utilization review case brought pursuant to this section, the division shall reimburse the fee charged pursuant to this paragraph (a) and assess it against the insurer or self-insured employer. The state treasurer shall credit fees collected pursuant to this section to the utilization review cash fund, which fund is hereby created. Moneys in the utilization review cash fund are continuously appropriated to the division for the purpose of administering the utilization review program and may not revert to the general fund at the end of any fiscal year. The division shall mail to any claimant, insurer, or self-insured employer a notice that a case is to be reviewed and that the claimant may be examined as a result of such review. The claimant, insurer, or self-insured employer has thirty days from the date of mailing of such notice to examine the medical records submitted by the party who requested the review and may add medical records to the utilization review file that the party believes may be relevant to the utilization review. The division shall maintain a special file for utilization review cases. Such file shall be accessible only to interested parties in a utilization review case and shall not otherwise be open to any person.

(b) Prior to submitting a request for a utilization review pursuant to this section, an insurer, self-insured employer, or claimant shall hire a licensed medical professional to review the services rendered in the case. A report of the review shall be submitted with all necessary medical records, reports, and the request for utilization review.

(c) A claimant may request a utilization review pursuant to this section if the claimant has been refused a request pursuant to section 8-43-404 (5) to have a personal physician or chiropractor attend the claimant. A claimant requesting a utilization review pursuant to this paragraph (c) shall file the request on forms promulgated by the director by rule and shall pay the fee required by paragraph (a) of this subsection (2).

(d) For purposes of this section only, "medical records" means documents and transcripts of information obtained from a patient or his or her medical professional that are related to the patient's medical diagnosis, treatment, and care.

(e) When an insurer, self-insured employer, or claimant requests utilization review, no other party shall request a hearing pursuant to section 8-43-207 until the utilization review proceedings have become final, if such hearing request concerns issues about a change of physician or whether treatment is medically necessary and appropriate.

(f) Once a utilization review proceeding has become final and no longer subject to appeal, the final disposition of the issues in such proceeding shall be binding on the parties and preclude a contrary ruling on such issues in a subsequent hearing under section 8-43-207 unless a preponderance of evidence is shown.

(3) (a) The director, with input from the medical director serving pursuant to section 8-42-101 (3.6) (n), shall appoint members of utilization review committees for purposes of this section and section 8-42-101 (3.6). The director shall establish committees based on the different areas of health care practice for which requests for utilization review may be made. The director shall establish the qualifications for members of the different committees and the areas of health care practice in which each such committee shall conduct requested utilization reviews. Cases of requested utilization review shall be referred to committees appointed pursuant to this subsection (3) by the director based upon the areas of health care practice for which each committee is appointed.

(b) Each committee established pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (3) shall be composed of three members. Committee members shall be compensated for their time by the division out of moneys in the utilization review cash fund, created in paragraph (a) of subsection (2) of this section. Any member of a committee appointed pursuant to this subsection (3) shall be immune from criminal liability and from suit in any civil action brought by any person based upon an action of such a committee, if such member acts in good faith within the scope of the function of the committee, has made reasonable effort to obtain the facts of the matter as to which action is taken, and acts in the reasonable belief that the action taken is warranted by the facts. The immunity provided by this paragraph (b) shall extend to any person participating in good faith in any investigative proceeding pursuant to this section.

(c) (I) For each case, a committee may recommend by majority vote of such committee that no change be ordered or that a change of provider be ordered.

(II) A committee may also, by unanimous vote, recommend that the director order that payment for fees charged for services in the case be retroactively denied.

(III) A committee may also, by unanimous vote, recommend that the director order that a physician's accreditation status under section 8-42-101 (3.6) be revoked.

(d) In preparing and issuing an order in any case, the director shall review and give great weight to the reports and recommendations of the committee.

(e) In appropriate cases pursuant to this section and section 8-42-101 (3.6), the director may order that an insurer, employer, or self-insured employer be permitted to deny reimbursement to a provider for any medical care or services rendered to a claimant; and such order may be effective for up to three years. Bills for services rendered during the effective period of any such order shall be unenforceable and shall not result in any debt of the claimant. In deciding whether to issue any such order, the director shall give great weight to the fact that:

(I) The provider has, within any two-year period, been the subject of two or more orders removing the provider from the role of authorized treating physician; or

(II) The provider has, within any two-year period, been the subject of two or more orders retroactively denying the payment of the provider's fees; or

(III) The provider has, within any two-year period, been the subject of two or more orders either retroactively denying the payment of the provider's fees or removing the provider from the role of authorized treating physician.

(4) If the director orders pursuant to subsection (3) of this section that a change of provider be made in a case or that the physician's accreditation status be revoked, the claimant, insurer, or self-insured employer shall have seven days from receipt of the director's order in which to agree upon a level I provider. If the claimant, insurer, or self-insured employer can not reach agreement within the seven day time period, the director shall select three providers. A new provider shall be chosen from the three providers so selected by the party who was successful in the request for review. If no appeal is filed, the successful party shall notify the division of the name of the new provider within seven days of the selection of the three potential providers. If the new health care provider is not selected within such seven days, the director shall select the provider.

(5) (a) Any party, including the health care provider, may appeal to an administrative law judge for review of an order specifying that no change occur or that a change of provider be made with respect to a case. Such review shall be limited to the record on appeal. The findings of a utilization review committee regarding the change of provider in a case shall be afforded great weight by the administrative law judge in any proceeding. A party disputing the finding of such utilization review committee shall have the burden of overcoming the finding by clear and convincing evidence.

(b) If the director has entered an order specifying that the payment of fees in the case be retroactively denied, or permitting an insurer, employer, or self-insured employer to deny payments for medical services or care rendered pursuant to subsection (3) (e) of this section, the health care provider may request a de novo hearing before an administrative law judge by filing an application for hearing within thirty days from the date of the certificate of mailing of the order. In a hearing held pursuant to this paragraph (b), the record upon which the director based the order shall be admissible in evidence. The findings of the utilization review committee regarding the retroactive denial of payment of fees in a case shall be afforded great weight by the administrative law judge in any proceeding. A party disputing the finding of such utilization review committee shall have the burden of overcoming the finding by clear and convincing evidence.

(c) Any appeal filed pursuant to this subsection (5) must be filed within forty days from the date of the certificate of mailing of the director's order.

(d) Any party dissatisfied with an order entered by an administrative law judge pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (5) may file a petition to review the order pursuant to section 8-43-301.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Medical Utilization Review Under Worker's Compensation", see 17 Colo. Law. 1995 (1988).

The medical utilization review process created in this section is a separate and distinct proceeding from the compensation claim process, and records from such process are not admissible in compensation claims hearings. Reg'l Transp. Dist. v. Jackson, 805 P.2d 1190 (Colo. App. 1991).

This section provides a method to review and remedy medical services which may not be reasonably necessary or reasonably appropriate in light of accepted professional standards. Colo. Comp. Ins. Auth. v. Nofio, 886 P.2d 714 (Colo. 1994).

Subsection (2)(b) does not require the review of services to include an independent medical examination, medical opinion concerning services rendered, or a certificate of review addressing the necessity and appropriateness of provider's services. The medical utilization review (MUR) process contemplates that the substantive analysis of necessity and appropriateness of treatments will be provided by the three-member MUR panel. Rook v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 111 P.3d 549 (Colo. App. 2005).

Request for change of physician could proceed despite finding of maximum medical improvement (MMI), where request was based on allegations of professional misconduct and was made prior to the same physician's finding of MMI. Ames v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 89 P.3d 477 (Colo. App. 2003).

Although the medical utilization review committee may recommend a change in medical provider or a retroactive denial of fees for the present provider, the committee is not authorized to terminate a claimant's previously authorized medical benefits. Hargett v. Dir., Div. of Labor, 854 P.2d 1316 (Colo. App. 1992) (decided under former § 8-49-102 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of title 8).

The medical evidence, together with the findings of the utilization committee members that the claimant and her treating chiropractor had become business associates in the practice of chiropractic, provided ample support for the director's order, under former § 8-49-102, requiring a change in the claimant's authorized health care provider. Hargett v. Dir., Div. of Labor, 854 P.2d 1316 (Colo. App. 1992) (decided under former § 8-49-102 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of title 8).

A party to the utilization review process appealing an order of the director of the division of labor is limited to an appellate standard of review by an administrative law judge in determining whether the director's order was supported by substantial evidence. Hargett v. Dir., Div. of Labor, 854 P.2d 1316 (Colo. App. 1992) (decided under former § 8-49-102 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of title 8).

However, if the director's order has terminated a particular type of benefit or if a party seeks to terminate medical benefits based on the review proceedings, the aggrieved party must request an evidentiary hearing under former § 8-53-103 (now § 8-43-207). Hargett v. Dir., Div. of Labor, 854 P.2d 1316 (Colo. App. 1992) (decided under former § 8-49-102 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of title 8).

When a party seeks a de novo hearing following the director's retroactive denial of payment, the insurer has the burden of proof to establish that the care provider's treatment was unreasonable under pertinent professional standards. Colo. Comp. Ins. Auth. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 20 P.3d 1209 (Colo. App. 2000).

Mere change in health care provider does not give rise to de novo hearing. In order to be entitled to a de novo hearing under the rationale set forth in Hargett v. Dir., Div. of Labor, 854 P.2d 1316 (Colo. App. 1992), a claimant must show a termination of benefits rather than just a change of benefits. Colo. Comp. Ins. Auth. v. Nofio, 886 P.2d 714 (Colo. 1994).

If the issue in controversy involves the necessity and appropriateness of medical care, rather than industrial disability, the medical utilization committee reports and the director's order based thereon are admissible in hearings under former § 8-53-103 (now § 8-43-207), subject to the hearing officer's evidentiary rulings. Hargett v. Dir., Div. of Labor, 854 P.2d 1316 (Colo. App. 1992) (decided under former § 8-49-102 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of title 8).

The administrative rules establishing the types of committees for utilization review were neither arbitrary, unreasonable, nor inconsistent with the legislative purposes under former § 8-49-102 where such committee consisted of four general types: Joints/musculoskeletal, internal medicine, dental, and psychiatry. Hargett v. Dir., Div. of Labor, 854 P.2d 1316 (Colo. App. 1992) (decided under former § 8-49-102 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of title 8).

It was neither arbitrary nor unreasonable for the division of labor to require committee members to submit individual reports and recommendations where the committee votes needed for the respective committee recommendations were statutorily established. Hargett v. Dir., Div. of Labor, 854 P.2d 1316 (Colo. App. 1992) (decided under former § 8-49-102 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of title 8).

Collateral estoppel is applicable when an administrative adjudication and utilization review proceed contemporaneously and the same treatment is under consideration in each, so that a validation of the director's utilization review order is precluded. Williams v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 862 P.2d 1007 (Colo. App. 1993).

A claimant is not precluded from seeking redress after the issuance of a utilization review ruling and an administrative law judge has the authority to adjudicate a claimant's entitlement to past and ongoing medical benefits. Mason Jar Restaurant v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 862 P.2d 1026 (Colo. App. 1993).

A medical utilization review proceeding does not result in a binding adjudicatory decision and cannot provide the basis for application of res judicata or collateral estoppel in subsequent proceedings between the parties. Mason Jar Restaurant v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 862 P.2d 1026 (Colo. App. 1993).

A payment to a preferred provider cannot be retroactively denied as a matter of law because a medical utilization review order has no effect on a provider's status as an authorized treating physician prior to the effective date of the order. Mason Jar Restaurant v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 862 P.2d 1026 (Colo. App. 1993).

The statute does not authorize a permanent ban on treatment by a reviewed physician, as such ban would nullify a claimant's right to request a change in authorized provider at any time. Mason Jar Restaurant v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 862 P.2d 1026 (Colo. App. 1993).

Information that a party to a medical utilization review proceeding submits beyond the statutory deadline for submission may not be excluded from review if the party is unable to meet the deadline through no fault of his or her own. Donn v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 865 P.2d 873 (Colo. App. 1993).

Due process considerations apply to a medical utilization review proceeding since it may result in the termination of a previously authorized provider or treatment and recipients of statutorily created benefits have a property interest in the continued receipt of such benefits. Donn v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 865 P.2d 873 (Colo. App. 1993).

While an accredited provider is entitled to a hearing under certain circumstances, such entitlement does not create a property interest that independently entitles the provider to a hearing where his or her services have been terminated. Carlson v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 950 P.2d 663 (Colo. App. 1997).

Absent circumstances involving retroactive denial of fees or revocation of the provider's accreditation, there is no due process right to a hearing before a change of provider may be ordered. Carlson v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 950 P.2d 663 (Colo. App. 1997); Hall v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 74 P.3d 459 (Colo. App. 2003); Rook v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 111 P.3d 549 (Colo. App. 2005); Franz v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 250 P.3d 755 (Colo. App. 2010).

Application of statute governing medical utilization review proceeding, § 8-43-501, does not constitute a retroactive application of law contrary to the Colorado Constitution, art. II, § 11, since claimant's right to treatment was always subject to statutory qualifications. Donn v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 865 P.2d 873 (Colo. App. 1993).

There is no conflict of interest if a member of a medical utilization review committee has a relationship with the insurer or a provider network, because the workers' compensation rule of procedure specifies that a conflict exists only if a committee member has a relationship with the authorized treating physician that involves a direct or substantial financial interest. Franz v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 250 P.3d 755 (Colo. App. 2010).

Injured worker has no standing to challenge statute governing medical utilization review proceeding as permitting an unconstitutional confiscation of property and impairment of contract. Donn v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 865 P.2d 873 (Colo. App. 1993).

Where the director's order terminates the claimant's care by a previously authorized health care provider, the claimant is entitled to have the matter adjudicated de novo by an administrative law judge under § 8-43-207. McWhorter v. CNA Ins. Co., 868 P.2d 1128 (Colo. App. 1993).

While a provider may become authorized to treat a claimant's industrial injury as a result of a referral from an authorized treating physician where the referral is made in the normal progression of authorized treatment, the authorization to refer the claimant to the other provider ends when the treating physician loses his authorized status. Kilwein v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 198 P.3d 1274 (Colo. App. 2008).

The requirement that an appeal of a medical utilization review appeal be made within 40 days of the director's order is jurisdictional; it cannot be waived or eliminated by consent or avoided by estoppel. Cramer v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 885 P.2d 318 (Colo. App. 1994).

A medical utilization review order is not an award within the scope of § 8-43-303 and the director is not authorized to reopen such an order. Cramer v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 885 P.2d 318 (Colo. App. 1994).

Selection of an authorized treating physician as ordered by a medical utilization review committee was ripe for a hearing notwithstanding that the injured employee's appeal of the order was still pending, because the statute requires the parties to act quickly to select a new authorized treating physician regardless of whether an appeal has been filed. Franz v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 250 P.3d 1284 (Colo. App. 2010).

Subsection (3)(d) requires the director to give great weight to reports and recommendations of the MUR panel. Unless an assessment is entirely arbitrary or based on factors other than medical considerations, neither the director, the administrative law judge, nor a reviewing court may substitute its judgment for the assessment of provider's care made by a panel of physicians. Rook v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 111 P.3d 549 (Colo. App. 2005).

8-43-502. Independent medical examinations. (1) The director shall maintain a list of physicians which shall be known as the medical review panel. The director shall utilize public and private resources as are available and appropriate in determining standards and qualifications for the medical review panel members. It shall be the duty of the medical review panel to perform independent medical examinations at the request of the director or an administrative law judge.

(2) Any party to a workers' compensation proceeding has the right to obtain an independent medical examination with the physician selected by the director from the medical review panel. The requesting party, when submitting a request for the independent medical evaluation, shall specify the professional specialty of the physician to be selected by the director to perform the independent medical examination. The director shall select, through a revolving selection process established by the department, the physician from the medical review panel to perform the examination. The cost of such independent medical examination shall be borne by the requesting party. In no instance shall the independent examining physician become the authorized treating physician.

(3) Whenever the director or an administrative law judge deems it necessary to assist in resolving any issue of medical fact or opinion, the director or administrative law judge shall cause the employee to be examined by a physician or physicians from the medical review panel. The director or the administrative law judge shall have the authority and discretion to charge the cost of such examination to the employer or, if insured, the employer's insurance carrier. Transportation expenses and all expenses necessary, reasonable, and incidental to such examination shall be included in the cost of such examination.

(4) Nothing in this section shall preclude any party from obtaining an independent medical examination from a physician who is not a member of the medical review panel.

(5) Upon written request of the employer, or if insured, the insurer, the employee shall submit to a reasonable number of independent medical examinations as provided for in this section. The employee shall be entitled to have a physician, provided and paid for by such employee, present at any such independent medical examination. The employee shall be entitled to receive from the independent examining physician a copy of any report which said physician makes to the employer, insurer, or the division. Said copy shall be furnished to the employee at the same time it is furnished to the employer, insurer, or division.

(6) Members of the medical review panel and any person acting as a consultant, witness, or complainant shall be immune from liability in any civil action brought against said person for acts occurring while the person was acting as a panel member, consultant, witness, or complainant, respectively, if such person was acting in good faith within the scope of the respective capacity, made a reasonable effort to obtain the facts of the matter as to which action was taken, and acted in the reasonable belief that the action taken by such person was warranted by the facts.

(7) Any physician determining an impairment rating on an injured worker pursuant to this title shall be immune from civil liability in any action brought by any person based on said impairment rating, absent the showing of malice or bad faith on the part of the rating physician.

8-43-503. Utilization review of health care providers. (1) The general assembly hereby finds and determines that health care providers that provide medical care or health care services that are not reasonably necessary or not reasonably appropriate according to accepted professional standards should not be allowed to provide such services to workers' compensation claimants. The general assembly, therefore, hereby declares that the purpose of the utilization review process authorized in this section is to provide a mechanism to review medical care or health care services rendered pursuant to this article that may not be reasonably necessary or reasonably appropriate according to accepted professional standards and to provide a mechanism to prevent such health care providers from providing medical care or health care services.

(2) The provisions relating to the procedures for utilization review found in section 8-43-501 (2), (3), (4), (5) (a), (5) (c), and (5) (d) shall apply to utilization review under this section. A unanimous vote by the committee created in section 8-43-501 (3) shall be required for a recommendation to the director that a health care provider not be allowed to provide medical care or health care services to claimants.

(3) Employers, insurers, claimants, or their representatives shall not dictate to any physician the type or duration of treatment or degree of physical impairment. Nothing in this subsection (3) shall be construed to abrogate any managed care or cost containment measures authorized in articles 40 to 47 of this title.

PART 6

PROVIDER REVIEW AND DISCLOSURE

8-43-601. Short title. This part 6 shall be known and may be cited as the "Provider Review and Disclosure Act".

Source: L. 2010: Entire part added, (SB 10-178), ch. 290, p. 1347, § 1, effective July 1.

8-43-602. Legislative declaration. The general assembly finds, determines, and declares that insurer performance programs are used in marketing, sales, and other efforts, and, as such, may impact an employer's selection of an authorized health care provider. To protect patients, employers, and providers, and to avoid improper profiling, all performance programs must be fair, objective, consistently applied, and accord providers due process.

Consistent with these goals, performance programs should align incentives not only with efficient operations, but also with cost-effective, high-quality care. Accordingly, the general assembly finds that requiring minimum standards and full disclosure of performance program data and methodologies will help improve the quality and efficiency of health care delivered to Colorado workers.

8-43-603. Definitions. As used in this part 6, unless the context otherwise requires:

(1) “Insurer” means an entity that provides workers’ compensation insurance coverage required by article 44 of this title, including any third-party insurer or self-insured employer.

(2) “Methodology” means the method by which an assessment or measurement is determined, including algorithms or studies, evaluation of data, application of guidelines, or performance measures.

(3) “Patient” means a person who qualifies for health care benefits under articles 40 to 47 of this title.

(4) “Performance program” means any program, system, or process through which an insurer rates or recognizes the cost, efficiency, quality, or other assessment or measurement of a provider’s care, whether through awards, payments, assignment, or characterization or representation that is disclosed to patients, other providers, employers, or the public.

(5) “Provider” means a physician licensed under the “Colorado Medical Practice Act”, article 36 of title 12, C.R.S., or a clinic that provides health care pursuant to articles 40 to 47 of this title.

8-43-604. Performance programs. (1) All performance programs shall include, at a minimum:

(a) A quality of care component that is satisfied by using standard treatment guidelines promulgated by the director pursuant to section 8-42-101 or evidence-based administrative, operational, or clinical performance measures that improve care;

(b) A clear representation of the weight given to the quality of care component in comparison with other factors, which weight shall be equal to or greater than any other factor;

(c) If a performance program includes an employer satisfaction element, a patient satisfaction element, which shall be weighted equal to or greater than the employer satisfaction element;

(d) Statistical analyses that are objective, accurate, valid, reliable, and verifiable;

(e) A period of assessment of data, pertinent to the performance program, which shall be updated at appropriate intervals;

(f) If claims data are used, accurate claims data appropriately attributed to the provider. When reasonably available, the insurer shall use aggregated data from other insurers to supplement its own claims data.

(g) The provider’s responsibility for health care decisions and the financial consequences of those decisions, which shall be fairly and accurately attributed to the provider.

(2) Performance program results shall be reported to each provider reviewed in the program and shall include comparison of the provider’s results to the results of the provider’s peers.

(3) Any disclosure to patients, other providers, employers, or the public of the results of a performance program shall be accompanied by a conspicuous disclaimer written in bold-faced type stating that the information is intended only as a guide, should not be the sole factor in selecting a provider, has a risk of error, and should be discussed with the provider.

8-43-605. Due process. (1) At least forty-five days before disclosing the results of a performance program, an insurer shall give a provider written notice of the availability of the provider's individual result, specific instructions on how the provider can access the result, and a description of the implications to the provider. The written notice shall describe the procedures by which the provider may request:

- (a) The information required to be disclosed under subsection (2) of this section; and
- (b) An appeal of the result pursuant to subsection (3) of this section.

(2) (a) Within ten business days after receiving a request by or on behalf of a provider, an insurer shall disclose, in a manner that is reasonably understandable and that allows the provider to verify the data against his or her records, the methodology and all data upon which a provider's performance program result was calculated, with sufficient detail to allow the provider to determine the effect of the methodology on the data reviewed.

(b) An insurer shall not use the "Uniform Trade Secrets Act", article 74 of title 7, C.R.S., to avoid compliance with this section.

(3) Insurers shall establish procedures for providers to appeal the results of a performance program. Such procedures, in addition to the disclosures and the written notice furnished, shall provide:

(a) A reasonable method by which the provider may submit notice of the desire to appeal;

(b) The name, title, qualifications, and relationship to the insurer of any person responsible for deciding the appeal, who shall be authorized to uphold, modify, or reject results or require additional action to ensure that results are fair, reasonable, accurate, and comply with the requirements of this part 6;

(c) An opportunity for a provider to submit or have considered corrected data or other information relevant to the results or the appropriateness of the methodology used. If requested, a provider may appear at a face-to-face meeting with those responsible for the appeal decision at a location reasonably convenient to the provider or by teleconference. The provider shall submit in writing any corrected data or information in advance of the meeting.

(d) The provider's right to be assisted by a representative, including an attorney;

(e) A detailed written decision regarding the appeal that states the reasons for upholding, modifying, or rejecting the appeal;

(f) Resolution of the appeal within forty-five days after the date upon which the data and methodology are disclosed unless otherwise agreed to by the parties to the appeal; and

(g) A stay on the implementation, use, and disclosure of and action upon the individual results of the performance program until the appeal and any subsequent hearing requested pursuant to section 8-43-207 has become final.

(2) This part 6 may be enforced through a hearing pursuant to section 8-43-207 or in a civil action, and any remedies at law and in equity are available.

(3) A violation of this part 6 constitutes an unfair or deceptive act or practice under part 11 of article 3 of title 10, C.R.S.

PART 1

GENERAL PROVISIONS

8-44-101. Insurance requirements. (1) Any employer subject to the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title shall secure compensation for all employees in one or more of the following ways, which shall be deemed to be compliance with the insurance requirements of said articles:

(a) By insuring and keeping insured the payment of such compensation in the Pinnacol Assurance fund;

(b) By insuring and keeping insured the payment of such compensation with any stock or mutual corporation authorized to transact the business of workers' compensation insurance in this state. If insurance is effected in such stock or mutual corporation, the employer or insurer shall forthwith file with the division, in form prescribed by it, a notice specifying the name of the insured and the insurer, the business and place of business of the insured, the effective and termination dates of the policy, and, when requested, a copy of the contract or policy of insurance.

(c) By procuring a self-insurance permit from the executive director as provided in section 8-44-201, except for public entity pools as described in section 8-44-204 (3), which shall procure self-insurance certificates of authority from the commissioner of insurance as provided in section 8-44-204;

(d) By procuring a self-insurance certificate of authority from the commissioner of insurance as provided in section 8-44-205.

(2) It shall be unlawful, except as provided in sections 8-41-401 and 8-41-402, for any employer, regardless of the method of insurance, to require an employee to pay all or any part of the cost of such insurance.

(3) (a) (I) Except as otherwise provided in subparagraph (II) of this paragraph (a), all public entities in the state shall insure and keep insured the payment of compensation by electing one of the methods provided in subsection (1) of this section. A public entity having an insured payroll of less than one million dollars annually shall not be eligible for self-insurance; except that public entities forming a pool pursuant to section 8-44-204 (3) shall be eligible if the total of all the payrolls of the public entities in the pool exceeds the required minimum.

(II) Any public entity in the state that is participating in the federal prison industry enhancement certification program pursuant to the federal "Justice System Improvement Act of 1979", 18 U.S.C. sec. 1761 (c), shall insure and keep insured the payment of compensation by electing one of the methods provided in subsection (1) of this section; except that the method for insuring the participants of such program need not be the same method selected by the public entity pursuant to subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (a).

(b) For purposes of this subsection (3), the department of human services, by virtue of the self-insurance program established pursuant to section 8-44-203, shall be considered a public entity of the state.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Brodeur: A Clarification of Defense Counsel Duties in Workers' Compensation Cases", see 37 Colo. Law. 43 (December 2008).

Annotator's note. Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the 1969 amendment which required that notice regarding an employer's workmen's compensation insurance be filed with the division of labor instead of the industrial commission.

Colorado law that requires each employer to operate a separately-administered work- er's compensation plan is not preempted by the federal Employee Retirement Income Security Act, 29 U.S.C. §§ 1001 et seq. (ERISA), regardless of whether the ERISA benefits are equal or inferior to the state requirements. Fuller v. Norton, 881 F. Supp. 468 (D. Colo. 1995).

Colorado's worker's compensation laws are not preempted by ERISA as applied to multiple employer welfare arrangements. Fuller v. Norton, 86 F.3d 1016 (10th Cir. 1996).

The notice of issuance of a workmen's compensation policy is required by this sec- tion to be filed with the industrial commission. Chevron Oil Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 169 Colo. 336, 456 P.2d 735 (1969).

But notice of cancellation of a workmen's compensation policy is not required by statute to be given to the commission. Chevron Oil Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 169 Colo. 336, 456 P.2d 735 (1969).

This section does not negative the right of an employer to insure with a foreign reciprocal insurance exchange licensed under § 10-13-101 et seq. to write workmen's compensation liability insurance. Consolidated Underwriters v. Indus. Comm'n, 117 Colo. 239, 185 P.2d 1013 (1947).

A lessee's employee cannot be made to suffer by reason of lessor's failure to comply with this section requiring them to obtain insurance or to procure a self-insurance permit. McKune v. Indus. Comm'n, 94 Colo. 523, 31 P.2d 322 (1934).

The duty of good faith derives from the relationship, arising from the underlying insurance or compensation obligation between an insured claimant and the provider of benefits, and precedes official intervention and permeates all of the dealings between the parties. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Savio, 706 P.2d 1258 (Colo. 1985).

The duty of an insurer under the act to provide benefits and compensation is factually and analytically distinct from its duty to deal in good faith with claimants, even though such duties necessarily involve a common underlying physical injury. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Savio, 706 P.2d 1258 (Colo. 1985).

The relationship of the insured to the insurer in a first-party claim context is significantly different from the relationship which characterizes the third-party claim context. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Savio, 706 P.2d 1258 (Colo. 1985).

A case involving a claim by an employee against a compensation insurance carrier for the tort of bad faith is like a first-party, direct coverage case because workers compensation benefits serve a purpose similar to that served by direct coverage insurance contracts. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Savio, 706 P.2d 1258 (Colo. 1985).

In the first-party context an insurer acts in bad faith in delaying the processing of or denying a valid claim when the insurer's conduct is unreasonable and the insurer knows that the conduct is unreasonable or recklessly disregards the fact that the conduct is unreasonable. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Savio, 706 P.2d 1258 (Colo. 1985).

Insured and insurer in a workers' compensation context are not in either a fiduciary or quasi-fiduciary relationship. As in a first-party direct coverage case, a workers' compensation claimant has not ceded any right to represent his interests to the insurer. Brodeur v. Am. Home Assurance Co., 169 P.3d 139 (Colo. 2007).

Violation of public policy. Where employee was told to pay over to employer the amount he had received as a result of the settlement of his worker's compensation claim as a condition to continued employment, and because the employee declined to do so, retaliation against the employee violated public policy and provides the basis of a common law claim against the employer. Lathrop v. Entenmann's Inc., 770 P.2d 1367 (Colo. App.), cert. granted, 778 P.2d 1370 (Colo.), cert. dismissed, 778 P.2d 1370 (Colo. 1989).

In determining whether to impose sanctions for failure to secure insurance, the only issue is whether the employer had insurance in effect to pay the injured employee's benefits. U.S. Fidelity & Guar., Inc. v. Kourlis, 868 P.2d 1158 (Colo. App. 1994); McManus v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 81 P.3d 1074 (Colo. App. 2003).

Where the employer had purchased insurance, it was irrelevant that the insurance was not used to pay benefits for the first three years following the injury. U.S. Fidelity & Guar., Inc. v. Kourlis, 868 P.2d 1158 (Colo. App. 1994).

Because employer secured compensation for claimant, employer's failure to give the notice described in subsection (1)(b) is not grounds for the imposition of penalties under § 8-43-408 (1). McManus v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 81 P.3d 1074 (Colo. App. 2003).

Applied in Meyer v. Indus. Comm'n, 644 P.2d 46 (Colo. App. 1981).

8-44-102. Contract for insurance subject to workers' compensation act. Every contract for the insurance of compensation and benefits as provided in articles 40 to 47 of this title or against liability therefor shall be made subject to all the provisions of said articles, and all provisions in such contract for insurance inconsistent with the provisions of said articles shall be void. Any contract of insurance issued under said articles by any insurance carrier, including stock and mutual corporations and Pinnacol Assurance, may include and cover any liability of the employer on account of personal injuries sustained by or death resulting therefrom to any employee as such. No insurance carrier shall write any policy of insurance covering the liability under said articles of any employer doing business within the state of Colorado except on a form that has been previously filed with and approved by the commissioner of insurance, nor shall there be attached to said policy or contract of insurance any endorsement, rider, letter, or other document affecting such contract unless the same has been filed with and the form thereof approved by the commissioner of insurance. The commissioner of insurance shall from time to time approve and prescribe a standard or universal form, as nearly as possible, for every contract or policy of insurance, endorsement, rider, letter, or other document affecting such contract for use in insuring the compensation provided for in said articles.

(2) The provisions of Pinnacol Assurance are contained in article 45 of this title.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the 1969 amendment which vested the commissioner of insurance with the power previously exercised by the industrial commission to prescribe the form of the workmen's compensation insurance contract.

The common law rule that working partners are ineligible for workers' compensation as employees of the partnership or joint venture has been modified in this section permitting working partners to elect workers' compensation coverage. Hancock Const. Co. v. Cummins, 791 P.2d 1208 (Colo. App. 1990).

Provision that industrial commission shall prescribe form of contract is not unconstitutional. That part of this section providing that the industrial commission shall prescribe the form of contract of insurance for use in insuring compensation is administrative only, and not unconstitutional as delegating legislative power. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 71 Colo. 495, 208 P. 465 (1922).

To "prescribe" means to dictate, to positively command. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 71 Colo. 495, 208 P. 465 (1922).

Policy held not to cover death of employer who worked with his men. Indus. Comm'n v. Bracken, 83 Colo. 72, 262 P. 521 (1927).

This section does not require that an operating owner endorse himself as an employee in his insurance contract, and no sanctions attach if the owner does not include himself as an insured. Oliver Const. Co., Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 680 P.2d 1308 (Colo. App. 1983).

Where two parties were engaged in a joint venture as a subcontractor of the general contractor, a working co-partner was properly exempted from liability and the general contractor held liable under subsection (1), where that working co-partner's insurance policy did not include coverage for the other, decedent, working co-partner as authorized under this section. Hancock Const. Co. v. Cummins, 791 P.2d 1208 (Colo. App. 1990).

A leased driver is not an employee for the purposes of workers' compensation because § 8-40-301 (5)(b) is an exception to the more general workers' compensation statutes. Scott v. Matlack, Inc., 1 P.3d 185 (Colo. App. 1999), rev'd on other grounds, 39 P.3d 1160 (Colo. 2002).

8-44-103. Insurers to file system of rating - approval. Every insurance carrier authorized to transact business in this state that insures employers against liability for compensation under the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title shall file with the commissioner of insurance its classification of risks, any premiums relating thereto, and any subsequent proposed classification of risks and premiums, together with all rates and any systems of rating.

8-44-104. Cutting rates - rebates - penalty. Every insurance carrier that writes compensation insurance shall write insurance at the rates filed with the commissioner of insurance. The cutting of rates, rebating, or any other method whereby, directly or indirectly, any employer is given the benefit of or obtains a rate lower than that approved by the commissioner of insurance is prohibited. The commissioner of insurance may suspend the license of any insurance carrier, agent, or broker who violates any provision of this section. Also, any insurance carrier, any employer, or any officer, agent, or employee thereof who violates any provision of this section is guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars for each such violation.

8-44-105. Provisions of policies - primary liability - notice of injury. Every contract insuring against liability for compensation or insurance policy evidencing the same shall contain a clause to the effect that the insurance carrier shall be directly and primarily liable to the employee and, in the event of death, to said employee's dependents to pay compensation, if any, for which the employer is liable, thereby discharging to the extent of such payment the obligations of the employer to the employee; that, as between the employee and the insurance carrier, notice or knowledge of the occurrence of the injury on the part of the employer shall be deemed notice or knowledge, as the case may be, on the part of the insurance carrier; that jurisdiction of the employer, for the purpose of articles 40 to 47 of this title, shall be jurisdiction of the insurance carrier; and that the insurance carrier, in all things, shall be bound by and subject to the orders, findings, decisions, or awards rendered against the employer under the provisions of said articles. Such policy shall also provide that the employee shall have a first lien upon any amount which becomes owing to the employer from the insurance carrier, and the insurance carrier shall pay the same directly to the employee or the employee's dependents, thereby discharging to the extent of such payment the obligation of the employer to the employee. The policy shall not contain any provisions relieving the insurance carrier from payment when the employer becomes legally incapable or insolvent or is discharged in bankruptcy or otherwise during the period that the policy is in operation or the compensation remains owing.

ANNOTATION

The policy of the workmen's compensation act is to hold the employer primarily liable to the employee for disability proximately resulting from accidents arising out of and in the course of the employment. Century Indem. Co. v. Klipfel, 99 Colo. 213, 61 P.2d 842 (1936); Tri-State Ins. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 151 Colo. 494, 379 P.2d 388 (1963).

But this section provides that the insurance carrier is directly and primarily liable to the employee for compensation, if any, for which the employer is liable, thereby discharging to the extent of such payment the obligations of the employer to the employee. Century Indem. Co. v. Klipfel, 99 Colo. 213, 61 P.2d 842 (1936); Indus. Comm'n, v. Lopez, 150 Colo. 87, 371 P.2d 269 (1962); Tri-State Ins. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 151 Colo. 494, 379 P.2d 388 (1963).

And the insurance policy, and not the liability of the insured, measures the liability of the insurer. Where an employer lets out part of his work to contractors and insurers his liability to employees, the insurer's liability extends only to employees of the employer — its policy so providing — and not to those of the contractors. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Turkey Creek

Stone, Clay & Gypsum Co., 75 Colo. 611, 227 P. 569 (1924).

Compensation carrier's intentional misconduct in the processing of a claim is neither a "direct" nor a "natural" consequence of an employment injury. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Savio, 706 P.2d 1258 (Colo. 1985).

A case involving a claim by an employee against a compensation insurance carrier for the tort of bad faith is like a first-party, direct coverage case because workers compensation benefits serve a purpose similar to that served by direct coverage insurance contracts. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Savio, 706 P.2d 1258 (Colo. 1985).

Coverage by an insurer is coextensive with the liability of the employer. Indus. Comm'n v. Lopez, 150 Colo. 87, 371 P.2d 269 (1962).

And if an employer extends his operation by engaging in a joint venture, so does the insurance policy extend its coverage. Indus. Comm'n v. Lopez, 150 Colo. 87, 371 P.2d 269 (1962).

The omission by an employer to list or pay a premium upon an employee does not affect the right of the employee to receive compensation from the carrier. Indus. Comm'n v. Lopez, 150 Colo. 87, 371 P.2d 269 (1962).

The duties of an insurer are contractual and may be discharged by making payments pursuant to a final adjudication of liability. Indus. Comm'n v. Spoo, 151 Colo. 581, 380 P.2d 49 (1963).

But an insurer's reliance on an award in process of review is not the measure of its liability, and its good faith cannot serve as a substitute for discharging its legal obligations. Indus. Comm'n v. Spoo, 151 Colo. 581, 380 P.2d 49 (1963).

Employer may insure with two insurance companies against injury to an employee in two successive accidents. Tri-State Ins. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 151 Colo. 494, 379 P.2d 388 (1963).

And two insurers are equally liable. Where an employer pays each of two insurance companies to indemnify him against liability for accidental injury to an employee, presumably both insurers are financially responsible, and each contracts to indemnify the employer for a portion of a disability caused by two accidents for which the employer is unquestionably liable. Century Indem. Co. v. Klipfel, 99 Colo. 213, 61 P.2d 842 (1936); Tri-State Ins. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 151 Colo. 494, 379 P.2d 388 (1963).

8-44-106. Insurer violation - suspension or revocation of license. If any insurance carrier intentionally, knowingly, or willfully violates any of the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title, the commissioner of insurance, on the request of the director, shall suspend or revoke the license or authority of such carrier to do a compensation business in this state.

Editor's note: This section is similar to former § 8-44-106 as it existed prior to 1990.

8-44-107. Right of insurer to examine books of employer. Any insurance carrier operating under the workers' compensation act may apply to the commissioner of insurance for permission to examine any of the books, payrolls, or other documents of any employer insured by such carrier or of any contractor, subcontractor, lessee, sublessee, or person covered by the employer's compensation insurance to determine the amount of wage expenditure of such employer or of any contractor, subcontractor, lessee, sublessee, or person during any period that such insureds were insured by the insurance carrier. The commissioner of insurance may grant such carrier authority in writing to make the investigation or may appoint any agents of the division of insurance to conduct the investigation.

Editor's note: This section is similar to former § 8-44-108 as it existed prior to 1990.

8-44-108. Repayments for misclassifications. (1) Every insurance carrier authorized to transact business in this state, including Pinnacol Assurance, which insures employers against liability for compensation under the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title, is authorized to charge and collect any amount of money that should have been included in premiums paid by an insured but were not included in such premiums as a result of job misclassification. Upon written request by the employer, the issue of whether a job misclassification occurred shall be determined in writing by the insurance company. The employer's request shall be made within thirty working days after the anniversary date of the policy or the date of receipt by the employer of notice of a change in job classification. The insurance company's determination shall be made within thirty days after receipt of the employer's written request. An employer may appeal any determination of an insurance company made pursuant to this subsection (1) to the workers' compensation classification appeals board, pursuant to section 8-55-102. If it is determined that a job misclassification occurred and that such misclassification was caused by the failure of the insured to provide accurate or complete data in order to determine the proper classification as requested by the insurance carrier, the repayment may be collected during the term of the contract for such insurance plus an additional reasonable time not to exceed twelve months.

(2) Any employer who has purchased insurance against liability for compensation under the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title is authorized to recover any amount of money which should not have been included in premiums paid by the employer but which were included in such premiums as a result of job misclassification. The repayment may be collected during the term of the contract for such insurance plus an additional reasonable time not to exceed twelve months.

Such information shall be supplied within thirty days following release of such information to such insurer by the authorized rating organization and following approval of such rate change by the division of insurance. As soon as reasonably possible after the division of insurance's approval of a change in rate by classification, the authorized rating organization shall disseminate notice of such approval and change in rate.

(2) Every insurance carrier authorized to transact business in Colorado, including Pinnacol Assurance, which insures employers against liability for compensation under the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title, shall clearly and conspicuously inform policyholders of their rights to appeal employee classification designations, the procedures to be used for such an appeal, and the types of medical case management that the carrier has available to employees to promote medical cost containment.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Update on Colorado Appellate Decisions in Workers' Compensation Law", see 32 Colo. Law. 113 (October 2003).

Substantial compliance with the mailing requirements of this section is sufficient, when the employer does not dispute actual notice of cancellation was received by the insurer and the court does not treat the notice as jurisdictional. An employer received notice of cancellation via regular mail prior to a worker being injured. The injured worker's benefits were therefore paid by the employer. EZ Bldg. Components Mfg., LLC v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 74 P.3d 516 (Colo. App. 2003).

8-44-111. Workers' compensation insurance - deductibles. (1) Any employer may agree, as a condition of any contract for the insurance of compensation and benefits as provided in articles 40 to 47 of this title or against liability therefor, to pay an amount not to exceed five thousand dollars per claim toward the total amount of any claim payable under articles 40 to 47 of this title. The amount of premium to be paid by an employer who agrees to pay such deductible shall be reduced based upon such deductible in an amount determined by the insurance carrier.

(1.5) Whenever any insurer, including Pinnacol Assurance created in section 8-45-101, issues a workers' compensation policy in this state, and annually thereafter, the insurer must issue a policy including the deductible provision if requested by the insured employer; except that the commissioner shall promulgate rules establishing criteria to allow the insurer to deny a deductible policy to an employer based on financial inability to reimburse the insurer for the deductible plan selected.

(2) The existence of an insurance contract with a deductible or the fact of payment as a result of a deductible shall not affect the requirement of an employer to report an injury or death to the division as required in section 8-43-103 (1).

(3) The deductible amounts paid by any employer under the provisions of this section shall be excluded from consideration by insurance carriers authorized to transact business in Colorado, including Pinnacol Assurance, which insures employers against liability for compensation under the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title, in establishing the modification factors based upon experience used by such insurance carriers to determine premiums. For purposes of experience modifications, medical only claims shall be calculated in the same manner as claims with indemnity payments.

(4) Every insurance carrier authorized to transact business in Colorado, including Pinnacol Assurance, which insures employers against liability for compensation under the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title, shall clearly and conspicuously inform policyholders of the availability of the deductible option specified in subsection (1) of this section.

8-44-112. Surcharge on workers' compensation insurance premiums - workers' compensation cash fund. (1) (a) Notwithstanding the provisions of sections 10-3-209 (1) (c) and 10-6-128 (3), C.R.S., for the purpose of offsetting the direct and indirect costs of the administration of the workers' compensation system, every person, partnership, association, and corporation, whether organized under the laws of this state or of any other state or country, every mutual company or association, every captive insurance company, and every other insurance carrier, including Pinnacol Assurance, insuring employers in this state against liability for personal injury to their employees or death caused thereby under the provisions of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado" shall, as provided in this section, pay a surcharge upon the premiums received, whether in cash or not, in this state, or on account of business done in this state, for such insurance in this state, at a rate established by the director by rule, which surcharge shall be reviewed and adjusted annually based upon appropriations made for the direct and indirect costs of the administration of the workers' compensation system, as provided in subsection (7) of this section. Such insurance carriers shall be credited with all cancelled or returned premiums actually refunded during the year of such insurance.

(b) (I) For the purpose of funding the direct and indirect costs of the activities of the division related to the "Workers' Compensation Cost Containment Act", article 14.5 of this title, there shall be added to the surcharge imposed pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (1) an increment not to exceed three-hundredths of one percent upon the premiums received, said surcharge to be reviewed and adjusted annually and paid over to the division in the same manner as specified in this section for the surcharge.

(II) Notwithstanding any other provisions of this section, no employer acting as a self-insurer under the provisions of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado" shall be subject to the increment added to the surcharge pursuant to subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (b).

(III) All moneys collected pursuant to subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (b) shall be transmitted to the state treasurer, who shall credit the same to the cost containment fund, created in section 8-14.5-108.

(2) Every such insurance carrier shall, on July 1, 1987, and semiannually thereafter, make a return, verified by affidavits of its president and secretary, or other chief officers or agents, to the division of workers' compensation, stating the amount of all such premiums received and credits granted during the period covered by such return. Every insurance carrier required to make such return shall file the same with the division within thirty days after the close of the period covered thereby and shall, at the same time, pay to the division of workers' compensation a surcharge ascertained as provided in subsection (1) of this section, less return premiums on cancelled policies.

(3) Every employer acting as a self-insurer under the provisions of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado" shall, under oath, report to the division of workers' compensation the business payroll in such form as may be prescribed by the director and at the times in this section provided for premium reports by insurance companies in subsection (2) of this section. The division shall assess against such payroll a surcharge for the purposes of this section ascertained as provided in subsection (2) of this section on the basic premiums chargeable against the same or most similar industry or business taken from the manual insurance rates, including any discount or experience modification allowed, chargeable by the Pinnacol Assurance fund, and, upon receipt of notice from the division of workers' compensation of the surcharge so assessed, every such self-insurer shall, within thirty days after the receipt of such notice, pay to the division of workers' compensation the surcharge so assessed.

(4) If any such insurance carrier or self-insurer fails or refuses to make the return required by this article, the director shall assess the surcharge against such insurance carrier or self-insurer at the rate provided for in this section on such amount of premium as the director may deem just, and the proceedings thereof shall be the same as if the return had been made.

(5) If any such insurance carrier or self-insurer withdraws from business in this state before the surcharge falls due as provided in this section, or fails or neglects to pay such surcharge, the director shall at once proceed to collect the same; and the director is authorized to employ such legal processes as may be necessary for that purpose. Suit shall be brought by the director in any of the courts of this state having jurisdiction.

(6) The director, in the enforcement of this section, shall have all of the powers granted to said director in the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", and any insurance carrier or self-insurer violating any of the provisions of this section, or failing to pay the surcharge imposed in this section, is guilty of violation of said act and subject to the penalties therein prescribed.

(7) (a) All moneys collected pursuant to this section shall be transmitted to the state treasurer, who shall credit the same to the workers' compensation cash fund, which fund is hereby created. The moneys in the workers' compensation cash fund shall be subject to annual appropriation by the general assembly for the direct and indirect costs of the administration of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of this title. Any interest earned on the investment or deposit of moneys in the workers' compensation cash fund shall remain in the fund and shall not revert to the general fund of the state at the end of any fiscal year.

(b) Notwithstanding any provision of paragraph (a) of this subsection (7) to the contrary, on March 5, 2003, the state treasurer shall deduct six million dollars from the workers' compensation cash fund and transfer such sum to the general fund.

(c) Notwithstanding any provision of paragraph (a) of this subsection (7) to the contrary, on March 30, 2009, the state treasurer shall deduct fifteen million seven hundred thousand dollars from the workers' compensation cash fund and transfer such sum to the general fund.

(a) The employee is entitled to benefits under articles 40 to 47 of this title; and
(b) The accident was not caused, wholly or in part, by the employee or the employer; and

(c) The use of a motor vehicle is not an integral part of the employer's business, as determined under rules promulgated by the commissioner of insurance under section 10-4-408 (5) (e), C.R.S.

(b) All loss experience remaining after deduction of the loss limitation referred to in paragraph (a) of this subsection (2) shall be distributed among all workers' compensation classifications in use in the state as determined by the commissioner of insurance. For purposes of such distribution, classifications of businesses of which use of a motor vehicle is an integral part may be treated differently from classifications of businesses of which use of a motor vehicle is not an integral part.

SELF-INSURED

8-44-201. Employer as own insurance carrier - revocation of permission. (1) The executive director has the discretion to grant to any employer who has accepted the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title permission to be its own insurance carrier for the payment of the compensation and benefits provided by said articles. Such permission may be granted by the executive director after the filing by an employer of such statement and the giving of such information as may be required by the executive director. The executive director has the sole power to prescribe the rules, regulations, orders, terms, and conditions upon which said permit shall be granted or continued. Permission for self-insurance may be revoked at any time by the executive director, and the employer, upon notice of revocation, shall immediately insure otherwise all liability.

(2) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (1) of this section, the executive director shall not prescribe or apply security requirements in granting or continuing permission for the self-insurance program of the department of human services established pursuant to section 8-44-203 but shall provide instead for alternatives to such security requirements including trust funds, surety bonds, excess insurance, or other security acceptable to the executive director. The alternative security requirements provided by this subsection (2) shall apply only to claims arising on or after July 1, 1985, and before July

1, 1990. The trust fund in existence on May 24, 1990, pursuant to the trust agreement between the department of human services, a third party administrator, and the state treasurer, dated June 27, 1985, shall remain in existence through June 30, 1990.

(3) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (1) of this section, the executive director shall not prescribe or apply security requirements in continuing permission for an employer which is acting as its own insurance carrier on July 1, 1986, which are in excess of those security requirements in effect on July 1, 1986, unless there is a substantial change in the economic condition or potential liability of such employer.

(4) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (1) of this section, the executive director shall not prescribe or apply security requirements in granting or continuing permission for a self-insurance program established by the state pursuant to section 24-30-1510.7, C.R.S.

8-44-204. Public entities - self-insurance authorized for workers' compensation - pooled insurance. (1) "Public entity", as used in this section, means and includes any county, municipality, school district, and any other type of district or authority organized pursuant to law.

(2) A public entity may, after receiving permission pursuant to section 8-44-101 (1) (c), act as its own insurance carrier for compensation and benefits. Any public entity other than a school district may establish and maintain an insurance reserve fund for self-insurance purposes and may include in the annual tax levy of the public entity such amounts as are determined by its governing body to be necessary for the uses and purposes of the insurance reserve fund, subject to the limitations imposed by section 29-1-301, C.R.S. School districts may establish and maintain an insurance reserve fund in accordance with the provisions of section 22-45-103 (1) (e), C.R.S., using moneys allocated thereto pursuant to the provisions of section 22-54-105 (2), C.R.S. In the event that a public entity has no annual tax levy, it may appropriate from any unexpended balance in the general fund such amounts as the governing body shall deem necessary for the purposes and uses of the insurance reserve fund.

(3) Public entities may cooperate with one another to form a self-insurance pool to provide the insurance coverage required by this article for the cooperating public entities. Any such insurance pool shall be formed pursuant to the provisions of part 2 of article 1 of title 29, C.R.S. The provisions of articles 10.5 and 47 of title 11, C.R.S., shall apply to moneys of such self-insurance pool.

(4) Any self-insurance pool authorized by subsection (3) of this section shall not be construed to be an insurance company nor otherwise subject to the provisions of the laws of this state regulating insurance or insurance companies; except that the pool shall comply with the applicable provisions of sections 10-1-203 and 10-1-204 (1) to (5) and (10), C.R.S.

(5) Prior to the formation of a self-insurance pool, there shall be submitted to the commissioner of insurance a complete written proposal of the pool's operation, including, but not limited to, the administration, claims adjusting, membership, plan for reinsurance, and capitalization of the pool. The commissioner shall review the proposal within thirty days after receipt to assure that proper insurance techniques and procedures are included in the proposal. After such review, the commissioner shall have the right to approve or disapprove the proposal. If the commissioner approves the proposal, the commissioner shall issue a certificate of authority. The costs of such review shall be paid by the public entities desiring to form such a pool.

(6) Each self-insurance pool for public entities created in this state shall file, with the commissioner of insurance on or before March 30 of each year, a written report in a form prescribed by the commissioner, signed and verified by its chief executive officer as to its condition.

(7) The commissioner of insurance, or any person authorized by the commissioner of insurance, shall conduct an insurance examination at least once a year to determine that proper underwriting techniques and sound funding, loss reserves, and claims procedures are being followed. This examination shall be paid for by the self-insurance pool out of its funds at the same rate as provided for foreign insurance companies under section 10-1-204 (9), C.R.S.

- (I) Insolvency or impairment;
- (II) Refusal or failure to submit an annual report as required by subsection (6) of this section;
- (III) Failure to comply with the provisions of its own ordinances, resolutions, contracts, or other conditions relating to the self-insurance pool;
- (IV) Failure to submit to examination or any legal obligation relative thereto;
- (V) Refusal to pay the cost of examination as required by subsection (7) of this section;
- (VI) Use of methods which, although not otherwise specifically proscribed by law, nevertheless render the operation of the self-insurance pool hazardous, or its condition unsound, to the public;
- (VII) Failure to otherwise comply with the law of this state, if such failure renders the operation of the self-insurance pool hazardous to the public.

(b) If the commissioner of insurance finds upon examination, hearing, or other evidence that any participating public entity has committed any of the acts specified in paragraph (a) of this subsection (8) or any act otherwise prohibited in this section, the commissioner may suspend or revoke such certificate of authority if the commissioner deems it in the best interest of the public. Notice of any revocation shall be published in one or more daily newspapers in Denver which have a general state circulation. Before suspending or revoking any certificate of authority of a public entity, the commissioner shall grant the public entity fifteen days in which to show cause why such action should not be taken.

(9) (a) Any self-insurance pool organized pursuant to this section may invest in securities meeting the investment requirements established in part 6 of article 75 of title 24, C.R.S., and may also invest in membership claim deductibles and in any other security or other investment authorized for such pools by the commissioner of insurance.

(2) Employers may cooperate with one another to form a self-insurance pool to provide the insurance coverage required by this article for cooperating employers.

(3) Any self-insurance pool authorized by subsection (2) of this section shall not be construed to be an insurance company nor otherwise subject to the provisions of the laws of this state regulating insurance or insurance companies; except that the pool shall comply with the applicable provisions of sections 10-1-203 and 10-1-204 (1) to (5) and (10), C.R.S., and shall be subject to proceedings authorized by part 5 of article 3 of title 10, C.R.S.

(4) Prior to the formation of a self-insurance pool, there shall be submitted to the commissioner of insurance a complete written proposal of the pool's operation, including, but not limited to, the administration, claims adjusting, membership, plan for reinsurance, capitalization of the pool, and risk management programs. The commissioner shall review the proposal within forty-five days after receipt to assure that proper insurance techniques and procedures are included in the proposal. After such review, the commissioner shall have the right to approve or disapprove the proposal. If the commissioner of insurance has not disapproved the proposal within ninety days of receipt of the proposal, such proposal shall be deemed approved. If the commissioner approves the proposal, the commissioner shall issue a certificate of authority. The costs of such review shall be paid by the employers desiring to form such a pool.

(5) Each self-insurance pool for employers created in this state shall file with the commissioner of insurance, on or before March 30 of each year, a written report in a form prescribed by the commissioner, signed and verified by its chief executive officer as to its condition.

(6) The commissioner of insurance, or the commissioner's designee, shall conduct an insurance examination at least once a year to determine that proper underwriting techniques and sound funding, loss reserves, and claims procedures are being followed. This examination shall be paid for by the self-insurance pool out of its funds at the same rate as provided for foreign insurance companies under section 10-1-204 (9), C.R.S.

(7) (a) The certificate of authority issued to an employer self-insurance pool under this section may be revoked or suspended by the commissioner of insurance for any of the following reasons:

- (I) Insolvency or impairment;
- (II) Refusal or failure to submit an annual report as required by subsection (5) of this section;
- (III) Failure to comply with the provisions of its own rules, resolutions, contracts, or other conditions relating to the self-insurance pool;
- (IV) Failure to submit to examination or any legal obligation relative thereto;
- (V) Refusal to pay the cost of examination as required by subsection (6) of this section;
- (VI) Use of methods which, although not otherwise specifically proscribed by law, nevertheless render the operation of the self-insurance pool hazardous, or its condition unsound, to the public;
- (VII) Failure to otherwise comply with the law of this state, if such failure renders the operation of the self-insurance pool hazardous to the public.

(b) If the commissioner of insurance finds upon examination, hearing, or other evidence that any participating employer self-insurance pool has committed any of the acts specified in paragraph (a) of this subsection (7) or any act otherwise prohibited in this section, the commissioner may suspend or revoke such certificate of authority if the commissioner deems it in the best interest of the public. Notice of any revocation shall be published in one or more daily newspapers in Denver which have a general state circulation. Before suspending or revoking any certificate of authority of an employer self-insurance pool, the commissioner shall grant the employer self-insurance pool fifteen days in which to show cause why such action should not be taken.

(8) The commissioner of insurance may supervise or rehabilitate an employer self-insurance pool pursuant to the provisions of parts 4 and 5 of article 3 of title 10, C.R.S., for any of the following reasons:

- (a) Insolvency or impairment;
- (b) Failure to comply with the provisions of its own rules, resolutions, contracts, or other conditions relating to the self-insurance pool;
- (c) Failure to submit to examination or any legal obligation relative thereto;
- (d) Use of methods which, although not otherwise specifically proscribed by law, nevertheless render the operation of the self-insurance pool hazardous, or its condition unsound, to the public;
- (e) Failure to otherwise comply with the law of this state, if such failure renders the operation of the self-insurance pool hazardous to the public.

(9) The commissioner of insurance may promulgate reasonable rules and regulations necessary to effectuate the purposes of this section.

(10) Any self-insurance pool or any trust which provides insurance coverage for purposes of articles 40 to 47 of this title which is in existence and is operating prior to July 10, 1987, is not subject to the requirements of this section and may continue to operate such pool or trust as authorized by law.

(11) Each self-insurance pool created under this section shall establish a trust fund, on an annual basis, to provide payment of the total workers' compensation loss cost incurred by all pool members within each given year. Aggregate excess insurance shall be provided by each self-insurance pool to the statutory limit of coverage, attaching at the maximum amount of each annual trust fund balance, or, in lieu thereof, the commissioner of insurance shall set other security standards which assure payment of workers' compensation in the event that a self-insurance pool disbands or defaults.

Editor's note: This section is similar to former § 8-44-112 as it existed prior to 1990.

8-44-206. Guaranty fund - immediate payment fund - special funds board - creation. (1) The general assembly hereby finds and declares that benefits awarded under articles 40 to 47 of this title to claimants employed by self-insurers may be unreasonably delayed or not paid at all if receipt of the proceeds of the bond required of the self-insurer is delayed or if the self-insurer declares bankruptcy or has insufficient reserves to cover the claim. The general assembly further finds and declares that the creation of an immediate payment fund and a guaranty fund will assure prompt and complete payment of benefits awarded to such claimants.

(2) Creation of special funds board - duties. (a) For the purposes of carrying out this section, there is hereby created a special funds board which shall exercise its powers and perform its duties and functions as specified in this subsection (2) under the department of labor and employment as if the same were transferred to the department by a type 2 transfer as such transfer is defined in the "Administrative Organization Act of 1968", article 1 of title 24, C.R.S. Said board shall be composed of five members: Four members who are managers or employees of self-insured employers in good standing, two of whom shall demonstrate knowledge of risk management and finance, and the executive director.

(b) With the exception of the executive director, the board members shall be appointed by the governor and approved by the senate. The terms of the members of the board first appointed shall be four years, three years, two years, and one year, respectively. Thereafter, the term for each appointed board member shall be four years. Members of the board may be reappointed and the executive director shall serve continuously.

(c) The members of the board shall receive no compensation but shall be reimbursed for actual and necessary traveling and subsistence expenses incurred in the performance of their duties as members of the board.

(d) (I) The board shall determine the assessments to be made pursuant to subsections (3) and (4) of this section and shall determine the qualifications and requirements for any claims administrators hired to adjust the claims of a self-insurer who fails to meet his obligations with respect to benefits awarded pursuant to articles 40 to 47 of this title.

(II) The board shall also participate, in an advisory capacity only, in matters concerning the granting or termination of self-insurance permits and the setting of security requirements.

(3) Immediate payment fund - assessments - creation of fund. (a) The board shall impose an assessment upon each employer self-insured under section 8-44-201. Assessments under this subsection (3) shall be based upon a ratio equal to the self-insured employer's paid workers' compensation medical and indemnity losses for the most recent self-insurance permit year divided by the aggregate sum of paid medical and indemnity losses by all self-insured employers for that year. Such losses shall be determined on July 1, 1990, for the most recently completed permit year, and on the first day of July for each year thereafter until the minimum fund balance has been reached. Contributions to the fund shall not be assets of the self-insured employer.

(b) (I) All moneys received by the executive director pursuant to this subsection (3) shall be deposited in the state treasury in the immediate payment fund, which fund is hereby created, and all moneys credited to such fund shall be used solely for the administration and payment of benefits to employees pursuant to this section. The general assembly shall make annual appropriations out of such fund for the administration of the fund. The moneys in such fund for the payment of benefits are hereby continuously appropriated to the department for payment of such benefits. Any moneys not utilized in the fund shall not revert to the general fund.

(II) The minimum fund balance shall be three hundred thousand dollars, to be assessed during the first three years at the rate of one hundred thousand dollars annually. Interest shall accrue to the fund to a maximum fund balance of one million dollars. Thereafter, the fund balance shall be maintained at one million dollars by refunding the excess funds to each self-insured employer, on a pro rata basis, based on that employer's contribution.

(4) Guaranty fund - assessments - creation of fund. (a) When the board determines that existing security held by an employer self-insured under section 8-44-201 is insufficient to meet its existing liability for workers' compensation benefits, the board shall impose an assessment on each self-insured employer. The assessment shall be based on a ratio which equals each self-insured employer's paid workers' compensation medical and indemnity losses for the most recent self-insurance permit year divided by the aggregate sum of paid medical and indemnity losses by all self-insured employers for that year. If necessary, the executive director may direct the board to make an annual assessment thereafter until such time as the present value of the guaranty fund, created in paragraph (b) of this subsection (4), equals the total liability for workers' compensation benefits which are in excess of the security held by the defaulting self-insured employers.

(b) (I) All moneys received by the executive director pursuant to this subsection (4) shall be deposited in the state treasury in the guaranty fund, which fund is hereby created. Such moneys credited to the fund shall be used solely for the administration and payment of benefits to employees pursuant to this section. The general assembly shall make annual appropriations out of such fund for the administration of the fund. The moneys in such fund for the payment of benefits are hereby continuously appropriated to the department for payment of such benefits. Any moneys not utilized in the fund shall not revert to the general fund.

(II) All interest shall accrue to the fund. No amounts shall be refunded until all liability in excess of security held by self-insured employers has been discharged and until the dates imposing limitations on actions, as specified in sections 8-43-103 and 8-43-303 have passed. When those conditions have been met, the remaining moneys in the fund shall be refunded to each self-insured employer, on a pro rata basis, based on that employer's contribution.

(c) Public entities self-insuring under section 8-44-201 shall be exempt from and shall not participate in this subsection (4).

(5) The department shall select any claims administrators required under this section based on the qualifications and requirements established by the board. For the purpose of contracting for such services, the department shall not be subject to articles 101 to 114 of title 24, C.R.S.

8-45-101. Pinnacol Assurance - creation - powers and duties. (1) There is hereby created Pinnacol Assurance, which shall be a political subdivision of the state and shall operate as a domestic mutual insurance company except as otherwise provided by law. Pinnacol Assurance shall not be an agency of state government, nor shall it be subject to administrative direction by any state agency except as provided in this article, and except for the purposes of the "Colorado Governmental Immunity Act", article 10 of title 24, C.R.S. Pinnacol Assurance shall not be dissolved except by the general assembly. Section 10-12-411, C.R.S., shall not apply to Pinnacol Assurance.

(2) (a) The powers of Pinnacol Assurance shall be vested in the board of directors of Pinnacol Assurance, which shall have nine members. The members of the board shall be appointed by the governor with the consent of the senate. Of the nine members, four shall be employers whose liability under articles 40 to 47 of this title is insured by Pinnacol Assurance with one of such employers to be a farmer or rancher. Three of the nine members shall be employees of employers whose liability under articles 40 to 47 of this title is insured by Pinnacol Assurance. One of the nine members shall be experienced in the management and operation of insurance companies as defined in section 10-1-102 (6), C.R.S. Such member shall not concurrently serve as an owner, a shareholder, an officer, an employee, an agent of, or in any other capacity with any business which competes with Pinnacol Assurance. One of the nine members shall be experienced in finance or investments, but shall not be an employer whose liability under articles 40 to 47 of this title is insured by Pinnacol Assurance. The term of office for each such member shall be five years. The appointees may serve on a temporary basis if the senate is not in session when they are appointed until the senate is in session and is able to confirm such appointments. Vacancies on the board shall be filled by appointment of the governor for the remainder of any unexpired terms. The board shall elect a chairman annually from its membership.

(b) The members of the board who were serving as of January 1, 2002, shall continue to serve until the completion of each member's term. New members of the board shall be appointed pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (2).

(c) The board shall have the powers, rights, and duties as set forth in this article and otherwise provided by law.

(3) Members of the board shall be compensated one hundred forty dollars per diem plus their actual and necessary expenses. Per diem compensation, not to exceed thirty days in any calendar year, shall be paid only when the board is transacting official business.

(4) On and after July 1, 2002, the powers, duties, and functions formerly exercised by the Colorado compensation insurance authority may be exercised by Pinnacol Assurance.

(5) The board shall:

(a) (I) Appoint the chief executive officer of Pinnacol Assurance who shall serve under contract and appoint, hire, or delegate the authority to hire such other staff as may be necessary to carry out the duties of Pinnacol Assurance.

(II) If an executive officer of Pinnacol Assurance is appointed pursuant to subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (a) and such executive officer appoints, hires, or delegates duties to any other staff necessary to carry out the duties of Pinnacol Assurance, and the executive officer or other staff receives total compensation, including bonuses or deferred compensation, in an amount equal to or greater than one hundred fifty thousand dollars annually, such compensation information shall be a public record.

(b) Develop and approve an annual budget;

(c) Establish general policies and procedures for the operation and administration of Pinnacol Assurance;

(d) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2002, p. 1865, § 1, effective July 1, 2002.)

(e) Promulgate policies and procedures that establish the basis by which employer premiums payable to Pinnacol Assurance are determined. The board may establish different rates for employers who meet the requirements established by the board for any classification after complying with the requirements of part 4 of article 4 of title 10, C.R.S., so long as those rates are not excessive, inadequate, or unfairly discriminatory.

(f) Offer to provide workers' compensation insurance and employer's liability insurance covering any liability of Colorado employers on account of personal injuries sustained by, or the death of, any employee. Nothing in this article shall be interpreted to permit Pinnacol Assurance to provide any other type of insurance or to provide insurance to employers that are not Colorado employers. Pinnacol Assurance shall not refuse to insure any Colorado employer or cancel any insurance policy due to the risk of loss or amount of premium, except as otherwise provided in this title.

(g) Review and streamline administrative procedures;

(h) Oversee the operations and make necessary personnel changes;

(i) Review the investigative procedures and implement changes to expedite investigations;

(k) Review the method of calculation of the experience modification factor with the object of providing maximum incentives for job safety;

(l) Establish general policies and procedures by rule and regulation concerning medical care cost containment practices under articles 40 to 47 of this title; and

(m) Post the date, time, and location of each board meeting on the Pinnacol Assurance web site at least seven calendar days prior to the scheduled meeting.

(6) Article 4 of title 24, C.R.S., shall not apply to the promulgation of any policies or procedures authorized by subsection (5) of this section.

(7) Pinnacol Assurance may sell services, including but not limited to medical bill processing, that are developed pursuant to its powers under this article.

(8) Employees of Pinnacol Assurance shall be exempt from the state personnel system but shall, by acceptance of employment, be subject to the provisions of article 51 of title 24, C.R.S. Pinnacol Assurance shall provide for the deduction of employer and employee contributions from salary and for payment to the association of such deductions and for any other payments that would be due from a state employer.

(9) Notwithstanding any provision of law to the contrary, the claim files of injured employees, the policy files of employers, and all business records relating to the determination of rates that are not required to be disclosed by any other insurance company shall not be subject to the provisions of part 2 of article 72 of title 24, C.R.S.

(10) With respect to meetings of Pinnacol Assurance, matters relating to the claim files of injured employees and policy files of employers shall not be subject to the provisions of part 4 of article 6 of title 24, C.R.S.

(11) Pinnacol Assurance may enter into cooperative arrangements with any public or private entity for the purpose of carrying out its powers, duties, and functions. ## ANNOTATION

Terms in this section such as "body corporate" and "political subdivision of the state" denote entities such as counties and municipalities and not entities that are arms of the state. They suggest that CCIA should not be treated as an arm of the state. Simon v. State Compensation Ins. Auth., 946 P.2d 1298 (Colo. 1997).

CCIA is sufficiently autonomous from the state to be considered a "person" under 42

U.S.C. § 1983: it is clear that the legislature intended to create the equivalent of a private insurance company in creating CCIA. Simon v. State Compensation Ins. Auth., 946 P.2d 1298 (Colo. 1997).

Annotator's note. CCIA is now Pinnacol Assurance (see § 8-45-123).

8-45-102. Pinnacol Assurance fund created - control of fund. (1) There is hereby created in the state treasury a fund, to be known as the Pinnacol Assurance fund, for the benefit of injured and the dependents of killed employees, which shall be administered in accordance with the provisions of this article by the board. Such administration shall be without liability on the part of the state, beyond the amount of said fund, constituted as provided in this article. The state shall have no liability for the solvency or financial condition of the fund.

(2) The chief executive officer is vested with full power and jurisdiction over the administration of Pinnacol Assurance and may appoint such subordinate officers as may be necessary for the efficient operation of Pinnacol Assurance and may do and perform all things, whether specifically designated in this article or in addition thereto, that are necessary or convenient in the exercise of any power or jurisdiction over Pinnacol Assurance in the administration thereof under the provisions of this article as fully and completely as the head of a private insurance company might or could do, subject, however, to all the provisions of this article and other applicable law.

(3) Control of all moneys in the Pinnacol Assurance fund shall be transferred to the board, which shall administer the fund and use such moneys for the purposes of this article.

(4) The Pinnacol Assurance fund shall be a continuing fund and shall consist of all premiums received and paid into said fund for compensation insurance, all property and securities acquired by and through the use of moneys belonging to said fund, and all interest earned upon moneys belonging to said fund and deposited or invested. Said fund shall be applicable to the payment of the salaries of the employees of the fund and to its other operating expenses and to the payment of losses sustained or liabilities incurred under the contracts or policies of insurance issued by Pinnacol Assurance in accordance with the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title. All moneys in the fund previously known as the Colorado compensation insurance authority fund shall be transferred into the Pinnacol Assurance fund on July 1, 2002.

(5) The moneys in the Pinnacol Assurance fund shall be continuously available for the purposes of this article and shall not be transferred to or revert to the general fund of the state at the end of any fiscal year. All revenues, moneys, and assets of Pinnacol Assurance belong solely to Pinnacol Assurance. The state of Colorado has no claim to nor any interest in such revenues, moneys, and assets and shall not borrow, appropriate, or direct payments from such revenues, moneys, and assets for any purpose.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. Since § 8-45-102 is similar to § 8-54-102 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of this title, a relevant case construing that provision has been included in the annotations to this section.

The liability of the state compensation insurance fund is limited by statute. Packaging Corp. of Am. v. Indus. Comm'n, 173 Colo. 212, 477 P.2d 367 (1970).

And this liability of the state compensation insurance fund is for the payment of claims for injuries to employees who are covered by the state workmen's compensation law. Packaging Corp. of Am. v. Indus. Comm'n, 173 Colo. 212, 477 P.2d 367 (1970).

Furthermore, this liability of the state compensation insurance fund presupposes an injury to an employee arising out of his employment. Packaging Corp. of Am. v. Indus. Comm'n, 173 Colo. 212, 477 P.2d 367 (1970).

And this liability is exclusively to be determined in administrative proceedings on a claim filed pursuant to law. Packaging Corp. of Am. v. Indus. Comm'n, 173 Colo. 212, 477 P.2d 367 (1970).

8-45-103. Board to fix rates - chief executive officer to administer rates - sue and be sued - personal liability limited. (1) The board shall have full power and it is its duty to fix and determine the rates to be charged by Pinnacol Assurance for compensation insurance.

(2) The chief executive officer shall manage and conduct all business and affairs in relation to the rates to be charged by Pinnacol Assurance for compensation insurance which shall be conducted in the name of Pinnacol Assurance, and in that name, without any other name, title, or authority, the chief executive officer may:

(a) (I) Sue and be sued in all the courts of this state, or of any other state, or of the United States, and in actions arising out of any act, deed, matter, or thing made, omitted, entered into, done, or suffered in connection with Pinnacol Assurance and the administration, management, or conduct of the business or affairs relating thereto; and the chief executive officer shall be authorized to employ counsel to represent Pinnacol Assurance in any action.

(II) Nothing in this paragraph (a) shall be construed to waive any provisions of the "Colorado Governmental Immunity Act", article 10 of title 24, C.R.S., nor shall it be construed to waive immunity of the state of Colorado from suit in federal court, guaranteed by the eleventh amendment to the constitution of the United States.

(b) The chief executive officer shall not, nor shall any officer or employee of Pinnacol Assurance, or entities or parties with whom it contracts for services, be personally liable in a private capacity for or on account of any act done or omitted or contract or other obligation entered into or undertaken in an official capacity in good faith and without intent to defraud in connection with the administration, management, or conduct of Pinnacol Assurance, its business, or other affairs relating thereto.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. Since § 8-45-103 is similar to § 8-45-105 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of this title, relevant cases construing that provision have been included in the annotations to this section.

Under this section the manager of the state compensation insurance fund is authorized to enter into contracts of insurance with employers. Indus. Comm'n v. Spoo, 151 Colo. 581, 380 P.2d 49 (1963).

State fund may enter into contracts with employers which contracts may cover a number of details, including that of cancellation, not set forth by statute so long as they conform with the public policy of this state. Dye Const. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 678 P.2d 1066 (Colo. App. 1983).

Contract provisions for cancellation are valid unless in conflict with the terms of an applicable statute. Dye Const. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 678 P.2d 1066 (Colo. App. 1983).

An unequivocal agreement contained in a policy, by which either party may cancel the contract, is binding between the parties, because the parties to an insurance contract validly may contract as they please with respect to cancellation. Dye Const. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 678 P.2d 1066 (Colo. App. 1983).

No statutory requirement that the fund accept each and every application for insurance. Implicit in the fund's authority to make and enter into contracts of insurance with employers is the power or authority to reject an application if the fund has a legitimate basis for doing so. Bastian v. Martinez, 698 P.2d 1373 (Colo. App. 1984).

The failure of the state compensation insurance fund to specify the time of effective cancellation of coverage results in the policy coverage being in effect until midnight of the date of cancellation. State Comp. Ins. Fund v. Bldg. Sys., 713 P.2d 940 (Colo. App. 1985).

8-45-105. Places of employment classified - amount of premiums. (1) The board may classify the places of employment of employers insured by Pinnacol Assurance into classes in accordance with the nature of the business in which they are engaged and the probable hazard or risk of injury to their employees. It shall determine the amount of the premiums that such employers shall pay to Pinnacol Assurance, and may prescribe in what manner such premiums shall be paid, and may change the amount thereof both in respect to any or all of such employers as circumstances may require, and the condition of their respective plants, establishments, or places of work in respect to the safety of their employees may justify. All such premiums shall be levied on a basis that shall be fair, equitable, and just as among such employers.

8-45-106. Insurance at cost - board may impose surcharges. (1) It is the duty of the board, in the exercise of the powers and discretion conferred upon it by articles 40 to 47 of this title, ultimately to fix and maintain, for each class of occupation, the lowest possible rates of premium consistent with the maintenance of a solvent Pinnacol Assurance fund, and the creation and maintenance of a reasonable surplus after the payment of legitimate claims for injury and death, that may be authorized to be paid from the Pinnacol Assurance fund for the benefit of injured and dependents of killed employees.

(2) The board may impose a premium surcharge, not to exceed an additional fifty percent, for up to twelve continuous months, as a condition precedent to insure or reinsure an employer whose policy was canceled or terminated by any insurer for reasons of fraud or intentional misrepresentation of a material fact; except that, if an employer disputes the imposition of such surcharge, the employer may make a complaint to the commissioner of insurance. If the commissioner of insurance determines that the board, in imposing a premium surcharge, has engaged in any conduct in violation of part 11 of article 3 of title 10, C.R.S., the commissioner may take any action the commissioner deems appropriate and authorized by law.

(b) Produce a reasonable surplus as provided in articles 40 to 47 of this title, cover the catastrophe hazard, and ensure the payment to employees and their dependents of the compensation provided in said articles.

(2) In determining the amount of reserve to be laid aside to meet deferred payments according to awards, such reserve may be ascertained by finding the present worth of such deferred medical and indemnity payments calculated at a rate of interest not higher than six percent per annum, and such calculations of disability indemnity benefits shall be made according to a table of mortality not lower than the American experience table of mortality and, in the discretion of the board, by such other and further methods as will result in the establishment of adequate reserves.

(3) The amounts raised for the Pinnacol Assurance fund shall ultimately become neither more nor less than necessary to make the fund self-supporting, which includes the attainment and maintenance of an adequate surplus as determined in accordance with section 8-45-111, and the premiums or rates levied for such purpose shall be subject to readjustment from time to time by the board as may become necessary.

(6) Notwithstanding the provisions of sections 8-45-102 (1) and 8-45-118, upon the attainment of a reasonable surplus as set forth in section 8-45-111 and verified by audit and examination performed in accordance with section 8-45-121, all of the moneys in the Pinnacol Assurance fund shall be transferred out of the state treasury and into the custody of the board of Pinnacol Assurance. The board shall thereafter control the investment of the fund pursuant to the requirements set forth in part 2 of article 3 of title 10, C.R.S.

(7) Notwithstanding the provisions of sections 8-45-102 (1) and 8-45-118, upon the transfer of the moneys in the Pinnacol Assurance fund in accordance with subsection (6) of this section, the board of Pinnacol Assurance shall make all disbursements, and such disbursements shall not be made upon state warrants.

In every case occurring in which a warrant has been drawn in accordance with law against the state treasurer upon vouchers issued by the board for payment of any sum of money from the Pinnacol Assurance fund, or when another form of payment has been made from such fund by or under the direction of the chief executive officer, and the time within which said warrant or other form of payment shall be presented for payment in order to be valid has not been stamped, printed, or written across the face thereof, or otherwise specified, and a period of six months has elapsed since the issuance of such warrant or other form of payment, during which no person entitled thereto, or the proceeds thereof, has presented the same to the state treasurer for payment, or appeared to claim the funds so authorized to be paid from the hands of the state treasurer or the chief executive officer, such warrant or other form of payment may in the discretion of the chief executive officer be posted for cancellation, and thereafter cancelled and set aside.

(2) In every such case in which it is proposed to cancel any such warrant, the chief executive officer shall cause a notice to be drawn in duplicate, with a description of said warrant containing the amount, number, date of issuance, and name of payee, and shall cause one copy of said notice to be posted in a conspicuous place that is open to the public in the office of said board and one copy to be delivered to the state treasurer. If, at the end of one month after the posting of such notice and the delivery of a copy to the state treasurer, such warrant is not presented for payment and no person entitled to the proceeds thereof appears to claim the funds so authorized to be paid in said warrant, said warrant may be cancelled as provided in this section.

(3) (a) The state treasurer shall, upon the request of the chief executive officer, transfer any such funds held to the credit of or for the payment of such warrant back to the credit of the Pinnacol Assurance fund. Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (b) of this subsection (3), if at any time thereafter application shall be made for the reissuance of such warrant, the same may be reissued, if the claim that it represents appears to be valid and still outstanding. Such reissued warrant shall be made payable from the moneys on deposit in the Pinnacol Assurance fund and shall be made payable to the person entitled to the proceeds thereof.

(b) For warrants issued on or after August 6, 2003, the funds transferred pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (3) shall be subject to the provisions of the "Unclaimed Property Act", article 13 of title 38, C.R.S., and for purposes of this paragraph (b), Pinnacol Assurance shall be considered an insurance company as defined in section 38-13-102 (6.5), C.R.S.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. (1) Since § 8-45-120 is similar to § 8-54-122 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of this title, relevant cases construing that provision have been included in the annotations to this section.

(2) Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the enactment of 1986

Senate Bill No. 12 which abolished said commission and transferred its powers, duties, and functions under this article to the board of directors of the state compensation insurance authority.

Treasurer to obey commission and invest as directed by it. Full control of the fund is given to the commission; the custodian is authorized to do nothing with it except upon their order, and his investment of it is restricted. Nothing is required of the treasurer by this section but to obey the commission and invest as directed at the market price. Stong v. Indus. Comm'n, 71 Colo. 133, 204 P. 892 (1922).

Mandamus of state treasurer does not waive commission's right to sue for damages. In an action in mandamus against the state treasurer by the industrial commission to compel the former to invest state insurance funds as directed, the commission by electing to sue in mandamus did not waive its right to sue for damages occasioned by failure of the treasurer to act as directed. Indus. Comm'n v. Stong, 77 Colo. 590, 239 P. 12 (1925).

8-45-121. Visitation of fund by commissioner of insurance - annual audit - examination. (1) Pinnacol Assurance shall be open to visitation by the commissioner of insurance at all reasonable times, and the commissioner of insurance shall require from the chief executive officer reports as to the condition of Pinnacol Assurance, as required by law to be made by other insurance carriers doing business in this state insofar as applicable to Pinnacol Assurance.

(2) An annual financial audit and, in 2009, a performance audit of Pinnacol Assurance shall be made as soon as practicable by the state auditor, such audits to include, but not be limited to, executive compensation, premium rate structure, known loss reserves, incurred but not reported losses, and injured workers' claims experience. In conducting such audits, the state auditor may employ a firm of auditors and actuaries, or both, with the necessary specialized knowledge and experience. The cost of such annual audit shall be paid from the operating funds of Pinnacol Assurance. The state auditor shall report his or her findings from such audits, along with any comments and recommendations, to the governor, the general assembly, the executive director of the department of labor and employment, and the commissioner of insurance. The state auditor shall have continuing authority to conduct performance audits of Pinnacol Assurance as the state auditor deems appropriate. The cost of performance audits shall be paid from the operating funds of Pinnacol Assurance.

(4) At least once every three years, the commissioner of insurance shall conduct an examination of said fund, such examination to be conducted in the same manner as an examination of a private insurance carrier. With respect to such examination, the provisions of section 10-1-204, C.R.S., shall be applicable. The commissioner of insurance shall transmit a copy of the commissioner's examination to the governor, the state auditor, the general assembly, the executive director of the department of labor and employment, and the chief executive officer.

(2) The report required in subsection (1) of this section shall include the following information for the previous calendar year:

PART 1

SUBSEQUENT INJURY FUND

8-46-101. Subsequent injury fund. (1) (a) In a case where an employee has previously sustained permanent partial industrial disability and in a subsequent injury sustains additional permanent partial industrial disability and it is shown that the combined industrial disabilities render the employee permanently and totally incapable of steady gainful employment and incapable of rehabilitation to steady gainful employment, then the employer in whose employ the employee sustained such subsequent injury shall be liable only for that portion of the employee's industrial disability attributable to said subsequent injury, and the balance of compensation due such employee on account of permanent total disability shall be paid from the subsequent injury fund as is provided in this section.

(b) (I) In addition to such compensation and after the completion of the payments therefor, the employee shall continue to receive compensation at said employee's established compensation rate for permanent total disability until death out of a special fund to be known as the subsequent injury fund, hereby created for such purpose. The subsequent injury fund shall be funded pursuant to the provisions of section 8-46-102.

(II) The unrestricted year-end balance of the subsequent injury fund, created pursuant to subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (b), for the 1991-92 fiscal year shall constitute a reserve, as defined in section 24-77-102 (12), C.R.S., and, for purposes of section 24-77-103, C.R.S.:

(A) Any moneys credited to the subsequent injury fund in any subsequent fiscal year shall be included in state fiscal year spending, as defined in section 24-77-102 (17), C.R.S.; and

(B) Any transfers or expenditures from the subsequent injury fund in any subsequent fiscal year shall not be included in state fiscal year spending, as defined in section 24-77-102 (17), C.R.S., for such fiscal year.

(1.5) Notwithstanding any provision of this section to the contrary, on May 1, 2003, the state treasurer shall deduct twenty million dollars from the subsequent injury fund and transfer such sum to the general fund.

(1.7) Notwithstanding any provision of this section to the contrary, on March 30, 2009, the state treasurer shall deduct twenty-six million five hundred thousand dollars from the subsequent injury fund and transfer such sum to the general fund.

(2) If an employee entitled to additional benefits, as provided in this section, obtains employment while receiving compensation from the subsequent injury fund, such employee shall be compensated out of said fund at the rate of one-half of said employee's average weekly wage loss, subject to the maximum and minimum provisions of the workers' compensation act, during such period of employment.

(3) In case payment is or has been made under the provisions of this section and dependency later is shown or if payment is made by mistake or inadvertence or under such circumstances that justice requires a refund thereof, the division is authorized to refund such payment to the employer or, if insured, the employer's insurance carrier.

(4) (a) The sums provided for the subsequent injury fund created by this section shall be used to pay the costs related to the administration of the fund and to make such compensation payments as may be required by the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title.

(b) Moneys in the subsequent injury fund are continuously appropriated to the division for the payment of benefits as provided in this section and legal fees.

(5) The director shall administer and conduct all matters involving the subsequent injury fund in the name of the division, and, in that name and without any other name, title, or authority, the director may:

(a) (I) Sue and be sued in all the courts of this state, of any other state, or of the United States and in actions arising out of any act, deed, matter, or thing made, omitted, entered into, done, or suffered in connection with the subsequent injury fund and the administration or conduct of matters relating thereto, including the authority to employ counsel to represent the fund in any action.

(II) Nothing in this paragraph (a) shall be construed to waive any provisions of the "Colorado Governmental Immunity Act", article 10 of title 24, C.R.S., nor shall it be construed to waive immunity of the state of Colorado from suit in federal court, guaranteed by the eleventh amendment to the constitution of the United States.

(b) Make and enter into contracts or obligations relating to the subsequent injury fund as authorized or permitted under the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title, but neither the director nor any officer or employee of the division shall be personally liable in any private capacity for or on account of any act done or omitted or contract or other obligation entered into or undertaken in an official capacity in good faith and without intent to defraud in connection with the administration or conduct of the subsequent injury fund, its business, or other affairs relating thereto.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Primer on Permanent Disability in the Colorado Workmen's Compensation Law", see 57 Den. L.J. 573 (1980).

Annotator's note. Since § 8-46-101 is similar to § 8-51-106 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of this title, relevant cases construing that provision have been included in the annotations to this section.

Constitutional guarantees of equal protection are not violated by overall statutory scheme for assessing and apportioning liability among different classes of employees because legitimate governmental interest to encourage the employment of partially disabled persons is furthered. Electron Corp. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 833 P.2d 821 (Colo. App. 1992).

Purpose of this statute is to enhance opportunities for employment for partially disabled persons. Horizon Land Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 34 Colo. App. 178, 524 P.2d 638 (1974); Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Baca, 682 P.2d 11 (Colo. 1984); McGrath v. Indus. Comm'n, 708 P.2d 1382 (Colo. App. 1985).

The legislative policy underlying subsection (1)(a) is to provide an incentive for employers to hire partially disabled persons. This policy is effectuated by relieving employers who hire such persons from full responsibility if the employee suffers a subsequent industrial injury and becomes permanently and totally disabled. In such instances, the total compensation to be paid the employee is divided between the last employer and the subsequent injury fund. McKinney v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 894 P.2d 42 (Colo. App. 1995).

This section imposes liability on a later employer for that portion of the employee's permanent total disability attributable to the last injury while making the subsequent injury fund responsible for that portion caused by the previous industrial injuries. Bowland v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 984 P.2d 660 (Colo. App. 1998); Mountain Meadows Nursing Center v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 990 P.2d 1090 (Colo. App. 1999).

By relieving employers of greater potential liability. The general assembly intended, by enactment of this statute, to encourage employers to hire partially disabled persons by relieving them of any greater potential liability resulting therefrom. Horizon Land Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 34 Colo. App. 178, 524 P.2d 638 (1974); McGrath v. Indus. Comm'n, 708 P.2d 1382 (Colo. App. 1985).

And under this statute an employer is liable for actual injuries and disability which occur to an employee in his employment. Horizon Land Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 34 Colo. App. 178, 524 P.2d 638 (1974).

But permanent total disability from additional loss borne by subsequent injury fund. In the case of an employee who has previously lost the use of a bodily member, the permanent total disability resulting from the loss of an additional member or additional members shall, after the employer has compensated the employee for such loss, be borne by the subsequent injury fund. Horizon Land Corp. v. Indus.

Comm'n, 34 Colo. App. 178, 524 P.2d 638 (1974).

The effect of this section is to provide a scheme for apportioning the permanent total disability to which a claimant may be entitled under § 8-51-107(1). McGrath v. Indus. Comm'n, 708 P.2d 1382 (Colo. App. 1985); Subsequent Injury Fund v. Gallegos, 746 P.2d 71 (Colo. App. 1987).

Apportionment of liability for permanent total disability pursuant to this section should be a de novo determination of the relative contributions of the partial disabilities to the total disability based on the relevant circumstances existing at the time of that determination. Subsequent Injury Fund v. Gallegos, 746 P.2d 71 (Colo. App. 1987).

Industrial disabilities are those which arise out of an industrial incident. Heggar v. Watts-Hardy Dairy, 685 P.2d 235 (Colo. App. 1984).

And injuries incurred during active military service are not considered industrial injuries within the meaning of this section. Waddell v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 964 P.2d 552 (Colo. App. 1998).

Subsection (1) precludes compensation from the subsequent injury fund when nonindustrial factors contribute to the claimant's total disability. City & County of Denver v. Indus. Comm'n, 690 P.2d 199 (Colo. 1984).

If, in the course of his employment, a partially disabled person receives an injury which totally disables him, he is entitled to compensation without apportionment. Colo. Fuel & Iron Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 151 Colo. 18, 379 P.2d 153 (1962).

This state has adopted to a very limited extent a "subsequent injury fund" covering scheduled injuries involving hands, arms, feet, legs, and eyes. Colo. Fuel & Iron Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 151 Colo. 18, 379 P.2d 153 (1962).

And in the absence of an apportionment statute, the general rule is that the employer becomes liable for the entire disability resulting from a compensable accident. Colo. Fuel & Iron Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 151 Colo. 18, 379 P.2d 153 (1962).

When preexisting condition of an employee was stable but becomes aggravated by an industrial injury, the fund is liable. Subsequent Injury Fund v. Thompson, 793 P.2d 576 (Colo. 1990).

Where no apportionment evidence was presented, and no other evidence was available regarding the relative contributions of the injury to the total disability, the subsequent employer should be held liable for that portion of permanent total disability benefits which exceeds the percentage of the prior permanent partial disability award. State Compensation Ins. Auth. v. Collins, 771 P.2d 9 (Colo. App. 1988).

Where a worker's permanent total disability has been caused by the combination of two or more injuries and the subsequent occupational disease of silicosis, liability is apportioned. Liability for that portion of the permanent total disability attributable to industrial injuries not involving silicosis is governed by this section. Climax Molybdenum Co. v. Walter, 812 P.2d 1168 (Colo. 1991).

This section is applicable only where the entire vision of the remaining eye has been lost and no provision is made authorizing an award thereunder for partial permanent disability. Colo. Fuel & Iron Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 88 Colo. 573, 298 P.2d 955 (1931).

Congenital loss of vision existing at birth comes within the meaning of "lost vision" under this section. Jewell Collieries Corp. v. Kenda, 110 Colo. 394, 134 P.2d 206 (1943).

And the uncorrected eye deficiency may be relied upon in the determination of the loss of vision in the remaining eye. Jewell Collieries Corp. v. Kenda, 110 Colo. 394, 134 P.2d 206 (1943).

Section 8-51-112 takes precedence over subsection (1)(a). The specific provisions of § 8-51-112, applicable to occupational disease, take precedence over the general provisions of subsection (1)(a) of this section, applicable to "injury", notwithstanding that the statutory definition of injury, § 8-41-108 (2), includes occupational disease. Denver v. Hansen, 650 P.2d 1319 (Colo. App. 1982).

Where no claim is filed, no dependents exist and subsection (1)(b) is triggered for purposes of payment into the subsequent injury fund. Frontier Airlines v. Indus. Comm'n, 654 P.2d 1333 (Colo. App. 1982).

Payment to subsequent injury fund required where survivors fail to file. The employer is required to make the $15,000 payment to the subsequent injury fund where the survivors of the claimant fail to file for compensation within the three-year statute of limitations. Frontier Airlines v. Indus. Comm'n, 654 P.2d 1333 (Colo. App. 1982).

The intent of the statute is to have payments made to the subsequent injury fund in instances where no compensation is paid. Frontier Airlines v. Indus. Comm'n, 654 P.2d 1333 (Colo. App. 1982).

Else insurance carrier receives windfall benefit. This legislative purpose is reasonable because, with every compensable injury which occurs without dependents, the insurance carrier receives a windfall benefit. Frontier Airlines v. Indus. Comm'n, 654 P.2d 1333 (Colo. App. 1982).

Payment of interest. The interest awarded by the commission in excess of the $7,500 award was payable out of the subsequent injury fund, rather than by employer and insurance company. Union Carbide Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 40

Colo. App. 182, 573 P.2d 938 (1977), aff'd, 196 Colo. 56, 581 P.2d 734 (1978).

Subsequent injury fund was a legal entity and had standing to appeal an order of the referee. Indus. Comm'n v. St. Thomas More Hosp., 697 P.2d 33 (Colo. 1985) (case arose prior to 1984 enactment of subsection (5)).

Subsequent injury fund is not a legal entity with the capacity to sue and to be sued. This section does not provide for separate legal status of the subsequent injury fund, nor does the statute supply the necessary characteristics of a legal entity. Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Baca, 682 P.2d 11 (Colo. 1984); Subsequent Injury Fund v. Black Mt. Spruce, 682 P.2d 1188 (Colo. 1984).

In situations covered by this statute, the subsequent employer is not liable for the degree of permanent partial disability sustained by the subsequent injury; rather, the employer is liable for the portion of the permanent total disability that is attributable to the subsequent injury. Subsequent Injury Fund v. Gallegos, 746 P.2d 71 (Colo. App. 1987).

Where claimant's industrial injuries were the sole cause of her permanent total disability, and not her degenerative disc condition, the fund is responsible for a portion of the payments to which the claimant is entitled. Injury Fund v. Denver Pub. Schools, 798 P.2d 900 (Colo. 1990).

Offset for employer financed pension benefits is deducted from total award prior to the apportionment of liability between the employer and the subsequent liability fund. Jefferson County Pub. Schools v. Sago, 786 P.2d (Colo. App. 1989), aff'd, 793 P.2d 580 (Colo. 1990).

The subsequent injury fund is not available for contribution unless a claimant's permanent total disability results solely from a combination of previous and subsequent permanent partial industrial disabilities. General Iron Works v. Indus. Comm'n, 719 P.2d 353 (Colo. App. 1985).

However, one or more of the permanent partial disabilities which contribute to the total disability required for compensation under this section may take into account non-industrial factors or conditions, but the condition which triggers the liability of the subsequent injury fund may not be a non-industrial disabling condition. Subsequent Injury Fund v. Compensation Ins. Auth., 768 P.2d 751 (Colo. App. 1988).

Claimant's approved stipulation and settlement that specifically reserved the right to claim against the subsequent injury fund was not a determination of permanent, total disability barring a claim against the subsequent injury fund. Subsequent Injury Fund v. Ladow, 923 P.2d 368 (Colo. App. 1996).

This section requires subsequent injury fund contribution in all cases in which an employee is rendered totally and permanently disabled by the combined effect of two or more permanent partial disabilities and was enacted to provide an incentive for employers to hire partially disabled workers by relieving those employers of full liability for total permanent disability which might result from a subsequent injury. Subsequent Injury Fund v. Grant, 827 P.2d 574 (Colo. App. 1991).

This section applies only if two or more industrial disabilities combine to render a claimant permanently and totally incapable of steady gainful employment and incapable of rehabilitation to steady gainful employment. Holly Nursing Care Ctr. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 992 P.2d 701 (Colo. App. 1999).

This section imposes liability on a later employer for the portion of the permanent total disability attributable to the last injury, while making the subsequent injury fund responsible for that portion caused by the previous industrial injuries. Holly Nursing Care Ctr. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 992 P.2d 701 (Colo. App. 1999).

An employer is liable for only that portion of the employee's industrial disability which is attributable to a subsequent injury and the subsequent injury fund is liable, in accordance with this section, for the remaining portion of the employee's permanent total disability resulting from industrial injuries not involving occupational disease. Subsequent Injury Fund v. Grant, 827 P.2d 574 (Colo. App. 1991).

Where there are two separate compensable injuries, one temporary total disability and a subsequent injury rendering claimant permanently and totally disabled, the subsequent injury fund is obligated to pay the balance not attributable to the subsequent injury. Citadel Mall v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 892 P.2d 419 (Colo. App. 1994).

In dual or hybrid employment relationship in which claimant was engaged in rehabilitative employment partially funded by employer, liability is apportioned and the fund is available for contribution when the claimant's permanent total disability results from a combination of previous and subsequent industrial disabilities. Citadel Mall v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 892 P.2d 419 (Colo. App. 1994).

An employee's second injury in another state was not a "subsequent injury" for the purposes of the subsequent injury fund after the second injury worsened a condition caused by the first accident that occurred in Colorado. Pacheco v. Roaring Fork Aggregates, 897 P.2d 872 (Colo. App. 1995).

The Colorado subsequent injury fund is not liable for payment of any portion of permanent disability benefits arising from a subsequent injury incurred in the employ of an out-of-state employer not subject to the act. Pacheco v. Roaring Fork Aggregates, 897 P.2d 872 (Colo. App. 1995).

Person responsible for enforcing this section is director of division of labor. General powers given to director of division of labor place him in a fiduciary role to funds such as the subsequent injury fund which are not legal entities, and therefore the director is the proper party to represent the fund and to protect its interests in workmen's compensation proceedings. Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Baca, 682 P.2d 11 (Colo. 1984); Hatfield v. Dir. of Div. of Labor, 682 P.2d 1190 (Colo. 1984).

Due process requires that rules be enacted governing procedures under the subsequent injury fund in order to inform employers and claimants of the procedures for invoking participation of the subsequent injury fund in workmen's compensation proceedings. Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Baca, 682 P.2d 11 (Colo. 1984).

For purposes of imposing a percentage of liability on employer for permanent total disability, "subsequent injury" under this section should be determined from the date of the resulting disability. Pikes Peak Cmty. Coll. v. Leonard, 865 P.2d 913 (Colo. App. 1993).

Penalties imposed by the act are not available as compensation to wronged individuals, but rather are credited to the subsequent injury fund. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Savio, 706 P.2d 1258 (Colo. 1985).

8-46-102. Funding for subsequent injury fund and major medical insurance fund.

(1) (a) For every compensable injury resulting in death wherein there are no persons either wholly or partially dependent upon the deceased, the employer or the employer's insurance carrier, if any, shall pay to the division the sum of fifteen thousand dollars, not to exceed one hundred percent of the death benefit, to be transmitted to the state treasurer, as custodian, and credited by the state treasurer to the subsequent injury fund. In the event that there are only partially dependent persons dependent upon the deceased, the employer or the employer's insurance carrier, if any, shall first pay such benefits to such partial dependents and shall transmit the balance of the sum of fifteen thousand dollars to the state treasurer, as custodian, who shall credit the same to the subsequent injury fund.

(b) In the event that the deceased is a minor with no persons either wholly or partially dependent upon the deceased, the employer or the employer's insurance carrier, if any, shall pay to the parents of the deceased the sum of fifteen thousand dollars, not to exceed one hundred percent of the death benefit. In the event that there are no surviving parents, the employer or the employer's insurance carrier, if any, shall pay such benefits to the division, to be transmitted to the state treasurer, as custodian, and credited by the state treasurer to the subsequent injury fund. In the event that there are persons only partially dependent upon the deceased, the employer or the employer's insurance carrier, if any, shall first pay such benefits to such partially dependent persons and shall pay the balance to the surviving parents of the deceased, or in the event that there are no surviving parents, the remaining balance shall be paid to the division, to be transmitted to the state treasurer, as custodian, who shall credit the same to the subsequent injury fund.

(2) (a) (I) Notwithstanding sections 10-3-209 (1) (c) and 10-6-128 (3), C.R.S., for the purpose of funding the financial liabilities of the subsequent injury fund pursuant to this section and of the major medical insurance fund pursuant to section 8-46-202, every person, partnership, association, and corporation, whether organized under the laws of this state or of any other state or country, every mutual company or association, every captive insurance company, and every other insurance carrier, including Pinnacol Assurance, insuring employers in this state against liability for personal injury to their employees or death caused thereby under the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title shall, as provided in this subsection (2), be levied a tax upon the premiums received in this state, whether or not in cash, or on account of business done in this state for such insurance in this state at a rate determined by the director to generate sufficient revenue for claim payments and direct and indirect costs of administration that are anticipated to be submitted in the following state fiscal year for which such funds are liable. In determining the rate, the director shall, in addition to revenue for claim payments and direct and indirect costs of administration that are anticipated to be due in the following state fiscal year, maintain a cash balance in both the major medical insurance fund and the subsequent injury fund of an amount of otherwise unrestricted revenues equal to approximately one year's worth of claim payments and direct and indirect administrative costs. Such insurance carriers shall be credited with all cancelled or returned premiums actually refunded during the year of such insurance.

(II) Repealed.

(b) Every such insurance carrier shall, on July 1, 1988, and semiannually thereafter, make a return, verified by affidavits of its president and its secretary or by affidavits of its other chief officers or agents, to the division, stating the amount of all such premiums received and credits granted during the period covered by such return. Every insurance carrier required to make such return shall file the same with the division within thirty days after the close of the period covered thereby and shall, at the same time, pay to the division a tax ascertained as provided in paragraph (a) of this subsection (2), less return premiums on cancelled policies.

(c) Every employer acting as a self-insurer under the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title shall, under oath, report to the division the employer's payroll in such form as may be prescribed by the director and at the times specified for premium reports by insurance companies in paragraph (b) of this subsection (2). The division shall assess against such payroll a tax for the purposes of paragraph (b) of this subsection (2) on the basic premiums chargeable against the same or most similar industry or business taken from the manual insurance rates, including any discount or experience modification allowed, chargeable by Pinnacol Assurance, and, upon receipt of notice from the division of the tax so assessed, every such self-insurer shall, within thirty days after the receipt of such notice, pay to the division the tax so assessed.

(d) If any such insurance carrier or self-insurer fails or refuses to make the return or report required by paragraph (b) or (c) of this subsection (2), the director shall assess the tax against such insurance carrier or self-insurer at the rate provided for in this subsection (2) on such amount of premium as the director may deem just, and the proceedings thereof shall be the same as if the return had been made.

(e) If any such insurance carrier or self-insurer withdraws from business in this state before the tax provided for in this subsection (2) falls due as provided in this section, or fails or neglects to pay such tax, the director shall proceed at once to collect the same; and the director is authorized to employ such legal processes as may be necessary for that purpose. Suit shall be brought by the director in any of the courts of this state having jurisdiction.

(f) The director, in the enforcement of this subsection (2), shall have all of the powers granted in articles 40 to 47 of this title, and any insurance carrier or self-insurer who violates any of the provisions of this subsection (2) or fails to pay the tax thereby imposed is guilty of a violation of said articles and shall be subject to the penalties therein prescribed.

(g) All moneys collected pursuant to this subsection (2) shall be transmitted to the state treasurer, as custodian, who shall credit the same to the subsequent injury fund and to the major medical insurance fund as determined by the director in accordance with subsection (3) of this section. Any interest earned on the investment or deposit of moneys in said funds shall remain in the funds and shall not revert to the general fund of the state at the end of any fiscal year.

(3) (a) As determined by the director, a portion of the revenue received each year pursuant to subsection (2) of this section shall be deposited into the subsequent injury fund, established in section 8-46-101 (1) (b), and a portion shall be deposited into the major medical insurance fund, established in section 8-46-202 (1). In addition, the director may move revenue between the funds when the director determines that doing so is necessary. The director shall continue to establish a surcharge rate pursuant to subsection (2) of this section until the balance in both such funds is sufficient to meet the future claim payments plus the amount necessary to pay the direct and indirect costs of administration of the funds, at which time the surcharge rate established in paragraph (a) of subsection (2) of this section shall be reduced to zero.

(b) For the purpose of determining the proper allocation of the surcharge and making the estimates contemplated in paragraph (a) of this subsection (3), the director shall contract for the services of qualified private actuaries.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. Since § 8-46-102 is similar to § 8-51-106 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of this title, a relevant case construing that provision has been included in the annotations to this section.

In case of death of employee intoxicated at time of injury, § 8-52-104 (1)(c) (now § 8-42-112 (1)(c)) does not operate to reduce the $15,000 employer is required to contribute to the subsequent injury fund pursuant to this section, because this amount is a tax imposed upon the employer for the purpose of funding the subsequent injury fund and not a benefit to the claimant or his dependents. Portofino Apts. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 789 P.2d 1117 (Colo. App. 1990) (decided under law in effect prior to 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of title 8).

Benefits for injuries occurring prior to July 1, 1993, and that result in permanent partial disability may come proportionately from the subsequent injury fund and the last employer when the employee suffers from multiple disabilities. United Airlines v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 993 P.2d 1152 (Colo. 2000).

By closing the subsequent injury fund to cases of permanent total disability involving new injuries, the general assembly intended to place full liability for permanent total disability benefits on the last employer. The general assembly further intended to mitigate the costs to an employer held liable for such benefits by requiring its insurers to consider only the medical impairment rating of the last injury when setting the employer's insurance premiums. Insurers may recoup expenses not covered by an employer's premiums by increasing its insurance rates to similarly situated employers in a risk pool. United Airlines v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 993 P.2d 1152 (Colo. 2000).

8-46-103. State treasurer to invest funds. (1) The state treasurer shall invest any portion of the subsequent injury fund, including its surplus and reserves, which the division determines is not needed for immediate use. All interest earned upon such invested portion shall be credited to the fund and used for the same purposes and in the same manner as other moneys in the fund. Such moneys may be invested in the types of investments authorized in sections 24-36-109, 24-36-112, and 24-36-113, C.R.S.

8-46-104. Closure of fund. No cases shall be accepted into the subsequent injury fund for injuries occurring on or after July 1, 1993, or for occupational diseases occurring on or after April 1, 1994. When all payments have been made for all cases accepted into the fund, any remaining balance shall revert to the general fund.

The subsequent injury fund is liable for death benefits claimed in accordance with the version of § 8-41-304(2) in effect when the occupational diseases suffered by decedents occurred. Subsequent Injury Fund v. King, 961 P.2d 575 (Colo. App. 1998).

8-46-105. Calculation of premium - permanent total disability - employer may request examination. (1) Effective July 1, 1993, in any case in which an employee previously has sustained permanent partial disability and, in a subsequent injury, sustains additional permanent partial disability and it is shown that the combined industrial disabilities render the employee permanently and totally disabled, then the premiums of the employer in whose employ the employee sustained such subsequent injury shall be determined only on the basis of the impairment rating for such subsequent injury and not on the basis of the employee's permanent total disability. If such employer disputes the impairment rating for the subsequent injury, the employer shall request an independent medical examination pursuant to the procedures set forth in section 8-42-107.2. The finding of the independent medical examiner regarding the impairment rating may be overcome only by clear and convincing evidence. The total cost of the employee's permanent total disability shall not be considered in determining the employer's premiums, but shall be considered by the commissioner of insurance in setting rates.

(2) In any case in which an employee becomes disabled by an occupational disease and the employer is liable for benefits pursuant to section 8-41-304 (2), then the premiums of the employer in whose employ the employee became disabled shall be determined only on the basis of the impairment rating for the portion of the occupational disease attributable to such employer and not on the basis of the combination of such portion and any prior impairment resulting from such occupational disease. For the purposes of premium calculations, if such employer disputes the impairment rating for the occupational disease, the employer shall request an independent medical examination pursuant to the procedures set forth in section 8-42-107.2. The finding of the independent medical examiner regarding the impairment rating may be overcome only by clear and convincing evidence. The total cost of the employee's occupational disease shall not be considered in determining the employer's premiums, but shall be considered by the commissioner of insurance in setting rates.

Editor's note: This section is similar to former § 8-66-101 as it existed prior to 1990.

8-46-202. Major medical insurance fund - tax imposed - returns. (1) (a) There is hereby established a major medical insurance fund to defray medical, surgical, dental, hospital, nursing, and drug expenses and expenses for medical, hospital, and surgical supplies, crutches, apparatus, and vocational rehabilitation, which shall include tuition, fees, transportation, and weekly maintenance equivalent to that which the employee would receive under section 8-42-105 for the period of time that the employee is attending a vocational rehabilitation course, which expenses are in excess of those provided under the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado" for employees who have established their entitlement to disability benefits under said act, whether necessary to promote recovery, alleviate pain, or reduce disability.

(b) The unrestricted year-end balance of the major medical insurance fund, created pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (1), for the 1991-92 fiscal year shall constitute a reserve, as defined in section 24-77-102 (12), C.R.S., and, for purposes of section 24-77-103, C.R.S.:

(I) Any moneys credited to the major medical insurance fund in any subsequent fiscal year shall be included in state fiscal year spending, as defined in section 24-77-102 (17), C.R.S., for such fiscal year; and

(II) Any transfers or expenditures from the major medical insurance fund in any subsequent fiscal year shall not be included in state fiscal year spending, as defined in section 24-77-102 (17), C.R.S., for such fiscal year.

(c) Moneys in the major medical insurance fund are continuously appropriated to the division for the payment of benefits as provided in this section and legal fees.

(1.5) (a) Notwithstanding any provision of this section to the contrary, on May 1, 2003, the state treasurer shall deduct one hundred fifty million dollars from the major medical insurance fund and transfer such sum to the general fund.

(b) On July 1, 2003, the state controller shall transfer ten million dollars from the general fund to the major medical insurance fund.

(1.6) Notwithstanding any provision of this section to the contrary, on March 30, 2009, the state treasurer shall deduct sixty-nine million five hundred thousand dollars from the major medical insurance fund and transfer such sum to the general fund.

(1.7) Notwithstanding any provision of this section to the contrary, on March 31, 2010, the state treasurer shall deduct twenty-six million five hundred thousand dollars from the major medical insurance fund and transfer such sum to the general fund.

(1.8) Notwithstanding any provision of this section to the contrary, on June 30, 2011, the state treasurer shall deduct ten million dollars from the major medical insurance fund and transfer such sum to the general fund.

(2) The director shall administer the major medical insurance fund and is hereby given jurisdiction to enforce the provisions of this article. The director shall administer and conduct all matters involving the major medical insurance fund in the name of the division, and, in that name and without any other name, title, or authority, the director may:

(a) (I) Sue and be sued in all the courts of this state, of any other state, or of the United States and in actions arising out of any act, deed, matter, or thing made, omitted, entered into, done, or suffered in connection with the major medical insurance fund and the administration or conduct of matters relating thereto, including the authority to employ counsel to represent the fund in any action.

(II) Nothing in this paragraph (a) shall be construed to waive any provisions of the "Colorado Governmental Immunity Act", article 10 of title 24, C.R.S., nor shall it be construed to waive immunity of the state of Colorado from suit in federal court, guaranteed by the eleventh amendment to the constitution of the United States.

(b) Make and enter into contracts or obligations relating to the major medical insurance fund as authorized or permitted under the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title, but neither the director nor any officer or employee of the division shall be personally liable in any private capacity for or on account of any act done or omitted or contract or other obligation entered into or undertaken in an official capacity in good faith and without intent to defraud in connection with the administration or conduct of the major medical insurance fund, its business, or other affairs relating thereto;

(a) That the claimant employee had refused hospital, surgical, and medical services under the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado" necessary to reduce the employee's disability voluntarily offered by the employer; or

(b) That the claimant employee had reached maximum improvement as determined by the director prior to the filing of the application for payments from the medical disaster insurance fund.

8-47-101. Division of workers' compensation - creation - powers, duties, and functions - transfer of functions - change of statutory references. (1) There is hereby created the division of workers' compensation in the department of labor and employment. Pursuant to section 13 of article XII of the state constitution, the executive director of the department of labor and employment shall appoint the director of the division of workers' compensation, and the director shall appoint such employees as are necessary to carry out the duties and exercise the powers conferred by law upon the division of workers' compensation and the director.

(2) The director and the division of workers' compensation shall enforce and administer the provisions of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of this title, as provided in said articles and the provisions of article 14.5 of this title.

(3) (a) The division of workers' compensation shall, on and after July 1, 1991, execute, administer, perform, and enforce the rights, powers, duties, functions, and obligations vested in the division of labor prior to July 1, 1991, concerning the duties and functions transferred to the division of workers' compensation. On July 1, 1991, all employees of the division of labor whose principal duties are concerned with the duties and functions transferred to the division of workers' compensation and whose employment in the division of workers' compensation is deemed necessary by the executive director of the department of labor and employment to carry out the purposes of this article shall be transferred to the division of workers' compensation and shall become employees thereof. Such employees shall retain all rights to the state personnel system and retirement benefits under the laws of this state, and their services shall be deemed to have been continuous. All transfers and any abolishment of positions in the state personnel system shall be made and processed in accordance with state personnel system laws and rules and regulations.

(b) Repealed.

(c) Whenever the division of labor is referred to or designated by any contract or other document in connection with the duties and functions transferred to the division of workers' compensation, such reference or designation shall be deemed to apply to the division of workers' compensation. All contracts entered into by the said division of labor prior to July 1, 1991, in connection with the duties and functions transferred to the division of workers' compensation are hereby validated, with the division of workers' compensation succeeding to all the rights and obligations of such contracts. Any appropriations of funds from prior fiscal years open to satisfy obligations incurred under such contracts are hereby transferred and appropriated to the division of workers' compensation for the payment of such obligations.

(d) (I) Repealed.

(II) Commencing in the 1992 legislative session and at least every four years thereafter, the general assembly shall provide for the conduct of a performance review by the state auditor of the administrative law judges in the office of administrative courts who hear cases under articles 40 to 47 of this title. The review shall include, but not be limited to, the following topics: The time elapsed from the date of hearing until decisions are rendered by the administrative law judges; the time elapsed from the point at which the file is complete and the case is ready for order until the decision is rendered by the administrative law judges; the number of decisions that are reversed upon appeal to the industrial claim appeals panel and to the court of appeals respectively; the workload or number of cases assigned to each administrative law judge; and the public perception of the quality of the performance of the office of administrative courts with respect to matters arising under the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado".

(4) Repealed.

(5) On and after July 1, 1991, when any provision of articles 40 to 47 of this title refers to the division of labor said law shall be construed as referring to the division of workers' compensation.

(6) The revisor of statutes is authorized to change all references to the director of the division of labor, and the division of labor in articles 14.5 and 40 to 47 of this title to refer to the director of the division of workers' compensation and the division of workers' compensation.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. (1) Since § 8-47-101 is similar to § 8-40-102 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of this title, a relevant case construing that provision has been included in the annotations to this section.

(2) Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the 1969 amendment which vested the director of the division of labor with enforcement powers previously exercised by the industrial commission.

Claims asserted against the state attorney general must be dismissed where the ground for the claim is that she is charged under Colorado law with enforcing Colorado's statutory provisions governing the business of insurance, including the enforcement of workers' compensation statutes, when in fact she is not responsible for enforcing either insurance or workers' compensation laws and may become involved in prosecuting related matters only at the request of the commissioner of insurance or the director of workers' compensation. Fuller v. Norton, 881 F. Supp. 468 (D. Colo. 1995).

8-47-102. Director to enforce orders. If any person fails or refuses to comply with an order of the director, or to obey any subpoena issued by the director or agents of the division, or to furnish the statistics, data, and information required to be furnished to the division by the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title, or refuses to permit an inspection as provided in said articles, or being in attendance refuses to be sworn or examined, or to answer a question, or to produce a book or paper when ordered to do so by the director or any of the deputies, agents, or referees of the division, the director may apply to the district court, upon proof by affidavit of the facts, for an order, returnable in not less than three days nor more than five days, directing such person to show cause before the district court which made the order why such person should not be committed to jail. Upon the return of such order, the district court shall examine under oath such person and give the person an opportunity to be heard. If the court determines that the person has refused without legal excuse in any one of the foregoing matters, it may commit the offender to jail forthwith by warrant, there to remain until the person submits to do the act which said person was required to do or until said person is discharged according to law.

Despite conflict in evidence, director's award proper. Where claimant testified that he worked for an individual employer, and thereafter on cross-examination stated that he and his fellow employees worked for another employer, there being no explanation of the apparent conflict, the industrial commission is within its rights as a fact-finder, in holding, under the evidence before it, that claimant was employed by the individual defendant, and its award of compensation is proper. Indus. Comm'n v. Montgomery, 95 Colo. 467, 37 P.2d 532 (1934).

8-47-105. Deposit on unpaid compensation or benefits - trust fund - surplus.

(1) The director has the discretion, at any time, any provisions in articles 40 to 47 of this title to the contrary notwithstanding, to compute and require to be paid to the division, to be held by it in trust, an amount equal to the present value of all unpaid compensation or other benefits in any case computed at the rate of four percent per annum. Such action may be taken after a finding by the director as to the insolvency, the threatened insolvency, or any other condition or danger which may cause the loss of, or which has delayed or may impede, hinder, or delay prompt payment of, compensation or benefits by any insurance carrier or employer. The action and finding of the director shall not be subject to review, and the director shall not be required to give any notice of hearing or hold any hearing prior to taking such action or making such finding.

(2) All moneys so paid in shall constitute a separate trust fund in the office of the state treasurer, and, after any such payment is so ordered, the employer or insurance carrier shall thereupon be discharged from any further liability under such award for which payment is made to the extent of the payment made, and the payment of the award shall then be assumed to the extent of payment made by the special trust fund so created. If, for any reason, a beneficiary's right to the compensation awarded and ordered paid into said special trust fund ceases, lapses, or in any manner terminates by virtue of the terms and provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title so that a surplus not surviving or accruing to any other beneficiary remains in said trust fund of the amount ordered paid into it on behalf of the beneficiary, the insurance carrier or employer who has made said payment shall be entitled to a refund of the present value of said surplus, if any, computed at the rate of four percent per annum. The state treasurer shall invest any portion of the special trust fund, including its surplus and reserves, which the director determines is not needed for immediate use.

8-47-106. State average weekly wage - method of computation. The state average weekly wage shall be established by the director annually on or before July 1 of each year. The state average weekly wage shall be determined from the average weekly earnings referenced in section 8-73-102 (1), computed by the division in June on the basis of the most recent available figures, and applicable to the ensuing twelve months beginning July 1. Such state average weekly wage shall automatically form the basis for establishing maximum benefits under the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado" as of 12:01 a.m., July 1, 1974, and at each succeeding time and date annually thereafter.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. Since § 8-47-106 is similar to § 8-46-113 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of this title, a relevant case construing that provision has been included in the annotations to this section.

As applied, this section is not unconstitutionally vague. Although the statute does not specify whether it applies to injuries occurring in the ensuing 12 months or to benefits payable in the ensuing 12 months, case law has long established that the parties' rights and liabilities under the Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado, article 40 through 47 of this title, are established at the time of injury. Simpson v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 219 P.3d 354 (Colo. App. 2009), rev'd on other grounds, 232 P.3d 777 (Colo. 2010).

Nor is the right to equal protection violated by this section. Simpson v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 219 P.3d 354 (Colo. App. 2009), rev'd on other grounds, 232 P.3d 777 (Colo. 2010).

Under this section, workers' compensation claimants are not entitled to yearly adjustments in benefits based on the change in the state average weekly wage (AWW) each year. The Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado contains no provision mandating such annual recalculations. To construe this section otherwise would effectively thwart the Act's stated goals of providing certainty to claimants, insurers, and employers alike by permitting unpredictable increases or decreases in benefits. Simpson v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 219 P.3d 354 (Colo. App. 2009) (decided prior to 2010 amendment of § 8-42-107.5), rev'd on other grounds, 232 P.3d 777 (Colo. 2010).

Applied in Bellendir v. Kezer, 648 P.2d 645 (Colo. 1982).

8-47-107. Adoption of rules. The director has the power to adopt reasonable and proper rules relative to the administration of articles 40 to 47 of this title and proper rules to govern proceedings and hearings of the division, and the director has the discretion to amend the rules from time to time. No such rule shall limit the jurisdiction of an administrative law judge in the office of administrative courts to hear and decide all matters arising under articles 40 to 47 of this title; except that in any matter where the director has issued an order to enforce a provision of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", an administrative law judge in the office of administrative courts shall not hear and decide the same matter while it is pending before the director. The rules shall be promulgated in accordance with section 24-4-103, C.R.S.

Annotator's note. (1) Since § 8-47-107 is similar to § 8-46-108 as it existed prior to the 1990 repeal and reenactment of the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of this title, relevant cases construing that provision have been included in the annotations to this section.

A rule of the industrial commission, not pleaded, and which does not appear in the record, should not be considered by the court in an action to set aside an award of the commission. Indus. Comm'n v. Roper, 91 Colo. 125, 12 P.2d 349 (1932).

Commission has power to enforce its own rules and regulations by the imposition of appropriate sanctions. Saxton v. Indus. Comm'n, 41 Colo. App. 309, 584 P.2d 638 (1978).

Duty of public officers and employees to enforce. This section continues to make a disinction between public employees and employers on the one hand and private employees and employers on the other, for it makes it the duty of all officers and employees of the state, counties and municipalities, upon the request of the director, to enforce director's orders and from time to time to furnish him various types of information. *State Comp. 8-47-111. Division efforts to ensure employer compliance with workers' compensation coverage requirements - legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly finds, determines, and declares that it is in the best interests of the public to assure that all employers who fall under the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title have in effect current policies of insurance or self-insurance for workers' compensation liability.

(2) In order to implement the declaration in subsection (1) of this section, the division shall develop a procedure for verifying whether or not all employers doing business in the state of Colorado comply with the requirements of article 44 of this title. Editor's note: This section is similar to former § 8-45-103 as it existed prior to 1990.

8-47-203. Access to files, records, and orders. (1) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 8-47-202, the filing of a claim for compensation is deemed to be a limited waiver of the doctor-patient privilege to persons who are necessary to resolve the claim. Access to claim files maintained by the division will be permitted only as follows:

(a) Workers' compensation claim files shall be available for inspection upon request by the parties to the claim, including the claimant, the employer, and the insurer or their attorneys or other designated representatives. The parties to a claim may review other claim files relating to the said claimant.

(b) Persons who are not parties to a claim, or their attorneys or designated representatives, and who wish to inspect or obtain information from claim files may submit a request to inspect a particular file, stating the purpose for such inspection. The director may disallow such requests if the purpose of the inspection is to further commercial interests or to disseminate information to nonparties. Any such request shall be considered and determined by the division within seventy-two hours.

(c) (I) The director may permit access to other governmental entities only as required for the performance of their official duties and only if those official duties relate to enforcement of provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title; except that the department of

As used in this subparagraph (I), "enforcement" includes duties of governmental entities involved in the administration of the provisions of articles 40 to 47 of this title or if such duties relate to the enforcement of child support under section 26-13-122, C.R.S. This provision is not intended to restrict the rights of persons otherwise provided for in articles 40 to 47 of this title to inspect and copy files.

(II) The general assembly intends that any contract, agreement, or any other means to transfer information between the department of labor and employment and any other governmental entity related to access to claim files in effect prior to May 27, 1997, shall be conformed to the provisions of this paragraph (c), as amended, or terminated as authorized by law.

(d) Persons entitled to review claim files may obtain copies upon payment of the fee set by the division. Such persons shall not disseminate information contained in those files except as required to resolve the claim, or as permitted by the director, or as permitted by law.

(e) Claimants may waive the protection of this statute by executing a waiver for the release of information. The waiver must be dated and will be effective for ninety days thereafter.

(2) All orders entered by the director or an administrative law judge pursuant to articles 40 to 47 of this title shall be made available by the division for inspection or copying for a fee reflecting actual costs; except that the name and other identifying information concerning the claimant and employer shall be excised.

Upon receipt of such information, it shall be the responsibility of the bureau to provide appropriate law enforcement agencies with location information obtained from the division. 8-55-101. Workers' compensation classification appeals board - creation.

(1) There is hereby created, in the division of insurance in the department of regulatory agencies, the workers' compensation classification appeals board. The board shall hear grievances brought by employers against insurers and Pinnacol Assurance concerning the calculation of experience modification factors and classification assignment decisions. The board shall consist of five voting members, each of whom shall be knowledgeable about workers' compensation classification and experience modification factors, and one nonvoting member, as follows:

(a) Two members shall be either salaried employees of an insurance company that issues workers' compensation insurance policies in this state or representatives of Pinnacol Assurance. Such two members shall not both represent Pinnacol Assurance or the same insurance company. In addition, one person shall be selected to serve as an alternate member to represent the interests of the insurance industry or Pinnacol Assurance. The alternate shall represent such interests in the event the primary member recuses himself or herself.

(b) One member, who shall be a nonvoting member, shall be an employee of a workers' compensation rating organization functioning under the provisions of section 10-4-408, C.R.S. The workers' compensation rating organization shall serve as a technical resource for the board.

(c) Three members shall represent private employers. Each private employer member shall be knowledgeable with respect to workers' compensation insurance, rules, and classifications, and shall be familiar with the business environment and community in this state. No private employer member shall be an employee of an insurance company, insurance broker, insurance agent, law firm, actuary, Pinnacol Assurance, or any association of such entities or persons. All private employer board memberships shall be held in the name of an individual. At least one private employer member shall represent the construction industry.

(2) The private employer members and the members representing insurers and Pinnacol Assurance shall be appointed by the commissioner of insurance. The workers' compensation rating organization representative shall be appointed by the chief executive officer of such organization or by another officer designated to make such appointment. The commissioner may solicit a list of nominees from any interested party before making such appointments. The commissioner shall immediately notify the workers' compensation rating organization concerning the identity of any appointees.

(3) Each member shall serve one three-year term, and, in addition:

(b) A private employer member or member representing the insurance industry or Pinnacol Assurance may serve a second consecutive three-year term; and

(c) The member representing the workers' compensation rating organization may be reappointed without limitation.

(4) Any vacancy on the board shall be filled for the unexpired term in the same manner as the original appointment. The member appointed to fill such vacancy shall be from the same category described in subsection (1) of this section as the member vacating the position.

(5) Members of the board shall serve without compensation, but their reasonable expenses incurred when performing their duties as board members shall be reimbursed from the workers' compensation cash fund created in section 8-44-112 (7). Such expenses shall be limited to travel, food, and lodging expenses.

(6) Members of the board, in their capacity as members, shall be immune from liability in all claims for injury that lie in tort or could lie in tort, regardless of whether that may be the type of action or the form of relief chosen by the claimant.

8-55-102. Right to appeal - notice of appeal procedures. An employer may appeal to the workers' compensation classification appeals board any issue concerning the calculation of experience modification factors and classification assignment decisions under the workers' compensation laws of this state by filing written notice with said board within thirty days after the employer has exhausted all appeal review procedures provided by the insurance company. Every insurance carrier authorized to transact business in this state, including Pinnacol Assurance, shall provide employers with a written copy or summary of their appeal procedures, together with a written notice of the availability of an appeal under this article, at the beginning of each policy year and when notice is provided to the employer of a change in experience modification factors or job classification.

8-55-103. Hearings - conflicts of interest. (1) The board shall commence each term on January 1 of each year and shall terminate each term on December 31.

(2) At the beginning of each term the board shall either in person or by teleconference:

(a) Elect a chair who shall be responsible for conducting each hearing;

(b) Appoint the member representing the workers' compensation rating organization as secretary; and

(c) Establish such organizational and procedural rules as are deemed necessary.

(3) The board shall meet as needed and in accordance with the following:

(a) The board shall schedule a hearing within thirty days after receipt of an appeal.

(b) The board shall provide written notice of a hearing to the appellant, the insurer, and the workers' compensation rating organization within thirty days after receipt of an appeal, but not less than ten days before the hearing.

(c) A hearing shall be conducted only if a quorum of the board is present, either in person or by teleconference. A quorum shall consist of a simple majority of the voting members, including at least two private sector members.

(d) Any decision of the board shall be by majority vote of the voting members who are present at the hearing.

(e) A member's vote shall be cast only by such member.

(f) If a board member has a conflict of interest with respect to any matter scheduled for hearing before the board, such member shall recuse himself or herself from any discussion and decisions on said matter unless, after full disclosure of the facts giving rise to such conflict, all parties to the appeal agree to waive such conflict. For purposes of this paragraph (f), a member shall be deemed to have a conflict of interest if such member:

(I) Has a conflict that would call into question such member's ability to render an unbiased decision; and

(II) Is associated with either party to the appeal. A member is "associated" with a party to an appeal if:

(A) The member and the party to the appeal are involved in a common business enterprise or are members of a controlled group, as defined in section 1563(a) of the federal "Internal Revenue Code of 1986", as amended; or

(B) The member has a familial relationship with the party to the appeal.

(g) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (f) of this subsection (3), the member representing the workers' compensation rating organization shall not be deemed to have a conflict of interest with respect to any appeal based solely on his or her affiliation with his or her organization.

(4) The secretary of the board shall carry out the administrative functions of the board and shall be responsible for providing notice of, preparing the agenda for, and arranging the facilities for each hearing and meeting. The secretary shall also prepare a memorandum after each hearing that includes the vote of the board. Such memoranda shall be signed by the chair of the board and, each month, the secretary shall deliver copies of that month's memoranda to the workers' compensation rating organization.

An employer may hold disputed premium amounts in abeyance from the date an appeal is filed pursuant to section 8-55-102 until the later of:

(a) The date a final decision is made by the board concerning such appeal; or

(b) The date of any written decision of the commissioner of insurance issued pursuant to subsection (3) of this section.

(2) Each employer, insurance company, or Pinnacol Assurance, as the case may be, shall be advised of the right to appeal to the office of the commissioner of insurance.

(3) An employer, insurance company, or Pinnacol Assurance shall provide written notice of an appeal to the commissioner of insurance within thirty days after the date of the board's decision. The commissioner shall review any decision of the board properly appealed pursuant to this section and shall provide a written decision within thirty days after the request for such review.

8-70-102. Legislative declaration. As a guide to the interpretation and application of this article, the public policy of this state is declared to be as follows: Economic insecurity due to unemployment is a serious menace to the health, morals, and welfare of the people of this state. Involuntary unemployment is therefore a subject of general interest and concern which requires appropriate action by the general assembly to prevent its spread and to lighten its burden which now so often falls with crushing force upon the unemployed worker and his family. The achievement of social security requires protection against this greatest hazard of our economic life. This can be provided by encouraging employers to provide more stable employment and by the systematic accumulation of funds during periods of employment to provide benefits for periods of unemployment, thus maintaining purchasing power and limiting the serious social consequences of poor relief assistance. The general assembly, therefore, declares that in its considered judgment the public good and the general welfare of the citizens of this state require the enactment of this measure, under the police powers of the state, for the compulsory setting aside of unemployment reserves to be used for the benefit of persons unemployed through no fault of their own.

Purpose of employment security act, as stated in this section, is subverted by § 8-73-108(4)(f)(I) which reads "but a job shall not ... control notwithstanding", because this provision makes an invidious distinction between (1) those who obtain a better job which terminates prior to 90 days because of lack of work with no fault of their own and (2) those who obtain a better job which terminates prior to 90 days because of some other factor other than lack of work with no fault of their own, and such a distinction involves an unconstitutional over classification forbidden by the fourteenth amendment of the United States constitution. Spann v. Indus. Comm'n, 181 Colo. 153, 508 P.2d 385 (1973).

Act is independent of federal social security act. This act has an independent basis, and the federal social security act does not place any limitations upon the courts' interpretation or the guide of interpretation contained in the act itself. Indus. Comm'n v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co., 103 Colo. 550, 88 P.2d 560 (1939).

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For note, "Rural Property and the Law in Southern Colorado", see 47 Den. L.J. 82 (1970). For article, "The Employer's Fruitless Quest For Independent Contractor Status," see 21 Colo. Law. 459 (1992).

Annotator's note. Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the enactment of 1986 Senate Bill No. 12 which abolished said commission and transferred its powers, duties, and functions under the act to the division of employment and training.

Under this section, the industrial commission determines the coverage under the act. Each case must be decided upon its own facts, and where these are in dispute the finding of the commission is final. Equitable Life Ins. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 105 Colo. 144, 95 P.2d 4 (1939).

Interested party. Absent allegation or evidence that department of labor and employment was aggrieved by decision of industrial commission, division of employment and department of labor and employment were not proper parties to bring the appeal from decision of industrial commission denying an award of unemployment compensation. Division of Emp. ex rel. Sanchez v. Colo. Indus. Comm'n, 31 Colo. App. 259, 500 P.2d 1192 (1972).

Benefits not indicative of employee's unemployment status. Employee benefits such as medical, life, sickness, and accident insurance and pension contributions provided by the employer are not indicative of an employee's unemployment status under this section. Denver Post, Inc. v. Dept. of Labor & Emp., 199 Colo. 466, 610 P.2d 1075 (1980).

To determine whether there is single employing unit or a transfer of the claimant's employment, evidence indicating a common ownership must be considered by the commission. Giacopelli v. Indus. Comm'n, 622 P.2d 111 (Colo. App. 1980).

No unemployment if working desired hours. Where a claimant testified in substance that he could work as many hours as he desired, he was neither totally nor partially unemployed within the meaning of this section, even though his efforts failed to produce any commissions and he received no salary or wages. Trujillo v. Indus. Comm'n, 42 Colo. App. 401, 594 P.2d 1065 (1979).

To qualify as unemployed under the statutory definition of an unemployed person two conditions must co-exist, namely, no service must be performed during the week and no wages are payable to him with respect to services performed in that week. Indus. Comm'n v. Sirokman, 134 Colo. 481, 306 P.2d 669 (1957).

Question of whether claimant is unemployed is a purely mathematical inquiry: If he performs no services and receives no compensation, then he is totally unemployed; if he does receive compensation, but in an amount less than the amount of benefits he could recover if totally unemployed, then he is still unemployed, though only partially. Trujillo v. Indus. Comm'n, 42 Colo. App. 401, 594 P.2d 1065 (1979).

Where claimants deemed partially unemployed. Because the claimants for unemployment compensation benefits continued to receive employee benefits during the periods for which they now claim unemployment compensation, the claimants were partially unemployed within the meaning of this section. Denver Post, Inc. v. Dept. of Labor & Emp., 199 Colo. 466, 610 P.2d 1075 (1980).

Person unemployed within meaning of section. A person whose employment is terminated by reason of closing of the department in which she is employed, and who receives a separation allowance pursuant to a union contract based upon the period of service, is an unemployed person within the meaning of this section, since no service was performed during the week for which compensation is claimed and no wages were payable to her for service performed in that week. Indus. Comm'n v. Sirokman, 134 Colo. 481, 306 P.2d 669 (1957).

Claimant was not "employed" within the meaning of the unemployment compensation act by virtue of her leave of absence agreement since that agreement created no rights in claimant inasmuch as she was not guaranteed reemployment and the leave could be cancelled at any time for activities the company deemed "prejudicial" to it. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Dept. of Labor & Emp., 38 Colo. App. 298, 559 P.2d 252 (1976).

Subsection (21) requires two-step analysis in determining employment status of claimant: Whether the claimant performed services and received compensation in any particular week; and whether the claimant was "totally separated" from his regular employer during the established payroll period. Denver Post, Inc. v. Dept. of Labor & Emp., 199 Colo. 466, 610 P.2d 1075 (1980).

An individual who is otherwise totally unemployed but is not totally separated from his regular employer shall be deemed "partially unemployed" and subject to regulations governing partial unemployment. Bartholomay v. Indus. Comm'n, 642 P.2d 50 (Colo. App. 1982).

Performance of minimal services does not entitle one to benefits as employee. Where a claimant performed at least minimal services designed to benefit a corporation while serving as president of the corporation, he was not entitled to benefits as an employee. Dailey v. Division of Emp., 30 Colo. App. 38, 488 P.2d 243 (1971) (decided under § 82-1-3 (21), C.R.S. 1963, defining "employee" prior to 1971 amendment).

Determination of whether one is acting for the benefit or at the command of another is generally one of fact for the commission. Weld County Kirby Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 676 P.2d 1253 (Colo. App. 1983).

Applied in Yanish v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 492, 558 P.2d 1007 (1976); Herrera v. Indus. Comm'n, 197 Colo. 23, 593 P.2d 329 (1979); Auto Damage Appraisers, Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 666 P.2d 1113 (Colo. App. 1983); Mountain's Shadow Inn, Inc. v. Colo. Dept. of Labor & Emp., 672 P.2d 522 (Colo. 1983); Diamond Circle Corp. v. Blocher, 691 P.2d 769 (Colo. App. 1984).

In the event that Title IX of the federal "Social Security Act" or any amendments to the federal act are amended or repealed by congress or are held unconstitutional by the supreme court of the United States, with the result that no portion of the premiums required under articles 70 to 74 and 76 to 81 of this title may be credited against the tax imposed by Title IX of the federal "Social Security Act", the division shall requisition from the unemployment trust fund all moneys in the trust fund standing to the credit of the state of Colorado, and such moneys, together with any other moneys in the unemployment compensation fund, shall be refunded to the contributors proportionate to their unexpended balances in the fund.

8-70-109. Agricultural labor. (1) "Agricultural labor" means any remunerated service performed:

(a) On a farm in the employ of any person, in connection with cultivating the soil, or in connection with raising or harvesting any agricultural or horticultural commodity, including the raising, shearing, feeding, caring for, training, and management of livestock, bees, poultry, and fur-bearing animals and wildlife;

(b) In the employ of the owner, tenant, or other operator of a farm, in connection with the operation, management, conservation, improvement, or maintenance of such farm and its tools and equipment, or in salvaging timber or clearing land of brush and other debris left by an act of nature, if the major part of the service is performed on a farm;

(c) In connection with the production or harvesting of any commodity defined as an agricultural commodity in section 15 (g) of the "Agricultural Marketing Act", as amended (46 Stat. 1550, sec. 3; 12 U.S.C. section 1141j), or in connection with the operation or maintenance of ditches, canals, reservoirs, or waterways, not owned or operated for profit, used exclusively for supplying and storing water for farming purposes;

(d) In the employ of the operator of a farm in handling, planting, drying, packing, packaging, processing, freezing, grading, storing, or delivering to storage or to market or to a carrier for transportation to market, in its unmanufactured state, any agricultural or horticultural commodity, but only if such operator produced more than one-half of the commodity with respect to which the service is performed; except that the provisions of this paragraph (d) are not applicable with respect to service performed in connection with commercial canning or commercial freezing or in connection with any agricultural or horticultural commodity after its delivery to a terminal market for distribution for consumption;

(e) In the employ of a group of operators of farms (or a cooperative organization of which such operators are members) in the performance of service described in paragraph (d) of this subsection (1), but only if such operators produced more than one-half of the commodity with respect to which the service is performed; except that the provisions of this paragraph (e) are not applicable with respect to service performed in connection with commercial canning or commercial freezing or in connection with any agricultural or horticultural commodity after its delivery to a terminal market for distribution for consumption; or

(f) On a farm operated for profit if the service is not in the course of the employer's trade.

(2) As used in this section, the term "farm" includes stock, dairy, poultry, fruit, fur-bearing animal, and truck farms, plantations, ranches, nurseries, ranges, greenhouses, or other similar structures used primarily for the raising of agricultural or horticultural commodities and orchards.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. Since the substantive provisions of this section are identical to former § 8-70-103 (10)(f.3), relevant cases construing that provision have been included under this section.

Activities not constituting agriculture within meaning of act. The growing of mushrooms in confined areas under cover does not come within the classification of "agriculture" so as to exempt persons engaged in such business and their employees from the operation of the provisions of this and following section, concerning unemployment compensation. Great W. Mushroom Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 103 Colo. 39, 82 P.2d 751 (1938); Park Floral Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 104 Colo. 350, 91 P.2d 492 (1939).

The business of harvesting living native trees on private ranchland or on public land was not done "on a farm". McFarland v. Indus. Comm'n, 723 P.2d 154 (Colo. App. 1986).

The word "exclusively" pertaining to supplying and storing water for farming purposes means without any exception or solely, and therefore, reservoir company which allowed for recreational use of water did not meet requirements for exemption as agricultural labor. Cache La Poudre Reservoir Co., v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 757 P.2d 173 (Colo. App. 1988).

Phrase "used exclusively", for purposes of agricultural labor exemption, applies to all uses of the water and not just consumptive uses. Cache La Poudre Reservoir Co., v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 757 P.2d 173 (Colo. App. 1988).

8-70-111. Benefit year - definitions. (1) "Benefit year" means the period of fifty-two consecutive calendar weeks beginning with the first week of a claims series established by the filing of a valid initial claim; except that the benefit year shall be fifty-three weeks if filing a new valid claim would result in overlapping any quarter of the base year of a previously filed new claim.

(2) As used in this section:

(a) A "valid initial claim" means an application for the determination of benefit rights which includes the claimant's social security number and which establishes that the claimant has met the eligibility condition set forth in section 8-73-107 (1) (e).

(b) A calendar week shall be deemed to be entirely within that calendar quarter which contains the first day of such week.

8-70-112. Claims - classifications. (1) Claims are divided into classifications, as follows:

- (a) Initial claim, which establishes a benefit year and is valid as defined in section 8-70-111 (2) (a); or
- (b) Additional claim, which reopens a claim series within an existing benefit year after a second or subsequent period of unemployment; or
- (c) Reopened claim, which reopens a claim within an existing benefit year when there has been no intervening employment since the last claim for a week of unemployment.

8-70-113. Employer - definition. (1) "Employer" means:

(a) (I) Any employing unit that, after December 31, 1985, and prior to January 1, 1999, had in employment at least one individual performing services at any time; except that this paragraph (a) shall not apply to employing units for which service in employment, as defined in sections 8-70-118 to 8-70-121, is performed.

(II) Any employing unit that, after December 31, 1998:

(A) Paid wages of one thousand five hundred dollars or more during any calendar quarter in the calendar year or the preceding calendar year; or

(B) Employed at least one individual in employment for some portion of the day on each of twenty days during the calendar year or during the preceding calendar year, each day being in a different calendar week.

(III) After December 31, 1998, this paragraph (a) shall not apply to employing units for which service in employment, as defined in sections 8-70-118 to 8-70-121, is performed.

(IV) For purposes of this paragraph (a), employment shall include service that would constitute employment but for the fact that such service is deemed to be performed entirely within another state pursuant to an arrangement entered into in accordance with section 8-72-110 (3) by the division and an agency charged with the administration of any other state or federal unemployment compensation law.

(V) For the purposes of this paragraph (a), if any calendar week includes both December 31 and January 1, the days of that week up to January 1 shall be deemed one calendar week and the days beginning January 1 another such week.

(b) Any employing unit for which service in employment as defined in section 8-70-118 is performed after December 31, 1971, except as provided in subsections (2) and (3) of this section. For purposes of this paragraph (b), employment shall include service which would constitute employment but for the fact that such service is deemed to be performed entirely within another state pursuant to an arrangement entered into in accordance with section 8-72-110 (3) by the division and an agency charged with the administration of any other state or federal unemployment compensation law.

(c) Any employing unit for which service in employment as defined in section 8-70-119 is performed, except as provided in subsections (2) and (3) of this section;

(d) Any employing unit for which agricultural labor as defined in section 8-70-109 is performed and is defined as employment in section 8-70-120;

(e) Any employing unit for which domestic service in employment as defined in section 8-70-121 is performed;

(f) Any employing unit (whether or not an employing unit at the time of acquisition) which acquired the organization, trade, or business, or substantially all of the assets of an employer subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title, or which acquired a part of the organization, trade, or business of an employer subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title, if such part would have been an employer under this section had it constituted the entire organization, trade, or business;

(g) Any employing unit that is not defined as an employer under this section but for which, within either the current or the preceding calendar year, service is or was performed with respect to which such employing unit is liable for any federal tax against which credit may be taken for premiums required to be paid into a state unemployment fund;

(h) Any employing unit that, as a condition for approval of articles 70 to 82 of this title for full credit against the tax imposed by the "Federal Unemployment Tax Act" for premiums paid, is required, pursuant to such act, to be an employer under articles 70 to 82 of this title;

(i) Any employing unit which, having become an employer under paragraphs (a) to (h) of this subsection (1), has not under section 8-76-106, ceased to be an employer subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title;

(j) For the effective period of its election pursuant to section 8-76-107, any employing unit which has become subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title; or

(k) Any Indian tribe for which service in employment as defined under section 8-70-125.5 is performed.

(2) In determining whether or not an employing unit for which service other than agricultural labor is also performed is an employer under paragraphs (b) and (e) of subsection (1) of this section, the wages earned or the employment of an employee performing service in agricultural labor after December 31, 1977, shall not be taken into account. If an employing unit is determined to be an employer of agricultural labor, such employing unit shall be determined to be an employer for the purposes of paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of this section.

(3) In determining whether or not an employing unit for which service other than domestic service is also performed is an employer under paragraph (b), (c), or (d) of subsection (1) of this section, the wages earned or the employment of an employee performing domestic service after December 31, 1977, shall not be taken into account.

8-70-114. Employing unit - definitions - rules - employee leasing company certification fund - repeal. (1) "Employing unit" means any individual or type of organization, including any partnership, limited liability partnership, limited liability company, limited liability limited partnership, association, trust, estate, joint stock company, insurance company, or corporation, whether domestic or foreign, or the receiver, trustee in bankruptcy, trustee or successor thereof, or legal representative of a deceased person, who employs one or more individuals performing services within this state. All individuals performing services within this state for any employing unit that maintains two or more separate establishments within this state shall be deemed to be employed by a single employing unit for all the purposes of articles 70 to 82 of this title. Each individual employed to perform or to assist in performing the work of any agent or employee of an employing unit shall be deemed to be employed by such employing unit for all the purposes of articles 70 to 82 of this title, whether such individual was hired or paid directly by such employing unit or by the agent or employee if the employing unit had actual or constructive knowledge of the work. Nothing in this section shall be construed to mean that a common paymaster may be considered a single employing unit for purposes of considering the services performed by another employing unit subject to a single or common payroll.

(2) (a) For purposes of this section:

(I) "Coemployer" means either an employee leasing company or a work-site employer.

(II) "Coemployment relationship" means a relationship that is intended to be an ongoing relationship rather than a temporary or project specific one, wherein the rights, duties, and obligations of an employer that arise out of an employment relationship have been allocated between coemployers pursuant to an employee leasing company contract and this section. In a coemployment relationship:

(A) The employee leasing company is entitled to enforce only such employer rights and is subject to only those obligations specifically allocated to the employee leasing company by the employee leasing company contract and this section;

(B) The work-site employer may enforce those rights and shall provide and perform those employer obligations allocated to the work-site employer by the employee leasing company contract and this section; and

(C) The work-site employer may enforce any right and shall perform any obligation of an employer not specifically allocated to the employee leasing company by the employee leasing company contract or this section.

(III) (A) "Covered employee" or "work-site employee" means an individual who is in an employment relationship with both an employee leasing company and a work-site employer and has received written notice of the coemployment with the employee leasing company.

(B) The provisions of sub-subparagraph (A) of this subparagraph (III) relate solely to the employee leasing contract and not to any contract for workers' compensation insurance or entitlement to workers' compensation benefits.

(IV) "Department" means the department of labor and employment.

(V) "Employee leasing company" means any person, business, or other entity that provides services to a work-site employer, as defined in subparagraph (VII) of this paragraph (a), pursuant to an employee leasing company contract, as defined in subparagraph (VI) of this paragraph (a).

(VI) "Employee leasing company contract" means any written staff leasing contract, extended employee staffing or supply contract, or other contract under which an employee leasing company procures or receives from a work-site employer specified coemployer responsibilities for specified employees, designating itself as employer of such employees, and retaining the right of direction and control of such employees with regard to those employer responsibilities, including the rights and responsibilities set forth in paragraph (b) of this subsection (2). An employee leasing company may have other responsibilities pursuant to an employee leasing company contract, including provision of professional guidance with regard to employment matters.

(VII) "Work-site employer" means any person, business, or other entity that procures the services of an employee leasing company under an employee leasing company contract and otherwise retains direction and control of the employees specified in the contract regarding responsibilities not specified in the contract pertaining to the business of the work-site employer.

(b) Notwithstanding subsection (1) of this section, an employee leasing company shall be considered an employing unit or the coemployer of a work-site employer's employees if, pursuant to an employee leasing company contract with the work-site employer, it has the following rights and responsibilities:

(I) The employee leasing company, as the employing unit or the co-employer, assigns employees to the work-site employer's locations;

(II) The employee leasing company, as the employing unit or co-employer, retains the right to set the employees' rate of pay;

(III) The employee leasing company, as the employing unit or co-employer, retains the right to pay the employee from its own account or accounts;

(IV) The employee leasing company, as the employing unit or co-employer, retains the right to direct and control the employees and such rights and responsibilities may be shared as specified in the employee leasing company contract;

(V) The employee leasing company, as the employing unit or co-employer, has the right to discharge, reassign, or hire employees to perform services for the work-site employer and the employee leasing company;

(VI) The employee leasing company, as the employing unit or co-employer, has the responsibility for payment of wages to the workers pursuant to the employee leasing company contract. The employee leasing company, as the employing unit or co-employer, has responsibility for reporting, withholding, and paying any applicable taxes and premiums with respect to the employee's wages or payment of sponsored employee benefit plans pursuant to the employee leasing company contract.

(VII) (A) Each employee leasing company shall pay wages and collect, report, and pay all payroll-related taxes and premiums from its own accounts for all covered employees. Each employee leasing company shall be responsible for the payment of unemployment compensation insurance premiums and provide, maintain, and secure all records and documents required of work-site employers under the unemployment insurance laws of this state for covered employees.

(B) No later than the end of the calendar quarter immediately following August 5, 2009, each employee leasing company shall notify the division of unemployment insurance as to whether the employee leasing company elects to report and pay unemployment insurance premiums as the employing unit under its own unemployment accounts and premium rates or whether it elects to report unemployment premiums attributable to covered employees under the respective unemployment accounts and premium rates for each work-site employer. Under either election, the employee leasing company shall have the responsibility for unemployment compensation insurance as required of an employer pursuant to the "Colorado Employment Security Act", articles 70 to 82 of this title. If the employee leasing company fails to make an election, the employee leasing company shall report unemployment premiums attributable to covered employees under the respective unemployment accounts and premium rates for each work-site employer.

(C) The election made in sub-subparagraph (B) of this subparagraph (VII) shall be binding on all employers and the employing unit's related enterprises, subsidiaries, or other entities that share common ownership management or control with the employee leasing company. Employee leasing companies electing to report and pay unemployment insurance as the employing unit under its own unemployment accounts and premium rates following August 5, 2009, are permitted to change the election one time after the initial election to report unemployment premiums attributable to covered employees under the respective unemployment accounts of each work-site employer by notifying the division no later than the end of the current calendar quarter. An employee leasing company's election to pay unemployment premiums under the respective unemployment accounts and premium rates of the work-site employer is final and may not be reversed.

(VIII) An employee leasing company, as the employing unit or coemployer, may aggregate all employees for the purpose of sponsoring and administering workers' compensation plans pursuant to article 44 of this title and fully insured health coverage plans, as defined in section 10-16-102 (22.5), C.R.S., employee pension benefit plans, and provision of benefits pursuant to such plans. As employing units or coemployers, employee leasing companies shall be entitled to sponsor fully insured employer plans and offer employee benefits to the full extent afforded employers by law. A health plan sponsored by an employee leasing company with an aggregate of more than fifty employees shall comply with all the provisions of Colorado law that apply to large employer health plans, including consumer and provider protections, mandated benefits, nondiscrimination and fair marketing rules, preexisting limitations, and other required health plan policy provisions, and the carrier underwriting the plan shall be responsible for assuring compliance with this requirement pursuant to section 10-16-214 (5), C.R.S. Notwithstanding any provision of this section to the contrary, any workers' compensation insurance carrier may issue an insurance policy that insures either the employee leasing company or the work-site employer as the employer pursuant to the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of this title. Article 41 of this title shall apply to both the employee leasing company and the work-site employer, regardless of whether the policy is issued to the employee leasing company or the work-site employer. Notwithstanding any provision of this section to the contrary, any insurance carrier may issue an insurance policy that insures the employee leasing company as the employer pursuant to article 16 of title 10, C.R.S. An insurance carrier that issues an insurance policy to an employee leasing company shall be entitled to rely upon a copy of the certification filed by the employee leasing company with the department under paragraph (e) of this subsection (2), if such certification is currently valid, for the purpose of determining whether the leasing company is an "employer" under Colorado law.

(IX) The employee leasing company retains the right to provide for the welfare and benefit of the employees through such programs as professional guidance including, but not limited to, employment training, safety, and compliance matters;

(X) The employee leasing company, as the employing unit or co-employer, has the responsibility for addressing employee complaints, claims, or requests related to employment, except as otherwise provided pursuant to an existing collective bargaining agreement; except that some or all of the rights and responsibilities described in this subparagraph (X) may be shared with the work-site employer;

(XI) The employee leasing company, as the employing unit or co-employer, intends to retain the right to maintain the employment relationship between the employee leasing company and its employees on a long-term, and not temporary, basis;

(XII) The employees of the employee leasing company know of and consent to co-employment by the employee leasing company;

(XIII) The employee leasing company maintains employee records relating to employees of the employee leasing company; and

(XIV) Except as otherwise provided in the employee leasing company contract, the work-site employer has the responsibility for those policies and procedures related to the actual conduct of the work that leads to the work-site employer's conduct of its business and the production of its goods or services.

(c) (Deleted by amendment, L. 97, p. 207, § 2, effective April 8, 1997.)

(d) If an employee leasing company does not meet the requirements of this subsection (2), the work-site employer shall be considered the employing unit.

(e) Each employee leasing company shall maintain and have open for inspection by the department a listing of its work-site employers and their collective employees and shall maintain the records and reports as required by the "Colorado Employment Security Act", as described in articles 70 to 82 of this title. Each employee leasing company shall annually certify with an independent opinion of counsel to the department that it is in compliance with the rights and responsibilities set forth in paragraph (b) of this subsection (2) and that it is offering to all clients in its service agreements those items required in paragraph (b) of this subsection (2). The executive director of the department shall prescribe forms and promulgate rules to promote the efficient administration of this paragraph (e). The department may require employee leasing companies to submit documentation to show compliance with the provisions of paragraph (b) of this subsection (2) and may conduct any necessary review to verify that the employee leasing company is an employing unit or coemployer under this section. Each employee leasing company shall file an annual renewal of its certification on or before June 30 of each year.

(f) Each employee leasing company shall maintain and provide upon request to a carrier, as defined in section 10-16-102 (8), C.R.S., with which the employee leasing company requests a contract, the certification required in paragraph (e) of this subsection (2).

(g) (I) Each employee leasing company operating within this state as of August 5, 2008, shall complete its initial certification not later than sixty days after August 5, 2008. The initial certification shall be valid until the end of the state's first fiscal year that is more than one year after August 5, 2008.

(II) An employee leasing company not operating within this state as of August 5, 2008, shall complete its initial certification prior to commencement of operations within this state.

(III) Each employee leasing company shall annually certify and provide evidence to the department that it meets one of the following criteria to provide securitization of unemployment premiums:

(A) Execute and file a surety bond or deposit with the division money or a letter of credit equivalent to fifty percent of the average annual amount of unemployment premium assessed within the previous calendar year for all covered employees regardless of the election made pursuant to subparagraph (VII) of paragraph (b) of this subsection (2). For a new employee leasing company, the initial bond amount will be the standard premium rate, as determined pursuant to section 8-76-103, multiplied by fifty percent of the estimated projected chargeable payroll for the current calendar year as estimated by the employee leasing company. This sub-subparagraph (A) is repealed, effective December 31 of the calendar year in which the revisor of statutes receives the written report pursuant to section 8-76-102.5 (1) indicating that the fund balance of the unemployment compensation fund on any June 30 is equal to or greater than zero dollars and all advances in accordance with the conditions specified in Title XII of the federal "Social Security Act", as amended, have been repaid.

(A.5) On and after the repeal of sub-subparagraph (A) of this subparagraph (III), execute and file a surety bond or deposit with the division money or a letter of credit equivalent to fifty percent of the average annual amount of unemployment premium assessed within the previous calendar year for all covered employees regardless of the election made pursuant to subparagraph (VII) of paragraph (b) of this subsection (2). For a new employee leasing company, the initial bond amount is the unrated premium rate, as determined pursuant to section 8-76-102.5, multiplied by fifty percent of the estimated projected chargeable payroll for the current calendar year as estimated by the employee leasing company.

(B) Provide the most recent independently audited financial statement prepared by a certified public accountant pursuant to generally accepted accounting principles, which statement may not be older than thirteen months. The audit shall also include items that demonstrate an accounting working capital of not less than one hundred thousand dollars. For the purposes of this sub-subparagraph (B), "working capital" of an employee leasing company means the employee leasing company's current assets minus the employee leasing company's current liabilities as determined by generally accepted accounting principles.

(C) Provide sufficient evidence on an annual basis that it has been accredited by a bonded, independent, and qualified assurance organization approved by the director of the division that provides satisfactory assurance of compliance acceptable to the department.

(IV) The department may, at its discretion, reduce or waive the bonding, money, or letter of credit requirements in sub-subparagraph (A) of subparagraph (III) of this paragraph (g). This waiver or reduction may be reviewed at any time, and in the department's discretion, it may require the employee leasing company to resume compliance with sub-subparagraph (A) of subparagraph (III) of this paragraph (g) or provide evidence of compliance with sub-subparagraph (B) or (C) of subparagraph (III) of this paragraph (g) immediately.

(V) An employee leasing company shall, within fifteen days following any deduction from a money deposit or sale of deposited securities under the provisions of sub-subparagraph (A) of subparagraph (III) of this paragraph (g), deposit sufficient additional moneys or securities to make whole the employee leasing company's deposit at the prior level. Any cash remaining from the department's sale of such securities shall be a part of the employee leasing company's escrow account. The department may, at any time, review the adequacy of the deposit made by any employee leasing company. If, as a result of such review, the department determines that an adjustment is necessary, it shall require the employee leasing company to make an additional deposit within thirty days after receipt of written notice of the department's determination or shall return to the employee leasing company such portion of the deposit as the department no longer considers necessary, whichever action is appropriate.

(VI) Upon filing an annual certification under this section, an employee leasing company shall pay a fee, as determined by rule of the department, not to exceed five hundred dollars. Fees collected pursuant to this section shall be transmitted to the state treasurer, who shall credit the same to the employee leasing company certification fund, referred to in this section as the "fund", which is hereby created in the state treasury. Moneys in the fund shall be subject to annual appropriation by the general assembly for implementation of this section. The moneys in the fund and interest earned on the moneys in the fund shall not revert to the general fund or be transferred to any other fund and shall be exempt from section 24-75-402, C.R.S. No fee charged pursuant to this section shall exceed the amount reasonably necessary for the administration of this section.

(VII) The department shall maintain a list of employee leasing companies that submit certifications required under paragraph (e) of this subsection (2) that is readily available to the public by electronic or other means.

(VIII) All records, reports, and other information obtained from an employee leasing company under this section, except to the extent necessary for the proper administration of this section by the department, shall be held confidential and shall not be published or open to public inspection other than to public employees in the performance of their public duties, pursuant to provisions governing records and reports in this title.

(3) (a) The status of an employee leasing company as the employing unit or a co-employer of a work-site employer's employees shall be revoked by the division if such employee leasing company fails to file the required reports or pay the premiums due under the provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title. The effective date of a revocation shall be the first day of the quarter for which the reports and premiums are due. In the event of a revocation, the work-site employer shall become liable for the reports and premiums due.

(b) The provisions of paragraph (a) of this subsection (3) shall apply if any portion of an employing unit's business activity can be characterized as an employee leasing company, as defined in subsection (2) of this section.

(c) The provisions of paragraph (a) of this subsection (3) shall not apply if an employee leasing company acts as an agent for a work-site employer pursuant to the provisions of subsection (1) of this section, files the required reports, and pays the premiums due under an account established for the work-site employer.

(d) The provisions of paragraph (a) of this subsection (3) shall not apply to any temporary help contracting firm, as defined in section 8-73-105.5. However, if any portion of such firm's business activity can be characterized as an employee leasing company, as defined in subsection (2) of this section, that portion of the firm's business shall be subject to the provisions of this subsection (3).

(4) An employee leasing company shall not report wages for any work-site employer that would not otherwise be subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title.

(5) An employee leasing company or business management company shall not report remuneration paid:

(a) For services performed by individuals who are clients and who are sole proprietors or partners in a partnership; or

(b) For any other services which would not otherwise constitute employment pursuant to articles 70 to 82 of this title.

(6) (a) Nothing in this section shall exempt a work-site employer or any employee from any other licensing requirements imposed by local, state, or federal law. An employee who is licensed, registered, or certified by a unit of local, state, or federal government shall, for the purposes of such license, registration, or certification, be considered an employee of the work-site employer. An employee leasing company shall not be deemed to engage in any occupation, trade, profession, or other activity that is subject to licensing, registration, or certification requirements, or is otherwise regulated by a governmental entity, solely by entering into and maintaining an employee leasing company contract with a work-site employer or work-site employees who are subject to such requirements or regulation.

(b) Collective bargaining agreements. Nothing contained in this subsection (6) or in any employee leasing company contract shall affect, modify, or amend any collective bargaining agreement, or the rights or obligations of any work-site employer, employee leasing company, or work-site employee under the federal "National Labor Relations Act", 29 U.S.C. sec. 151 et seq., or the federal "Railway Labor Act", 45 U.S.C. sec. 151 et seq.

(c) Tax or premium credits and other incentives. For purposes of determination of employment-based tax or premium credits, such as economic development, enterprise zone, development zone, and other such economic incentives provided by the state or any other governmental entity, work-site employees shall be deemed employees solely of the work-site employer. A work-site employer shall be entitled to the benefit of any tax or premium credit, economic incentive, or other benefit arising as the result of the employment of work-site employees of the work-site employer. If the grant or amount of any credit, benefit, or other incentive is based on number of employees, then each work-site employer shall be treated as employing only those work-site employees coemployed by the work-site employer. Work-site employees working for other work-site employers of the employee leasing company shall not be counted. Upon request by a work-site employer or an agency or department of this state, each employee leasing company shall provide employment information reasonably required by any agency or department of this state responsible for administration of any tax or premium credit or economic incentive and necessary to support any request, claim, application, or other action by a work-site employer seeking the tax or premium credit or economic incentive.

(d) Disadvantaged business. With respect to a bid, contract, purchase order, or agreement entered into with the state or a political subdivision of the state, a work-site employer's status or certification as a small, minority-owned, disadvantaged, or women-owned business enterprise or as a historically underutilized business is not affected because the work-site employer has entered into an employee leasing company contract or uses the services of an employee leasing company.

(e) Taxes, premiums, fees, other assessments. (I) A tax, premium, fee, surcharge, penalty, or any other assessment on a work-site employer or employee leasing company on the basis of the number of employees shall be assessed:

(A) Against the work-site employer for the work-site employees under the employee leasing company contract with the employee leasing company; and

(B) Against the employee leasing company for the employees of the employee leasing company who are not work-site employees for any work-site employers in the state.

(II) For a tax or premium imposed or calculated upon the basis of total payroll, an employee leasing company may apply any small business allowance or exemption available to the work-site employer for the work-site employees for purposes of computing the tax or premium.

(III) The provisions of this paragraph (e) shall not apply to the reporting, withholding, and paying of taxes or premiums pursuant to subparagraphs (VI) and (VII) of paragraph (b) of subsection (2) of this section.

(7) Employment arrangements. Nothing in this section or in any employee leasing company contract shall:

(a) Diminish, abolish, or remove rights of covered employees of a work-site employer or obligations of such work-site employer to a covered employee existing prior to the effective date of the employee leasing company contract;

(b) Affect, modify, or amend any contractual relationship or restrictive covenant between a covered employee and any work-site employer in effect at the time an employee leasing company contract becomes effective. Nor shall it prohibit or amend any contractual relationship or restrictive covenant that is entered into subsequently between a work-site employer and a covered employee. An employee leasing company shall have no responsibility or liability in connection with, or arising out of, any such existing or new contractual relationship or restrictive covenant unless the employee leasing company has specifically agreed otherwise in writing.

(c) Create any new or additional enforceable right of a covered employee against an employee leasing company that is not specifically provided by the employee leasing company contract or this section.

(8) Prohibited acts and enforcement. (a) A person shall not offer or provide employee leasing company services or use the names employee leasing company, professional employer organization, PEO, staff leasing, employee leasing, administrative employer, or other title representing employee leasing services without first obtaining certification from the department under this section.

(b) A person shall not knowingly provide false or fraudulent information to the department in conjunction with any certifications or in any report required under this section.

(c) The executive director of the department may take disciplinary action against an employee leasing company for a violation of paragraph (a) or (b) of this subsection (8), for the conviction in a court of law for a crime arising from the operation of an employee leasing company relating to fraud or deceit or the ability of the employee leasing company to operate as such, for knowingly making a material misrepresentation to the department or other governmental agency, or for a willful violation of this section or any order or rule issued by the department under this section.

(d) Upon finding, after notice and opportunity for hearing, that an employee leasing company has violated one or more provisions of this section, the director of the division may:

(I) Place the certified employee leasing company on probation for a period and subject to conditions that the director of the division specifies;

(II) Impose an administrative penalty in an amount not to exceed one thousand dollars for each material violation; and

(III) Refuse to accept the certification and rescind the employee leasing company's ability to make unemployment insurance contributions for work-site employees under its unemployment insurance account.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. Since the substantive provisions of this section are identical to former § 8-70-103 (9), relevant cases construing that provision have been included under this section.

Quadriplegic who entered into employment agreements with his attendants was an "employing unit" liable for unemployment compensation taxes. The fact that an insurance carrier provided the funds to pay the attendants did not change their status as employees of the quadriplegic who was responsible for hiring, firing, training, and directing the attendants in the performance of their activities and ensuring that they were paid. Richards v. Division of Employment, 801 P.2d 22 (Colo. App. 1990).

This section does not give the industrial claim appeals office the authority to treat various separate entities as a single employing unit based on elements of common ownership and control. Accord Human Res., Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, __ P.3d __ (Colo. App. 2010).

8-70-115. Employment - "Federal Unemployment Tax Act". (1) (a) "Employment", subject to other provisions of this subsection (1), includes any service performed prior to January 1, 1972, which was employment as defined in this subsection (1) prior to such date and service performed after December 31, 1971, by an employee as defined in section 3306 (i) of the "Federal Unemployment Tax Act" and any service performed after December 31, 1977, by an employee, as defined in subsection (o) of section 3306 of the "Federal Unemployment Tax Act", including service in interstate commerce.

(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of this subsection (1) and notwithstanding the provisions of section 8-80-101, service performed by an individual for another shall be deemed to be employment, irrespective of whether the common-law relationship of master and servant exists, unless and until it is shown to the satisfaction of the division that such individual is free from control and direction in the performance of the service, both under his contract for the performance of service and in fact; and such individual is customarily engaged in an independent trade, occupation, profession, or business related to the service performed. For purposes of this section, the degree of control exercised by the person for whom the service is performed over the performance of the service or over the individual performing the service, if exercised pursuant to the requirements of any state or federal statute or regulation, shall not be considered.

(c) To evidence that such individual is engaged in an independent trade, occupation, profession, or business and is free from control and direction in the performance of the service, the individual and the person for whom services are performed may either show by a preponderance of the evidence that the conditions set forth in paragraph (b) of this subsection (1) have been satisfied, or they may demonstrate in a written document, signed by both parties, that the person for whom services are performed does not:

(I) Require the individual to work exclusively for the person for whom services are performed; except that the individual may choose to work exclusively for the said person for a finite period of time specified in the document;

(II) Establish a quality standard for the individual; except that such person can provide plans and specifications regarding the work but cannot oversee the actual work or instruct the individual as to how the work will be performed;

(III) Pay a salary or hourly rate but rather a fixed or contract rate;

(IV) Terminate the work during the contract period unless the individual violates the terms of the contract or fails to produce a result that meets the specifications of the contract;

(V) Provide more than minimal training for the individual;

(VI) Provide tools or benefits to the individual; except that materials and equipment may be supplied;

(VII) Dictate the time of performance; except that a completion schedule and a range of mutually agreeable work hours may be established;

(VIII) Pay the individual personally but rather makes checks payable to the trade or business name of the individual; and

(IX) Combine his business operations in any way with the individual's business, but instead maintains such operations as separate and distinct.

(d) A document may satisfy the requirements of paragraph (c) of this subsection (1) if such document demonstrates, by a preponderance of the evidence, the existence of such factors listed in subparagraphs (I) to (IX) of paragraph (c) of this subsection (1) as are appropriate to the parties' situation.

(2) Where the parties use a written document pursuant to paragraph (c) of subsection (1) of this section, such document may be the contract for performance of service or a separate document. Such document shall create a rebuttable presumption of an independent contractor relationship between the parties, where such document contains a disclosure, in type which is larger than the other provisions in the document or in bold-faced or underlined type, that the independent contractor is not entitled to unemployment insurance benefits unless unemployment compensation coverage is provided by the independent contractor or some other entity, and that the independent contractor is obligated to pay federal and state income tax on any moneys paid pursuant to the contract relationship.

(3) Where the parties use a written document pursuant to paragraph (c) of subsection (1) of this section, and one of the parties is a professional whose license to practice a particular occupation under the laws of the state of Colorado requires such professional to exercise a supervisory function with regard to an entire project, such supervisory role shall not affect such professional's status as part of the independent contractor relationship.

visions of this section are identical to former § 8-70-103 (10)(a), relevant cases construing that provision have been included under this section.

The definition of "employment", appearing in this section, is broad and inclusive, and it cannot be so construed as to limit the meaning to the relationship of master and servant without violating the legislative intent. Indus. Comm'n v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co., 103 Colo. 550, 88 P.2d 560 (1939).

Whether a common-law employer-employee relationship (master-servant) exists is not determinative of whether an employee is covered by this act. Metro Denver Maint. v. Dept. of Labor, 738 P.2d 49 (Colo. App. 1987).

No improper delegation to the division to define what constitutes covered employment. Allstate Prod. v. Dept. of Labor, 782 P.2d 880 (Colo. App. 1989).

As used in this section, "service" means an active participation in, and not a passive connection with, some given operation, so merely owning or residing on a farm upon, or in connection with, which an individual performs no service whatsoever, ipso facto, does not make an employee self-employed as a farmer. Dellacroce v. Indus. Comm'n, 111 Colo. 129, 138 P.2d 280 (1943).

The term "employment" includes a broader concept of employment than the common law doctrine embodied in federal law. Jackson Cartage, Inc. v. Van Noy, 738 P.2d 47 (Colo. App. 1987).

"Is free from control and direction in the performance of the service" language of subsection (10) does not preclude consideration of future control. Weld County Kirby Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 676 P.2d 1253 (Colo. App. 1983).

Terms "control and direction" mean an overall right to control the actions of an employee. Indus. Comm'n v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co., 103 Colo. 550, 88 P.2d 560 (1939); Rent-a-Mom v. Indus. Comm'n, 727 P.2d 403 (Colo. App. 1986).

Employer's right to terminate contractual relationship is one factor in determining whether "control" exists and cannot be sole factor in determining if employment relationship exists. Rent-a-Mom v. Indus. Comm'n, 727 P.2d 403 (Colo. App. 1986).

The term "customarily engaged in" is not unconstitutionally vague. Allstate-Prod. v. Dept. of Labor, 782 P.2d 880 (Colo. App. 1989).

This section places the burden of proof on the putative employer to demonstrate that both conditions set forth in subsection (1)(b) exist. Under this section, services performed by an individual for another are deemed to be "employment" unless the putative employer can demonstrate that (1) the individual is free from control and direction in the performance of the service, both under the contract and in fact, and (2) the individual is customarily engaged in an independent trade, occupation, profession, or business related to the service performed. Speedy Messenger & Delivery Serv. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 129 P.3d 1094 (Colo. App. 2005); Long View Sys. Corp. USA v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 197 P.3d 295 (Colo. App. 2008).

Determination of whether an employer has met its burden of proving the requirements set forth in this section is a question of fact, and the commission's order may be set aside if there is no substantial evidence to support it. Rent-a-Mom v. Indus. Comm'n, 727 P.2d 403 (Colo. App. 1986); Jackson Cartage, Inc. v. Van Noy, 738 P.2d 47 (Colo. App. 1987); Long View Sys. Corp. USA v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 197 P.3d 295 (Colo. App. 2008).

There are two ways in which a putative employer may satisfy the "control and direction" and "independent trade" conditions of subsection (1)(b). The putative employer may present general evidence demonstrating both conditions. Alternatively, it may produce a written document that satisfies all the applicable factors set forth in subsection (1)(c). Long View Sys. Corp. USA v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 197 P.3d 295 (Colo. App. 2008).

A writing need not necessarily satisfy all nine factors enumerated in subsection (1)(c) to create the rebuttable presumption of an independent contractor relationship. The writing must satisfy those factors that are applicable or potentially applicable. Long View Sys. Corp. USA v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 197 P.3d 295 (Colo. App. 2008).

In determining whether one is acting under the control of another for the purposes of this section, the court primarily is concerned with what is done under a contract and not what the contract says. Jackson Cartage, Inc. v. Van Noy, 738 P.2d 47 (Colo. App. 1987).

Stockbroker, unable to perform functions without the supervision of a broker-dealer and prohibited by employer from performing similar functions for others, was engaged in covered employment for purposes of this sec- tion. Claim of Woloson, 796 P.2d 1 (Colo. App. 1989).

The common law control test used to distinguish servants from independent contractors is the same as that used to distinguish independent contractors from employees under the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", so the cases under article 40 of title 8 are relevant to article 70 of title 8. Carpet Exch. of Denver, Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 859 P.2d 278 (Colo. App. 1993).

Control and direction over a putative employee by a third party. The plain language of subsection (1)(b) does not support a conclusion that control and direction over a putative employee by someone other than the putative employer renders the situation one of employment; unless the person providing control and direction is shown to be an agent of the putative employer. Long View Sys. Corp. USA v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 197 P.3d 295 (Colo. App. 2008).

Company was held liable to pay unemployment compensation taxes for claims adjusters, vocational rehabilitation counselors, and medical benefits coordinators because there was insufficient evidence that such persons are engaged in an independent business, and such persons are not statutorily exempted. Nat'l Claims Assoc. v. Div. of Emp., 786 P.2d 495 (Colo. App. 1989).

Whether a worker is in covered employment depends upon the nature of the services performed and some services by a worker may constitute covered employment and other services by the same worker may not. Black Sheep, Inc. v. Div. of Emp., 804 P.2d 871 (Colo. App. 1990).

Services found to be covered employment. Facts showing that petitioner had the right to terminate workers and that workers were paid by petitioner at a rate established by him to perform specified services on material that was provided by him constituted substantial evidence to support the commission's finding that workers were within the statutory definition of covered employment. Allen Co., Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 735 P.2d 889 (Colo. App. 1986), aff'd, 762 P.2d 677 (Colo. 1988).

Services provided by claimant as a direct seller of consumer products at a location other than a permanent retail establishment constituted employment for purposes of the Colorado Employment Security Act when contract between employer and claimant did not provide that the employee was not to be treated as an employee for federal payroll withholding tax purposes as required by subsection (11) (I). Autry Bros., Inc. v. Cross, 773 P.2d 248 (Colo. App. 1989).

The following do not demonstrate general control but are designed to ensure that the end result is accomplished: Giving floor plans to workers, retaining the right to inspect all work, and requiring workers to obtain company approval of any additional work requested by customers if they wish to be paid for such work. Carpet Exch. of Denver, Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 859 P.2d 278 (Colo. App. 1993).

A requirement that workers be covered by workers' compensation insurance is not evidence of an employment relationship because independent contractors may be deemed to be employees under article 41 of title 8 and because such a requirement is common. Carpet Exch. of Denver, Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 859 P.2d 278 (Colo. App. 1993).

Setting ethics guidelines and the times at which workers must report to work and call customers to schedule installations does not constitute control over the means and methods of installing floor covering and does not evidence an employment relationship. Carpet Exch. of Denver, Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 859 P.2d 278 (Colo. App. 1993).

To be customarily engaged in an independent business, a worker must actually and customarily provide similar services to others. The performance of occasional or insubstantial services for others does not establish that a worker is customarily engaged in an independent business. Carpet Exch. of Denver, Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 859 P.2d 278 (Colo. App. 1993); Speedy Messenger & Delivery Serv. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 129 P.3d 1094 (Colo. App. 2005).

It is reasonable to infer that a worker maintains an independent business if a written agreement demonstrates that an employer doesn't require a worker to work exclusively for such employer. If other evidence demonstrates that such inference isn't accurate, then the worker is entitled to unemployment compensation. Home Health Care Prof. v. Colo. Dept. of Labor, 937 P.2d 851 (Colo. App. 1996).

Musicians not independent contractors pursuant to subsection (1)(b). Musicians who were free to play other musical engagements, who worked mainly out of their homes, who did not maintain business addresses or telephone numbers, and who earned 95 to 99% of their income as musicians with the band in question were not customarily engaged in independent trades, occupations, professions, or businesses related to the services they performed with the band, despite a "memorandum of understanding" that satisfied the advisements required by subsection (1)(c). 8-70-116. Employment - location of services. (1) "Employment" means an individual's service, wherever performed within the United States, the Virgin Islands, or Canada, if:

- (a) The service is not covered under the unemployment compensation law of any other state, the Virgin Islands, or Canada; and
- (b) The place from which the service is directed or controlled is in Colorado.

8-70-117. Employment - base of operations. "Employment" means that the entire service of an individual is performed within this state or both within and without this state if the service is localized in this state; or that the service is not localized in any state but some of the service is performed in this state and that the base of operations or, if there is no base of operations, the place from which the service is directed or controlled is in this state; or that the base of operations or place from which the service is directed or controlled is not in any state in which some part of the service is performed but that the individual's residence is in this state. For purposes of this section, service shall be deemed to be localized within a state if the service is performed entirely within the state or if the service is performed both within and without the state but the service performed without the state is incidental to the individual's service within the state or, for example, is temporary or transitory in nature or consists of isolated transactions.

The American National Red Cross is an instrumentality of the United States, and as such is immune from taxation under the Colorado employment security act, unless that immunity has been waived by the 1960 amendments to the federal unemployment tax act. the U.S. district court concludes that the 1960 amendments to the federal unemployment tax act do not waive the immunity of the Red Cross from taxation under the Colorado employment security act although that act recognizes the right of the states to provide and administer a fund for the same purpose under state law, and the contributions made by employers to the state fund are by the federal act made a credit against the federal tax. *Am. ## ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. Since the substantive provisions of this section are identical to former § 8-70-103 (10)(g), relevant cases construing that provision have been included under this section.

What constitutes "church". A religious organization which does not constitute a distinct religious denomination or mode of worship is not a "church" for purposes of subsection (10)(g)(I). Young Life v. Division of Emp. & Training, 650 P.2d 515 (Colo. 1982) (decided prior to 1982 amendment of subsection (10)(g)(I)).

Religious purposes exemption. Exemption to the unemployment compensation law for an organization that operates primarily for religious purposes is not construed as narrowly as traditional tax exemption statutes and should not be lightly granted. This exemption does not involve the determination of religious motivations and should be applied only if the religious influence is pervasive in the organization that applies for the exemption, not the organization that founded the organization applying for the exemption. Prince-Walker v. Indus. Claim App. Office, 870 P.2d 588 (Colo. App. 1993), aff'd sub nom. Samaritan Institute v. Prince-Walker, 883 P.2d 3 (Colo. 1994).

The entity did not engage in religious activity where the entity's primary activity was to provide administrative services for centers that provide counseling. Pastoral counseling provided by centers in another state was not sufficient to support a claim of religious activity. Samaritan Inst. v. Prince-Walker, 883 P.2d 3 (Colo. 1994).

Because work and activities of store affiliated with an organization of churches are secular in nature, primary purpose of the activity is not religious and store is not exempt from the definition of "employment". Harbert v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 2012 COA 23, ___ P.3d ___.

Administrative position within work-relief program disqualified. An employee occupying an administrative position within a work-relief program financed wholly by public funds is disqualified from the receipt of unemployment compensation benefits by subsection (10)(g)(V). Hernandes v. Indus. Comm'n, 659 P.2d 58 (Colo. App. 1983).

8-70-140.5. Employment does not include - drivers of taxis or limousines. (1) "Employment" does not include services performed by an individual who is working as a driver under a lease or contract with a taxi or limousine motor common carrier that holds a certificate pursuant to article 10.1 of title 40, C.R.S. Any such lease or contract may contain the following provisions:

(a) That the driver may either lease or contract for a motor vehicle owned by such carrier or may own the motor vehicle driven and lease it to the carrier, which may then re-lease such motor vehicle to the driver;

(b) That the driver shall be instructed in the method of the carrier's operation, that the driver is familiar with federal, state, and municipal statutes, ordinances, and regulations, and that the carrier shall enforce compliance by the driver with such federal, state, and municipal statutes, ordinances, and regulations;

(c) That certain enumerated transportation services shall be accomplished personally by the driver;

(d) That certain characteristics on the body of the vehicle being used, including color and requirements for any written displays, are required for the sake of uniformity;

(e) That certain periodic driver safety training is required;

(f) That the common carrier has certain control over any assistant working with the driver for purposes of enforcement of and compliance with federal, state, and municipal statutes, ordinances, and regulations;

(g) That a specific number of hours is allotted in the form of shifts in which the driver shall complete a particular shipment of goods for the purpose of meeting the transportation equipment needs of drivers and the transportation needs of the public;

(h) That certain procedures for radio telecommunication between drivers and the carrier are mandated;

(i) That the driver shall work only for the carrier with whom such driver has contracted while such driver is operating the motor vehicle;

(j) That the driver is prohibited from advertising any services offered while driving for the carrier;

(k) That the carrier shall pay the driver's fees when the carrier accepts charge vouchers from the driver for services rendered to customers by such driver;

(l) That such lease or contract may be terminated by any party to such lease or contract; except that the driver may be required to complete an accepted trip; and

(m) That no length be specified for the term of such lease or contract.

(2) Leases or contracts containing the provisions specified in paragraphs (a), (b), (e), (f), (g), (h), and (i) of subsection (1) of this section shall be prima facie evidence that an independent contractor relationship exists between the parties to such lease or contract. This presumption may be overcome by clear and convincing evidence of an employment relationship between the parties to such lease or contract considering only factors not in the lease. Leases or contracts containing other optional provisions specified in subsection (1) of this section shall not change the characterization of the relationship between the driver and the carrier pursuant to such lease or contract.

8-70-140.7. Employment does not include - land professionals. (1) "Employment" does not include services performed for a private for profit person or entity by a land professional, if:

(a) Substantially all remuneration paid in cash or otherwise for the performance of the services is directly related to the completion by the land professional of the specific tasks contracted for rather than to the number of hours worked by the individual; and

(b) The services performed by the land professional are performed under a contract between the land professional and the person or entity for whom the services are performed that provides that the land professional is to be treated as an independent contractor and not as an employee with respect to the services provided under the contract.

(2) For the purposes of this section, "land professional" means an individual who has been engaged primarily in:

(a) Negotiating for the acquisition or divestiture of mineral rights;

(b) Negotiating business agreements that provide for the exploration for or development of minerals;

(c) Determining ownership of minerals through the research of public and private records; and

(d) Reviewing the status of title, acting to cure title defects, and otherwise acting to reduce title risk associated with ownership of minerals, managing rights or obligations derived from ownership of interests in minerals, or unitizing or pooling of interest in minerals.

Source: L. 98: Entire section added, p. 69, § 5, effective March 23.

8-70-141. Wages - definition. (I) "Wages" means:

(a) All remuneration for personal services, including the cash value of all remuneration paid in any medium other than cash, other than remuneration paid in other than cash to an agricultural worker or a domestic worker. When an employing unit during a calendar year acquires the experience of an employer as provided in section 8-76-104 and if, immediately after such acquisition, the successor employer continues to employ an individual who immediately prior to the acquisition was an employee of the predecessor, any remuneration previously paid to the individual by the predecessor shall be considered as having been paid by the successor.

(b) (I) Any employer contribution under a qualified cash or deferred arrangement, as defined in 26 U.S.C. sec. 401 (k), to the extent not included in gross income by reason of 26 U.S.C. sec. 402 (e) (3); and

(II) Any amount treated as an employer contribution under 26 U.S.C. sec. 414 (h) (2); and

(III) Any employer contribution under a nonqualified deferred compensation plan. For the purposes of this subparagraph (III), "nonqualified deferred compensation plan" means any plan or other arrangement for deferral of compensation other than a plan described in section 8-70-142 (1) (c). Any amount deferred under a nonqualified deferred compensation plan shall be taken into account for the purposes of this paragraph (b) as of the date that the services are performed or the date that there is no substantial risk of forfeiture of the rights to such amount, whichever date is later, and shall not thereafter be treated as "wages" for the purposes of this section.

(IV) Any payment included in the definition of wages in the "Federal Unemployment Tax Act".

(c) Tips which are received while performing services that constitute employment and which are made known to the employer through a written statement furnished to him by the employee; and

(d) (I) With respect to weeks of unemployment beginning on or after January 1, 1978, wages for insured work paid for previously uncovered services. For the purposes of this paragraph (d), "previously uncovered services" means services which were not employment as defined in sections 8-70-126 to 8-70-140.8 and were not services covered pursuant to section 8-76-107 at any time during the one-year period ending December 31, 1975, and:

(A) Which are agricultural labor as defined in section 8-70-103 or domestic service as defined in section 8-70-121; or

(B) Which are services performed by an employee of this state or a political subdivision thereof, as provided for in section 8-70-119, or by an employee of a nonprofit educational institution which is not an institution of higher education, as provided for in section 8-70-103 (15).

(II) "Previously uncovered services" shall not apply to services to the extent that assistance under Title II of the "Emergency Jobs and Unemployment Assistance Act of 1974" was paid on the basis of such services.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. Since the substantive provisions of this section are identical to former § 8-70-103 (22), relevant cases construing that provision have been included under this section.

Definition of "services". Consulting agreement that required claimant to make himself available if needed was a contract for "services" regardless of whether claimant actually performed any work, hence payments to claimant under the contract were wages as defined in this section. Magin v. Division of Emp., 899 P.2d 369 (Colo. App. 1995).

A separation allowance comes within the definition of the term "wages" as contained in this section, for the allowance, which is based upon length of service and weekly wage, is an obligation which the employer is legally bound to pay under the terms of the union contract. Indus. Comm'n v. Sirokman, 134 Colo. 481, 306 P.2d 669 (1957).

Receipt of employee benefits does not constitute wages for purposes of this section. Denver Post, Inc. v. Dept. of Labor & Emp., 199 Colo. 466, 610 P.2d 1075 (1980).

The term "wages" shall not include the payments made to the claimant after being injured while discharging her duties because payments were not made as remuneration for personal services. City and County of Denver v. Indus. Comm'n, 707 P.2d 1008 (Colo. App. 1985), cert. denied, 733 P.2d 680 (Colo. 1987).

8-70-142. Wages - remuneration not included as wages. (1) "Wages" does not include:

(a) The amount of any payment (including any amount paid by an employer for insurance or annuities, or into a fund, to provide for any such payment) made to, or on behalf of, an employee or any of his dependents by an employer under a plan or system established by an employer which makes provision for his employees generally, or for his employees generally and their dependents, or for any class or classes of his employees and their dependents, on account of:

(I) Sickness or accident disability, but, in the case of payments made to an employee or any of his dependents, this paragraph (a) shall exclude from the term "wages" only payments which are received under the workers' compensation law; or

(II) Medical or hospitalization expenses in connection with sickness or accident disability; or

(III) Death;

(I) From or to a trust described in 26 U.S.C. section 401 (a) which is exempt from tax under 26 U.S.C. section 501 (a) at the time of such payment unless such payment is made to an employee of the trust as remuneration for services rendered as such employee and not as a beneficiary of the trust; or

(II) Under or to a bond purchase plan which, at the time of such payment, is a qualified bond purchase plan described in 26 U.S.C. section 405 (a); or

(V) Under or to an exempt governmental deferred compensation plan, as defined in 26 U.S.C. section 3121 (v) (3); or

(VI) To supplement pension benefits under a plan or trust described in any of the provisions of this subsection (1) which are designed to take into account all or some portion of the increase in the cost of living, as determined by the United States secretary of labor, since retirement but only if such supplemental payments are under a plan which is treated as a welfare plan under section 3 (2) (B) (ii) of the federal "Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974", as amended; or

(VII) Under or to an annuity plan which, at the time of such payment, is a plan described in 26 U.S.C. section 403 (a); or

(VIII) Under a cafeteria plan (within the meaning of 26 U.S.C. section 125);

(d) The payment by an employer, without deduction from the remuneration of the employee, of the tax imposed upon an employee under 26 U.S.C. section 3101 or any payment required from any employee under articles 70 to 82 of this title if the remuneration is paid to the employee for domestic service in a private home or for agricultural labor;

(i) Any payment made or benefit furnished to or for the benefit of an employee if, at the time of such payment or such furnishing, it is reasonable to believe that the employee will be able to exclude such payment or benefit from income under 26 U.S.C. section 127 or 129;

(j) The value of any meals or lodging furnished by or on behalf of the employer if, at the time of such furnishing, it is reasonable to believe that the employee will be able to exclude such items from income under 26 U.S.C. section 119;

8-71-103. Organization of division - authority to issue bonds.

(1) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2012.)

(2) (a) The division constitutes an enterprise for purposes of section 20 of article X of the state constitution, as long as the division retains authority to issue revenue bonds and the division receives less than ten percent of its total annual revenues in grants, as defined in section 24-77-102 (7), C.R.S., from all Colorado state and local governments combined. For as long as it constitutes an enterprise pursuant to this section, the division is not subject to section 20 of article X of the state constitution.

(b) (I) Except as provided in subparagraph (II) of this paragraph (b), the enterprise established pursuant to this subsection (2) has all the powers and duties authorized by articles 70 to 82 of this title pertaining to unemployment insurance and unemployment compensation. The unemployment compensation fund, created in section 8-77-101, constitutes part of the enterprise established pursuant to this subsection (2).

(II) The employment support fund established in section 8-77-109 (1) shall not be included in or administered by the enterprise established pursuant to this subsection (2).

(c) Nothing in this subsection (2) limits or restricts the authority of the division to expend its revenues consistent with the provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title.

(d) (I) Upon receiving the certifications specified in subparagraphs (III) and (IV) of this paragraph (d), the division may issue revenue bonds for the same purposes and on the same terms, and levy and apply the proceeds of bond assessments for the same purposes and in the same manner, as the Colorado housing and finance authority may issue bonds and levy and apply the proceeds of bond assessments under section 29-4-710.7, C.R.S., substituting references to the division for references to the authority under that section. Bond assessments levied by the division may be used to pay revenue bonds issued by the division under this paragraph (d) or revenue bonds issued by the Colorado housing and finance authority under section 29-4-710.7, C.R.S.

(II) Any bonds issued pursuant to this paragraph (d) must be executed and delivered by the director of the division and may be in the form, may be sold and may have the same terms as provided in section 43-4-807 (1) (b) and (1) (c), C.R.S., may contain the provisions permitted by section 43-4-807 (1) (d), C.R.S., shall be legal investments for the entities described in, subject to the terms set forth in, section 43-4-807 (3), C.R.S., and shall be exempt from taxation and assessments in the state as provided in section 43-4-807 (4), C.R.S. The division may invest or deposit any proceeds and interest from the sale of such bonds as provided in section 43-4-807 (2), C.R.S. The division shall have the power to enter into all other contracts or agreements, which contracts and agreements are not subject to the "Procurement Code", articles 101 to 112 of title 24, C.R.S., that are necessary or incidental to the exercise of its powers and duties under this paragraph (d), including the power to engage the services of consultants, financial advisors, underwriters, bond insurers, letter of credit banks, rating agencies, and agents and other persons whose services may be required or deemed advantageous by the division, and the power to enter into interest rate exchange agreements for bonds that have been issued in accordance with this paragraph (d). The amount of outstanding liability for bonds issued pursuant to this paragraph (d) or section 29-4-710.7, C.R.S., is not taken into account for purposes of rate setting under article 76 of this title.

(III) The division may not issue its bonds pursuant to this paragraph (d) until the monthly balance in the unemployment compensation fund is equal to or less than nine-tenths of one percent of the total wages reported by ratable employers for the calendar year, or for the most recent available four consecutive quarters prior to the last computation date, and the governor, the state treasurer, and the executive director of the department of labor and employment have each certified in writing to the division:

(A) That other funding alternatives to the issuance of bonds by the division under this paragraph (d) have been considered and that the issuance of such bonds is the most cost-effective means for the division to maintain adequate balances in the unemployment compensation fund or to repay moneys advanced to the state pursuant to 42 U.S.C. sec. 1321;

(B) The amount of money required to maintain adequate balances in the unemployment compensation fund or to repay moneys advanced to the state pursuant to 42 U.S.C. sec. 1321, or both; and

(C) The amount of bonds to be issued.

(IV) In addition to the written certifications specified in subparagraph (III) of this paragraph (d), the executive director of the department of labor and employment shall certify in writing that the issuance of bonds as authorized by law would not result in decertification of Colorado's unemployment insurance program, impact any cap application, affect the receipt of emergency unemployment compensation funds, create an ineligibility for receipt of federal funds, or result in other penalties or sanctions under the federal "Social Security Act", as amended, or the "Federal Unemployment Tax Act", as amended, 26 U.S.C. sec. 3301 et seq.

ANNOTATION

8-72-108. Oaths - witnesses - subpoenas. (1) In the discharge of the duties imposed by articles 70 to 82 of this title, the division or its duly authorized representative shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations, take depositions, certify to official acts, and issue subpoenas to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, papers, correspondence, memoranda, and other records deemed necessary as evidence in connection with a disputed claim or the administration of articles 70 to 82 of this title.

(2) In case of contempt or refusal to obey a subpoena issued to any person, any court of this state within the jurisdiction of which the inquiry is carried on or within the jurisdiction of which said person guilty of contempt or refusal to obey is found or resides or transacts business, upon application by the division or its duly authorized representative, shall have jurisdiction to issue to such person an order requiring him to appear before the division or its duly authorized representative to produce evidence if so ordered or give testimony touching the matter under investigation or in question. Any failure to obey such order of the court may be punished by said court as a contempt thereof. Any person who, without just cause, fails or refuses to attend and testify or to answer any lawful inquiry, or to produce books, papers, correspondence, memoranda, and other records, if it is in his power so to do in obedience to a subpoena of the division or its duly authorized representative, is guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not more than two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than sixty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. Each day such violation continues shall be deemed a separate offense.

(3) No person may be excused from attending and testifying or from producing books, papers, correspondence, memoranda, and other records before the division or its duly authorized representative or in obedience to the subpoena of the division or its duly authorized representative in any cause or proceeding before the division or its duly authorized representative on the ground that the testimony or evidence, documentary or otherwise, required of him may tend to incriminate him or subject him to a penalty or forfeiture; but no individual shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing concerning which he is compelled, after having claimed his privilege against self-incrimination, to testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise; except that such individual so testifying is not exempt from prosecution and punishment for perjury in the first degree committed in so testifying.

8-72-109. State-federal cooperation. (1) (a) In the administration of articles 70 to 82 of this title, the division shall cooperate with the United States department of labor to the fullest extent consistent with the provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title, and shall take such action through the adoption of appropriate rules, regulations, administrative methods, and standards as may be necessary to secure to the state and its citizens all the advantages available under the provisions of the federal "Social Security Act", as amended, section 3302 of the "Federal Unemployment Tax Act", the "Wagner-Peyser Act", as amended, and the "Federal-State Extended Unemployment Compensation Act of 1970".

(b) In the administration of the provisions of article 75 of this title, which are enacted to conform with the requirements of the "Federal-State Extended Unemployment Compensation Act of 1970", the division shall take such action as may be necessary:

(I) To ensure that the provisions are so interpreted and applied as to meet the requirements of such federal act as interpreted by the United States department of labor; and

(II) To secure to this state the full reimbursement of the federal share of extended benefits paid under articles 70 to 82 of this title that are reimbursable under the federal act.

(2) The division shall comply with the regulations of the secretary of labor or his successor relating to the receipt or expenditure by this state of money granted under any of said acts and shall make such reports, in such form and containing such information as the secretary of labor may from time to time require, and shall comply with such provisions as the secretary of labor, from time to time, may find necessary to assure the correctness and verification of such reports. The division shall afford reasonable cooperation with every agency of the United States charged with the administration of any employment security law.

(3) The division is authorized to make such investigations, obtain and transmit such information, make available such services and facilities, and exercise such of the other powers provided in articles 70 to 82 of this title with respect to the administration of articles 70 to 82 of this title as it deems necessary or appropriate to facilitate the administration of any state or federal unemployment insurance or public employment service law and in like manner to accept and utilize information, services, and facilities made available to the state by the agency charged with the administration of any such other unemployment insurance or public employment service law.

(4) Upon request therefor the division shall furnish to any agency of the United States charged with the administration of public works or assistance through public employment the name, address, ordinary occupation, and employment status of each recipient of benefits and such recipient's right to further benefits under articles 70 to 82 of this title.

(5) The division may make the state's records relating to the administration of articles 70 to 82 of this title available to the railroad retirement board and may furnish the railroad retirement board, at the expense of such board, such copies thereof as the railroad retirement board deems necessary for its purposes.

(6) (a) The division may afford reasonable cooperation with every agency of the United States charged with the administration of any law providing for payment of benefits arising out of unemployment. In so doing, the division may use its personnel and equipment and accept and use federal funds and make payments therefrom, but in so doing it is not required to neglect or to carry on with less efficiency its own program, and the state of Colorado and its employees shall be free from liability except in case of gross negligence or attempt to defraud the United States.

(b) The director of the division is authorized to enter into agreements with every agency of the United States charged with administration of income or wage verification for the purpose of exchanging information among agencies as a method of controlling the overpayment of unemployment benefits.

(7) The director of the division is authorized to enter into agreements with other departments and divisions of the state for the purpose of obtaining such information as he deems necessary for the proper administration of articles 70 to 82 of this title and providing for payment of the costs thereof.

(8) The director of the division is authorized to enter into agreements with other departments and divisions of the state for the purpose of establishing an income and eligibility system for the exchange of information among agencies administering federally assisted human service programs. Such system shall conform to all requirements and restrictions of section 1137 of the federal "Social Security Act", as amended.

(9) (a) Information obtained by a state or local child support enforcement agency pursuant to subsection (8) of this section may be used only for the purposes authorized by said subsection (8) and may not be disclosed by such agency to any person or entity for the purposes of establishing, modifying, or collecting child support obligations or locating individuals owing such obligations unless safeguards for the confidentiality of such information, consistent with section 303 (e) (1) (B) of the federal "Social Security Act", as amended, are established by agreement. Neither the division nor its employees shall be liable in civil action for providing information in accordance with subsection (8) of this section.

(b) The limitations on disclosure of information obtained pursuant to subsection (8) of this section set forth in paragraph (a) of this subsection (9) shall apply to any agent of a state or local child support enforcement agency specified in section 8-72-107 (1).

(10) On a quarterly basis, the director of the division shall provide wage and claim information contained in division records to the secretary of the federal department of health and human services for purposes of the national directory of new hires pursuant to all requirements and restrictions set forth in section 453 of the federal "Social Security Act", as amended.

8-72-110. Reciprocal interstate agreements - repeal. (1) The division is authorized to enter into reciprocal arrangements with appropriate and duly authorized agencies of other states, or of the federal government, or both, whereby potential rights to benefits under articles 70 to 82 of this title may constitute the basis for payment of benefits by another state or by the federal government, and potential rights to benefits accumulated under the law of another state or of the federal government may constitute the basis for the payment of benefits by this state. Such benefits shall be paid under such provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title, or under the provisions of the law of such state or of the federal government, or under such combination of the provisions of both laws as may be agreed upon as being fair and reasonable to all affected interests. No such arrangement shall be entered into unless it contains provisions for reimbursement to the fund for such benefits as are paid on the basis of wages and service, subject to the law of another state or of the federal government, and provisions for reimbursement from the fund for such benefits paid by another state or by the federal government on the basis of wages and service, subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title. Reimbursements paid from the fund pursuant to this section shall be deemed to be benefits for the purposes of articles 70 to 82 of this title.

(2) (a) (I) The division is authorized to enter into reciprocal arrangements with appropriate and duly authorized agencies of other states or of the federal government, or both, whereby wages for insured work paid in another state or by the federal government are deemed to be wages for insured work under articles 70 to 82 of this title; and wages for insured work paid under articles 70 to 82 of this title are deemed to be wages on the basis of which unemployment insurance is payable under such law of another state or of the federal government. No such arrangement shall be entered into unless it contains provision for reimbursement to the fund for the benefits paid under articles 70 to 82 of this title on the basis of the wages and provision for reimbursement from the fund for the benefits paid under such other law on the basis of wages for insured work as the division finds will be fair and reasonable to all affected interests. Reimbursements paid from the fund pursuant to this section shall be deemed to be benefits for the purposes of articles 70 to 82 of this title; except that no charge shall be made to a premium-paying employer's account under sections 8-76-101 to 8-76-104. With the exception of benefit overpayments, such noncharging shall not apply to reimbursing employer accounts that will be charged in accordance with section 8-76-103 in the same amount and to the same extent as if the reimbursement to another state had been benefits based solely on wages paid by an employer covered by articles 70 to 82 of this title.

(II) This paragraph (a) is repealed, effective December 31 of the calendar year in which the revisor of statutes receives the written report pursuant to section 8-76-102.5 (1) indicating that the fund balance of the unemployment compensation fund on any June 30 is equal to or greater than zero dollars and all advances in accordance with the conditions specified in Title XII of the federal "Social Security Act", as amended, have been repaid.

(b) (I) The division may enter into reciprocal arrangements with appropriate and duly authorized agencies of other states or of the federal government, or both, whereby wages for insured work paid in another state or by the federal government are deemed to be wages for insured work under articles 70 to 82 of this title; and wages for insured work paid under articles 70 to 82 of this title are deemed to be wages on the basis of which unemployment insurance is payable under a corresponding law of another state or of the federal government. No such arrangement may be entered into unless it contains provision for reimbursement to the fund for the benefits paid under articles 70 to 82 of this title on the basis of the wages and provision for reimbursement from the fund for the benefits paid under such other law on the basis of wages for insured work as the division finds will be fair and reasonable to all affected interests. Reimbursements paid from the fund pursuant to this section are deemed to be benefits for the purposes of articles 70 to 82 of this title; except that no charge may be made to a premium-paying employer's account under sections 8-76-101 to 8-76-104. With the exception of benefit overpayments, the noncharging shall not apply to reimbursing employer accounts that will be charged in accordance with section 8-76-102.5 in the same amount and to the same extent as if the reimbursement to another state had been benefits based solely on wages paid by an employer covered by articles 70 to 82 of this title.

(II) This paragraph (b) is effective on and after the repeal of paragraph (a) of this subsection (2).

(3) The division is authorized to enter into arrangements with the appropriate agencies of other states or the federal government whereby individuals performing services in this and other states for employing units under circumstances not specifically provided for in sections 8-70-126 to 8-70-140.7 or under similar provisions in the unemployment compensation laws of such other states shall be deemed to be engaged in employment performed entirely within this state or within one of such other states and whereby potential rights and benefits accumulated under the unemployment compensation laws of several states or under such a law of the federal government, or both, may constitute the basis for the payment of benefits through a single appropriate agency under terms that the department finds will be fair and reasonable as to all affected interests and will not result in any substantial loss to the fund. An individual applying for unemployment insurance benefits through an interstate agreement authorized by this section who is not a Colorado resident and is unable to produce a Colorado driver's license or Colorado identification card shall produce one of the other documents required by section 24-76.5-103 (4) (a), C.R.S., or a valid driver's license or state identification card issued in another state, or, in the case of individuals residing in Canada, a valid Canadian identification card or valid Canadian driver's license, and execute an affidavit as described in section 24-76.5-103 (4) (b), C.R.S., stating that he or she is a United States citizen, a legal permanent resident, or otherwise lawfully present in the United States pursuant to federal law.

(4) The division is further authorized to enter into arrangements with the appropriate agencies of other states or of the federal government for the determination, adjustment, collection, and assessment of premiums by employers with respect to employment within and without this state.

(5) For the purposes of establishing and maintaining free public employment offices, the division is authorized to enter into agreements with the railroad retirement board or any other agency of the United States charged with the administration of an employment security law, with any political subdivision of this state, or with any private, nonprofit organization. As a part of any such agreement, the division may accept moneys, services, or quarters as a contribution to the employment security administration fund.

8-72-111. Release of location information concerning individuals with outstanding felony arrest warrants. (1) Notwithstanding any provision of state law to the contrary and to the extent allowable under federal law, at the request of the Colorado bureau of investigation, the division shall provide the bureau with information concerning the location of any person whose name appears in the division's records who is the subject of an outstanding felony arrest warrant. Upon receipt of such information, it shall be the responsibility of the bureau to provide appropriate law enforcement agencies with location information obtained from the division. Location information provided pursuant to this section shall be used solely for law enforcement purposes. The division and the bureau shall determine and employ the most cost-effective method for obtaining and providing location information pursuant to this section. Neither the division nor its employees or agents shall be liable in civil action for providing information in accordance with the provisions of this subsection (1).

8-72-114. Employee misclassification - investigations - enforcement - advisory opinions - rules - employee misclassification advisory opinion fund - statewide study - report - definitions - legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly hereby finds and declares that:

(a) Misclassification of employees as independent contractors in violation of the "Colorado Employment Security Act" and, in particular, the provisions of article 70 of this title defining the employment relationship, may pose a significant problem in this state and leads to underpayment of employment taxes and premiums that employers are obligated to pay the state for covered employment;

(b) Businesses that misclassify employees gain an unfair competitive advantage over businesses that properly classify employees and pay appropriate taxes and premiums to the state;

(c) When employees are misclassified, the protections available to properly classified employees against economic insecurity are unavailable to those misclassified employees, and the stream of revenue that should be paid to the state to provide protections to misclassified employees is not available.

(2) As used in this section:

(a) "Act" means the "Colorado Employment Security Act".

(b) "Complainant" means the person who files a complaint with the division pursuant to this section.

(c) "Director" means the director of the division.

(d) Repealed.

(e) "Executive director" means the executive director of the department of labor and employment.

(f) "Misclassification of employees" means erroneously classifying a person as an independent contractor, free from control and direction of the employer in the performance of service for the employer, when the employer cannot show an exception, pursuant to section 8-70-103 (11), to the general rule that service being performed for the employer is presumed to be employment for purposes of the act.

(g) "Respondent" means the person against whom a complaint is filed pursuant to this section.

(3) (a) The division shall be responsible for accepting and investigating complaints regarding misclassification of employees and enforcing the requirements of the act regarding classification of employees and payment of premiums.

(b) Any person may file a written complaint with the division alleging that a person engaged in employment is being misclassified by an employer as an independent contractor. The complainant shall specify in the complaint the facts showing that the person classified as an independent contractor is engaged in employment, as defined in article 70 of this title.

(c) The director may investigate a complaint filed pursuant to this subsection (3) and shall focus on the investigation of the most egregious complaints or those complaints alleging intentional acts of misclassification of employees undertaken in order to gain a competitive advantage or to avoid the payment of premiums.

(d) No later than thirty days after receipt of a complaint, the director shall determine whether or not an investigation is warranted. If the director determines that an investigation is warranted, the director shall notify the complainant and respondent that an investigation will be conducted and shall conduct the investigation in accordance with the act and the rules adopted pursuant to the act. The complainant and respondent shall cooperate and provide information as necessary to facilitate the investigation.

(e) (I) Upon conclusion of an investigation, the director shall issue a written order either dismissing the complaint or finding that the employer has engaged in the misclassification of employees and has failed to pay appropriate premiums for covered employment as defined in article 70 of this title.

(II) If the director finds that an employer has engaged in the misclassification of employees, the director shall order the employer to pay back premiums owed and interest.

(III) Upon a finding that the employer, with willful disregard of the law, misclassified employees, the director may:

(A) Impose a fine of up to five thousand dollars per misclassified employee for the first misclassification with willful disregard, and for a second or subsequent misclassification with willful disregard, a fine of up to twenty-five thousand dollars per misclassified employee; and

(B) Upon a second or subsequent misclassification with willful disregard, issue an order prohibiting the employer from contracting with, or receiving any funds for the performance of contracts from, the state for up to two years after the date of the director's order. Upon the issuance of such order, the director shall notify state departments and agencies as necessary to ensure enforcement of the order.

(f) The director shall provide a copy of the written order to the respondent. Those portions of the written order that are not confidential under the act shall be a public record.

(g) An employer shall have the right to appeal the director's order in accordance with section 8-76-113.

(4) (a) An employer may request a written advisory opinion from the director concerning whether the employer should classify the individual as an employee for purposes of complying with the act. The employer shall provide the director with information necessary for the director to issue an advisory opinion.

(b) Upon receipt of a request and pertinent information from an employer, the director shall issue an advisory opinion to the employer, indicating whether the employer should classify the individual as an employee in order to comply with the act. An opinion issued pursuant to this subsection (4) is only advisory, based on the information provided by the employer and the director's understanding of the circumstances at the time issued, and is not binding on the division, the employer, or any other state or local governmental entity.

(c) The director shall promulgate rules in accordance with article 4 of title 24, C.R.S., establishing the process for issuing an advisory opinion and the fees to be charged the requesting employer to cover the director's and division's costs in providing the advisory opinion. Any fees charged pursuant to this subsection (4) for the costs associated with issuing an advisory opinion shall be deposited in the employee misclassification advisory opinion fund, which fund is hereby created. Moneys in the employee misclassification advisory opinion fund shall be subject to annual appropriation by the general assembly for the purposes of this subsection (4). Interest derived from the deposit and investment of moneys in the fund shall be credited to the fund. At the end of any fiscal year, all unexpended and unencumbered moneys in the fund shall remain in the fund and shall not be credited or transferred to the general fund or any other fund.

(5) The director, by all means reasonable and within budgetary constraints, shall publicize the complaint process established in this section and its availability to those who have discovered misclassification of employees. The director shall develop and make available free of charge to employers a notice explaining the rights of employees to be properly classified and the availability of a complaint process pursuant to this section. Employers shall post the notice conspicuously in the workplace or otherwise where it can be seen as employees come or go to their places of work.

(6) to (8) Repealed.

8-73-101. Payment of benefits. (1) All benefits provided in this article shall be payable from the fund. All benefits shall be paid through employment offices or such other agencies as the director of the division, by general rule, may designate. Notwithstanding any other provision of the law to the contrary, any amount of unemployment compensation payable to any individual for any week, if not an even dollar amount, shall be rounded to the next lower full dollar amount.

(2) An individual's eligibility and benefit amounts shall be determined weekly. Unemployment insurance benefit checks shall be issued once every two weeks; except that the division, when it determines it to be necessary for proper administration of articles 70 to 82 of this title, including the effecting of administrative economies, may issue benefit checks on a weekly basis. Under no circumstance shall benefit checks be issued less frequently than once every two weeks.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. The case included in the annotations to this section which refers to the industrial commission was decided prior to the enactment of 1986 Senate Bill No. 12 which abolished said commission and transferred its powers, duties, and functions under this section to the director of the division.

When two sections of this article are pertinent, the commission has wide latitude in determining which section it will apply. Colo. State Judicial Dept. v. Indus. Comm'n, 630 P.2d 102 (Colo. App. 1981).

8-73-102. Weekly benefit amount for total unemployment. (1) (a) Except as otherwise provided in section 8-73-104 or subsection (2) of this section, each eligible individual who is totally unemployed in any week shall be paid, with respect to such week, benefits at the rate of sixty percent of one-twenty-sixth of the wages paid for insured work during the two consecutive quarters of the individual's base period in which such total wages were highest, computed to the next lower multiple of one dollar but not more than one-half of the average weekly earnings in all covered industries in Colorado according to the records of the division, as computed by the division in June for the ensuing twelve months beginning July 1, on the basis of the most recent available figures, and not less than twenty-five dollars.

(b) (I) If an individual does not have sufficient qualifying weeks or wages in the base period to qualify for unemployment insurance benefits, the individual shall have the option of designating that the base period shall be the alternative base period.

(II) If information regarding weeks and wages for the calendar quarter immediately preceding the first day of the benefit year is not available from the regular quarterly reports of wage information, and the division is not able to obtain the information using other means pursuant to state or federal law, the division may base the determination of eligibility for unemployment insurance benefits on the affidavit of the unemployed individual with respect to weeks and wages for that calendar quarter. The individual shall furnish payroll documentation, if available, in support of the affidavit. The division shall verify the employee's wage information. A determination of unemployment insurance benefits based on an alternative base period shall be adjusted when the quarterly report of wage information from the employer is received, if that information causes a change in the determination.

(2) An individual who is entitled to the maximum weekly benefit amount as computed in subsection (1) of this section shall receive a weekly benefit amount of fifty percent of one fifty-second of his total wages paid for insured work during his base period, computed to the next lower multiple of one dollar, but not to exceed fifty-five percent of the average weekly earnings in all covered industries in Colorado; except that the maximum weekly benefit amount in effect on July 1, 1985, as computed pursuant to this subsection (2), shall remain in effect until such maximum weekly benefit amount is equal to or less than fifty-five percent of the average weekly earnings in all covered industries in Colorado. In no case shall an individual receive a weekly benefit amount computed in accordance with this subsection (2) unless it is greater than the weekly benefit amount yielded by computation in accordance with subsection (1) of this section.

(3) Benefit amounts determined under the provisions of this section shall apply only to those individuals whose benefit years begin subsequent to the effective date of each newly computed maximum benefit amount. No redetermination of benefit amounts already established shall be required by the computation of new maximum benefit amounts.

(4) There shall be deducted from the weekly benefit amount that part of wages payable to such individual with respect to such week that is in excess of twenty-five percent of the weekly benefit amount, and the weekly benefit amount resulting shall be computed to the next lower multiple of one dollar.

(5) (a) There shall be deducted from the weekly benefit amount child support intercept payments calculated under paragraphs (b) to (h) of this subsection (5).

(b) An individual filing a new claim for unemployment compensation shall, at the time of filing such claim, disclose whether or not the individual owes child support obligations. If any such individual discloses that he owes child support obligations and is determined to be eligible for unemployment compensation, the division shall notify the state or local child support enforcement agency enforcing such obligation that the individual has been determined to be eligible for unemployment compensation.

(c) The division shall deduct and withhold from any unemployment compensation payable to an individual that owes child support obligations:

(I) The amount specified by the individual to the division to be deducted and withheld under this subsection (5), if neither subparagraph (II) of this paragraph (c) nor subparagraph (III) of this paragraph (c) is applicable; or

(II) The amount, if any, determined pursuant to an agreement submitted to the division under section 454(20)(B)(i) of the "Social Security Act", as amended, by the state or local child support enforcement agency, unless subparagraph (III) of this paragraph (c) is applicable; or

(III) Any amount otherwise required to be so deducted and withheld from such unemployment compensation pursuant to legal process, as that term is defined in section 462(e) of the "Social Security Act", as amended, transmitted to the division.

(d) Any amount deducted and withheld under paragraph (c) of this subsection (5) shall be paid by the division to the appropriate state or local child support enforcement agency.

(e) Any amount deducted and withheld under paragraph (c) of this subsection (5) shall be treated as if it were paid to the individual as unemployment compensation and as if it were paid by such individual to the state or local child support enforcement agency in satisfaction of the individual's child support obligations.

(f) For the purposes of this subsection (5), "unemployment compensation" means any compensation payable under articles 70 to 82 of this title, including amounts payable by the division pursuant to an agreement under any federal law providing for compensation, assistance, or allowances with respect to unemployment.

(g) This subsection (5) applies only if appropriate arrangements have been made for reimbursement by the state or local child support enforcement agency for the administrative costs incurred by the division under this section which are attributable to child support obligations being enforced by the state or local child support enforcement agency.

(h) As used in this subsection (5), "child support obligations" includes only those obligations which are being enforced pursuant to a plan described in section 454 of the "Social Security Act", as amended, which has been approved by the secretary of health and human services under part D of Title IV of the "Social Security Act".

(i) As used in this subsection (5), "state or local child support enforcement agency" means any agency of a state or a political subdivision operating pursuant to a plan described in paragraph (h) of this subsection (5).

(6) (a) There shall be deducted from the weekly benefit amount any uncollected overissuance of food stamp coupons calculated under paragraphs (b) to (f) of this subsection (6).

(b) The division shall deduct and withhold from any unemployment compensation payable to an individual that owes an uncollected overissuance of food stamp coupons:

(I) The amount specified by the individual to the division to be deducted and withheld under this subsection (6);

(II) The amount, if any, determined pursuant to an agreement submitted to the division under section 13(c)(3)(A) of the federal "Food Stamp Act", as amended, by the state food stamp agency; or

(III) Any amount otherwise required to be deducted and withheld from such unemployment compensation pursuant to section 13(c)(3)(B) of the federal "Food Stamp Act", as amended.

(c) Any amount deducted and withheld under paragraph (b) of this subsection (6) shall be paid by the division to the appropriate state food stamp agency.

(d) Any amount deducted and withheld under paragraph (b) of this subsection (6) shall for all purposes be treated as if it were paid to the individual as unemployment compensation and then paid by such individual to the state food stamp agency to which the uncollected overissuance of food stamp coupons is owed as repayment for the overissuance.

(e) This subsection (6) applies only if appropriate arrangements have been made for reimbursement by the state food stamp agency for the administrative costs incurred by the division under this section that are attributable to repayment of uncollected overissuances of food stamp coupons owed to the state food stamp agency.

(f) For the purposes of this subsection (6):

(I) "State food stamp agency" means any agency described in section 3(n)(1) of the federal "Food Stamp Act", as amended, that administers the food stamp program established under such federal act within this state.

(II) "Uncollected overissuance" has the meaning provided for the term in section 13(c)(1) of the federal "Food Stamp Act", as amended.

(III) "Unemployment compensation" has the meaning provided for the term in paragraph (f) of subsection (5) of this section.

(7) (a) An individual filing a new claim for unemployment compensation shall, at the time of filing such claim, be advised that:

(I) Unemployment compensation is subject to federal and state income tax;

(II) Requirements exist pertaining to estimated tax payments;

(III) The individual may elect to have federal income tax deducted and withheld from the individual's payment of unemployment compensation at the rate specified in the federal internal revenue code;

(IV) The individual may elect to have Colorado state income tax deducted and withheld from the individual's payment of unemployment compensation at the rate of four percent; and

(V) The individual shall be permitted to change a previously elected withholding status no more than one time during each "benefit year" as that term is defined by section 8-70-111 (1).

(b) Amounts deducted and withheld from unemployment compensation for income tax purposes shall remain in the unemployment compensation fund, created pursuant to section 8-77-101, until transferred to the federal or state taxing authority as a payment of income tax.

(c) The director of the division shall follow all procedures specified by the United States department of labor and the federal internal revenue service pertaining to the deducting and withholding of income tax.

(d) Amounts shall be deducted and withheld under the provisions of this subsection (7) for income tax purposes only after amounts are deducted and withheld for any overpayments, child support obligations, food stamp overissuances, or any other amounts required to be deducted and withheld under articles 70 to 82 of this title.

8-73-103. Benefits for partial unemployment. (1) Each eligible individual who is partially unemployed shall be paid a partial benefit. Partial benefits shall be in an amount equal to the eligible individual's weekly benefit amount for total unemployment, minus that part of wages payable to such individual with respect to such week which is in excess of twenty-five percent of his weekly benefit amount as computed in accordance with section 8-73-102, and the benefit payment resulting shall be computed to the next lower multiple of one dollar.

(2) The director of the division is authorized to prescribe regulations governing benefits for partial unemployment for other pay periods which will result in benefit amounts for such periods proportionate to the amounts prescribed in this article for weekly pay periods.

any benefit year to a total amount of benefits equal to twenty-six times his weekly benefit amount or one-third of his wage credits for insured work paid during his base period, whichever is the lesser; except that benefits based on seasonal wages may be paid only for unemployment during the normal seasonal period of the seasonal industry in which such wage credits were earned and only to seasonal workers who are available for work in such seasonal industry, and the total thereof shall not exceed one-third of such individual's wages paid for insured seasonal work during the corresponding normal seasonal period of his base period. For the purposes of this section, wages shall be counted as "wages for insured work" for benefit purposes with respect to any benefit year only if such benefit year begins subsequent to the date on which the employing unit by whom the wages were paid has satisfied the conditions of section 8-70-113, 8-76-104, or 8-76-107, with respect to becoming an employer.

(2) (a) (I) Notwithstanding other provisions of this section or section 8-76-103 (1) (a), benefits based upon regular part-time employment may not be charged to the experience rating account of the regular part-time employer until the claimant has become separated from the regular part-time employment and then only for those weeks of unemployment that occur after said separation.

(II) This paragraph (a) is repealed, effective December 31 of the calendar year in which the revisor of statutes receives the written report pursuant to section 8-76-102.5 (1) indicating that the fund balance of the unemployment compensation fund on any June 30 is equal to or greater than zero dollars and all advances in accordance with the conditions specified in Title XII of the federal "Social Security Act", as amended, have been repaid.

(b) (I) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section or of section 8-76-102.5 (1) (a), benefits based upon regular part-time employment may not be charged to the experience rating account of the regular part-time employer until the claimant has become separated from the regular part-time employment, and then only for those weeks of unemployment that occur after the separation.

8-73-105. Part-time workers. (1) As used in this section, "part-time worker" means an individual whose normal work is in an occupation in which his services are not required for the customary scheduled full-time hours prevailing in the establishment in which he is employed or who, owing to personal circumstances, does not customarily work the customary scheduled full-time hours prevailing in the establishment in which he is employed.

(2) The director of the division shall prescribe fair and reasonable general rules applicable to part-time workers for determining their full-time weekly wage and the total wages for employment by employers required to qualify such workers for benefits. The rules, with respect to such part-time workers, shall supersede any inconsistent provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title but, so far as practicable, shall secure results reasonably similar to those provided in the analogous provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the enactment of 1986 Senate Bill No. 12 which abolished said commission and transferred its powers, duties, and functions under this section to the director of the division.

Statute defines two types of part-time workers. Redmond v. Indus. Comm'n, 32 Colo. App. 134, 509 P.2d 1277, modified, 183 Colo. 14, 514 P.2d 623 (1973).

Because the "or" in subsection (1) is not inclusive, but is in the alternative. Redmond v. Indus. Comm'n, 32 Colo. App. 134, 509 P.2d 1277, modified, 183 Colo. 14, 514 P.2d 623 (1973).

Commission is directed to comply with this statute and prescribe fair and reasonable rules which will afford part-time workers benefits due them. Redmond v. Indus. Comm'n, 32 Colo. App. 134, 509 P.2d 1277, modified, 183 Colo. 14, 514 P.2d 623 (1973).

Essential question in each case with regard to eligibility of a part-time worker for unemployment benefits is whether the particular part-time worker claimant so restricted his availability for suitable work or so restricted his ability to actively seek work, that — in relation to the condition of the surrounding labor market — he cannot be deemed to have met the eligibility requirements. Indus. Comm'n v. Redmond, 183 Colo. 14, 514 P.2d 623 (1973).

Part-time worker must comply with § 8-73-107. A part-time worker under this section must comply with other statutory eligibility requirements under § 8-73-107 such as he must be "available for all work deemed suitable", and he must be "actively seeking work". Indus. Comm'n v. Redmond, 183 Colo. 14, 514 P.2d 623 (1973).

But part-time workers should be afforded benefits notwithstanding inconsistent provisions. Provisions of § 8-73-107, that a claimant must be able to work and must be available for all work deemed suitable pursuant to § 8-73-108, should not prevent the intent of the general assembly from being carried out, and that intent, as evidenced by this section, is to the effect that part-time workers should be afforded benefits notwithstanding inconsistent provisions elsewhere in the act. Redmond v. Indus. Comm'n, 32 Colo. App. 134, 509 P.2d 1277, modified, 183 Colo. 14, 514 P.2d 623 (1973).

Full-time college student afforded part-time worker benefits. This section clearly expresses a legislative intent to afford benefits to certain part-time workers, and the claimant was such a worker, and had the general assembly intended not to afford part-time worker benefits to full-time college students, it could easily have so stated. Indus. Comm'n v. Redmond, 183 Colo. 14, 514 P.2d 623 (1973).

And part-time worker who is full-time college student need not be available for full-time work in order to qualify for unemployment benefits. Indus. Comm'n v. Redmond, 183 Colo. 14, 514 P.2d 623 (1973).

8-73-105.3. Temporary employees. (1) As used in this section, "temporary employee" means an individual who is employed by an employer on an irregular schedule and who has agreed to work for the employer on an as-needed or on-call basis.

(2) At the time of hire as a temporary employee, an employer must give the employee notice that the employee is required to contact or notify the employer upon completion of an assignment and to be available to work, as agreed upon at the time of hire, during a specified period of time, on specified dates, or upon call by the employer on an as-needed basis.

(3) If a temporary employee receives the notice pursuant to subsection (2) of this section and does not contact or notify the employer upon completion of an assignment in compliance with the notice and is not available to work at the agreed-upon times, the employee is deemed to have voluntarily terminated employment for the purpose of determining benefits pursuant to section 8-73-108 (5) (e).

(4) If a temporary employee who agrees to work on an as-needed basis receives the notice pursuant to subsection (2) of this section and refuses all work within three separate pay periods when contacted by the employer, the temporary employee is deemed to have voluntarily terminated employment for reasons that may or may not allow an award of benefits pursuant to section 8-73-108.

(5) Repealed.

Source: L. 95: Entire section added, p. 776, § 1, effective July 1. L. 2001: (5) repealed, p. 43, § 1, effective March 11.

8-73-105.5. Employment by temporary help contracting firm. (1) (a) For the purposes of this section, "temporary help contracting firm" means any person who is in the business of employing individuals and, for compensation from a third party, providing those individuals to perform work for the third party, under the supervision of the third party.

(b) Repealed.

(2) Employment with a temporary help contracting firm is characterized by a series of limited-term assignments of an employee to a third party, based on an agreement between the temporary help contracting firm and the third party. A separate employment agreement exists between the temporary help contracting firm and each individual it hires as an employee. Completion of an assignment for a third party by an employee employed by a temporary help contracting firm does not, in itself, terminate the employment agreement between the temporary help contracting firm and the employee.

(3) (Deleted by amendment, L. 94, p. 637, § 3, effective July 1, 1994.)

(4) At the time of hire a temporary help contracting firm shall provide written notice to each employee which clearly states that the employee is required to contact the firm upon completion of an assignment.

(5) If an employee of a temporary help contracting firm receives the written notice pursuant to subsection (4) of this section and does not contact the firm upon completion of an assignment in compliance with such written notice, such employee shall be held to have voluntarily terminated employment for purposes of determining benefits pursuant to section 8-73-108 (5) (e) (XXII).

(6) If an employee of a temporary help contracting firm contacts the firm upon completion of an assignment in compliance with subsection (4) of this section and does not continue employment in a new assignment, such employee shall be considered separated under the provisions of section 8-73-108 (4) (a).

ANNOTATION

Employee-claimant of a temporary help contracting firm is entitled to a determination whether he was "at fault" for his separation even though he was disqualified pursuant to the provisions of this section and not directly under one of the statutory disqualifying provisions of § 8-73-108. Velo v. Employment Solutions Pers., 953 P.2d 1295 (Colo. App. 1998).

No error in determination by hearing officer that disqualifying provisions of subsection (5) of this section and § 8-73-108 (5)(e)(XXII) are applicable to claimant. On the last day of his final assignment, employer temporary help contracting firm notified claimant that his assignment was ending. Subsequently, employer offered claimant additional assignments which claimant did not accept. There is no evidence that claimant informed his employer that he was available for further assignments. Moreover, claimant did not contact employer in accordance with the written contract he had received. Accordingly, court upheld that portion of hearing officer's order stating that claimant was responsible for his separation and should be disqualified from the receipt of his unemployment benefits pursuant to subsection (5) of this section and § 8-73-108 (5)(e)(XXII). Velo v. Employment Solutions Pers., 988 P.2d 1139 (Colo. App. 1998).

Claimant is entitled to a determination whether he was "at fault" for his separation notwithstanding the applicability of the disqualifying provisions of this section. To determine otherwise would abrogate the overriding legislative policy that unemployment benefits are to be awarded only to those claimants who are unemployed through no fault of their own. There appears no legislative intent to treat unemployment compensation claimants who work for temporary help agencies differently from other unemployment compensation claimants with regard to the issue of fault. Accordingly, matter must be remanded to panel for it to consider "fault" issue and, based on its resolution of that issue, to enter a new order on whether claimant is entitled to benefits. Velo v. Employment Solutions Pers., 988 P.2d 1139 (Colo. App. 1998).

8-73-106. Seasonal industry - definitions. (1) (a) As used in articles 70 to 82 of this title, "seasonal industry" means an industry or functionally distinct occupation within an industry which, because of climatic conditions or the seasonal nature of the employment, customarily employs workers only during a regularly recurring period or periods of less than twenty-six weeks in a calendar year. "Nonseasonal period or periods" means the time within a calendar year other than the seasonal period or periods. "Seasonal worker" means an individual who has been paid seasonal wages by a seasonal employer for seasonal work only during the designated seasonal period.

(b) During the nonseasonal period or periods, the seasonal employer may employ not more than twenty-five percent of the total number of workers in each functionally distinct occupation that were employed in the previous seasonal period or periods without losing the seasonal designation for that functionally distinct occupation, so long as the seasonal employer does not employ any workers in the designated seasonal occupations during a consecutive forty-five-day period at any time following the seasonal period or periods. A worker who performs services for the same seasonal employer outside the employer's designated seasonal period or periods shall not be considered a seasonal worker for any period, and all wages paid by the seasonal employer to such worker shall be considered nonseasonal wages. If a seasonal worker performs services for the same seasonal employer outside the employer's designated seasonal period or periods thereby resulting in the loss of the worker's seasonal status and if such worker is not thereafter employed by such employer between any two following designated seasonal periods, the worker may thereafter be reemployed by such seasonal employer and regain his status as a seasonal worker.

(2) The director of the division shall prescribe rules and regulations applicable to seasonal industries for determining their normal seasonal period or periods and seasonal workers, as such terms are defined in subsection (1) of this section.

(3) Upon written application filed with the division by an employer, the director of the division shall determine and may thereafter redetermine, from time to time in accordance with the rules and regulations of the division, the normal seasonal period during which workers are ordinarily employed for the purpose of carrying on seasonal operations in the seasonal industry in which such employer is engaged. Such determination shall be made by said director within ninety days after the filing of such application by an employer with the division. Until such determination by the director of the division, no occupation or industry shall be deemed seasonal. Any employing unit affected by such seasonal determination may appeal the determination in accordance with section 8-76-113. For the purpose of determining whether an individual is a seasonal worker and the duration of such individual's benefits, the determination by said director of the normal seasonal period of a seasonal industry shall be applicable to the filing of the quarterly report of wages in the calendar quarter commencing after the date of such determination.

(4) Repealed.

ANNOTATION

School cook not "seasonal worker". Where unemployment compensation benefits were sought by a cook at private school for period of unemployment following end of school term, the court of appeals held that the claimant did not come within the statutory definition of "seasonal worker". In re Interrogatories by Indus. Comm'n, 30 Colo. App. 599, 496 P.2d 1064 (1972).

Appeal of denial of classification as seasonal employer. Before the general assembly enacted a procedure for appeal of a decision denying classification as a seasonal employer in June 1979, the administrative procedure act was applicable, and any such appeal should have been filed in the district court. City of Aurora v. Indus. Comm'n, 44 Colo. App. 132, 609 P.2d 129 (1980).

8-73-107. Eligibility conditions - penalty. (1) Any unemployed individual shall be eligible to receive benefits with respect to any week only if the division finds that:

(a) (I) He or she has registered for work at and thereafter has continued to report at an employment office in accordance with such regulations as the director of the division may prescribe; except that the director of the division, by regulation, may waive or alter either or both of the requirements of this subparagraph (I) as to individuals attached to regular jobs and as to such other types of cases or situations with respect to which the director of the division finds that compliance with such requirements would be oppressive, or would be inconsistent with the purposes of articles 70 to 82 of this title, but that no such regulation shall conflict with section 8-73-101.

(II) Without in any way limiting the authority of the director of the division to waive or alter the requirements of subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (a), during the period of the national economic recession that began in 2008, in order to assist unemployed individuals in being available for appropriate jobs and to assist employers in having available trained employees, the director of the division shall waive or alter such requirements so that individuals attached to regular jobs do not have to comply with the requirements of subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (a) for a period of twenty-six weeks.

(b) He has made a claim for benefits in accordance with the provisions of section 8-74-101;

(c) (I) The individual is able to work and is available for all work deemed suitable pursuant to the provisions of section 8-73-108, and, with respect thereto:

(A) Decisions of the division regarding the ability of the claimant to work, the availability of the claimant for work, and the claimant's active search for work may be appealed by the claimant or by any employer whose account may be charged with any benefits paid pursuant to such decision, if the appeal is received within twenty calendar days, as defined in section 8-70-103 (5), after the date on the notice of any such decision;

(B) A potentially chargeable employer may protest on the basis of inability to work, nonavailability for work, or failure to search for work within fifteen calendar days after the date on which he discovers such a condition to exist, within thirty days after the date on which payment was made for the week during which the claimant is alleged to have been unable to work or unavailable for work, or within sixty calendar days after the mailing date of the report of quarterly benefit charges, whichever comes first;

(C) No individual shall be considered available for work during any week in which he has no reasonable expectation of securing employment in his usual occupation or in an occupation for which he is reasonably qualified as a result of his movement to an area;

(D) No individual shall be denied benefits because of nonavailability or failure to make an active search for work solely due to his compliance with a summons to report for jury duty. Remuneration received in connection with such duty shall not be considered wages, as defined in section 8-70-141 (1) (a), and the individual's weekly benefit amount shall not be reduced as prescribed in section 8-73-102 (4).

(E) If an individual left employment because of health-related reasons, the division may require a written medical statement issued by a licensed practicing physician addressing any matters related to health.

(II) Nothing in this paragraph (c) shall prevent the division from reviewing and redetermining any decision at any time if the redetermination is based upon facts not known to the division at the time of its original decision.

(d) The individual has been either totally or partially unemployed for a waiting period of one week. No benefits are payable for the waiting period. No week shall be counted as a week of unemployment for the purposes of this paragraph (d):

(I) Unless it occurs within the benefit year which includes the week with respect to which he claims payment of benefits;

(II) If benefits have been paid with respect thereto;

(III) Unless the individual was eligible for benefits with respect thereto under provisions of sections 8-73-107 to 8-73-112;

(IV) Unless total wages earned for the week are less than the weekly benefit amount;

(e) The individual has during his or her base period been paid wages for insured work equal to not less than forty times such individual's weekly benefit amount or two thousand five hundred dollars, whichever is greater. For the purposes of this paragraph (e), wages shall be counted as "wages for insured work" for benefit purposes with respect to any benefit year only if such benefit year comes subsequent to the date on which the employing unit by whom such wages were paid has satisfied the conditions of sections 8-70-113, 8-76-104, and 8-76-107 with respect to becoming an employer.

(f) His total wages earned for the week are less than his weekly benefit amount;

(g) (I) He or she is actively seeking work. In determining whether the claimant is actively seeking work, the division, taking notice of the customary methods of obtaining work in the claimant's usual occupation, or any occupation for which he or she is reasonably qualified, and the current condition of the labor market, shall consider, but shall not be limited to a consideration of, whether, during said week, the claimant followed a course of action that was reasonably designed to result in his or her prompt reemployment in suitable work.

(II) This paragraph (g) shall not apply to a person determined eligible to receive benefits pursuant to section 8-73-108 (4) (r) (I) for the first fifteen business days after a claim for benefits is filed if compliance with this paragraph (g) would:

(A) Make it more difficult for the person to escape domestic abuse; or

(B) Unfairly penalize a person who is or has been a victim of domestic abuse or is at further risk of domestic abuse.

(h) The individual has furnished the division with separation and other reports containing the information deemed necessary by the division to determine the individual's eligibility for benefits, but this provision shall not apply if the individual proves to the satisfaction of the division that he or she had good cause for failing to furnish such reports. The eligibility of any individual shall not be affected by the refusal or failure of an employer to furnish reports concerning separation and employment as required by articles 70 to 82 of this title and the rules pursuant thereto, and the division shall determine the eligibility of such individual upon the basis of such information it may obtain; and any employer who fails or refuses to furnish reports concerning separation and employment shall cease to be an interested party to the separation issue directly related to determinations made in accordance with section 8-73-108 (4) and (5) (e). For each instance of failure to furnish the division with such reports, the employer, unless good cause to the contrary is shown to the satisfaction of the division, may be assessed a penalty of twenty-five dollars, which shall be collected in the same manner as premiums due under articles 70 to 82 of this title.

(i) It is not, in whole or in part, within a period during which the worker is not working due to a disciplinary suspension as provided in the contract of employment;

(j) Such individual is not absent from work due to an authorized and approved voluntary leave of absence.

(2) An individual who has received compensation during the individual's benefit year is required to have worked for an employer as defined in section 8-70-113 since the beginning of such year and to have earned at least two thousand dollars as remuneration for such employment in order to qualify for compensation in the next benefit year.

(3) For the purpose of this subsection (3), "educational institution" includes the Colorado school for the deaf and the blind; except that such term does not include a headstart program that is not a part of a school administered by a board of education because such headstart employees are not subject to the same employment conditions as other employees of the school. Compensation is payable on the basis of services to which sections 8-70-119, 8-70-125, and 8-70-125.5 apply in the same amount, on the same terms, and subject to the same conditions as compensation payable on the basis of other services subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title; except that:

(a) With respect to services in an instructional, research, or principal administrative capacity for an educational institution, compensation shall not be payable based on such services for any week commencing during the period between two successive academic years or terms (or when an agreement provides instead for a similar period between two regular but not successive terms, during such period) to any individual if such individual performs such services in the first of such academic years or terms and if there is a contract or reasonable assurance that such individual will perform services in any such capacity for any educational institution in the second of such academic years or terms;

(b) With respect to services in any other capacity, for an educational institution compensation payable on the basis of such services shall be denied to any individual for any week which commences during a period between two successive academic years or terms or periods described in paragraph (c) of this subsection (3) if such individual performs such services in the first of such academic years, terms, or periods and there is a reasonable assurance that such individual will perform such services in the second of such academic years, terms, or periods; except that, if compensation is denied to any individual for any week under this paragraph (b) and such individual was not offered, an opportunity to perform such services for the educational institution for the second of such academic years, terms, or periods, such individual shall be entitled to a retroactive payment of the compensation for each week for which the individual filed a timely claim for compensation and for which compensation was denied solely by reason of this paragraph (b);

(c) With respect to any services described in paragraphs (a) or (b) of this subsection (3), compensation payable on the basis of such services shall be denied to any individual for any week which commences during an established and customary vacation period or holiday recess if such individual performs such services in the period immediately before such vacation period or holiday recess and if there is a reasonable assurance that such individual will perform such services in the period immediately following such vacation period or holiday recess;

(d) With respect to any services described in paragraph (a) or (b) of this subsection (3), compensation payable on the basis of services in any such capacity shall be denied as specified in paragraph (a), (b), or (c) of this subsection (3) to any individual who performed such services in an educational institution while in the employ of an educational service agency. For the purpose of this paragraph (d), the term "educational service agency" means a governmental agency or governmental entity, such as that created by the "Boards of Cooperative Services Act of 1965", article 5 of title 22, C.R.S., which is established and operated exclusively for the purpose of providing such services to one or more educational institutions.

(e) With respect to any services described in paragraph (a) of this subsection (3), compensation payable on the basis of such services shall be denied to any individual for any week during a period of paid or unpaid sabbatical or other voluntary leave provided for in the individual's contract if such individual performs such services in the academic year or term immediately preceding the beginning of sabbatical or other voluntary leave and if there is a contract or reasonable assurance that such individual will perform such services in the academic year or term following the end of the sabbatical or other voluntary leave;

(f) With respect to services to which section 8-70-140 applies, if such services are provided to or on behalf of an educational institution, benefits shall not be payable under the same circumstances and subject to the same terms and conditions as described in paragraphs (a) to (d) of this subsection (3).

(4) (a) Notwithstanding any other provision in this section, no otherwise eligible individual shall be denied benefits for any week because he is in training with the approval of the division, nor shall such individual be denied benefits by reason of the application of provisions in paragraph (c) of subsection (1) of this section relating to availability for work, the provisions of paragraph (g) of subsection (1) of this section relating to active search for work, or the provisions of section 8-73-108 relating to failure to apply for, or a refusal to accept, suitable work with respect to any week in which he is in training with the approval of the division.

(5) Repealed.

(6) Benefits shall not be paid to any individual on the basis of any services, substantially all of which consist of participating in sports or athletic events or training or preparing to so participate, for any week which commences during the period between two successive sport seasons (or similar periods) if such individual performed such services in the first of such seasons (or similar periods) and there is a reasonable assurance that such individual will perform such services in the latter of such seasons (or similar periods).

(7) (a) Benefits shall not be payable on the basis of services performed by an alien unless such alien is an individual who was lawfully admitted for permanent residence at the time such services were performed, or was lawfully present for purposes of performing such services, or was permanently residing in the United States under color of law at the time such services were performed. For purposes of the "Colorado Employment Security Act":

(I) An alien shall be considered to be "lawfully admitted for permanent residence" only if the alien has been granted status under section 101 of the "Immigration and Nationality Act", 8 U.S.C. 1101 (a) (20);

(II) An alien shall be considered to be "lawfully present for purposes of performing services" only if the alien is an alien who possesses work authorization or has been lawfully admitted to temporary residence under section 245 (a) or section 210 of the "Immigration and Nationality Act", 8 U.S.C. 1255(a) and 8 U.S.C. 1160, respectively;

(III) An alien shall be considered to be "permanently residing in the United States under color of law" only if the alien is:

(A) An alien admitted as a refugee under section 207 of the "Immigration and Nationality Act", 8 U.S.C. § 1157, in effect after March 31, 1980;

(B) An alien granted asylum by the attorney general of the United States under section 208 of the "Immigration and Nationality Act", 8 U.S.C. § 1158;

(C) An alien granted a parole into the United States for an indefinite period under section 212 (d) (5) (B) of the "Immigration and Nationality Act", 8 U.S.C. § 1182 (d) (5) (B);

(D) An alien granted the status as a conditional entrant refugee under section 203 (a) (7) of the "Immigration and Nationality Act", 8 U.S.C. § 1153 (a) (7), in effect prior to March 31, 1980; or

(E) An alien who has been formally granted deferred action status by the immigration and naturalization service, or any successor agency.

(b) Any data or information required of individuals applying for benefits to determine whether benefits are not payable to them because of their alien status shall be uniformly required from all applicants for benefits.

(c) In the case of an individual whose application for benefits would otherwise be approved, no determination that benefits to such individual are not payable because of his alien status shall be made except upon a preponderance of the evidence.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For note, "The Unemployment Compensation Recipient — Should He Accept a Job?", see 44 Den. L.J. 147 (1967). For note, "Rural Poverty and the Law in Southern Colorado", see 47 Den. L.J. 82 (1970). For article, "Alcoholism and Unemployment Insurance in Colorado", see 18 Colo. Law. 1963 (1989).

Underlying principle. The Colorado program of unemployment insurance is based on the principle that only those persons who are willing and able to work are entitled to unemployment benefits. Sylvara v. Indus. Comm'n, 191 Colo. 92, 550 P.2d 868 (1976) (decided under former law).

Preservation of state interest. The state has a legitimate interest in providing unemployment benefits only to conscientious persons. But that interest is preserved by the statutory requirement that in order to receive benefits a claimant must be available for work and actively seeking employment. Kistler v. Indus. Comm'n, 192 Colo. 172, 556 P.2d 895 (1976).

Definition of "disciplinary suspension". A disciplinary suspension is a suspension imposed for a defined period for the purpose of penalizing an employee for a specific act, after which period the employee is scheduled to return to work. Pueblo Sch. Dist. No. 60 v. Martinez, 749 P.2d 1005 (Colo. App. 1987).

Sufficient guidelines to determine eligibility. The terms "able to work", "available for all work deemed suitable", and "actively seeking work" constitute sufficient guidelines to enable the commission to properly determine the eligibility of one seeking unemployment compensation. Denver Post, Inc. v. Dept. of Labor & Emp., 199 Colo. 466, 610 P.2d 1075 (1980).

"Availability for work" or "actively seeking work" are two eligibility conditions which could be found to be lacking or restricted by full-time attendance at school, and such a finding would be a lawful basis for disallowing compensation. Indus. Comm'n v. Bennett, 166 Colo. 101, 441 P.2d 648 (1968).

But "actively seeking work" as a concept is incapable of precise definition and it is for the appropriate agency to make such a determination after considering all the facts and circumstances in each particular case. Bayly Mfg. Co. v. Dept. of Emp., 155 Colo. 433, 395 P.2d 216 (1964).

"Actively seeking work" implies seeking work from other potential employers. Limiting the search for work to one's previous employer is a cause for disqualification. McClaffin v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 126 P.3d 288 (Colo. App. 2005).

Availability of employment determined from factual situation presented. A determination of the availability for employment is one for which an all-inclusive rule cannot be stated, but rather must be made within the context of the factual situation presented by each case. Couchman v. Indus. Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 116, 515 P.2d 636 (1973); Medina v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 256, 554 P.2d 1360 (1976); Duenas-Rodriguez v. Indus. Comm'n, 199 Colo. 95, 606 P.2d 437 (1980).

Whether a claimant is able to work and is available for all work deemed suitable, as provided in subsection (1)(c), and whether the claimant was actively seeking work, as provided in subsection (1)(g), must be determined within the context of the factual situation presented by each case. Denver Post, Inc. v. Dept. of Labor & Emp., 199 Colo. 466, 610 P.2d 1075 (1980).

Work is not "suitable" if wages offered are substantially less than prevailing wage. Romero v. Indus. Comm'n, 616 P.2d 992 (Colo. App. 1980).

The essential question in each case is whether the claimant's availability for suitable work is so restricted — in relation to the condition of the surrounding labor market — that he cannot be deemed to have met the eligibility requirements of ability to, and availability for, work. Medina v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 256, 554 P.2d 1360 (1976).

While claimants in their twenty-eighth or later weeks of pregnancy may have limited employment opportunities, they may still be considered to be "actively seeking work". Frontier Airlines, Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 734 P.2d 142 (Colo. App. 1986), cert. dismissed, 738 P.2d 1185 (Colo. 1987).

Question of whether claimant is unemployed is a purely mathematical inquiry: If he performs no services and receives no compensation, then he is totally unemployed; if he does receive compensation, but in an amount less than the amount of benefits he could recover if totally unemployed, then he is still unemployed, though only partially. It is only when a claimant receives compensation exceeding the amount of weekly total unemployment benefits that he remains "employed" under these sections. Denver Post, Inc. v. Dept. of Labor & Emp., 41 Colo. App. 275, 586 P.2d 1342 (1978), modified, 199 Colo. 466, 610 P.2d 1075 (1980).

The initial burden is on the claimant to establish a prima facie case of eligibility for benefits. Medina v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 256, 554 P.2d 1360 (1976); Duenas-Rodriguez v. Indus. Comm'n, 199 Colo. 95, 606 P.2d 437 (1980).

Illegal alien ineligible for benefits. An illegal alien has no constitutional right to work and, being legally unavailable for work, did not qualify for benefits under subsection (1)(c). Duenas-Rodriguez v. Indus. Comm'n, 199 Colo. 95, 606 P.2d 437 (1980).

But applicants for political asylum were permanently residing in the United States under color of law and thus eligible for unemployment benefits. Div. of Emp. & Training v. Indus. Comm'n, 705 P.2d 1022 (Colo. App. 1985); Div. of Emp. & Training v. Turynski, 735 P.2d 469 (Colo. 1987).

Since subsection (7) is based on federal law, federal authority in interpreting the federal enactment is highly persuasive in interpreting this state statute. Arteaga v. Indus. Comm'n, 703 P.2d 654 (Colo. App. 1985), aff'd sub nom. Div. of Emp. & Training v. Yiadom, 735 P.2d 473 (Colo. 1987).

The provisions of subsections (7)(a)(I) to (7)(a)(VI) are merely illustrative of the categories of persons included within the meaning of the phrase "permanently residing in the United States under color of law". An interpretation that said provisions are an exhaustive definition of persons included within the meaning of said phrase would result in the statute not being in substantial compliance with federal law. Sandoval v. Colo. Div. of Emp., 757 P.2d 1105 (Colo. App. 1988).

For purposes of subsection (7), petitioner was "permanently residing in the United States under 'color of law'", where he was married to a citizen of the United States, was authorized to work by the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS), was in the process of applying for permanent residence, and because the INS made no effort to deport him during the application process. Arteaga v. Indus. Comm'n, 703 P.2d 654 (Colo. App. 1985), aff'd sub nom. Div. of Emp. & Training v. Yiadom, 735 P.2d 473 (Colo. 1987); Zanjani v. Indus. Comm'n, 703 P.2d 652 (Colo. App. 1985).

And petitioner became eligible for unemployment benefits when the INS demonstrated its intention to allow petitioner to remain in the country until he obtained permanent resident alien status. Arteaga v. Indus. Comm'n, 703 P.2d 654 (Colo. App. 1985); Zanjani v. Indus. Comm'n, 703 P.2d 652 (Colo. App. 1985).

Claimant had pending at all times at least one petition which would result in an adjustment of his status to lawful permanent resident which constituted the necessary status to receive unemployment benefits. The fact that claimant did not have a valid INS work authorization during his base period was merely one factor to consider in determining whether he met the requirements of "permanently residing in the United States under color of law". Sandoval v. Colo. Div. of Emp., 757 P.2d 1105 (Colo. App. 1988).

Eligibility where claimant unable to perform "normal" work for health reasons. Where an unemployment compensation claimant is, for health reasons, unable to perform such claimant's "normal" work for a period of time, the claimant may nevertheless be eligible for benefits if the claimant is able to perform and is available for other suitable work. Bartholomay v. Indus. Comm'n, 642 P.2d 50 (Colo. App. 1982).

Fact that claimant has restricted his employment to particular hours of the day or to a specific shift must be considered within the context of the particular labor market in which he is seeking employment before a valid conclusion can be reached as to whether he has made himself unavailable for employment. Couchman v. Indus. Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 116, 515 P.2d 636 (1973).

When eligibility provisions of section come into play. While any refusal of suitable work may well be independent grounds for a "no award" decision under § 8-73-108 (6), the "eligibility" provisions of this section, including limited availability, only come into play with respect to conditions existing after filing of the claim. Olivas v. Indus. Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 273, 518 P.2d 304 (1974).

Section would not become pertinent unless claimant applies for benefits after expiration of disqualifications. Where "no award" decision rendered required that claimant be "disqualified" from receiving benefits for a period of 13 to 25 weeks under § 8-73-108 (2)(b)(I), and a 13-week disqualification was imposed, the provisions of this section would not become pertinent unless the claimant should apply for benefits after the period of disqualifications had expired, and the question of claimant's restrictions on availability for work at that time would then ripen. Olivas v. Indus. Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 273, 518 P.2d 304 (1974).

Where the records contained no indication whatsoever that claimants failed to meet the basic eligibility requirements of subsection (1), claimants were deemed to have met the basic eligibility requirements since the industrial commission is presumed to carry out its official duties in a regular manner. Everitt Lumber Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 39 Colo. App. 336, 565 P.2d 967 (1977).

Part-time worker must comply with section. A part-time worker under § 8-73-105 must comply with other statutory eligibility requirements under this section such as he must be "available for all work deemed suitable", and he must be "actively seeking work". Indus. Comm'n v. Redmond, 183 Colo. 14, 514 P.2d 623 (1973).

But section applied considering intention to afford part-time workers' benefits. The requirements of this section must be applied with the consideration that the claimant may be a part-time worker and that the general assembly intended to afford benefits to such workers. Indus. Comm'n v. Redmond, 183 Colo. 14, 514 P.2d 623 (1973).

And such workers afforded benefits notwithstanding inconsistent provisions elsewhere. The provisions of this section, that a claimant must be able to work and must be available for all work deemed suitable pursuant to § 8-73-108, should not prevent the intent of the general assembly from being carried out, and that intent, as evidenced by § 8-73-105, is to the effect that part-time workers should be afforded benefits notwithstanding inconsistent provisions elsewhere in the act. Redmond v. Indus. Comm'n, 32 Colo. App. 134, 509 P.2d 1277, modified, 183 Colo. 14, 514 P.2d 623 (1973).

Claimant's status as student does not in itself make him unavailable for employment within the meaning of this statute. Couchman v. Indus. Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 116, 515 P.2d 636 (1973).

Intent of subsection (3). The exclusion from coverage stated in subsection (3) is intended to preclude school teaching and nonteaching personnel from receiving unemployment compensation during summer recess if they have the promise of work in the fall. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Martinez, 43 Colo. App. 322, 602 P.2d 911 (1979), overruled on other grounds sub nom. Indus. Comm'n v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 690 P.2d 839 (Colo. 1984).

Even though a school engages in academic activity during summer break, such scheduled break is probably not an academic period. Consequently, applicant was not entitled to receive unemployment benefits under subsection (3)(c) during summer break regardless of the academic activity taking place at the school. Herrera v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 18 P.3d 819 (Colo. App. 2000).

Headstart program workers employed by county were eligible to receive benefits during summer recess. Indus. Comm'n v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 690 P.2d 839 (Colo. 1984).

Distinction relating to headstart program constitutional. Distinguishing between employees of county-administered headstart programs and employees of school-administered programs bears a rational relationship to a legitimate state objective and thus does not violate equal protection. Indus. Comm'n v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 690 P.2d 839 (Colo. 1984).

Claimant held not able and available. Where claimant had formerly worked at a job requiring her to be on her feet eight hours a day and, after surgery needed because of an injury which was unrelated to her employment, applied for part-time work at her usual occupation with the same employer, where she was advised that they had no part-time work, nor any jobs that would meet her physical limitations, the type and hours of work sought by claimant were so limited that she was not "able and available" for all suitable work within the meaning of this section. Medina v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 256, 554 P.2d 1360 (1976).

Failure to answer call-in card. Since the referee found that claimant did not realize the call-in card concerned possible employment and since claimant was not otherwise alerted to such employment, claimant's failure to report within the time limit specified, standing alone, will not support the finding that claimant was unavailable for referral and was not actively seeking work. Lawlor v. Indus. Comm'n, 34 Colo. App. 442, 527 P.2d 1186 (1974).

Commission correct in considering claimants' last week as "waiting week". Where the earnings of each claimant for the last week worked were under $50, and the benefits to which each was entitled ranged from $82 to $87, the commission was correct in considering claimants' last week of work to be the "waiting week", and it was proper to pay full benefits beginning the following week. Denver Symphony Ass'n v. Indus. Comm'n, 34 Colo. App. 343, 526 P.2d 685 (1974).

Determinations are required prior to computations under subsection (1)(e). The dollar rounding provision is in § 8-73-102 (1) and the weekly benefit must have already been determined before the computations called for in subsection (1)(e) are made. Grams v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 357, 556 P.2d 1234 (1976).

Determination of monetary eligibility for unemployment benefits. Since the payments to the claimant pursuant to the charter provision were made under a plan established by the employer which compensates police officers on account of "accident disability", the amount of these payments cannot be counted as "wages" for determining monetary eligibility for unemployment benefits. City & County of Denver v. Indus. Comm'n, 707 P.2d 1008 (Colo. App. 1985), cert. denied, 733 P.2d 680 (Colo. 1987).

Hearsay evidence alone cannot support commission's order. Hearsay evidence, though admissible in administrative hearings, cannot alone support an order of the industrial commission. Romero v. Indus. Comm'n, 616 P.2d 992 (Colo. App. 1980).

This section concerns eligibility, not entitlement. Its applicability must be determined in eligibility proceedings that may not be intermingled with entitlement issues. Denver v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 833 P.2d 881 (Colo. App. 1992).

Under the Colorado Employment Security Act, eligibility for unemployment benefits and entitlement to those benefits are distinct and separate matters that relate to whether a claimant may receive unemployment compensation. In re Adamic, 291 B.R. 175 (Bankr. D. Colo. 2003).

"Eligibility" for unemployment compensation relates to the monetary provisions of the statute, while "entitlement" concerns the non-monetary provisions. Each is an equal element of a claim for unemployment compensation benefits. In re Adamic, 291 B.R. 175 (Bankr. D. Colo. 2003).

Applied in Dailey, Goodwin & O'Leary v. Division of Emp., Indus. Comm'n, 40 Colo. App. 256, 572 P.2d 853 (1977); Martinez v. Indus. Comm'n, 618 P.2d 738 (Colo. App. 1980); Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Indus. Comm'n, 650 P.2d 1297 (Colo. App. 1982); Nazzaro v. Indus. Comm'n, 671 P.2d 983 (Colo. App. 1983); Bushehri v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 749 P.2d 439 (Colo. App. 1987); Denver v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 833 P.2d 881 (Colo. App. 1992).

8-73-108. Benefit awards - repeal. (1) (a) In the granting of benefit awards, it is the intent of the general assembly that the division at all times be guided by the principle that unemployment insurance is for the benefit of persons unemployed through no fault of their own; and that each eligible individual who is unemployed through no fault of his own shall be entitled to receive a full award of benefits; and that every person has the right to leave any job for any reason, but that the circumstances of his separation shall be considered in determining the amount of benefits he may receive, and that certain acts of individuals are the direct and proximate cause of their unemployment, and such acts may result in such individuals receiving a disqualification.

(b) A full award of benefits shall be the total amount of benefits computed under sections 8-73-102 and 8-73-104. Benefits payable under the provisions of this section shall be awarded, subject to other applicable provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title.

(2) Repealed.

(3) (a) (I) The most recent separation and all separations from base period employers, excluding those defined in subparagraph (II) of paragraph (e) of this subsection (3), shall be considered. In the event a claimant has more than one separation from the same adjudicable employer, the most recent separation shall be controlling as to the determination of eligibility for benefits attributable to that employer.

(II) Benefits remaining from a previous full award shall be reduced if a disqualification is granted on the most recent separation from that employer.

(III) Benefits previously reduced due to a disqualification shall become available if a full award is granted on the most recent separation. If a disqualification was previously imposed, then the employee must work ten consecutive work days for the same employer before a full award may be granted on the most recent separation.

(b) An additional claim filed during an existing benefit year because of a recurrence of unemployment shall require the claimant to report all job separations subsequent to the effective date of the initial claim which may be considered by the division. Those job separations that are considered shall result in a full award or a disqualification. If a disqualification is imposed on the most recent separation, a ten-week deferral of benefits shall be imposed.

(c) The gross misconduct of an individual causing his discharge from employment shall result in a disqualification of twenty-six weeks. "Gross misconduct" means conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interests or negligence or harm of such a degree or recurrence as to manifest culpability or wrongful intent, or assault or threatened assault upon supervisors, coworkers, or others at the work site.

(d) Benefits shall not be denied to any individual by reason of cancellation of wage credits or total reduction of his benefit rights for any cause other than discharge for gross misconduct connected with his work, fraud in connection with a claim for benefits, or receipt of disqualifying income.

(e) (I) Benefit payments will be charged against the experience rating accounts of the base period employers in inverse chronological order.

(II) When the total amount of base period wages, as defined in section 8-70-141 (1) (a), paid by a base period employer is less than one thousand dollars:

(A) Such wages shall be included in the computation of wage credits under the provisions of section 8-73-104; and

(B) Benefits paid with respect to such wages shall not be charged against the experience rating account of an employer but will be charged against the fund; and

(C) Separations from such employers, other than the last employer, shall not be adjudicated.

(III) Repealed.

(f) Benefit payments shall not be charged against the experience rating account of an employer and shall be charged against the fund when:

(I) The benefits are paid for unemployment directly caused by a major natural disaster;

(II) The president has declared the event a disaster pursuant to section 102 (2) of the federal "Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act", as amended, 42 U.S.C. sec. 5122(2); and

(III) The benefits are paid to an individual who would have otherwise been eligible for disaster unemployment assistance with respect to that unemployment but for the individual's receipt of unemployment compensation benefits.

(4) Full award. An individual separated from a job shall be given a full award of benefits if any of the following reasons and pertinent conditions related thereto are determined by the division to have existed. The determination of whether or not the separation from employment shall result in a full award of benefits shall be the responsibility of the division. The following reasons shall be considered, along with any other factors that may be pertinent to such determination:

(a) Laid off for lack of work;

(b) (I) The health of the worker is such that the worker is separated from his or her employment and must refrain from working for a period of time that exceeds the greater of the employer's medical leave of absence policy or the provisions of the federal "Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993", if applicable, or the worker's health is such that the worker must seek a new occupation, or the health of the worker or the worker's spouse or dependent child is such that the worker must leave the vicinity of the worker's employment; except that, if the health of the worker or the worker's spouse or dependent child has caused the separation from work, the worker, in order to be entitled to a full award, must have complied with the following requirements: Informed the worker's employer in writing, if the employer has posted or given actual advance notice of this writing requirement, of the condition of the worker's health or the health of the worker's spouse or dependent child prior to separation from employment and allowed the employer the opportunity to make reasonable accommodations for the worker's condition; substantiated the cause by a competent written medical statement issued by a licensed practicing physician prior to the date of separation from employment when so requested by the employer prior to the date of separation from employment or within a reasonable period thereafter; submitted himself or herself or the worker's spouse or dependent child to an examination by a licensed practicing physician selected and paid by the interested employer when so requested by the employer prior to the date of separation from employment or within a reasonable period thereafter; or provided the division, when so requested, with a written medical statement issued by a licensed practicing physician. For purposes of providing the medical statement or submitting to an examination for an employer, "a reasonable period thereafter" shall include the time before adjudication by either a deputy or referee of the division. An award of benefits pursuant to this subparagraph (I) shall include benefits to a worker who, either voluntarily or involuntarily, is separated from employment because of pregnancy and who otherwise satisfies the requirements of this subparagraph (I).

(II) In the event of an injury or sudden illness of the worker which would preclude verbal or written notification of the employer prior to such occurrence, the failure of the worker to notify the employer prior to such occurrence will not in itself constitute a reason for the denial of benefits if the worker has notified the employer at the earliest practicable time after such occurrence. Such notice shall be given no later than two working days following such occurrence unless the worker's physician provides a written statement to the employer within one week of the employer's request that the worker's condition made giving such notice impracticable and substantiating the illness or injury.

(III) Any physician who makes or is present at any examination required under these provisions shall testify as to the results of his examination; except that no such physician shall be required to disclose any confidential communication imparted to him for the purpose of treatment which is not necessary to a proper understanding of the case.

(IV) The off-the-job or on-the-job use of not medically prescribed intoxicating beverages or controlled substances, as defined in section 18-18-102 (5), C.R.S., may be reason for a determination for a full award pursuant to this paragraph (b), but only if:

(A) The worker has declared to the division that he or she is addicted to intoxicating beverages or controlled substances;

(B) The worker has substantiated the addiction by a competent written medical statement issued by a physician licensed to practice medicine pursuant to article 36 of title 12, C.R.S., or has substantiated the successful completion of, or ongoing participation in, a treatment program as described in sub-subparagraph (C) of this subparagraph (IV) within four weeks of the claimant's admission. Such substantiation shall be in writing to the division and signed by an authorized representative of the approved treatment program.

(C) A worker who is not affiliated with an approved treatment program must present to the division within four weeks after the date of the medical statement referred to in sub-subparagraph (B) of this subparagraph (IV), substantiation of registration in a program of corrective action that will commence within four weeks after the date of the medical statement and that is provided by an approved private treatment facility or an approved public treatment facility as defined in section 27-81-102 (2) or (3), C.R.S., or by an alcoholics anonymous program. The substantiation shall be in writing to the division and signed by an authorized representative of the approved treatment program.

(IV.5) Any benefits awarded to the claimant under the provisions of subparagraph (IV) of this paragraph (b) and normally chargeable to the employer will be charged to the fund.

(V) A potentially chargeable employer may notify the division concerning the failure of the worker to participate in or complete an approved program of corrective action to deal with the addiction within fifteen calendar days after the date on which he discovers such a condition to exist. The worker shall be given an opportunity to respond to the employer's allegations. The division, upon review of additional information, may modify a prior decision pursuant to subparagraph (XXIV) of paragraph (e) of subsection (5) of this section.

(c) Unsatisfactory or hazardous working conditions when so determined by the division. In determining whether or not working conditions are unsatisfactory for an individual, the degree of risk involved to his health, safety, and morals, his physical fitness and prior training, his experience and prior earnings, the distance of the work from his residence, and the working conditions of workers engaged in the same or similar work for the same and other employers in the locality shall be considered. For the purpose of this paragraph (c), "hazardous working conditions" means such conditions, as are determined by the division to exist, that could result in a danger to the physical or mental well-being of the worker. In any such determination the division shall consider, but shall not be limited to a consideration of, the following: The safety measures used or the lack thereof and the condition of equipment or lack of proper equipment. No work shall be considered hazardous if the working conditions surrounding a worker's employment are the same or substantially the same as the working conditions generally prevailing among workers performing the same or similar work for other employers engaged in the same or similar type of activity.

(d) A substantial change in the worker's working conditions, said change in working conditions being substantially less favorable to the worker; but requiring a worker to work a different shift shall not be considered a substantial change in working conditions unless such requirement would be a violation of seniority rights which entitle the worker to shift preferential, but in any such case the burden of proving such seniority rights shall rest upon the worker. No change in working conditions shall be considered substantial if it is determined by the division that the conditions prevailing after the change are those generally prevailing for other workers performing the same or similar work.

(e) Unreasonable reduction in the worker's rate of pay as determined by the division. In determining whether or not there has been an unreasonable reduction in the worker's rate of pay, the division shall consider, but shall not be limited to a consideration of, whether or not the reduction in pay was applied by the employer to all workers in the same or similar class or merely to this individual, the general economic conditions prevailing in the state, the financial condition of the employer involved, and whether or not the reduction in wage was agreed to by other workers employed in the same or similar work. The worker's loss of a shift differential or overtime pay shall not be considered an unreasonable reduction in the worker's rate of pay under this paragraph (e), unless such shift differential or overtime pay was guaranteed by the employer.

(f) (I) Due to the particular nature of the building and construction industry, construction workers who quit a construction job to accept a different construction job in any of the following circumstances:

(A) Quitting within thirty days immediately prior to the established termination date of the job quit; and at the time of quitting, the construction worker had been offered and had accepted another construction job and the specific starting date of the new job was within thirty days from the date of quitting the prior job; and the new job offered employment for a longer period of time than remained available on the job quit unless the new job was terminated by a contract cancellation; or

(B) Unsatisfactory working conditions with respect to the distance of his work from his residence when so determined by the division; or

(C) Quitting a construction job that is outside the state of Colorado in order to accept a construction job within the state of Colorado, if such construction worker has maintained a residence in this state; or

(D) Leaving a job to comply with a condition of an apprenticeship assignment of an employer, which condition was imposed to meet the conditions of a joint apprenticeship or other apprenticeship program which is in accordance with requirements for programs registered with the federal government; or

(E) Quitting a job outside the worker's regular apprenticeable trade to return to work in his or her regular apprenticeable trade. For purposes of this paragraph (f), a "regular apprenticeable trade" is a skilled trade or occupation in the construction industry in which, by longstanding and recognized practice of a significant segment of the industry, a worker generally must complete a period of apprenticeship or training pursuant to a joint apprenticeship or other apprenticeship program which is in accordance with requirements for programs registered with the federal government. A worker may have more than one regular apprenticeable trade.

(II) If the provisions of either sub-subparagraph (A), (B), (C), (D), or (E) of subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (f) are met, any benefits normally chargeable to the employer for whom the employee worked immediately prior to accepting the new job will be charged to the fund. Benefits shall not be awarded pursuant to this paragraph (f) unless the worker has subsequently separated from the new job under conditions which would result in a full award under this subsection (4).

(g) After being given the choice by his employer between being terminated, furloughed, or laid off and replacing another worker, the worker has elected to accept a termination, furlough, or layoff;

(h) Quitting employment because of a violation of the written employment contract by the employer; except that before such quitting the worker must have exhausted all remedies provided in such written contract for the settlement of disputes before quitting his job;

(i) Being discharged from employment without the employer informing either the worker or the division, after a request from the division as to the reason for the discharge;

(j) Being physically or mentally unable to perform the work or unqualified to perform the work as a result of insufficient educational attainment or inadequate occupational or professional skills. In cases where an individual quits because of physical or mental inability to perform the work because of domestic abuse, any award of benefits will be made in accordance with paragraph (r) of this subsection (4).

(k) Refusing with good cause to work overtime without reasonable advance notice. Good cause as used in this paragraph (k) shall be restricted to reasonable, compelling personal reasons as determined by the division affecting either the worker or the worker's immediate family.

(l) Being instructed or requested to perform a service or commit an act which is in violation of an ordinance or statute;

(m) Involuntary retirement in accordance with company policy or at the volition of the employer;

(n) Quitting employment under conditions which would not have resulted in a denial of benefits under the provisions of paragraph (b) of subsection (5) of this section;

(o) Quitting employment because of personal harassment by the employer not related to the performance of the job;

(p) (I) Business closure because the employer is, or was, a member of the military reserves or National Guard and was called to active military duty.

(II) Any benefits awarded to the claimant under the provisions of subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (p) and normally chargeable to the employer will be charged to the fund.

(q) Repealed.

(r) (I) Separating from a job because of domestic violence may be reason for a determination for a full award if:

(A) The worker reasonably believes that his or her continued employment would jeopardize the safety of the worker or any member of the worker's immediate family and provides the division with substantiating documentation as described in sub-subparagraph (B) or (C) of this subparagraph (I); or

(B) The worker provides the division with an active or recently issued protective order or other order documenting the domestic violence or a police record documenting recent domestic violence; or

(C) The worker provides the division with a statement substantiating recent domestic violence from a qualified professional from whom the worker has sought assistance for the domestic violence, such as a counselor, shelter worker, member of the clergy, attorney, or health worker.

(II) If the worker does not meet the provisions of subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (r), the worker shall be held to have voluntarily terminated employment for the purposes of determining benefits pursuant to subparagraph (XXII) of paragraph (e) of subsection (5) of this section.

(III) Any benefits awarded to the claimant under the provisions of this paragraph (r) normally chargeable to the employer shall be charged to the fund.

(IV) The director of the division shall adopt rules as necessary to implement and administer this paragraph (r).

(V) As used in this paragraph (r), "immediate family" means the worker's spouse, parent, or minor child under eighteen years of age.

(s) (I) Quitting a job to relocate as a result of the transfer of the individual's spouse to a new place of residence, either within or outside Colorado, from which it is impractical to commute to the place of employment, and upon arrival at the new place of residence, the individual is in all respects available for suitable work. The spouse shall be a member of the United States armed forces who is on active duty as defined in 10 U.S.C. sec. 101 (d) (1), active guard and reserve duty as defined in 10 U.S.C. sec. 101 (d) (6), or active duty pursuant to title 10 or 32 of the United States Code.

(II) Any benefits awarded to the claimant under this paragraph (s) normally chargeable to the employer shall be charged to the fund, and any such benefits shall not affect an employer's premium.

(III) The division shall maintain records regarding the number of individuals claiming and awarded benefits, and the amount of benefits awarded to individuals, pursuant to this paragraph (s). By January 31, 2009, and by each January 31 thereafter, the division shall submit a report to the business affairs and labor committee of the house of representatives and the business, labor, and technology committee of the senate, or their successor committees, detailing the number of claimants and amounts awarded pursuant to this paragraph (s).

(IV) This paragraph (s) is repealed, effective July 1, 2018.

(t) (I) Quitting a job to relocate to a new place of residence, either within or outside Colorado, from which it is impractical to commute to the place of employment because the individual's spouse, who was stationed in Colorado, is killed in combat. Upon arrival at the new place of residence, the individual shall be available, in all respects, for suitable work. The individual's spouse shall have been a member of the United States armed forces who was on active duty as defined in 10 U.S.C. sec. 101 (d) (1), active guard and reserve duty as defined in 10 U.S.C. sec. 101 (d) (6), or active duty pursuant to title 10 or 32 of the United States Code.

(II) The director shall promulgate rules allowing for the waiver of the requirement to actively seek work, pursuant to section 8-73-107 (1) (g), for an individual who is eligible for benefits pursuant to this paragraph (t).

(III) Any benefits awarded to the claimant under this paragraph (t) normally chargeable to the employer shall be charged to the fund, and any such benefits shall not affect an employer's premium.

(IV) The division shall maintain records regarding the number of individuals claiming and awarded benefits, and the amount of benefits awarded to individuals, pursuant to this paragraph (t). By January 31, 2010, and by each January 31 thereafter, the division shall submit a report to the business affairs and labor committee of the house of representatives and the business, labor, and technology committee of the senate, or their successor committees, detailing the number of claimants and amounts awarded pursuant to this paragraph (t).

(V) This paragraph (t) is repealed, effective July 1, 2019.

(u) (I) Separating from a job due to a change in location of the employment of the worker's spouse that necessitates a new place of residence for the worker, either within or outside Colorado, from which it is impractical to commute to the worker's place of employment, and upon arrival at the new place of residence, the individual is in all respects available for suitable work. The director of the division shall adopt rules as necessary to implement and administer this paragraph (u).

(II) Any benefits awarded to the claimant under this paragraph (u) normally chargeable to the employer shall be charged to the fund.

(v) (I) Separating from a job because a member of the worker's immediate family is suffering from an illness that requires the worker to care for the immediate family member for a period that exceeds the greater of the employer's medical leave of absence policy or the provisions of the federal "Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993" if the worker meets the following requirements:

(A) The worker informed his or her employer, if the employer has posted or given actual advance notice of the requirement to so inform the employer, of the condition of the worker's immediate family member; and

(B) The worker provides the division, when requested, a competent statement verifying the condition of the worker's immediate family member.

(II) Separating from a job because a member of the worker's immediate family is suffering from a disability that requires the worker to care for the immediate family member for a period that exceeds the greater of the employer's medical leave of absence policy or the provisions of the federal "Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993" if the worker meets the following requirements:

(A) The worker informed his or her employer, if the employer has posted or given actual advance notice of the requirement to so inform the employer, of the condition of the worker's immediate family member; and

(B) The worker provides the division, when requested, a competent statement verifying the condition of the worker's immediate family member.

(III) The director of the division shall adopt rules as necessary to implement and administer this paragraph (v).

(IV) Any benefits awarded to the claimant under this paragraph (v) normally chargeable to the employer shall be charged to the fund, and any such benefits shall not affect an employer's premium.

(V) As used in this paragraph (v):

(A) "Disability" means all types of verified disability, including, without limitation, mental and physical disabilities; permanent and temporary disabilities; and partial and total disabilities.

(B) "Illness" means verified poor health or sickness.

(C) "Immediate family member" means the worker's spouse, parent, or minor child under eighteen years of age.

(5) Disqualification. (a) An individual who refuses to accept suitable work or refuses a referral to suitable work shall be disqualified from receiving benefits for a period of twenty weeks beginning with the week in which the refusal occurred, and his total benefits shall be reduced by an amount equal to the number of weeks of disqualification multiplied by his weekly benefit amount. The determination of whether or not an individual has refused to accept suitable work or refused to accept a referral to suitable work shall be the responsibility of the division.

(b) The refusal of suitable work or refusal of referral to suitable work at any time after the last separation from employment that occurred prior to the time of filing the initial claim shall be considered in determining the direct and proximate cause of the separation. In determining whether or not any work is suitable for an individual, the degree of risk involved to his health, safety, and morals, his physical fitness and prior training, his experience and prior earnings, his length of unemployment and prospects for securing work in his customary occupation, and the distance of the available local work from his residence shall be considered. Notwithstanding any other provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title, no work shall be deemed suitable and benefits shall not be denied under articles 70 to 82 of this title to any otherwise eligible individual for refusing to accept new work under any of the following conditions:

(I) If the position offered is vacant due directly to a strike, lockout, or other labor dispute;

(II) If the wages, hours, or other conditions of the work offered are substantially less favorable to the individual than those prevailing for similar work in the locality;

(III) If as a condition of being employed the individual would be required to join a company union or to resign from or refrain from joining any bona fide labor organization.

(c) An award shall not be denied to an individual more than once for failure to apply for or to accept the same or a similar position with the same employer.

(d) Repealed.

(e) Subject to the maximum reduction consistent with federal law, and insofar as consistent with interstate agreements, if a separation from employment occurs for any of the following reasons, the employer from whom such separation occurred shall not be charged for benefits which are attributable to such employment and, because any payment of benefits which are attributable to such employment out of the fund as defined in section 8-70-103 (13) shall be deemed to have an adverse effect on such employer's account in such fund, no payment of such benefits shall be made from such fund:

(I) Quitting employment because of dissatisfaction with prevailing rates of pay in that industry, standard hours of work, standard working conditions, or working conditions which generally prevail for other workers performing the same or similar work, regularly assigned duties, or opportunities for advancement;

(II) Quitting employment because of dissatisfaction with a supervisor with no evidence to indicate that the supervision is other than that reasonably to be expected in the proper performance of work;

(III) Quitting to marry, irrespective of whether or not such marriage occurs subsequent to the separation from employment;

(IV) Quitting to move to another area as a matter of personal preference, unless such move was pursuant to other provisions of subsection (4) of this section;

(V) Quitting to seek other work; or quitting to accept other employment if such employment does not meet the requirements of paragraph (f) of subsection (4) of this section;

(VI) Insubordination such as: Deliberate disobedience of a reasonable instruction of an employer or an employer's duly authorized representative, refusal or failure to obtain, maintain, or renew licenses, certifications, credentials, conditions, or other professional designations which are necessary to permit the claimant to perform a job, failure to keep in good standing with the union because of nonpayment of dues, or repeated acts of agitation against employer working conditions, pay scale, policies, or procedures; except that orderly action on the part of an employee or through union negotiation shall not be so considered if such action does not interfere with work performance;

(VII) Violation of a statute or of a company rule which resulted or could have resulted in serious damage to the employer's property or interests or could have endangered the life of the worker or other persons, such as: Mistreatment of patients in a hospital or nursing home; serving liquor to minors; selling prescription items without prescriptions from licensed doctors; immoral conduct which has an effect on worker's job status; divulging of confidential information which resulted or could have resulted in damage to the employer's interests; failure to observe conspicuously posted safety rules; intentional falsification of expense accounts, inventories, or other records or reports whether or not substantial harm or injury was incurred; or removal or attempted removal of employer's property from the premises of the employer without proper authority;

(VIII) Off-the-job use of not medically prescribed intoxicating beverages or controlled substances, as defined in section 18-18-102 (5), C.R.S., to a degree resulting in interference with job performance;

(IX) On-the-job use of or distribution of not medically prescribed intoxicating beverages or controlled substances, as defined in section 18-18-102 (5), C.R.S.;

(IX.5) The presence in an individual's system, during working hours, of not medically prescribed controlled substances, as defined in section 18-18-102 (5), C.R.S., or of a blood alcohol level at or above 0.04 percent, or at or above an applicable lower level as set forth by federal statute or regulation, as evidenced by a drug or alcohol test administered pursuant to a statutory or regulatory requirement or a previously established, written drug or alcohol policy of the employer and conducted by a medical facility or laboratory licensed or certified to conduct such tests;

(X) Incarceration after conviction of a violation of any law, or loss of license, certification, credential, condition, or other professional designation that is essential to job performance;

(XI) Theft;

(XII) Assaulting or threatening to assault under circumstances such as to cause a reasonably emotionally stable person to become concerned as to his physical safety;

(XIII) Willful neglect or damage to an employer's property or interests;

(XIV) Rudeness, insolence, or offensive behavior of the worker not reasonably to be countenanced by a customer, supervisor, or fellow worker;

(XV) Careless or shoddy work. In determining whether or not work has been performed in a careless or shoddy manner, the division shall consider the length of time the worker has been performing the work satisfactorily and industry standards for such work. No work shall be considered careless or shoddy that comes within the area of reasonable mistakes and errors normally made by workers engaging in the same or similar work.

(XVI) Failure to properly safeguard, maintain, or account for the employer's property when this obligation is an essential part of the job;

(XVII) Taking unauthorized vacations or failing to return to work as scheduled after an authorized vacation or other leave of absence unless such failure to return to work was caused by circumstances which would result in a full award under the provisions of this section;

(XVIII) Refusal without good cause to work a different shift when no violation of seniority rights, as provided in paragraph (d) of subsection (4) of this section, is involved;

(XIX) Refusal without good cause to accept transfer to another department which does not involve a substantial change in working conditions or a substantial loss in wages;

(XX) For other reasons including, but not limited to, excessive tardiness or absenteeism, sleeping or loafing on the job, or failure to meet established job performance or other defined standards, unless such failure is attributable to factors listed in paragraph (b) of subsection (4) of this section;

(XXI) Lack of transportation. Transportation shall be the responsibility of the worker; if, however, in the opinion of the division, it would have been unreasonable to require the worker to continue in employment with his same employer at a new jobsite substantially less accessible or substantially more distant from the worker's residence than the site at which he had worked, benefits shall not be denied because of his refusal to continue in employment at the new site.

(XXII) Quitting under conditions involving personal reasons, unless the personal reasons were compelling pursuant to other provisions of subsection (4) of this section;

(XXIII) Voluntary retirement;

(XXIV) Failure to participate in or failure to complete an approved program of corrective action to deal with an addiction pursuant to subparagraph (IV) of paragraph (b) of subsection (4) of this section. The determination of whether or not an individual has failed to participate in or complete an approved program of corrective action to deal with an addiction shall be the responsibility of the division. In making such a decision, the division may consider extenuating circumstances for the individual's failure to participate in or complete the approved program of corrective action which would justify a decision not to disqualify the individual from receiving benefits, but only if the individual presents a program of corrective action in accordance with sub-subparagraph (C) of subparagraph (IV) of paragraph (b) of subsection (4) of this section. The only extenuating circumstances which may be considered by the division shall be whether the individual suffered an illness not related to the addiction or received incapacitating injuries in an accident or whether the death of an immediate family member of the individual occurred which contributed to the failure of the individual to participate in or complete the program of corrective action. The burden of proof that an extenuating circumstance existed lies with the claimant.

(f) Repealed.

(g) If a separation from employment subject to adjudication under this subsection (5) occurs for any of the reasons enumerated in paragraph (e) of this subsection (5) and such separation is the most recent separation from employment, any benefits to which the claimant is entitled shall be deferred for ten weeks. In the event that the last separation does not include wages in the base period and the job separation results in a disqualification, the receipt of any benefits from qualifying employment in the base period shall be deferred for a period of ten weeks from the effective date of the claim. A subsequent initial claim in which such wages are within the base period shall result in the maximum reduction of benefits attributable to such employment consistent with federal law and interstate agreements. Such deferral shall begin with the effective date of the valid initial or additional claim. As used in this paragraph (g), "most recent separation from employment" means the claimant's last employment prior to filing a valid initial or additional claim.

(h) Repealed.

(6) to (9) Repealed.

Annotator's notes. (1) In light of the repeal and reenactment of this section in 1976, annotations from cases pertaining to this section as it read prior to 1976 have been treated as decided under former law. Moreover, the annotations to this section have been modified and updated to reflect various amendments and repeals, especially the repeal in 1977 of former subsections (7) and (8), relating to optional and special awards; the transfer in 1977 of the provisions of former subsection (6), relating to making of no awards, to subsection (5), relating to reduced awards, and amendment in 1984 of that subsection (5) to make it pertain to disqualification from benefits; the repeal in 1984 of former subsection (8) (added in 1979), relating to denial of benefits; and the repeal of former subsection (9), relating to employer's release from charge for benefits being paid following certain types of employee separation.

(2) Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the enactment of 1986 Senate Bill No. 12 which abolished said commission and transferred its powers, duties, and functions under this section to the director of the division.

Constitutionally impermissible application. While the employment security act is neutral on its face, application of the act to defendant had the effect of forcing him to choose between fidelity to his religious beliefs and the forfeiture of benefits on the one hand and abandonment of said beliefs to accept suitable work on the other. Therefore, in its application, the act offended the constitutional requirement for governmental neutrality because it unduly burdened defendant's free exercise of religion. Engraff v. Indus. Comm'n, 678 P.2d 564 (Colo. App. 1983).

Constitutionality of classifications within this section. In view of the general policy and intent of this section as spelled out by the general assembly, there is no unconstitutional denial of equal protection of the law by reason of the classifications adopted by the general assembly; they are reasonable and based on proper justifiable distinctions. Cottrell Clothing Co. v. Teets, 139 Colo. 558, 342 P.2d 1016 (1959); Miller v. Indus. Comm'n, 173 Colo. 476, 480 P.2d 565 (1971).

Underlying principle. The Colorado program of unemployment insurance is based on the principle that only those persons who are willing and able to work are entitled to unemployment benefits. Sylvara v. Indus. Comm'n, 191 Colo. 92, 550 P.2d 868 (1976) (decided under former law).

State interest preserved. The state has a legitimate interest in providing unemployment benefits only to conscientious persons. But that interest is preserved by the statutory requirement that in order to receive benefits a claimant must be available for work and actively seeking employment. Kistler v. Indus. Comm'n, 192 Colo. 172, 556 P.2d 895 (1976) (decided under former law).

Unemployment compensation acts are to be liberally construed to further their remedial and beneficent purposes. Andersen v. Indus. Comm'n, 167 Colo. 281, 447 P.2d 221 (1968); Montano v. Indus. Comm'n, 171 Colo. 92, 464 P.2d 518 (1970); Tague v. Coors Porcelain Co., 30 Colo. App. 158, 490 P.2d 96 (1971); Harding v. Indus. Comm'n, 183 Colo. 52, 515 P.2d 95 (1973); Anyon v. Indus. Comm'n, 42 Colo. App. 88, 589 P.2d 1390 (1979); Colo. Div. of Emp. & Train. v. Hewlett, 777 P.2d 704 (Colo., 1989).

But it is not the function of "liberal" construction to twist the facts in order to reach a result favorable to an employee. Montano v. Indus. Comm'n, 171 Colo. 92, 464 P.2d 518 (1970); Harding v. Indus. Comm'n, 183 Colo. 52, 515 P.2d 95 (1973); Pierce v. Indus. Comm'n, 195 Colo. 10, 576 P.2d 1012 (1978).

Entitlement should not be confused with eligibility. Where claimant did not fulfill eligibility requirements of § 8-73-107, claimant was disqualified from receiving benefits. McClafflin v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 126 P.3d 288 (Colo. App. 2005).

The intent of the general assembly is to provide unemployment benefits for those who are "unemployed through no fault of their own". Donnell v. Indus. Comm'n, 149 Colo. 228, 368 P.2d 777 (1962); Andersen v. Indus. Comm'n, 167 Colo. 281, 447 P.2d 221 (1968); Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Dept. of Labor & Emp., 40 Colo. App. 381, 579 P.2d 651 (1978), rev'd on other grounds, 197 Colo. 335, 592 P.2d 808 (1979); Int'l. Typographical Union v. Indus. Comm'n, 44 Colo. App. 29, 609 P.2d 634 (Colo. App. 1980); Parker v. Daniels Motors, Inc., 738 P.2d 68 (Colo. App. 1987); Nielson v. AMI Indus., Inc., 759 P.2d 834 (Colo. App. 1988); Colo. Div. of Emp. & Train. v. Hewlett, 777 P.2d 704 (Colo. 1989).

It is the expressed intent of the general assembly that unemployment insurance is for the benefit of persons who become unemployed through no fault of their own. Harding v. Indus. Comm'n, 183 Colo. 52, 515 P.2d 95 (1973) (decided under former law).

The intent of the general assembly is that each eligible individual is entitled to a full award of benefits if he is unemployed through no fault of his own. Zelingers v. Indus. Comm'n, 679 P.2d 608 (Colo. App. 1984).

However, there is a specific exception to this with regard to pregnancy if the other requirements of subsection (4)(b)(I) of this section are met. Frontier Airlines, Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 734 P.2d 142 (Colo. App. 1986), cert. dismissed, 738 P.2d 1185 (Colo. 1987).

Claimant is entitled to a determination whether he was "at fault" for his separation notwithstanding the applicability of the disqualifying provisions of § 8-73-105.5. To determine otherwise would abrogate the overriding legislative policy that unemployment benefits are to be awarded only to those claimants who are unemployed through no fault of their own. No legislative intent to treat unemployment compensation claimants who work for temporary help agencies differently from other unemployment compensation claimants with regard to the issue of fault. Accordingly, matter must be remanded to panel for it to consider "fault" issue and, based on its resolution of that issue, to enter a new order on whether claimant is entitled to benefits. Velo v. Employment Solutions Pers., 988 P.2d 1139 (Colo. App. 1998).

The unemployment law is intended to provide a speedy determination of eligibility through a simplified administrative procedure. Colo. Div. of Emp. & Train. v. Hewlett, 777 P.2d 704 (Colo. 1989).

Unless reason for discharge comes within one of grounds provided in this section. One who is discharged from his employment is entitled to unemployment compensation unless the reason for his discharge comes within one of the grounds provided for the act. Sayers v. Am. Janitorial Serv., Inc., 162 Colo. 292, 425 P.2d 693 (1967); Salida Sch. Dist. R-32-J v. Morrison, 732 P.2d 1160 (Colo. 1987); Colo. Div. of Emp. & Train. v. Hewlett, 777 P.2d 704 (Colo. 1989).

Matters within discretion of general assembly. The establishment of reasonable classifications of workers, the grounds upon which compensation may be awarded, the standards of eligibility and disqualification, and the formula by which distributions are to be made are all matters within the sound discretion of the general assembly. Miller v. Indus. Comm'n, 173 Colo. 476, 480 P.2d 565 (1971).

Using standards adopted by the general assembly, the office is delegated the responsibility of determining whether, under all circumstances from a case, benefits are to be awarded for a particular separation from employment. Sch. Dist. No. 1 v. Fredrickson, 812 P.2d 723 (Colo. App. 1991).

If decision of office as to which section of Employment Security Act applies is supported by substantial evidence and inferences drawn therefrom, decision will not be disturbed on appeal. Sch. Dist. No. 1 v. Fredrickson, 812 P.2d 723 (Colo. App. 1991).

Commission has wide latitude to determine which provisions apply. Some unemployment benefit cases fall within two or more provisions of this statute, and in such instances, the commission has wide latitude in determining which section will be applied. Mattison v. Indus. Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 203, 516 P.2d 1143

(1973) (decided under former law); Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 697 P.2d 418 (Colo. App. 1985); Southwest Forest Indus. v. Indus. Comm'n, 719 P.2d 1098 (Colo. App. 1986).

And must exercise discretion in executing legislative intent. In order for the commission to carry out the legislative intent as expressed in subsections (1) and (5) it must at times exercise discretion in determining whether to grant a claimant a reduced award. The intent of the general assembly to confer such discretion on the commission is reflected by the 1979 amendment adding subsection (5)(s) to this section. Sims v. Indus. Comm'n, 627 P.2d 1107 (Colo. 1981); Dunn v. Indus. Comm'n, 640 P.2d 1146 (Colo. 1982).

Commission is not at liberty to apply the converse of a section of this statute in making a determination of benefits. Mattison v. Indus. Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 203, 516 P.2d 1143 (1973) (decided under former law).

It is the reason for separation that determines which subsection applies. Kortz v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 411, 557 P.2d 842 (1976) (decided under former law).

The reason for separation from employment determines the amount of benefits to which a claimant is entitled. Stavros v. Indus. Comm'n, 631 P.2d 1192 (Colo. App. 1981).

If claimant meets initial burden of establishing eligibility by filing a claim reflecting a discharge from covered employment, then employer has burden to rebut claimant's prima facie case by proving disqualification. Yellow Front Stores v. Indus. Comm'n, 694 P.2d 882 (Colo. App. 1985).

The claimant has the initial burden of proof to establish a prima facie case of eligibility for benefits. If the initial burden is met, the burden shifts to the employer to establish the statutory disqualification of benefits. Colo. Div. of Emp. & Train. v. Hewlett, 777 P.2d 704 (Colo. 1989); Ward v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 916 P.2d 605 (Colo. App. 1995).

Procedures for a claimant to establish a prima facie case of eligibility at a hearing vary depending on whether the claimant was awarded or disqualified from receipt of benefits by the deputy. If the deputy found that the claimant's claim documentation established a prima facie case, the claimant may simply rely upon the documentation at the hearing. If not, the claimant must make out a prima facie case at the hearing. Ward v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 916 P.2d 605 (Colo. App. 1995).

Hearing officer has discretion to determine the order and manner of presentation of witnesses and evidence. Ward v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 916 P.2d 605 (Colo. App. 1995).

Responsibility for separation from employment is determination of fact. Sims v. Indus. Comm'n, 627 P.2d 1107 (Colo. 1981).

The reason for separation from employment is a question of fact, and the commission's determination in this regard may not be altered on review, if it is supported by the evidence. Mohawk Data Sciences Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 660 P.2d 922 (Colo. App. 1983); Jones v. Indus. Comm'n, 705 P.2d 530 (Colo. App. 1985); Frontier Airlines, Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 719 P.2d 739 (Colo. App. 1986).

The word "fault" is not limited to something worthy of censure but must be construed as meaning failure or volition. Denver Post Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 677 P.2d 436 (Colo. App. 1984).

The qualifying and disqualifying sections are not couched in terms of fault. Even if one of the disqualifying sections applies, a claimant may still be entitled to benefits if the totality of the circumstances show the claimant was not at fault in his separation. Collins v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 813 P.2d 804 (Colo. App. 1991).

"Fault" under the statute is not necessarily related to culpability, but must be construed as requiring a volitional act. Zelingers v. Indus. Comm'n, 679 P.2d 608 (Colo. App. 1984); Pepsi-Cola Bottling v. Colo. Div. of Emp., 754 P.2d 1382 (Colo. App. 1988).

And in the absence of a volitional act, there can be no "fault" on claimant's part within the meaning of the unemployment statute. Frontier Airlines, Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 719 P.2d 739 (Colo. App. 1986).

"Fault" means that the claimant, at a minimum, must have performed some volitional act resulting in the discharge from employment. Nielson v. AMI Indus., Inc., 759 P.2d 834 (Colo. App. 1988).

A claimant may still be entitled to benefits if the totality of the circumstances establishes that the claimant's separation occurred through "no fault" of his own, even if the findings of the hearing officer support the application of one of the disqualifying sections of the statute. Velo v. Employment Solutions Pers., 953 P.2d 1295 (Colo. App. 1998).

Claimant is entitled to a determination whether he was "at fault" for his separation even though he was disqualified pursuant to the provisions of § 8-73-105.5 and not directly under one of the statutory disqualifying subsections of this section. Velo v. Employment Solutions Pers., 953 P.2d 1295 (Colo. App. 1998).

A finding of "willful intent" is not necessary before a claimant may be determined to be "at fault" for his own job termination. "Fault" is not necessarily related to culpability, but only requires a volitional act. Richards v. Winter Park Recreational Ass'n, 919 P.2d 933 (Colo. App. 1996).

The determination of fault in a job separation is a question of fact to be determined by the commission, and it will not be set aside if it is supported by substantial evidence. Wilson v.

Indus. Comm'n, 730 P.2d 911 (Colo. App. 1986).

Function of hearsay. Though hearsay evidence may be received in an unemployment benefits proceeding, it alone cannot be the basis of the commission's order. Allen v. Indus. Comm'n, 36 Colo. App. 330, 540 P.2d 358 (1975) (decided under former law).

Hearsay evidence, though admissible in administrative hearings, cannot alone support an order of the industrial commission. Romero v. Indus. Comm'n, 616 P.2d 992 (Colo. App. 1980).

Hearsay may have probative value and should be considered as corroborative evidence. Yellow Front Stores v. Indus. Comm'n, 694 P.2d 882 (Colo. App. 1985).

Hearsay evidence alone may be basis of determination in an unemployment compensation proceeding but only if such evidence is reliable and trustworthy and possesses probative value commonly accepted by reasonable and prudent persons in the conduct of their affairs. Flower Stop Mktg. Corp. v. Kilgore, 762 P.2d 747 (Colo. App. 1988), aff'd in part and rev'd in part on other grounds, 782 P.2d 13 (Colo. 1989) (applying Kirke v. State Dept. of Rev., 724 P.2d 77 (Colo. 1986) and overruling the "residuum rule" holding in Sims v. Indus. Comm'n, 627 P.2d 1107 (Colo. 1981) and subsequent cases which applied such rule).

Factors useful in determining whether hearsay evidence is reliable, trustworthy, and of some probative value are set forth in Indus. Claim Appeals Office v. Flower Stop Mktg. Corp., 782 P.2d 13 (Colo. 1989).

Evidence of specific illness inadmissible in unemployment compensation hearing where claimant did not provide employer with prior notice that a specific illness was the reason for claimant's failure to report to work. Sands v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 801 P.2d 12 (Colo. App. 1990).

Factual defense to application of subsection (5)(e)(XVII) may not be raised if not stated in claimant's notice of appeal. Sands v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 801 P.2d 12 (Colo. App. 1990).

There must be disclosure prior to the hearing of one party's intent to dispute the other party's specific factual allegations. Monarrez v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 835 P.2d 607 (Colo. App. 1992).

Resolution of conflicting evidence is a matter properly left to the commission in its fact-finding role. Mohawk Data Sciences Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 660 P.2d 922 (Colo. App. 1983).

The commission is not held to a crystalline standard when it articulates its findings of fact. Allmendinger v. Indus. Comm'n, 40 Colo. App. 210, 571 P.2d 741 (1977) (decided under former law); Muhlenkamp v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 802 P.2d 1127 (Colo. App. 1990).

And lack of clarity in the factual findings of an order does not require a remand. Jones v. Indus. Comm'n, 705 P.2d 530 (Colo. App. 1985).

Where the decision is justified, it may not be set aside "on the technicality of unclarity of expression on the part of the commission". Allmendinger v. Indus. Comm'n, 40 Colo. App. 210, 571 P.2d 741 (1977) (decided under former law); Muhlenkamp v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 802 P.2d 1127 (Colo. App. 1990).

Conclusion permitted by substantial evidence not disturbed on review. Where substantial evidence permits the conclusion drawn by the commission, it will not be disturbed on review. Allmendinger v. Indus. Comm'n, 40 Colo. App. 210, 571 P.2d 741 (1977) (decided under former law); Sims v. Indus. Comm'n, 627 P.2d 1107 (Colo. 1981).

Where evidence is conflicting or susceptible to conflicting inferences, decisions based on a choice between plausible inferences from such evidence are to be affirmed. McGinn v. Indus. Comm'n, 31 Colo. App. 6, 496 P.2d 1080 (1972); Jones v. Indus. Comm'n, 705 P.2d 530 (Colo. App. 1985).

Employer's remedies for defalcation by claimant. Where it is admitted that claimant voluntarily left employment with petitioner for a better job and so that award of benefits based on the better job section was appropriate, the employer must rely on other available remedies to obtain redress from any defalcation by claimant. Kortz v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 411, 557 P.2d 842 (1976) (decided under former law).

Claimant's failure to pursue employer's grievance procedures should not be dispositive of her eligibility for benefits. The pursuit of such a course of action is not required by statute as a prerequisite to an award of benefits. Larsen-Oldaker v. Indus. Comm'n, 735 P.2d 209 (Colo. App. 1987).

Determination of monetary eligibility is not a final disposition of entitlement. Although a finding that a claimant is not monetarily eligible to receive benefits is a final disposition, a finding of monetary eligibility does not mean that a claimant is eligible to receive benefits. Arteaga v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 781 P.2d 98 (Colo. App. 1989).

Once claimant's eligibility is decided, a determination that claimant was not entitled to benefits is not barred by the doctrine of res judicata. Res judicata is only applicable when a determination of a course of action in one legal proceeding is being used to foreclose a different determination of the same cause of action in a second subsequent different legal proceeding. Arteaga v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 781 P.2d 98 (Colo. App. 1989).

Error not to be inferred from failure to enter written findings on every factor raised in deciding whether claimant had shown good cause for raising new issue at hearing, where findings indicated that the relevant issues had been considered. Sands v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 801 P.2d 12 (Colo. App. 1990).

Equal protection challenge to subsection (4)(f) which singles out construction workers for special consideration must fail. As a statutory classification, the provision is valid unless there is no rational basis for the distinction or it is not rationally related to a legitimate state interest. Because the legislature declared that the statute was enacted because construction workers are subjected to working conditions not generally encountered by other employees, the legislature has determined that there is a rational basis for treating construction workers differently for unemployment compensation purposes. The statutory exception is therefore rationally related to the legitimate state interest of addressing the problems associated with the construction industry and does not violate equal protection. Getts v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 804 P.2d 282 (Colo. App. 1990).

Police report which averred that claimant had made nuisance telephone calls to the home of one of the employer's supervisors was valid basis for discharge and disqualification for benefits. Lucero v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 812 P.2d 1191 (Colo. App. 1991).

Subsection (4)(f) on its face does not operate to deny equal protection to nonconstruction workers. The difference in treatment of construction and nonconstruction workers is rationally related to differences arising from the nature of the construction industry. Baldwin v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 813 P.2d 807 (Colo. App. 1991) (distinguishing Higgs v. Western Landscaping & Sprinkler Sys., Inc., 804 P.2d 161 (Colo. 1991)).

II. DISQUALIFICATION FOR BENEFITS.

Commission error. Commission erred in entering order of disqualification for benefits after July 1, 1981, based on repealed subsection (5)(x). Nazzaro v. Indus. Comm'n, 671 P.2d 983 (Colo. App. 1983).

An objective standard must be applied in analyzing a disqualification under subsection (5)(e)(VI) for insubordination. Under that standard, the panel must use its independent judgment to determine whether, under the particular facts and circumstances of each case, the request that claimant refused was one that a reasonable person would have refused. Bell v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 93 P.3d 584 (Colo. App. 2004).

Presence of medical marijuana in an individual's system during working hours is a ground for disqualification from unemployment benefits under this section. Medical use of marijuana by an employee holding a registry card under § 14 of article XVIII of the state constitution does not constitute the use of "medically prescribed controlled substances" within the meaning of subsection (5)(e)(IX.5). Beinor

v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 262 P.3d 970 (Colo. App. 2011).

Although medical certification permitting the possession and use of marijuana may insulate claimant from state criminal prosecution, it does not preclude claimant from being denied unemployment benefits based on a separation from employment for testing positive for marijuana in violation of an employer's express zero-tolerance drug policy. Beinor v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 262 P.3d 970 (Colo. App. 2011).

Disqualification was established pursuant to subsection (5)(e)(XX) when an employer established that the claimant did not do the job for which he was hired and which he knew was expected of him. Pabst v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 833 P.2d 64 (Colo. App. 1992); Richards v. Winter Park Recreational Ass'n, 919 P.2d 933 (Colo. App. 1996).

Disqualification pursuant to subsection (5)(e)(XX) is warranted for claimant who was aware of employer's drug testing requirement and who tested positive for use of cocaine. Bd. of Water Comm'rs v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 881 P.2d 476 (Colo. App. 1994).

Unemployment insurance claimant was properly disqualified from receiving benefits where he was discharged for unsatisfactory performance and where it was established that he did not do the job for which he was hired and which he knew was expected of him, despite the fact that he was not explicitly warned that his job was in jeopardy. Pabst v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 833 P.2d 64 (Colo. App. 1992).

Disqualification was established pursuant to subsection (5)(e)(VI) where claimant directly disobeyed an order of his employer, notwithstanding that the employer did not follow all progressive disciplinary procedures before discharging claimant, because claimant received adequate notice that his conduct had placed him at risk of losing his job and he nonetheless persisted. Keil v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 847 P.2d 235 (Colo. App. 1993).

"Fellow workers" who fall within the ambit of the statute are not limited to those who are employed by the same employer as the claimant. Tilley v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 924 P.2d 1173 (Colo. App. 1996).

A finding that a claimant quit because of dissatisfaction with standard working conditions is proper only when there has been no substantial change in claimant's work environment, duties, and conditions. Wagon v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 787 P.2d 668 (Colo. App. 1990).

Employer may not rely on information it received subsequent to termination of employee to justify termination and render the employee ineligible for unemployment compensation benefits. Pepsi-Cola Bottling v. Colo. Div. of Emp., 754 P.2d 1382 (Colo. App. 1988).

Payment of unemployment compensation subject to disqualification. This section authorizes payment of unemployment compensation to employee who left employment voluntarily without good cause or extenuating circumstances, subject to disqualification of benefits for not less than 13 nor more than 25 weeks. Morrison Rd. Bar, Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 138 Colo. 16, 328 P.2d 1076 (1958); Donnell v. Indus. Comm'n, 149 Colo. 228, 368 P.2d 777 (1962).

And disqualification does not violate state or federal constitution. This section which purports to give to the commission the power to disqualify "for not less than ten weeks nor more than thirty-two and one-half weeks" is not repugnant to and does not violate art. V, § 1, Colo. Const., and the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States in that the provisions of said statute constitute an unlawful delegation of legislative power and fail to set forth adequate standards. Donnell v. Indus. Comm'n, 149 Colo. 228, 368 P.2d 777 (1962).

Disqualifying provisions are not mandatory if the totality of the circumstances establishes that a claimant was unemployed through no fault of his own. Zelingers v. Indus. Comm'n, 679 P.2d 608 (Colo. App. 1984); Frontier Airlines, Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 719 P.2d 739 (Colo. App. 1986); Cole v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 964 P.2d 617 (Colo. App. 1998).

When an employee's job performance gives rise to a "last chance" settlement agreement, and the employee refuses to sign the agreement, the employee may be disqualified from receiving unemployment benefits. Such disqualification may be premised on the actions and omissions that gave rise to the employer's original dissatisfaction with the employee's performance not on the refusal to sign the agreement. Bell v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 93 P.3d 584 (Colo. App. 2004).

Where claimant refused to provide written verification explaining her unexcused absence, her unemployment benefits were properly denied pursuant to subsection (5)(e)(VI). Stevenson v. Indus. Comm'n, 705 P.2d 1020 (Colo. App. 1985).

Limiting period of disqualification does not deprive employer of due process. Limiting the disqualification of benefits of disqualified persons to a maximum of 16 weeks does not deprive an employer of his property without due process of law. Cottrell Clothing Co. v. Teets, 139 Colo. 558, 342 P.2d 1016 (1959).

The concept of fault means a volitional act, and is not necessarily related to culpability. Thus, in the absence of a volitional act by the employee, there can be no fault on the employee's part within the meaning of the unemployment statute. Rulon v. Indus. Comm'n, 728 P.2d 739 (Colo. App. 1986).

Disqualification under subsection (5)(e)(XI) for theft is allowed whether or not the theft occurs in the course of employment. Jefferson County v. Kiser, 876 P.2d 122 (Colo. App. 1994).

Disqualification under subsection (5)(e)(IX.5) for marijuana use requires employer to show that testing laboratory was licensed or certified. Absent some form of waiver or stipulation by claimant, this requirement may not be deemed inapplicable or satisfied without evidentiary proof. Sosa v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 259 P.3d 558 (Colo. App. 2011).

Absence of specific finding regarding value of item allegedly taken by employee does not preclude disqualification for theft under subsection (5)(e)(XI), however, to disqualify employee for theft, employer must establish by a preponderance of the evidence the mens rea required in theft or larceny cases. Start v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 224 P.3d 1056 (Colo. App. 2009).

A claimant is not disqualified for benefits under subsection (5)(e)(XXII) (quitting for personal reasons) if she is otherwise eligible for benefits under one of the other provisions of this section. Colo. Div. of Emp. & Train. v. Hewlett, 777 P.2d 704 (Colo. 1989).

No error in determination by hearing officer that disqualifying provisions of subsection (5)(e)(XXII) of this section and § 8-73-105.5 (5) are applicable to claimant. On the last day of his final assignment, employer temporary help contracting firm notified claimant that his assignment was ending. Subsequently, employer offered claimant additional assignments which claimant did not accept. There is no evidence that claimant informed his employer that he was available for further assignments. Moreover, claimant did not contact employer in accordance with the written contract he had received. Accordingly, court upheld that portion of hearing officer's order stating that claimant was responsible for his separation and should be disqualified from the receipt of his unemployment benefits pursuant to subsection (5)(e)(XXII) of this section and § 8-73-105.5 (5). Velo v. Employment Solutions Pers., 988 P.2d 1139 (Colo. App. 1998).

An employee may not be denied benefits under subsection (1)(a) absent some "fault" on the employee's behalf, i.e., that it was a "volitional" act on the employee's part that caused the employment termination and the circumstances surrounding the termination must be one of those that is specifically described in the statute as being disqualifying. Goddard v. E G & G Rocky Flats, Inc., 888 P.2d 369 (Colo. App. 1994).

Referee's conclusion that claimant's termination was "under conditions involving per- sonal reasons," was unsupported by record showing that claimant's employment termination had been determined by the employer to be necessary and imminent, that claimant had been given choice between being involuntarily laid off or accepting a voluntary layoff, and that claimant was told his chances were good that he would receive unemployment compensation. Goddard v. E G & G Rocky Flats, Inc., 888 P.2d 369 (Colo. App. 1994).

As a matter of law, if an employee is given notification of a pending layoff, but is offered severance pay in return for a waiver of reemployment rights, which the employee accepts, the resulting employment termination cannot be considered to be the "fault" of the employee. The employment separation in such case must be viewed as no more the voluntary act of the employee than if the employee had refused the offer and the employer had laid him or her off. Goddard v. E G & G Rocky Flats, Inc., 888 P.2d 369 (Colo. App. 1994).

Claimant who used employer's equipment for private benefit was properly denied full unemployment benefits because his discharge was based on violation of company rule which could have resulted in serious damage to employer's interest, even if exact value of such damage could not be estimated. Madrid v. Mountain States Tel. and Tel. Co., 728 P.2d 1299 (Colo. App. 1986).

Disqualification from unemployment compensation was proper when evidence showed that the claimant struck a coemployee, the claimant was the aggressor, the attack resulted in a sizeable bruise on the coemployee's arm, and the employer had a policy requiring summary dismissal of an employee for fighting or hitting another employee. Baca v. Marriott Hotels, Inc., 732 P.2d 1252 (Colo. App. 1986).

The term "assaulting," as used in this section to disqualify a person from receiving unemployment compensation for assaulting or threatening to assault, means an actual harmful or offensive contact similar to the common law tort of battery. Baca v. Marriott Hotels, Inc., 732 P.2d 1252 (Colo. App. 1986).

The phrase "threatening to assault," as used in this section to disqualify a person from receiving unemployment compensation for assaulting or threatening to assault, means the apprehension of harmful or offensive contact similar to the common law tort of assault. Baca v. Marriott Hotels, Inc., 732 P.2d 1252 (Colo. App. 1986).

Mental state of coemployee irrelevant in determining whether to deny unemployment benefits to claimant when claimant was found to have assaulted coemployee. Baca v. Marriott Hotels, Inc., 732 P.2d 1252 (Colo. App. 1986).

Employee discharged pursuant to employer-generated disciplinary guidelines not automatically ineligible. While employer's disciplinary policy may form an appropriate basis for discharge, it cannot serve as a rule of law automatically disqualifying the employee from statutory benefits. Gonzales v. Indus. Comm'n, 740 P.2d 999 (Colo. 1987); Sch. Dist. No. 1 v. Fredrickson, 812 P.2d 723 (Colo. App. 1991).

Employee discharged other than in accordance with employer-generated disciplinary guidelines not automatically eligible. Volitional act of employee may result in disqualification under this section notwithstanding employer's failure to follow progressive disciplinary procedures before discharging employee. Principles concerning wrongful discharge set forth in Continental Airlines, Inc. v. Keenan, 731 P.2d 708 (Colo. 1987), and related cases are not engrafted onto unemployment compensation statutes. Keil v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 847 P.2d 235 (Colo. App. 1993).

Claimant who quit job to accept better position and was subsequently terminated from better job for a disqualifying reason was disqualified from receiving all unemployment benefits. Carleno v. Littleton Sch. Dist. No. 6, 750 P.2d 926 (Colo. App. 1988).

Claimant who requested transfer from Montana to Colorado was not disqualified under subsection (5)(e)(IV) from benefits relating to employment in Montana. Claimant's interstate transfer within the same company does not constitute a separation from employment, and her tenure with employer is not separate periods of employment with different employers. Dewhurst v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 148 P.3d 378 (Colo. App. 2006).

Statutory presumptions concerning blood alcohol content in traffic cases not applicable to unemployment cases. Blood alcohol content is only one evidentiary factor to be weighed along with all the other evidence presented at the hearing. Safeway Stores v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 754 P.2d 773 (Colo. App. 1988).

An objective standard is the proper standard for reviewing the reasonableness of an employer's request pursuant to subsection (5)(e)(VI) and, in assessing the reasonableness of such a request, the Indus. claim appeals panel must consider the facts and circumstances of each case, using its independent judgment to determine whether the request the claimant refused was one which a reasonable person would have refused. Rose Med. Ctr. Hosp. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 757 P.2d 1173 (Colo. App. 1988).

An objective standard is the proper standard for determining whether a claimant has engaged in disqualifying behavior under subsection (5)(c). Davis v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 903 P.2d 1243 (Colo. App. 1995).

Case remanded where referee's finding of fault was claimant unreasonably agreed to perform a job duty which he was not required to perform but did not include finding of whether claimant was aware of unwritten policy that he would not be dismissed if he refused to perform job duty. Nielson v. AMI Indus., Inc., 759 P.2d 834 (Colo. App. 1988).

Evidence and findings support conclusion claimant should be disqualified because of incarceration after conviction of violation of law. Smith v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 817 P.2d 635 (Colo. App. 1991).

Where company policy provided for immediate termination for possession of drugs and possession was clearly shown, hearing officer erred in addressing the issue of ownership of such drugs and in determining that subsection (5)(e)(VII) was inapplicable. Phelps Tointon v. Div. of Emp. & Train., 824 P.2d 827 (Colo. App. 1991).

City employee who was discharged from employment for violation of residency requirement not disqualified from receipt of unemployment benefits pursuant to subsection (5)(e)(VII) where there was no finding that serious harm to city's interests would result by virtue of the violation. Morris v. City & County of Denver, 843 P.2d 76 (Colo. App. 1992).

The determination as to whether a claimant is at fault for a separation from employment because of a violation of the residency requirement must be determined on a case-by-case basis, with due consideration given to the totality of the circumstances in each particular situation. Morris v. City & County of Denver, 843 P.2d 76 (Colo. App. 1992).

The determination as to whether a claimant was responsible or "at fault" for the separation from employment is not a question of evidentiary fact, but rather is an ultimate legal conclusion to be based on the established findings of evidentiary fact. Bd. of Water Comm'rs v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 881 P.2d 476 (Colo. App. 1994); Cole v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 964 P.2d 617 (Colo. App. 1998).

Claimant was at fault for his termination and he should be disqualified from receiving benefits since claimant knew he was required to perform an anti-collision test as part of his job, had forgotten to perform the test, and represented to his supervisor that he had done so. Claimant's supervisor's failure to check claimant's work did not absolve claimant of his own responsibility. Richards v. Winter Park Recreational Ass'n, 919 P.2d 933 (Colo. App. 1996).

Based on established findings of evidentiary fact, panel properly ruled that claimant was responsible or "at fault" for her separation by her volitional choice to quit under the circumstances shown, notwithstanding her health problems. Factual findings and the record support the conclusion that claimant quit this employment for subjective, personal reasons that do not provide an objective basis for an award of benefits. Cole v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 964 P.2d 617 (Colo. App. 1998).

Applied in Short v. Steves Holiday Liquors, Inc., 727 P.2d 415 (Colo. App. 1986).

III. FULL AWARD.

A. In General.

Commission discretion to grant full award.

The commission has discretion to grant a full award even though none of the paragraphs of subsection (4) is cited or applicable. Such discretion is necessary to effect the legislative mandate that each individual who is unemployed through no fault of his own shall receive a full award of benefits. Sante Fe Energy Co. v. Baca, 673 P.2d 374 (Colo. App. 1983).

In determining direct and proximate cause of claimant's separation and whether that claimant is entitled either to a full or a reduced award of benefits (now disqualification), the division and the commission shall consider the "reasons" specifically enumerated in the statute and "any other factors which may be pertinent to such determination". Albaitis v. Indus. Comm'n, 44 Colo. App. 55, 609 P.2d 1118 (1980), aff'd, 627 P.2d 1107 (Colo. 1981).

Conditions for full award. Where claimant would not have left her job and job would not have been filled by another person had she not become pregnant and requested maternity leave, she was not laid off for lack of work, nor for any condition of health, injury or illness, nor for any of the other conditions specified therein for which a full award could be made. Miller v. Indus. Comm'n, 173 Colo. 476, 480 P.2d 565 (1971).

When employee is fired in violation of employer's stated policy, claimant is entitled to a full award of benefits because of discharge through no fault of her own even though found to be sleeping on the job. Hosp. Shared Serv. of Colo. v. Indus. Comm'n, 677 P.2d 447 (Colo. App. 1984).

Full unemployment compensation benefits were available to flight attendants on mandatory maternity leave commencing in twenty-eighth week of pregnancy. Such claimants were separated from employment even though they were receiving employment benefits and had the right to resume employment. Frontier Airlines, Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 734 P.2d 142 (Colo. App. 1986), cert. dismissed, 738 P.2d 1185 (Colo. 1987).

Subsection (4)(I) is applied in Eckart v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 775 P.2d 97 (Colo. App. 1989).

Claimant who was unable to work at a particular job due to health reasons was not eligible for unemployment benefits since he was able to perform the same work under different employment conditions and was not, therefore, required to seek a new occupation. Pub. Serv. Co. of Colo. v. Ingle, 794 P.2d 1374 (Colo. App. 1990).

Where employer failed to request written substantiation of claimant's health condition, claimant is not precluded from eligibility for unemployment benefits. Pub. Serv. Co. of Colo. v. Ingle, 794 P.2d 1374 (Colo. App. 1990).

Applied in Patterson v. Indus. Comm'n, 39 Colo. App. 255, 567 P.2d 385 (1977).

B. Unsatisfactory or Hazardous Working Conditions.

Evidence of unsatisfactory conditions. The hearing officer must consider evidence presented of the factors listed in subsection (4)(a), but a claimant's failure to submit proof of working conditions of workers engaged in the same or similar work for the same or other employers in the locality does not prevent an award of benefits. Campbell v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 97 P.3d 204 (Colo. App. 2003).

The standard for determining whether a claimant is entitled to benefits under the hazardous working conditions provisions of subsection (4)(c) is whether a reasonable person in the claimant's position would have found the actual working conditions, as determined by the hearing officer to have existed, detrimental to that worker's physical or mental well-being so as to warrant resignation from employment. Rodco Sys., Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 981 P.2d 699 (Colo. App. 1999).

A hazardous condition may be created when, by an objective standard, the situation was hazardous to the employee's health or morals and was not normal. Rodco Sys., Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 981 P.2d 699 (Colo. App. 1999).

Evidence insufficient to prove "unsatisfactory or hazardous working conditions". Rotenberg v. Indus. Comm'n, 42 Colo. App. 161, 590 P.2d 521 (1979); Southwest Forest Indus. v. Indus. Comm'n, 719 P.2d 1098 (Colo. App. 1986).

Evidence of significant unilateral increase in working hours sufficient to prove unsatisfactory working conditions. Thus, claimant was entitled to receive a full award of benefits, pursuant to subsection (4)(c). Campbell v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 97 P.3d 204 (Colo. App. 2003).

C. Substantial Change in Working Conditions.

Change in working conditions. Where claimant was fully satisfied with her position but was then transferred without notice, and the conditions under which she then worked were not the same conditions prevailing for other workers performing the same or similar work, it was error to deny benefits. Indus. Comm'n v. McIntyre, 162 Colo. 277, 425 P.2d 279 (1967).

Division not required to investigate "conditions ... generally prevailing". In determining eligibility for unemployment benefits, the division is an adjudicatory, not investigatory, body. Therefore, its function and responsibility are to conduct a neutral adjudication of unemployment claims not to investigate the factual basis for such claims. Chris the Crazy Trader, Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 81 P.3d 1148 (Colo. App. 2003).

Whether a change in working conditions constitutes a substantial change and, if so, whether the substantial change is substantially less favorable to the worker must be judged by an objective standard rather than by claimant's subjective outlook. Consequently, in assessing the evidence, the issue is whether a reasonable employee in claimant's position would find the change in working conditions to be not only substantial but also substantially less favorable. Wargon v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 787 P.2d 668 (Colo. App. 1990); Arias v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 850 P.2d 161 (Colo. App. 1993).

Finding of dissatisfaction with working conditions proper only where no change in conditions. A finding that the petitioner quit his job because he was dissatisfied with standard working conditions or regularly assigned duties is proper only when there has been no change in working conditions or duties. Martinez v. Indus. Comm'n, 657 P.2d 457 (Colo. App. 1982).

Where an employee's termination followed a change in his work environment or in his duties, the statutory provision concerning dissatisfaction with standard working conditions (former subsection (9)(a)(I)) was inapplicable. Martinez v. Indus. Comm'n, 657 P.2d 457 (Colo. App. 1982); Musgrave v. Eben Ezer Lutheran Inst., 731 P.2d 142 (Colo. App. 1986); Wargon v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 787 P.2d 668 (Colo. App. 1990).

It is not required that working conditions become impossible, only that there be a substantial change. Gray Moving & Storage, Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 419, 560 P.2d 482 (1976); Gray Moving & Storage, Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 422, 560 P.2d 484 (1976).

Denial of benefits for termination due to changes in working conditions affirmed where claimant acquiesced in those changes. Jennings v. Indus. Comm'n, 682 P.2d 518 (Colo. App. 1984).

Denial of benefits upheld where evidence showed that the changes in working conditions experienced by claimant were substantially the same as changes experienced by other employees and claimant acquiesced in the changes. Collins v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 813 P.2d 804 (Colo. App. 1991).

Acquiescence is matter of intent and does not necessarily depend upon the lapse of time. Musgrave v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 762 P.2d 686 (Colo. 1988).

Acquiescence to change in conditions not established based on fact that employee continued to work for employer where evidence showed claimant filed a grievance and a civil action protesting the change. Nimmo v. Town of Monument, 736 P.2d 435 (Colo. App. 1987).

Change of attitude and treatment by supervisor. Where claimant quit his job because of a change in his working conditions which became intolerable because of a change of attitude and treatment by his supervisor and the assignment of the least desirable jobs when the employer learned that claimant, who is black, was dating a female coemployee who is Caucasian, there was sufficient evidence to support a full award. Gray Moving & Storage, Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 419, 560 P.2d 482 (1976).

Where claimant, a Caucasian, had had a good personal and working relationship within the company up to the time she began dating a coemployee who was black, and after that personal relationship became known, she was subjected to harassment from fellow employees and supervisors, so that she felt she had to quit as working conditions became impossible, there was sufficient evidence to support the conclusion that "claimant quit her job because of a change in her working conditions which became intolerable because of the ostracism she was receiving from fellow employees and supervisors of the company" and claimant was entitled to a full award. Gray Moving & Storage, Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 422, 560 P.2d 484 (1976).

Claimant's working conditions constituted a demotion, despite the fact that her job title and salary were to remain the same, and she was therefore entitled to a full award of unemployment benefits. Warburton v. Indus. Comm'n, 678 P.2d 1076 (Colo. App. 1984).

A substantial change occurs if a claimant is relieved of supervisory and administrative responsibilities, even if the claimant's salary remains the same. Warburton v. Indus. Comm'n, 678 P.2d 1076 (Colo. App. 1984).

Employee whose salary was cut, job responsibilities divided, and title diminished suffered a substantial change in working conditions. Musgrave v. Eben Ezer Lutheran Inst., 731 P.2d 142 (Colo. App. 1986).

Change in job title and removal of supervisory duties constituted a substantial change in working conditions. Nimmo v. Town of Monument, 736 P.2d 435 (Colo. App. 1987).

A change in duties or a demotion may be a change in working conditions that is substantially less favorable, as may be a situation in which a claimant has been relieved of administrative or supervisory responsibilities or received a salary reduction. Wargon v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 787 P.2d 668 (Colo. App. 1990).

Demotion with a decrease in pay and job responsibilities constituted a substantial change in working conditions. Larsen-Oldaker v. Indus. Comm'n, 735 P.2d 209 (Colo. App. 1987).

As a matter of law, to a reasonable person in claimant's position, the change in compensation method from salary to commission constituted a substantially less favorable change in working conditions, where the claimant left a commissioned job to work for the employer because she wanted the security and stability of a salary due to her dissatisfaction with a commission and the resultant fluctuation and unpredictability of monthly income, increased competition among the sales force, and increased job pressure. Wargon v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 787 P.2d 668 (Colo. App. 1990).

Statute does not condition the receipt of benefits on disparate treatment by supervisor. Receipt of unemployment compensation by one who has quit because of treatment by supervisor does not require a showing of disparate treatment by supervisor as it does not matter that it was uniformly applied to all employees as long as the supervision was unreasonable. Heller v. Indus. Comm'n, 738 P.2d 64 (Colo. App. 1987).

D. Accepting a Better Job.

"Accepting a better job" and the 90-day period. A claimant does not actually have to have been on the job performing services in the new employment for at least three months before it can be adjudged that he has terminated old employment by "accepting a better job". Lidke v. Indus. Comm'n, 159 Colo. 580, 413 P.2d 200 (1966).

Clarification of the 90-day limitation. This section is only a clarification of the previous statute and only indicates that the completion of the 90-day limitation shall be computed from the date of actual performance of services on the new job and was not meant to preclude claims arising out of events which occurred between the date of accepting the better job and actually commencing work. Adams v. Indus. Comm'n, 31 Colo. App. 340, 501 P.2d 1334 (1972).

The fact that claimant agreed and understood that his employment would end at the expiration of a fixed term is not a basis for denying him benefits under the Colorado employment security act. Intermountain Jewish News, Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 39 Colo. App. 258, 564 P.2d 132 (1977).

Subsection (4)(f) not violative of equal protection clause. Provision of subsection (4)(f), that in order to qualify as a better job the new job must last at least 90 days from the first date of employment, did not violate the equal protection clause of the United States Constitution. Harding v. Indus. Comm'n, 183 Colo. 52, 515 P.2d 95 (1973).

However former provision of subsection (4)(f)(I) violated fourteenth amendment. The purpose of the employment security act, as stated in § 8-70-102, is subverted by the former provision of subsection (4)(f)(I) which read "but a job shall not be considered better if it lasts less than 90 days due to lack of work, the absence of said knowledge and control notwithstanding", because this provision made an invidious distinction between (1) those who obtain a better job which terminates prior to 90 days because of lack of work with no fault of their own and (2) those who obtain a better job which terminates prior to 90 days because of some other factor other than lack of work with no fault of their own, and such a distinction involved an unconstitutional overclassification forbidden by the fourteenth amendment of the United States Constitution. Spann v. Indus. Comm'n, 181 Colo. 153, 508 P.2d 385 (1973).

A worker who quits his employment to take a better job must work at the new job at least 90 days in order to be eligible for unemployment compensation. If the worker fails to work this minimum period, it is not considered a "better job" and the commission is required to deny all unemployment benefits. Gatewood v. Russell, 29 Colo. App. 11, 478 P.2d 679 (1970).

Under the plain language of this statute a job must, in order to qualify as a better job, last at least 90 days from the commencement of work unless the employee is unable to complete the 90 days of employment through no fault of his own. Harding v. Indus. Comm'n, 183 Colo. 52, 515 P.2d 95 (1973).

But a worker may cease employment within the 90-day period and still be eligible for benefits, if the reasons for termination of this employment were conditions over which the worker had no knowledge at the time he accepted employment, and over which he had no control after commencing work. Whether or not the worker lacked this knowledge and control is a question of fact to be determined by the commission. Gatewood v. Russell, 29 Colo. App. 11, 478 P.2d 679 (1970).

Ninety-day provision applies to occupancy not duration of job. The 90-day provision of subsection (4)(f) is not interpreted as applying to the duration of the job but rather the employee's occupancy of the job. Harding v. Indus. Comm'n, 183 Colo. 52, 515 P.2d 95 (1973).

Ninety-day provision designed to prevent job hopping. Concerning the 90-day employment requirement of the better job provision, there is justification for compulsory compliance with this requirement, as it is obviously designed to prevent job hopping and to secure continuity of employment. Harding v. Indus. Comm'n, 183 Colo. 52, 515 P.2d 95 (1973).

And prevents depletion of insurance fund account of past employer. The 90-day requirement of the better-job provision, together with other prescribed better-job conditions, prevents the depletion of the insurance fund account of the past employer who in no way contributed to the job separation of the worker who voluntarily separates under conditions of disqualification. Harding v. Indus. Comm'n, 183 Colo. 52, 515 P.2d 95 (1973).

Failure to meet the requirements of making a new job a better job. Petitioner left his job of his own accord to take a different job which he deemed a better job. However, it is not petitioner's qualitative judgment which determines whether the new job was a better job. The statute sets forth various requirements which must be met. Petitioner stated he was hired for a specific period of two months, hence, the one year requirement was not met. Furthermore, the job in fact lasted only two months, therefore, the three months requirement was also not met. The undisputed evidence conclusively established that petitioner was not entitled to unemployment compensation under the statute. Anderson v. Indus. Comm'n, 29 Colo. App. 263, 482 P.2d 403 (1971).

Subsection (4)(f)(III) does not mean that because new job did not materialize, an award of compensation is necessarily barred. Spann v. Indus. Comm'n, 181 Colo. 153, 508 P.2d 385 (1973).

Evidence failed to sustain denial of unemployment benefits to claimant who alleged he was offered and accepted a better job, but who employer claimed was fired prior to accepting a new job. Olivas v. Indus. Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 78, 515 P.2d 110 (1973).

Award held improper. Where claimant's sole proof as to any other job offer consisted of her recitation of alleged interviews and telephone calls between herself and third persons, and no evidence corroborative of the hearsay was offered, the Indus. commission's award could not stand. Rocky Mt. Radiologists Prof'l Corp. v. Dept. of Labor & Emp., 39 Colo. App. 183, 562 P.2d 1123 (1977).

E. Employer's Violation of Employment Contract.

Violation of contract by changing days of work. Where there is a contract between the parties specifying a five-day work week and where, thereafter, the employer causes the employee to resign by unilaterally changing the number of days in the work week, the employee is entitled to a full award of benefits. Wade v. Hurley, 33 Colo. App. 30, 515 P.2d 491 (1973).

Subsection (4)(o) harassment need not be continuous. There is nothing in subsection (4)(o) stating that harassment must be continuous and substantial. Marlin Oil Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 641 P.2d 312 (Colo. App. 1982).

Failure to pay benefits under collective bargaining agreement resulted in full award to claimants who terminated their employment. Centennial Drywall Co., Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 724 P.2d 685 (Colo. App. 1986).

Gender-based harassment is encompassed within the more general term "personal harassment", and a claimant who carries burden of proving that she quit her job because of personal harassment will receive employment benefits. Colo. Div. of Emp. & Train. v. Hewlett, 777 P.2d 704 (Colo. 1989).

Improper conduct need not take the stereotypical form of sexual conduct to, at least arguably, contravene public policy. Hewlett v. Div. of Emp. & Train., 753 P.2d 791 (Colo. App. 1987), rev'd on other grounds, 777 P.2d 704 (Colo. 1989).

Where claimant contends that her separation from government employment resulted from assertion of a constitutionally protected right, the three factor test described in Ward v. Indus. Commission (699 P.2d 960) is used to determine whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment benefits. Colo. Div. of Emp. & Train. v. Hewlett, 777 P.2d 704 (Colo. 1989).

Where such a question is presented, plaintiff must prove by a preponderance of the evidence that her conduct which led to her discharge was constitutionally protected and that the conduct was a "substantial" or "motivating" factor in the decision to terminate her employment. If plaintiff carries that burden of proof, the employer must show that it would have reached the same decision in the absence of the protected conduct. Colo. Div. of Emp. & Train. v. Hewlett, 777 P.2d 704 (Colo. 1989).

Denial of benefits disallowed. Employee who notified employer of his intent to resign as of future date but who was terminated earlier could not be denied unemployment benefits for period between his termination and effective date of his resignation. Diringer v. Indus. Comm'n, 712 P.2d 1091 (Colo. App. 1985).

F. Unable or Unqualified to Perform Work.

The mental inability referred to by subsection (4)(j) is not a narrow definition pertaining solely to intellectual or educational attainment. The statute merely provides that if an employee is unable to perform because of mental incapacity, then he is entitled to benefits. It does not state that the mental incapacity or inability must result solely from educational or intellectual deficiencies, rather than illness. Tague v. Coors Porcelain Co., 30 Colo. App. 158, 490 P.2d 96 (1971).

Physical inability to work, as used in subsection (4)(j), has been defined as the inability to perform the labor, or equally remunerative work, that an injured person was engaged in at the time of his injury. Colo. State Judicial Dept. v. Indus. Comm'n, 630 P.2d 102 (Colo. App. 1981).

Need not be disabling. The language of subsection (4)(j) is sufficiently broad that illness which is not necessarily disabling can constitute a physical inability to perform the work. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 637 P.2d 401 (Colo. App. 1981).

Excessive absenteeism due to incidental illness. The general assembly did not intend to deny compensation to an employee who, although excessively absent, is so because of incidental illness. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 637 P.2d 401 (Colo. App. 1981).

A full award of benefits is justified under subsection (4)(j) where an employee, discharged for excessive absenteeism, suffered a disabling injury which rendered him unable to get out of bed or unable to remain in a standing or sitting position for sustained periods. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 637 P.2d 401 (Colo. App. 1981).

Alcoholism. Whether worker is disqualified from receipt of benefits is based on the volitional or nonvolitional nature of worker's alcoholism and must be determined under particular facts of each case. City & County of Denver v. Indus. Comm'n, 756 P.2d 373 (Colo. 1988) (decided under law in effect prior to 1988 amendment adding subsection (4)(b)(IV) and (V)).

Claimant's consumption of alcohol warranted the denial of unemployment compensation benefits for resulting discharge where consumption of alcohol occurred during a rest break on employer's property and the claimant was paid for the time he was on the break. Longmont Turkey Proc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 765 P.2d 1073 (Colo. App. 1988).

An individual who is physically or mentally unable to perform work may be awarded unemployment benefits and such inability need not be the result of insufficient educational or occupational skills. Electronic Fab Tech. Corp. v. Wood, 749 P.2d 470 (Colo. App. 1987).

No implied requirement of notice that employee's "job is in jeopardy". Where hearing officer found that claimant knew what was expected of him and failed to perform satisfactorily, findings were sufficient to support disqualification under subsection (5)(e)(XX). Pabst v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 833 P.2d 64 (Colo. App. 1992).

G. Health of Worker.

Medical statement required only when employer makes timely request. There is no requirement in subsection (4)(b)(I) that, before he can be entitled to benefits, the claimant must be advised by a physician to terminate his employment. A medical statement to substantiate the claimant's assertion that he was required to leave his employment because of health reasons is required only if the employer requests it prior to the date of quitting or within a reasonable period thereafter. Andersen v. Indus. Comm'n, 167 Colo. 281, 447 P.2d 221 (1968).

Denial of benefits is error as matter of law. When under the circumstances the statute does not require proof of a doctor's advice to actually quit, the denial of benefits on the ground that the claimant did not have such specific advice is error as a matter of law. Andersen v. Indus. Comm'n, 167 Colo. 281, 447 P.2d 221 (1968).

Prior notification is not required in the case of a sudden injury or illness under subsection (4)(b)(II) as long as the employer is notified "at the earliest practicable time after such occurrence". Montano v. Indus. Comm'n, 171 Colo. 92, 464 P.2d 518 (1970).

Sudden illness. Where an employee was discovered lying down before his scheduled break and told his superiors when questioned that he had felt dizzy and had to lie down, and that he suspected that his medication had made him drowsy, the Indus. commission was justified in finding that the employee had complied with the statutory notice requirement, and was further justified in awarding him full benefits under subsection (4)(b)(II). Samsonite Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 665 P.2d 1037 (Colo. App. 1983).

Eligibility where claimant unable to perform "normal" work for health reasons. Where an unemployment compensation claimant is, for health reasons, unable to perform such claimant's "normal" work for a period of time, the claimant may nevertheless be eligible for benefits if the claimant is able to perform and is available for other suitable work. Bartholomay v. Indus. Comm'n, 642 P.2d 50 (Colo. App. 1982).

Employee must inform employer he is leaving for health reasons. In order to be entitled to a full award of benefits under subsection (4)(b)(I), an employee must inform his employer upon or prior to leaving that he is quitting (now separating) because of the condition of his health. Slazas v. Indus. Comm'n, 660 P.2d 513 (Colo. App. 1983).

Employee need not specifically inform employer at or prior to termination that employee is leaving because of the condition of the employee's health. Hodges v. Canon Lodge Med. Investors, Ltd., 879 P.2d 476 (Colo. App. 1994) (disagreeing with Slazas v. Indus. Comm'n, 660 P.2d 513 (Colo. App. 1983)).

H. Refusing With Good Cause to Work Overtime.

Compelling personal reasons under subsection (4)(k) are circumstances so significant that they would deprive a reasonable person of the ability to make a truly volitional choice about whether to work overtime. Action Key Punch Serv. v. Indus. Comm'n, 709 P.2d 970 (Colo. App. 1985).

Desire to give birthday party for husband is not compelling personal reason under subsection (4)(k). Action Key Punch Serv. v. Indus. Comm'n, 709 P.2d 970 (Colo. App. 1985).

Objective standard applies. Facts giving rise to a claim of compelling personal reason under subsection (4)(k) are to be judged by an objective standard rather than by the claimant's subjective outlook. Action Key Punch Serv. v. Indus. Comm'n, 709 P.2d 970 (Colo. App. 1985).

Violation of company rule and 50% award. The commission "cleared" the employee of stealing from his employer; the discharge was found to have been caused, not by any act of thievery, but only because of a violation of a company rule. He is entitled to a 50 percent award where the violation "did not or could not" result in serious damage to the employer's property or interests. Ruby v. Yellow Cab, Inc., 163 Colo. 297, 430 P.2d 463 (1967).

Discharge for violation of company rule. When an employee is discharged for violating a company rule, benefits may not be reduced unless the violation could have resulted in "serious damage" to the employer's interests or endangered the "life of the worker or other employee". Damon v. Indus. Comm'n, 677 P.2d 431 (Colo. App. 1983).

Violation of company rules under subsection (5)(e)(VII). Whether employee's conduct violated company rules is applied in Richardson v. Indus. Comm'n, 701 P.2d 164 (Colo. App. 1985).

Quitting for personal reasons known to the division. Court harmonizes subsection (5)(c) and former subsection (8) which prescribe different results for quitting for personal reasons known to the division by holding that when a person quits for personal reasons which are known to the division and which are not covered under other provisions, then subsection (5)(c), which was enacted later in time, prevails. Ortega v. Indus. Comm'n, 682 P.2d 511 (Colo. App. 1984) (decided prior to 1984 repeal of subsection (8)).

Eligibility provisions of § 8-73-107 came into play only after claim filed. While any refusal of suitable work may well be independent grounds for a reduced benefits decision under former subsection (5), the "eligibility" provisions of § 8-73-107 including limited availability only come into play with respect to conditions existing after filing of the claim. Olivas v. Indus. Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 273, 518 P.2d 304 (1974).

Marital obligation not ground for full compensation. Where a wife quits employment in order to move her residence with her husband, a claim for full compensation cannot be supported on a marital obligation ground. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Dept. of Labor & Emp., 197 Colo. 335, 592 P.2d 808 (1979).

Reduced benefits after violation of union contract. The commission may reduce a claimant's benefits where he violated a specific provision of his union contract and the contract gave him notice that, by such violation, he was jeopardizing his employment status. Anyon v. Indus. Comm'n, 42 Colo. App. 88, 589 P.2d 1390 (1979).

Where reduced award justified. Where Indus. commission, in affirming the referee's determination on the basis of evidence it considered competent, in effect adopted the referee's finding on such "pertinent factors" as the claimant's absenteeism, tardiness, and poor attitude, and the employer's dissatisfaction with her work, a reduced award was justified under former subsection (5)(x) despite the fact that the statutory subsection was not expressly cited. Kiesling v. Indus. Comm'n, 616 P.2d 1002 (Colo. App. 1980).

Reason for absenteeism is finding of fact. The determination of whether absence resulting from a minor illness is more for the employee's comfort rather than a physical inability to perform the work, in which case an employee discharged for absenteeism due to illness is entitled only to a reduced award, is a factual question for the commission. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 637 P.2d 401 (Colo. App. 1981).

For reduced award due to "careless or shoddy work", pursuant to former subsection (9)(a)(XV), see Anders v. Indus. Comm'n, 649 P.2d 732 (Colo. App. 1982).

Constitutionally protected activity as basis for reduced award. When the claimant asserts that his exercise of the right to free speech has been used by a state employer to justify a reduction of benefits, the commission's decision must reflect application of the three-part test announced in Mt. Healthy City Sch. District Bd. of Education v. Doyle (429 U.S. 274 (1977)). Claimant's activities cannot be relied upon to reduce benefits if he can establish that such activities are constitutionally protected and that they were a substantial or motivating factor in the decision to reduce benefits. The employer has the burden of establishing that the same result would have been reduced even in the absence of constitutionally protected conduct. Ward v. Indus. Comm'n, 699 P.2d 960 (Colo. 1985).

I. False Reports.

The phrase "other records or reports" only applies to those documents that relate directly to an employer's assets and liabilities. According to the doctrine of eiusdem generis and the manifest intent of the general assembly, the records and reports in subsection (5)(e)(VII) are concerned with the types of documents that give an employee the ability to misappropriate property. Mounkes v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 251 P.3d 485 (Colo. App. 2010).

IV. REDUCED AWARDS.

Annotator's note. Subsection (5), which formerly dealt with reduced awards, was amended in 1984 to relate to disqualification from benefits. Annotations appearing under this heading were decided under the former subsection (5), relating to reduced awards.

Grant of reduced award for non-enumerated reason. The commission is empowered to grant a reduced award in a case even though the precise reason for the claimant's termination is not enumerated in former subsections (5)(a) to (5)(w) in effect at that time. Dunn v. Indus. Comm'n, 640 P.2d 1146 (Colo. 1982).

Computation of eligibility. Wages earned by a claimant not used in determining monetary eligibility on a combined-wage claim are properly available for transfer to another state to be used in computing monetary eligibility. Denver v. Indus. Comm'n, 712 P.2d 1110 (Colo. App. 1985).

For purposes of collateral estoppel, board of education's decision to dismiss the teacher is "final judgment", not the hearing officer's recommendation to retain her. Moffat County Sch. Dist. RE-No. 1 v. Indus. Comm'n, 717 P.2d 995 (Colo. App. 1985), aff'd, 732 P.2d 616 (Colo. 1987).

Even though a teacher is dismissed because she has inadequate professional skills, she may nonetheless be entitled to unemployment benefits. Indus. Comm'n v. Moffat County Sch. Dist. RE-No. 1, 732 P.2d 616 (Colo. 1987).

V. NO AWARD.

Subsection (5)(g) refers to the deferral of any benefits attributable to other employments to which claimant may be entitled, and does not negate the plain disqualification provisions of subsection (5)(e). Parker v. Daniels Motors, Inc., 738 P.2d 68 (Colo. App. 1987).

If the division determines an employee is separated from employment for just reasons, then the employee shall be given no award of benefits. McGinn v. Indus. Comm'n, 31 Colo. 6, 496 P.2d 1080 (1972).

The determination of whether an employer's actions constitute "personal harassment" under subsection (4)(o) is governed by an objective standard. The standard is whether a reasonable person in the claimant's position would have found the employer's conduct to be so, troubling, and annoying as to warrant resignation from employment. Survey Solutions, Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 956 P.2d 1275 (Colo. App. 1998).

An employer's comment relating to claimant's daughter was not conduct that a reasonable person would find to be so vexing, troubling, and annoying as to warrant quitting a job, and thus falls short of the required standard for "personal harassment". Survey Solutions, Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 956 P.2d 1275 (Colo. App. 1998).

Where the record shows that employer criticized claimant's husband, but does not indicate what the actual comments were nor that the comments had been directed to the claimant, the record does not support a finding of "personal harassment". Survey Solutions, Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 956 P.2d 1275 (Colo. App. 1998).

Unemployment found voluntary. Where a claimant voluntarily retires from his full-time position and continues as a union auditor during 12 weeks per year, his unemployment during the remainder of the year is not involuntary and he is not entitled to unemployment compensation. Int'l Typographical Union v. Indus. Comm'n, 44 Colo. App. 29, 609 P.2d 634 (Colo. App. 1980).

No award when claimant leaves job only because dissatisfied. It is apparent that the statutory scheme intended by the general assembly was to provide certain benefits during unemployment if a claimant did not quit because of dissatisfaction with standard working conditions, and that former § 82-4-8 (5)(a)(i) therefore applies to a claimant who leaves his job where there has been no change in his working conditions, but where, nevertheless, he is dissatisfied with them. Indus. Comm'n v. McIntyre, 162 Colo. 227, 425 P.2d 279 (1967).

No award will be made where an employee voluntarily quits work to get married, and a judgment imposing the maximum disqualification under the unemployment compensation act is not error. Cottrell Clothing Co. v. Teets, 139 Colo. 567, 342 P.2d 1021 (1959).

An award shall not be granted to an employee who quits to seek other work, not having first accepted an offer of other employment. The testimony of the petitioner establishes that at the time he terminated his employment there had not been a definite offer of employment made to him which he had accepted. The new employer represented to him some possibility and hope of future employment but it had not ripened into a contract of hire. Anderson v. Valspar Corp., 29 Colo. App. 294, 482 P.2d 992 (1971).

Insubordination connotes a willful, deliberate, or purposeful refusal to follow the reasonable directions or instructions of the employer. Beatty v. Automatic Catering, Inc., 165 Colo. 219, 438 P.2d 234 (1968).

What is "willful" depends on facts. It is difficult to mark the precise connotative boundaries of the terms "deliberate" or "willful", as employed by the law, since the word carries various shades of meaning; it takes on the color of its context, and therefore, what is "willful" depends primarily upon a determination of factual matters. Sayers v. Am. Janitorial Serv., Inc., 162 Colo. 292, 425 P.2d 693 (1967).

Willful misconduct does not necessarily require actual intent to wrong the employer. It is enough if there is a conscious indifference to the perpetration of a wrong, or a reckless disregard of the employee's duty to his employer. Sayers v. Am. Janitorial Serv., Inc., 162 Colo. 292, 425 P.2d 693 (1967).

Violation of a company rule. The employee conceded that he broke a company rule, though he offered several excuses for his conduct. These excuses were in no sense "binding" on the commission. Nor do they in any manner alter the fact that there has been a violation of a company rule. Ruby v. Yellow Cab Inc., 163 Colo. 297, 430 P.2d 463 (1967).

Such as when an employee refused to leave employer's nightclub in violation of policy whereby employer permitted employees to be in nightclub when club was not crowded. Where refusal caused employer to terminate employee's employment, such conduct prevented claimant from receiving unemployment benefits. Radis v. Indus. Comm'n, 31 Colo. App. 389, 502 P.2d 977 (1972).

Deliberate disobedience of reasonable instruction. Claimant, who refused to provide his employer with medical report, report of motor vehicle accident in which claimant was charged with driving while under influence of intoxicating liquor, and current copy of claimant's driving record, deliberately disobeyed reasonable instruction of employer and, thus, was at fault in causing his separation from employment and was ineligible for unemployment benefits. Wilson v. Indus. Comm'n, 730 P.2d 911 (Colo. App. 1986).

No award because of careless work. Where the industrial commission concluded that a claimant's employment had been terminated because his work was unsatisfactory and not up to the standard required by the company and that he was not entitled to compensation pursuant to subsection (6)(q), which provides for no award of benefits where the employment is terminated due to careless or negligent work, and the division specifically found that, although claimant, who had suffered two nervous breakdowns, might not have been restored to complete mental health, he had been certified as fit to return to work by the treating physician, and, absent other evidence, the division determined that petitioner had failed to prove he was mentally unable to perform his work, which would qualify him for a full award. Tague v. Coors Porcelain Co., 30 Colo. App. 158, 490 P.2d 96 (1971).

"Failure to meet established job performance standards" means that claimant did not do the job for which he was hired and which he knew was expected of him. Parker v. Daniels Motors, Inc., 738 P.2d 68 (Colo. App. 1987).

Thus, where the right to unemployment benefits did not accrue until after the amendment to subsection (4)(f) became effective, denying benefits under the amended terms of the section was not a retroactive application of the section, even though the claimant would have been entitled to benefits under the unamended terms of the section. Collins v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 813 P.2d 804 (Colo. App. 1991).

Subsection (9)(a)(XX) is not void for vagueness. "Failure to meet established job performance or other defined standards" means that claimant did not do the job for which she was hired and in which she knew what was expected of her. Dawson v. Indus. Comm'n, 660 P.2d 924 (Colo. App. 1983).

Collateral estoppel precludes relitigation of the grounds for terminating a tenured teacher under subsection (9)(a)(XX) in a hearing for unemployment compensation benefits where a board of education votes to terminate a teacher after a full administrative hearing and finding of facts, even through the board's action is still subject to review. Jefferson County Sch. Dist. v. Indus. Comm'n, 698 P.2d 1350 (Colo. App. 1984).

"Fault" under the statute is not necessarily related to culpability, but must be construed as requiring a volitional act. Zelingers v. Indus. Comm'n, 679 P.2d 608 (Colo. App. 1984).

Voluntary violation of residence requirement. A police officer who married and moved outside the city voluntarily violates a charter requirement and police department regulation that is a condition of employment. This constitutes fault on the part of the police officer, and precludes an award of full unemployment benefits, pursuant to subsection (8). City & County of Denver v. Indus. Comm'n, 666 P.2d 160 (Colo. App. 1983).

No award where claimant's misrepresentations about his academic credentials were material. Denberg v. Loretto Heights Coll., 694 P.2d 375 (Colo. App. 1984).

In determining the suitability of the offered employment, this section offers the following considerations: The degree of risk involved to claimant's health, safety, and morals; his physical fitness and prior training, his experience and prior earnings; his length of unemployment and prospects for securing work in his customary occupation; and the distance of the available local work from his residence. Toston v. Indus. Comm'n, 160 Colo. 281, 417 P.2d 1 (1966).

Denial of compensation to claimants who were offered similar work 175 miles away on the other side of the continental divide, but who insisted that the work was not suitable and declined to accept, was held improper under this section. Indus. Comm'n v. Lazar, 111 Colo. 69, 137 P.2d 405 (1943).

The beneficent purposes of the act do not include a guaranty that a job offer must be for wages equal to that of the old job in order to be deemed as suitable work. Bayly Mfg. Co. v. Dept. of Emp., 155 Colo. 433, 395 P.2d 216 (1964).

A refusal to accept an offer of temporary employment does not, in and of itself, constitute a refusal to accept suitable work. Toston v. Indus. Comm'n, 160 Colo. 281, 417 P.2d 1 (1966).

A claimant is entitled to a reasonable time in which to compete in the labor market for available jobs of a permanent nature for which he has the skill, and at a rate of pay commensurate with his prior earnings. Bayly Mfg. Co. v. Dept. of Emp., 155 Colo. 433, 395 P.2d 216 (1964); Toston v. Indus. Comm'n, 160 Colo. 281, 417 P.2d 1 (1966).

Thus, work at a substantially lower wage should not be deemed "suitable" unless a claimant has been given a reasonable period to compete in the labor market for available jobs for which he has the skill at a rate of pay commensurate with his prior earnings. Bayly Mfg. Co. v. Dept. of Emp., 155 Colo. 433, 395 P.2d 216 (1964); Indus. Comm'n v. Zavatta, 166 Colo. 365, 443 P.2d 982 (1968).

And a reasonable time is a question of fact. What constitutes a reasonable time in these cases is not a matter to be answered by rigid formulas. Rather, it must initially be determined as a question of fact under the circumstances of each individual case by the appropriate agency. Bayly Mfg. Co. v. Dept. of Emp., 155 Colo. 433, 395 P.2d 216 (1964); Toston v. Indus. Comm'n, 160 Colo. 281, 417 P.2d 1 (1966).

Nevertheless, "unsuitable" work may become "suitable". Work which may be deemed "unsuitable" at the inception of the claimant's unemployment, and for a reasonable time thereafter, because it pays less, may thereafter become "suitable" work when consideration is given to the length of unemployment and the prospects for obtaining customary work at his prior earning capacity. Bayly Mfg. Co. v. Dept. of Emp., 155 Colo. 433, 395 P.2d 216 (1964); Toston v. Indus. Comm'n, 160 Colo. 281, 417 P.2d 1 (1966).

And a claimant may not justify his refusal of a job offer on sole grounds that it is non-union; and if in fact the job offered is not "suitable", then the reason for the claimant's refusal is immaterial. Indus. Comm'n v. Zavatta, 166 Colo. 365, 443 P.2d 982 (1968).

If wages offered are substantially less than prevailing wage, work is not "suitable". Romero v. Indus. Comm'n, 616 P.2d 992 (Colo. App. 1980).

Claimant entitled to benefits where he defended himself against unprovoked assault. Where the evidence was uncontradicted that claimant acted only to defend himself against an unprovoked assault by a coemployee, he could not be denied unemployment benefits. Escamilla v. Indus. Comm'n, 670 P.2d 815 (Colo. App. 1983).

Industrial commission was without authority to award unemployment benefits to hospital employees who accepted and continued to receive employee benefits, i.e. they were nurses who were part of the nursing pool and were employed, albeit intermittently. Saint Anthony Hosp. Sys. v. Indus. Comm'n, 709 P.2d 967 (Colo. App. 1985).

Denial of compensation improper when employment offered was at substantially less favorable wage. Indus. Comm'n v. Brady, 128 Colo. 490, 263 P.2d 578 (1953).

No substantial unfavorable change in working conditions occurred justifying an award of benefits, where claimant's termination was precipitated by a reduction in his income but no change in the method of his compensation. Claimant was hired to serve both as a warehouse worker and a relief driver under terms by which he was paid more for working as a warehouse worker than he was paid for working as a relief driver. When the claimant's relief driver duties increased, he refused to perform them unless he was paid more and, consequently, was discharged. Muhlenkamp v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 802 P.2d 1127 (Colo. App. 1990).

In determining a claimant's entitlement to benefits, the law in effect on the date the claimant's right to benefits accrues is the law which governs. Baldwin v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 813 P.2d 807 (Colo. App. 1991).

When an employee voluntarily resigns and the employer refuses to accept an attempted retraction of the resignation prior to the effective date, the employee's resignation is considered to have been voluntary for the purposes of determining unemployment compensation benefits. Cunliffe v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 51 P.3d 1088 (Colo. App. 2002).

Applied in Stensvad v. Indus. Comm'n, 167 Colo. 140, 445 P.2d 898 (1968); Debalco v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 32 P.3d 621 (Colo. App. 2001).

VI. EVIDENCE.

Appeals court would not take judicial notice of facts not in evidence in disqualification case. Where the evidentiary record before the hearing officer contained nothing to indicate the testing laboratory that allegedly found marijuana in claimant's system was licensed or certified as required by statute, a reference to the lab's web site in connection with the appeal was not an acceptable substitute. Similarly, the claimant's admission that he had ingested marijuana two days prior to the test would not permit the inference that he was under the influence of marijuana at the time of the test, absent medical evidence of the length of time marijuana remains detectable in the human system. Sosa v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 259 P.3d 558 (Colo. App. 2011).

8-73-109. Strikes or other labor disputes - definitions. (1) (a) For purposes of this section:

(I) "Coordinated bargaining" means two or more employers bargaining with a union where there is communication and accommodation among the employers but where each is free to make independent decisions on some or all of the issues being negotiated with the union, either written notification of the intent to engage in coordinated bargaining has been provided to the union or the union has rejected an offer to engage in multiemployer bargaining, and one or more representatives of each employer participating in the coordinated bargaining is present at one or more bargaining sessions.

(II) "Defensive lockout" means a lockout:

(A) Reasonably imposed by an employer to protect materials, property, or operations; or

(B) Where a union or two or more employees that are represented by the union take economic action against an employer and that action causes the employer to lock out; or

(C) By any member of a multiemployer bargaining unit or an employer engaged in coordinated bargaining with one or more other employers if such lockout is initiated because of a strike or labor dispute involving any member of such multiemployer bargaining unit or coordinated bargaining group.

(III) "Lockout" means a refusal by an employer engaged in a dispute with a union to permit its employees to perform employment services.

(IV) "Multiemployer bargaining unit" means any group of two or more employers bargaining with a union as a single unit with the consent of each employer and the union.

(V) "Offensive lockout" means any lockout by an employer that does not satisfy the definition of a defensive lockout.

(VI) "Strike or labor dispute" means the withholding of employment services or other economic action by two or more employees that are represented by the union directed at an employer's business.

(b) An individual is ineligible for unemployment compensation benefits for any week with respect to which the division finds that his or her total or partial unemployment is due to a strike or labor dispute in the factory, establishment, or other premises in which he or she was employed and thereafter for such reasonable period of time, if any, as may be necessary for such factory, establishment, or other premises to resume normal operations.

(c) For the purposes of this section, a lockout by any member of a multiemployer bargaining unit or an employer engaged in coordinated bargaining with another employer shall constitute a labor dispute if such lockout was a defensive lockout. In accordance with paragraph (b) of this subsection (1), the employees laid off in such a defensive lockout are ineligible for unemployment compensation benefits.

(d) However, notwithstanding paragraph (b) of this subsection (1), if his or her unemployment is due to an offensive lockout initiated by the employer, the individual will be determined eligible for unemployment compensation benefits.

(2) This section shall not apply if he is not participating in or financing or directly interested in the strike as an individual or as a member of the grade or class of workers conducting the strike. Participating in a strike shall include refusal to cross the picket line.

(3) If in any case separate branches of work which are commonly conducted as separate businesses in separate premises are conducted in separate departments of the same premises, each such department, for the purposes of this section, shall be deemed to be a separate factory, establishment, or other premises.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "The Conflict Between Collective Bargaining and Unemployment Insurance", see 28 Rocky Mt. L. Rev. 185 (1956). For article, "Defending an Unemployment Compensation Claim", see 13 Colo. Law. 69 (1984).

Annotator's note. Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the enactment of 1986 Senate Bill No. 12 which abolished said commission and transferred its powers, duties, and functions under the act to the director of division.

Provisions disqualifying claimants from receiving benefits strictly construed. The provisions of the Colorado employment security act which disqualify claimants from receiving benefits must be strictly construed to accomplish their purpose without excluding legitimate claims for benefits. F.R. Orr Constr. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 326, 522 P.2d 117 (1974), aff'd, 188 Colo. 173, 534 P.2d 785 (1975).

This section makes unemployment due to a strike noncompensable. Sandoval v. Indus. Comm'n, 110 Colo. 108, 130 P.2d 930 (1942); Kania v. Schaffer, 31 Colo. App. 538, 506 P.2d 384 (1972).

Coverage excluded. This section excludes coverage for any week of unemployment caused by a strike or labor dispute. Pierce v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 85, 553 P.2d 402 (1976).

When the employer-employee relationship has been terminated, this section no longer applies. Pierce v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 85, 553 P.2d 402 (1976); Brannan Sand & Gravel v. Indus. Claim Appeals Off., 762 P.2d 771 (Colo. App. 1988), aff'd sub nom. Federico v. Brannan Sand & Gravel Co., 788 P.2d 1268 (Colo. 1990).

A referee's finding that the labor dispute with respondent employer still existed on the date claimants filed for benefits and claimants' objection to that finding were irrelevant where the claimants had quit their jobs with that employer. Pierce v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 85, 553 P.2d 402 (1976).

A striking employee does not have to unilaterally abandon the strike or dispute and offer to return to work and be refused employment, regardless of whether the employee had been permanently replaced, in order to become eligible for benefits. Brannan Sand & Gravel v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 762 P.2d 771 (Colo. App. 1988), aff'd sub nom. Federico v.

Brannan Sand & Gravel Co., 788 P.2d 1268 (Colo. 1990).

Benefits where employee permanently re-placed. A strike or labor dispute suspends the employer-employee relationship, and this section excludes coverage for periods of unemployment attributable to the dispute. However, the relationship may be terminated and the employee may become eligible for benefits if the employer permanently replaces the striking employee. The rationale for this rule is that hiring permanent replacements ends the voluntary nature of the unemployment and breaks the chain of causation between the labor dispute and the unemployment. In re Krantz v. Kelran Constructors, Inc., 669 P.2d 1049 (Colo. App. 1983); Brannan Sand & Gravel v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 762 P.2d 771 (Colo. App. 1988), aff'd sub nom. Federico v. Brannan Sand & Gravel Co., 788 P.2d 1268 (Colo. 1990).

"Strike" defined. "A strike", in so far as the application of this act is concerned, is a concerted refusal to work for pay and under conditions that are presently available in order to procure more advantageous conditions or greater pay. Sandoval v. Indus. Comm'n, 110 Colo. 108, 130 P.2d 930 (1942).

And a labor dispute may exist without a strike, but a labor dispute, accompanied by a concerted refusal to work for the employer until the dispute is resolved in favor of the employees' contentions, furnishes all the elements of a strike. Sandoval v. Indus. Comm'n, 110 Colo. 108, 130 P.2d 930 (1942).

Cause of lockout must be determined when resolving eligibility for benefits where lockout resulted from strike against another member of multiemployer bargaining unit. If lockout resulted from employer's efforts to deprive employees of some advantage they already possessed, they are eligible for benefits. Safeway Stores 44 Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 973 P.2d 677 (Colo. App. 1998).

The refusal of employees to work after expiration of their working contract unless guaranteed contingent benefit of future action on new contracts, then unascertained and unascertainable, constituted a demand for a modification of working conditions and rates of pay, and their refusal to return to work until there was a compliance with such demand, was in effect a strike, in which situation they were not entitled to unemployment benefits. Sandoval v. Indus. Comm'n, 110 Colo. 108, 130 P.2d 930 (1942).

Offers or concessions made subsequent to commencement of labor dispute which are not acceptable to other party are merely negotiations and do not terminate dispute. Kania v. Shaffer, 31 Colo. App. 538, 506 P.2d 384 (1972).

And an employee is directly interested in a dispute when his wages, hours, or conditions of work will be affected favorably or adversely by the outcome of a strike. It is of no consequence that such employee is not a member of the union conducting the strike or that he may not be in sympathy with its purposes. Burak v. Am. Smelting & Ref. Co., 134 Colo. 225, 302 P.2d 182 (1956).

The burden rests upon a claimant to prove that he comes within the exceptions of this section which entitle him to unemployment compensation in the event of a strike. Burak v. Am. Smelting & Ref. Co., 134 Colo. 255, 302 P.2d 182 (1956).

Purpose of the "grade or class" provision in this section is to preclude the possibility of unemployment compensation funds being used to finance, at least in part, certain types of labor disputes such as "key man" strikes in which a very small proportion of an employer's labor force can cause a shutdown of an entire operation by withdrawing their services. F.R. Orr Constr. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 326, 522 P.2d 117 (1974), aff'd, 188 Colo. 173, 534 P.2d 785 (1975).

There are two essential guidelines for the application of a "grade or class" provision: (1) The degree of integration of the work performed by the various groups of employees, and (2) the presence of a community of interest between the striking and nonstriking employees. However, integration of work, alone, is not sufficient to preclude a claimant from establishing his eligibility. There must also be a "community of interest" between the claimants, as a class, and the striking employees. Such a "community of interest" would be evident if the claimants' wages, working conditions, fringe benefits, etc., would be affected by the outcome of the labor dispute. F.R. Orr Constr. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 326, 522 P.2d 117 (1974), aff'd, 188 Colo. 173, 534 P.2d 785 (1975).

Sympathy with strike insufficient to establish community of interest. Where the only relationship between the striking and nonstriking employees revealed by the record is general sympathy with the strike activities of the striking union, such a relationship is inherent in all labor relations and is insufficient to establish the requisite community of interest. F.R. Orr Constr. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 326, 522 P.2d 117 (1974), aff'd, 188 Colo. 173, 534 P.2d 785 (1975).

Commission's determination as to crossing picket line is one of fact. The question of whether claimants refused to cross picket lines, or whether no work was available and any attempt to cross picket lines would have been superfluous, is one of fact, and the determination of the commission in this regard may not be disturbed on review if supported by substantial evidence. Lamb v. Indus. Comm'n, 662 P.2d 191 (Colo. App. 1983).

Labor dispute could not be considered direct cause of termination. Pierce v. Indus.

Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 85, 553 P.2d 402 (1976).

Employer has no duty to adhere to the terms of an expired labor contract for a reasonable time to avoid creating a "construc- tive lockout" situation which would permit strikers to receive unemployment compensation under subsection (1). Abbott v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 796 P.2d 60 (Colo. App. 1990).

8-73-110. Other remuneration - definitions. (1) (a) An individual who is separated from employment and, because of the separation, receives additional remuneration not otherwise referred to in this section and the remuneration is not wages shall have his or her benefits postponed for a number of calendar weeks after separation from employment that is equal to the total amount of the additional remuneration, divided by the individual's usual weekly wage. The postponement required by this subsection (1) shall begin with the calendar week in which the payment was received. If the number of weeks does not equal a whole number, the remainder shall be disregarded. Notwithstanding section 8-73-107 (1) (f), any wages earned by an individual in a calendar week during postponement shall be disregarded.

(b) For purposes of this subsection (1), "individual's weekly wage" means an individual's usual or average wage earned in a representative number of calendar weeks.

(1.2) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2009, (HB 09-1076), ch. 408, p. 2248, § 1, effective June 2, 2009.)

(1.5) Repealed.

(1.6) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2009, (HB 09-1076), ch. 408, p. 2248, § 1, effective June 2, 2009.)

(2) An individual who has an award for any week and for which week he, at a subsequent date, received a pay award by reason of a decision of the national labor relations board or other source, as a result of the action taken by the national labor relations board or other source, shall immediately repay to the division such amounts as will reimburse the division for all benefit payments made for the period during which he drew benefits and for which the national labor relations board or other source has caused a payment to be made in the form of back pay award to the claimant; and the employer's account charged for such benefits shall be credited accordingly.

(3) (a) (I) Except as provided in subparagraph (II) of this paragraph (a), an individual's weekly benefit amount shall be reduced (but not below zero) by:

(A) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2009, (HB 09-1076), ch. 408, p. 2248, § 1, effective June 2, 2009.)

(B) The prorated weekly amount of a pension, retirement or retired pay, or annuity that has been contributed to by a base period employer; or

(C) The prorated weekly amount of any other similar periodic or lump-sum retirement payment from a plan, fund, or trust which has been contributed to by a base period employer.

(II) An individual's weekly benefit amount shall not be reduced when an individual receives a lump-sum retirement payment from a plan, fund, or trust that has been contributed to by a base period employer when all of the following conditions are met:

(A) The individual's separation from the employer awarding the payment is not due to a retirement pursuant to section 8-73-108 (4) (m) or (5) (e) (XXIII);

(B) The individual presents proof to the division within fourteen calendar days from date of claim or sixty calendar days of receipt of such lump-sum payment, whichever is later, that this total payment has been reinvested into an individual retirement account or KEOGH plan, as defined in 26 U.S.C. 408 or 26 U.S.C. 401, and such proof establishes that the investment is for a duration of at least one year; except that such lump-sum retirement payment shall not be considered to be received by the individual until the entire balance has been so received. Should a portion of the payment be ineligible for reinvestment and the claimant presents proof that the total eligible portion has been reinvested, only the remaining uninvested portion will be prorated in accordance with subparagraph (III) of this paragraph (a).

(III) When an individual receives a lump-sum retirement payment from a plan, fund, or trust that has been contributed to by a base period employer and such payment does not meet all of the criteria established in subparagraph (II) of this paragraph (a), then such individual shall be determined to have received, from the date the payment was received by the individual, the individual's full-time weekly wage for a number of consecutive weeks equal to the total amount of the lump-sum retirement payment, divided by the full-time weekly wage.

(IV) An individual's weekly benefit amount shall not be reduced by any amount of a primary insurance benefit under Title II of the federal "Social Security Act" that has been contributed to by a base period employer if the employee has made contributions to federal social security.

(b) (I) An individual who has applied for a retirement payment shall be entitled to receive, if otherwise eligible, the weekly benefit amount reduced by the prorated weekly amount of the estimated or reported amount of such retirement payment. When notice of the actual or confirmed amount of the retirement payment is received by the individual, he shall advise the division and the deduction will be adjusted accordingly.

(II) If the estimated amount of the retirement payment exceeds the amount of unemployment compensation to which the individual is entitled, he shall receive one payment equal to the minimum weekly benefit amount, as prescribed by section 8-73-102 (1), other provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title notwithstanding.

(c) For purposes of this subsection (3), "lump-sum retirement payment" means the entire balance due the individual from the plan, fund, or trust that has been contributed to by a base period employer.

(4) An individual's weekly benefit amount shall not be reduced because of the receipt of military service-connected disability compensation payable under 38 U.S.C., chapter 11, by the federal veterans administration. An individual's weekly benefit amount shall be reduced because of the receipt of a military disability retirement pension based on previous work performed by the individual, the relationship to the level of prior remuneration, or the length of service.

(5) Individuals who receive compensation for temporary disability under the workers' compensation law of any state or under a similar law of the United States shall be entitled to receive benefits for a corresponding week, if otherwise eligible, reduced by the amount of the temporary disability compensation unless the temporary disability amount has already been reduced by the unemployment insurance benefit amount.

(6) Individuals who receive sick pay benefits or other similar periodic cash payments paid to the worker by a base period employer or from any trust or fund contributed to by a base period employer shall be entitled to receive benefits for a corresponding week, if otherwise eligible, reduced by the amount of such sick pay benefits or other similar periodic cash payments.

(7) Repealed.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Administrative Law", which discusses recent Tenth Circuit decisions dealing with the offset of unemployment compensation by social security benefits, see 64 Den U. L. Rev. 122 (1987).

"Wages in lieu of notice" disqualify employee for benefits. This section disqualifies an employee for benefits for any week with respect to which he is receiving or has received remuneration in the form of wages in lieu of notice. Indus. Comm'n v. Sirokman, 134 Colo. 481, 306 P.2d 669 (1957).

But separation allowance for periods of employment prior to separation are not "wages in lieu of notice". Where "wages received as separation allowance" were received with respect to periods of employment which were prior to the separation, and not with respect to periods of time or weeks subsequent thereto, the allowance cannot be considered to be "wages in lieu of notice". Indus. Comm'n v. Sirokman, 134 Colo. 481, 306 P.2d 669 (1957).

Payments from the public employees' retirement association fund are payments from a fund contributed to by an employer under subsection (3)(a), which deals with unemployment benefits. Johnson v. Div. of Emp., 191 Colo. 38, 550 P.2d 334 (1976).

On appeal from a decision denying the application of claimant for unemployment compensation benefits by reason of leaving state employment, supreme court held that the interpretation of payments from the public employees' retirement association fund as payments from a fund contributed to by an employer did not deny equal protection although claimant could have taken a lump sum refund of her public employees' retirement association contributions and thus would not be receiving retirement "pay" or "payments" within the meaning of this section and would have been entitled to unemployment compensation, since neither suspect classifications nor the infringement of fundamental rights were involved and the statutory discrimination had some reasonable basis. Johnson v. Div. of Emp., 191 Colo. 38, 550 P.2d 334 (1976).

Where claimant for unemployment compensation benefits was employed in state service for 28 years, she was compelled to retire at the age of 57 because her husband's health required a move to a warmer climate, she elected to receive retirement benefits on a reduced annuity basis, and the benefits were paid to her in monthly installments of $460, the claimant's claim was correctly denied on the basis of subsection (3)(a). Johnson v. Div. of Emp., 191 Colo. 38, 550 P.2d 334 (1976).

Legislative intent in enacting subsection (3) was to match Colorado pension-offset provisions exactly to the federal model. Edwards v. Valdez, 602 F. Supp. 361 (D. Colo. 1985); Redin v. Empire Oldsmobile, Inc., 746 P.2d 52 (Colo. App. 1987); Cericalo v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 114 P.3d 100 (Colo. App. 2005).

Where claimant receives social security disability insurance (SSDI) benefits, subsection (3)(a)(I)(A) requires a claimant's unemployment benefits to be reduced or offset by half the amount of the SSDI benefits. Cericalo v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 114 P.3d 100 (Colo. App. 2005).

Because subsection (3)(a)(I)(A) applies the offset both to individuals receiving SSDI benefits and to individuals receiving retirement benefits, it does not discriminate on the basis of disability. Cericalo v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 114 P.3d 100 (Colo. App. 2005).

Offset in subsection (3) should be applied only when a claimant is retired or is retiring at the termination of his employment, and the retirement benefits contributed to by the employer are in fact immediately available for utilization by the employee. Redin v. Empire Oldsmobile, Inc., 746 P.2d 52 (Colo. App. 1987) (decided prior to 1987 amendments).

In subsection (3)(a)(I)(B), "base period" means the time before the filing of a claim for unemployment benefits that an employee must be paid wages to be eligible for unemployment benefits. The reference in subsection (3)(a)(I)(B) to a pension that has been contributed to by a base period employer means a pension that the employer has contributed to during the employee's base period. Therefore, a pension that arises from previous employment with the same employer does not reduce the unemployment benefit amount. Hopkins v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, ___ P.3d ___ (Colo. App. 2011).

The state of Colorado and the state unemployment commission are not liable if the unemployment insurance fund runs dry. Edwards v. Valdez, 602 F. Supp. 361 (D. Colo. 1985).

Policy of this section is to prevent "double dipping" by persons who are retired or are retiring at the termination of their employment. Redin v. Empire Oldsmobile, Inc., 746 P.2d 52 (Colo. App. 1987).

Severance allowance interpreted. Payments received by employee which were based upon length of services and current salary constituted a severance allowance. Bockmon v. Mountain States Tel. & Tel., 739 P.2d 887 (Colo. App. 1987).

But a lump sum payment made to the employee in consideration of the employee's release of all common law and statutory claims against the employer does not constitute a severance allowance and does not reduce the employee's right to unemployment compensation. Moore v. Digital Equip. Corp., 868 P.2d 1170 (Colo. App. 1994).

A lump-sum payment the primary purpose of which was not to obtain a release of claims but to provide additional compensation after separation constituted a severance allowance. Pero v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 46 P.3d 484 (Colo. App. 2002).

Applied in Hartman v. Freedman, 197 Colo. 275, 591 P.2d 1318 (1979); Schmidt v. Indus. Comm'n, 42 Colo. App. 253, 600 P.2d 76 (1979); Green v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 765 P.2d 1064 (Colo. App. 1988); Laszar v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 230 P.3d 1263 (Colo. App. 2009).

8-73-111. Compensation from other state. An individual shall not receive an award for any week with respect to which or a part of which he has received or is seeking unemployment benefits under an unemployment compensation law of another state, the federal government, or a foreign country. If the appropriate agency of such other state, the federal government, or a foreign country finally determines that he is not entitled to such unemployment benefits, this lack of award shall not apply. For the purposes of this section, a law of the federal government providing payments of any type and for any amount for periods of unemployment due to lack of work shall be considered an unemployment compensation law of the federal government.

8-73-112. Benefits payable after receiving workers' compensation benefits. Any provision of the law to the contrary notwithstanding, a person who is separated from employment due to an accident or injury resulting in a temporary total disability for which he has been compensated under section 8-42-105, if otherwise eligible, shall be entitled to receive, after the termination of the continuous period of disability, benefits under this article which were available and in effect at the time of separation from employment. Payment of benefits for a week under this section shall be made only if a claim therefor is filed within the four weeks immediately following the termination of the continuous period of total disability and the week for which benefits are claimed occurs within three years after the date of separation from employment. Only one benefit year may be established under the provisions of this section.

Termination of the continuous period of total disability occurs upon administrative order regarding vocational rehabilitation. If an injured employee has been ordered to undergo a vocational rehabilitation evaluation, the period of continuous disability terminates on the date of the administrative determination regarding vocational rehabilitation. Fluke v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 799 P.2d 468 (Colo. App. 1990).

The three-year requirement of this section is not similar to a statute of limitations. Rather, it is a substantive limitation upon the total amount of unemployment benefits to which an injured employee who has been receiving temporary workers' compensation is entitled. In no event is such an employee entitled to unemployment benefits for any week commencing at a date more than three years from the date of employment separation, irrespective of the date when the claim is filed. Lewis v. Colo. Dept. of Labor, 924 P.2d 1183 (Colo. App. 1996).

The substantive limitation in this section is expressed in temporal terms, thus its effect is similar to a statute of repose, in the sense that because an unemployment claimant can seek benefits only for those weeks after the filing of the claim, an injured employee may never become entitled to receive unemployment benefits if that employee receives temporary total disability benefits for three years or more. Lewis v. Colo. Dept. of Labor, 924 P.2d 1183 (Colo. App. 1996).

The fact that an employee does not discover that a claim for benefits may have arisen before the temporal limitation has completely expired does not result in any due process violations. Lewis v. Colo. Dept. of Labor, 924 P.2d 1183 (Colo. App. 1996).

8-73-113. Benefits payable during approved training. (1) Notwithstanding any other provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title, the division shall not deny benefits for any week to an otherwise eligible individual because:

(a) The individual is in training approved under section 236 (a) (1) of the federal "Trade Act of 1974", Pub.L. 93-618, codified at 19 U.S.C. sec. 2296 (a) (1), as amended;

(b) The individual left work to enroll in the training, as long as the work left is not suitable employment;

(c) Of the application of provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title relating to availability for work, active search for work, or refusal to accept work to any week in which the individual is enrolled in the training;

(d) The individual left work that he or she engaged in on a temporary basis during a break in the training or a delay in the commencement of the training; or

(e) The individual left on-the-job training not later than thirty days after commencing the training because the training did not meet the requirements of 19 U.S.C. sec. 2296 (c) (1) (B) of the federal "Trade Act of 1974", as amended.

(2) As used in this section, "suitable employment" means, with respect to an individual, work of a substantially equal or higher skill level than the individual's past adversely affected employment, as defined for purposes of the federal "Trade Act of 1974", as amended, and wages for such work at not less than eighty percent of the individual's average weekly wage, as determined for the purposes of the federal "Trade Act of 1974", as amended.

8-73-114. Enhanced unemployment insurance compensation benefits - eligibility - approved training programs - amount of benefits - outreach - notice of funding through gifts, grants, and donations - repeal. (1) Enhanced unemployment insurance compensation benefits are available for an eligible unemployment insurance claimant who is engaged in and making satisfactory progress, as certified by the training program provider, in an approved training program.

(2) An approved training program must prepare the eligible unemployment insurance claimant for entry into an occupation. The director shall identify occupations based upon the recommendations of local work force investment boards, working with the section of the department responsible for labor market information.

(3) (a) Enhanced unemployment insurance compensation benefits shall be payable to an eligible unemployment insurance claimant who satisfies the requirements of subsection (1) of this section as follows:

(I) The total enhanced unemployment insurance compensation benefit amount shall be equal to twenty weeks of benefits on the regular claim or forty percent of the maximum benefit amount on the regular claim, whichever is less.

(II) The enhanced unemployment insurance compensation benefit shall be paid weekly, in addition to the regular weekly benefit amount, payable in increments equal to fifty percent of the regular weekly benefit amount, rounded down to the nearest whole dollar.

(b) The division shall not pay enhanced unemployment insurance compensation benefits pursuant to this section after June 30, 2014.

(4) (a) The director of the division shall adopt rules in accordance with article 4 of title 24, C.R.S., that the director deems necessary for the proper administration, implementation, and enforcement of federal law and this section.

(b) (I) The division shall develop and improve outreach efforts to unemployed workers, and particularly traditionally underserved populations, to inform them of the availability of enhanced unemployment insurance compensation benefits under this section.

(II) The division may seek, accept, and expend gifts, grants, and donations from private or public sources, consistent with section 8-71-102, to cover its administrative costs related to its outreach efforts and the implementation of this section. The division shall not accept a gift, grant, or donation if it is subject to conditions that are inconsistent with this section or any other law of the state. Any moneys given, granted, or donated to the division pursuant to this subparagraph (II) are subject to annual appropriation by the general assembly to the division for the direct and indirect costs associated with implementing this section.

(III) (A) The division shall notify the legislative council staff when it has received adequate funding through gifts, grants, or donations to implement this section and shall include in the notification the information specified in section 24-75-1303 (3), C.R.S.

(B) This subparagraph (III) is repealed, effective July 1, 2015.

(5) The division may pay enhanced unemployment insurance compensation benefits pursuant to this section but shall not obligate expenditures beyond the limits specified in this section or as otherwise established by the general assembly. For the 2009-10, 2010-11, and 2011-12 fiscal years, the director may obligate a total of fifteen million dollars to be expended over those three fiscal years. For the 2012-13 and 2013-14 fiscal years, the director may obligate a total of eight million dollars to be expended to pay enhanced unemployment compensation benefits during those two fiscal years.

(6) By December 31, 2009, and by each December 31 thereafter until December 31, 2013, the division shall submit a report to the joint budget committee, the economic and business development committee of the house of representatives, and the business, labor, and technology committee of the senate, or their successor committees, regarding the status of the enhanced unemployment insurance compensation benefits program and the resulting outcomes. The report shall include at least the following:

(a) A demographic analysis of participants in the enhanced unemployment insurance compensation benefits program under this section, including the gender, race, age, and geographic representation of participants;

(b) The duration of the enhanced unemployment insurance compensation benefits claimed per eligible unemployment insurance claimant;

(c) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2012.)

(d) The employment and wage history of participants, including the pre-training and post-training wage and whether those participating in training return to their previous employer or occupation after training;

(e) A return on investment calculation to determine the benefits and fiscal contribution of unemployment insurance claimants participating in the program who become employed. Employers participating in the program shall provide the department information on permanent hires of program participants, as well as feedback on program value and issues, for use by the department in calculating the return on investment.

(7) Any enhanced unemployment insurance compensation benefits awarded pursuant to this section to an eligible unemployment insurance claimant that are normally chargeable to the employer shall be charged to the fund.

(8) As used in this section:

(a) (I) "Approved training program" means a vocational training, registered apprenticeship, employer-based, or entrepreneurial training program, approved by the director that:

(A) Is targeted to training for an occupation, based on labor market information; and

(B) Is likely to enhance the unemployment insurance claimant's marketable skills and earning power.

(II) "Approved training program" includes entrepreneurial training approved by the director as part of the self-employment assistance program created in article 75.5 of this title.

(III) “Approved training program” does not include any course of education primarily intended to meet the requirements of an associate, baccalaureate, or higher degree, unless the training meets specific requirements for certification, licensing, or specific skills necessary for the occupation.

(b) “Director” means the director of the division or his or her designee.

(c) “Eligible unemployment insurance claimant” means an unemployment insurance claimant on a regular or extended benefits state unemployment claim or a military or federal claim who is receiving benefits and is eligible for enhanced unemployment insurance compensation benefits pursuant to this section.

(d) “Enhanced unemployment insurance compensation benefits” means additional benefits paid to an eligible unemployment insurance claimant in accordance with this section.

(e) “Training program provider” means a postsecondary educational institution, including an institution of higher education, a community or technical college, an occupational education program, an employer, or any other entity that provides an apprenticeship or entrepreneurial training program approved by the division or authorized under the federal “Workforce Investment Act of 1998”, 29 U.S.C. sec. 2801 et seq., as amended.

(9) This section is repealed, effective July 1, 2014.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Defending an Unemployment Compensation Claim", see 13 Colo. Law. 69 (1984).

8-74-102. Deputy's decision. (1) Upon receipt of a claim, the division shall notify any other interested parties of the claim by mail or electronic means in accordance with such rules as the director of the division may promulgate. Such interested parties shall be afforded twelve calendar days after the date of such notice of the claim to present any information pertinent to the claim by mail, telephone, or electronic means in accordance with such rules as the director of the division may promulgate. Such information shall be received by the division within twelve calendar days after said date. If the twelfth calendar day falls on a weekend or a state holiday, such date shall be moved to the first working day immediately following such weekend or holiday. The interested party may present information out of time only if good cause is shown. A deputy to be designated by the director of the division shall promptly examine all materials submitted. Whenever information submitted is not clearly adequate to substantiate a decision, the deputy shall promptly seek the necessary information. If it is necessary to obtain information by mail from any source, the information shall be received by the division no later than seven calendar days after the date of the request for information. On the basis of the deputy's review, the deputy shall determine the validity of the claim and, if valid, when payment shall commence, the amount payable, and the duration of payment. The deputy shall issue a decision in all cases, even if the claimant has insufficient qualifying wages, unless the interested employer did not receive notice of the claim, except when the separation from employment is due to a lack of work and no alleged disqualifying circumstances are indicated, or unless the claimant did not file a continued claim. The deputy's decision shall set forth findings of fact, conclusions of law, and an order. The division shall promptly provide all interested parties with copies of the deputy's decision.

(2) Notwithstanding articles 70 to 82 of this title, an initial determination of arithmetic computations, wage amounts, and dates of wage payments shall not be subject to immediate appeal. Interested parties who disagree with monetary determinations of the division may request reconsideration of determinations as the director of the division, by regulation, may prescribe. A reconsidered determination of the division is subject to the provisions of section 8-74-105.

ANNOTATION

Duties of deputy of division of employment. Where a claim was filed for benefits under the employment security act, it was the administrative duty of the deputy to examine the claim, determine its validity and make an award of appropriate benefits. Miller v. Indus. Comm'n, 173 Colo. 476, 480 P.2d 565 (1971) (decided under former § 8-74-102).

Good faith reliance upon the statements of department of labor employees. Fundamental fairness demands that delay caused by good faith reliance upon the statements of department of labor employees shall not bar claimant from filing his claims and shall constitute good cause as a matter of law for late filing. Tucker v. Indus. Comm'n, 708 P.2d 484 (Colo. App. 1985).

Private postage meter marks are postmarks within the meaning of this section. Such marks are official postmarks imprinted under license from the postal service and are entitled to all the privileges applying to the various classes of mail. Gutierrez v. Indus. Claim App. Off., 841 P.2d 407 (Colo. App. 1992).

8-74-103. Hearing officer review. (1) Any interested party who is dissatisfied with a deputy's decision may appeal that decision and obtain a hearing covering any issue relevant to the disputed claim. The issue of a claimant's availability will be relevant to the extent set forth in section 8-73-107 (1) (c) (I) (A). The initial appeal shall be to a hearing officer designated by the director of the division and must be received by the division within twenty calendar days after the date of notification of the decision of the deputy in accordance with such rules as the director of the division may promulgate. "Deputy", as used in this article, means a person who adjudicates claims for the division when Colorado is the paying state. Wages paid in Colorado and transferred to another state in which the claimant has filed shall not be subject to adjudication by a deputy of the division or to an appeal directed to this state.

(2) The hearing officer shall have the power and authority to call, preside at, and conduct hearings pursuant to the provisions of section 8-72-108 and such regulations as the director of the division may prescribe.

(3) The hearing officer, after affording all interested parties a reasonable opportunity for a fair hearing in conformity with the provisions of this article and the regulations of the division, shall make a decision on each relevant issue raised, including findings of fact, conclusions of law, and an order. The division shall promptly provide all interested parties with copies of the hearing officer's decision.

(4) The hearing officer may conduct all appeal hearings at designated locations which are most convenient to the claimant and employer. If the claimant and employer request that such hearing be bifurcated, the division may honor this request.

ANNOTATION

Inadequate notice. Notice given pursuant to this section, and the regulation relating thereto, that "All issues and factual matters affecting claimant's eligibility and qualifications for benefits will be heard ..." deprived claimant of a fair hearing within the meaning of the Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. § 503 (a)(3). Shaw v. Valdez, 819 F.2d 965 (10th Cir. 1987).

Redetermination of disqualification period. When a claimant appeals the merits of a deputy's decision finding him eligible for only a reduced award, the period of disqualification from benefits entirely is subject to redetermination by the hearing officer. Armijo v. Indus. Comm'n, 44 Colo. App. 171, 610 P.2d 107 (1980).

Hearing officer is required to independently assess evidence presented at hearing and to reach own conclusions regarding the reason for claimant's separation from employment as well as the probative value of evidence, the credibility of witnesses, and the resolution of any conflicting testimony. Sch. Dist. No. 1 v. Fredrickson, 812 P.2d 723 (Colo. App. 1991).

Statute contemplates that the hearing before the hearing officer be conducted on a de novo basis. Lucero v. Indus. Claim App. Office, 812 P.2d 1191 (Colo. App. 1991).

The time for filing of appeal can only be waived for good cause shown. There was no good cause shown where the claimant failed to keep the division informed of his mailing address and therefore did not receive the decision in time to file an appeal. Sproule v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 830 P.2d 1152 (Colo. App. 1992).

Applied in Andrews v. Dir., Div. of Emp., 41 Colo. App. 408, 585 P.2d 933 (1978); Nguyen v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 174 P.3d 847 (Colo. App. 2007).

8-74-104. Industrial claim appeals office review. (1) Any interested party who is dissatisfied by a hearing officer's decision may appeal that decision and obtain administrative review by the industrial claim appeals office. Any such appeal must be received by the industrial claim appeals office within twenty calendar days after the date of notification of the decision of the hearing officer. The director of the division may prescribe rules for the conduct of such appeals, including apportionment of transcript costs (not to exceed the actual costs of such materials), filing methods, briefing schedules, and similar matters.

(2) Upon petition to review by an interested party, the industrial claim appeals panel may affirm, modify, reverse, or set aside any decision of a hearing officer on the basis of the evidence in the record previously submitted in the case.

(3) The industrial claim appeals office shall promptly provide all interested parties with copies of the industrial claim appeals panel's written decision and order in each case.

(4) The panel shall have the power to issue such procedural orders as may be necessary to carry out its appellate review under subsection (2) of this section, including, but not limited to, orders concerning the acceptance of appeals before the panel and orders granting or denying requests for extension of time.

Editor's note: This section is similar to former § 8-74-105 as it existed prior to 1976.

Annotator's note. (1) Since § 8-74-104 is similar to provisions in former §§ 8-74-104 and 8-74-105 as said sections existed prior to the 1976 repeal and reenactment of this article, relevant cases construing those provisions have been included in the annotations to this section.

(2) Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the enactment of 1986 Senate Bill No. 12, which abolished said commission and transferred its powers, duties, and functions under this section to the industrial claim appeals office.

Under the provisions providing for a review by the commission, the "appeal" before the commission, while not mandatory, is permissible. Bryant v. Hayden Coat Co., 111 Colo. 93, 137 P.2d 417 (1943).

The commission has the ultimate responsibility for making the final findings of fact necessary to support its decision. McGinn v. Indus. Comm'n, 31 Colo. 6, 496 P.2d 1080 (1972); Karton v. Indus. Comm'n, 718 P.2d 255 (Colo. App. 1986).

An appeal in an unemployment compensation case removes the claim in its entirety, and the hearing is, in effect, a trial de novo. The administrative appellate tribunal may consider all matters at issue regardless of the ground of basis of the appeal and an appellant cannot limit the scope of the appeal by a provision in his notice of appeal. Anderson v. Indus. Comm'n, 29 Colo. App. 263, 482 P.2d 403 (1971).

Notice of appeal need not enumerate with particularity all possible issues. Where the petitioner is given an opportunity to present his claim de novo at the hearing before the referee, the notice sent to petitioner apprised him of that fact, and its declaration that all relevant issues would be considered was clear, it cannot be expected that such notice enumerate with particularity all possible relevant issues. Anderson v. Indus. Comm'n, 20 Colo. App. 263, 482 P.2d 403 (1971); Ward v. Indus. Comm'n, 699 P.2d 960 (Colo. 1985).

Section contains no provision that would authorize an appeal absent a transcript, even for questions of law. Movitz v. Division of Emp. and Train., 820 P.2d 1153 (Colo. App. 1991).

Restricting the scope of cross-examination. Referee has the authority to restrict the scope of cross-examination, and only when the restriction is severe enough to constitute a denial of the right will the limitation of cross-examination in an administrative hearing be overturned as an abuse of discretion. Ward v. Indus. Comm'n, 699 P.2d 960 (Colo. 1985).

Scope of review by industrial claim appeals panel. The jurisdiction of the industrial claim appeals panel is limited to acting in an appellate capacity in reviewing the hearing officer's findings and conclusions. Clark v. Colo. State Univ., 762 P.2d 698 (Colo. App. 1988); Brannan Sand & Gravel v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 761 P.2d 771 (Colo. App. 1988).

The commission is not held to a crystalline standard when it articulates its findings of fact. Allmendinger v. Indus. Comm'n, 40 Colo. App. 210, 571 P.2d 741 (1977).

Standard for review by industrial claim appeals panel allows the panel to weigh the evidence and to reject a hearing officer's findings which, although supported by some evidence, are contrary to the great weight thereof. Clark v. Colo. State Univ., 762 P.2d 698 (Colo. App. 1988).

Allowing the presentation of new evidence not originally presented to the hearing officer whose decision is being appealed is contrary to requirements of subsection (2), though the industrial claim appeals panel has the power to enter procedural orders to remedy an insufficient record. Alfaro v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 78 P.3d 1147 (Colo. App. 2003).

The industrial claim appeals panel exceeded its authority by substituting its own evidentiary findings for those of the referee that are amply supported by the record. The Panel's order is set aside because its ultimate findings and conclusions are not supported by the referee's factual findings. Prince-Walker v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 870 P.2d 588 (Colo. App. 1993), aff'd sub nom. Samaritan Inst. v. Prince-Walker, 883 P.2d 3 (Colo. 1994).

Under this act, it is the responsibility of the division of employment and training in the first instance, and ultimately the responsibility of the industrial commission, to determine claimant's eligibility for benefits. Thus, an employer's desire to withdraw its objection did not moot the case. Cordova v. Indus. Comm'n, 706 P.2d 810 (Colo. App. 1985).

Where the decision is justified, it may not be set aside "on the technicality of unclarity of expression on the part of the commission".

Allmendinger v. Indus. Comm'n, 40 Colo. App. 210, 571 P.2d 741 (1977); Allen Co., Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 735 P.2d 889 (Colo. App. 1986), aff'd, 762 P.2d 677 (Colo. 1988).

Conclusion permitted by substantial evidence not disturbed on review. Where substantial evidence permits the conclusion drawn by the commission, it will not be disturbed on review. Allmendinger v. Indus. Comm'n, 40 Colo. App. 210, 571 P.2d 741 (1977).

No abuse of direction for failure of commission to order new hearing where letter did not reveal new facts but reflected a change in the employer's interpretation of previously submitted evidence. Cordova v. Indus. Comm'n, 706 P.2d 810 (Colo. App. 1985).

Industrial claim appeals office abused its discretion in refusing to consider latent ambiguities in its waiver of transcript fees request form and patent evidence which corroborated unemployment compensation claimant's claim of mistake, particularly where claimant never received a meaningful hearing. Richardson v. Freund and Co., 755 P.2d 1 (Colo. App. 1988).

The fact that the industrial commission reversed itself within a short period of time, and did so without fresh evidence, was not the product of arbitrariness. Allmendinger v. Indus. Comm'n, 40 Colo. App. 210, 571 P.2d 741 (1977).

A failure on the part of the commission to "promptly notify" interested parties of a decision may constitute error of a constitutional dimension. Patterson v. Indus. Comm'n, 39 Colo. App. 255, 567 P.2d 385 (1977).

Commission's disregarding hearsay testimony not erroneous. The commission does not err in disregarding the hearsay testimony of the employer's witness based on a business memorandum where the memorandum originated after the claim was filed, was not mentioned during the hearing, and was not submitted until the employer filed a petition to review the referee's decision. Santa Fe Energy Co. v. Baca, 673 P.2d 374 (Colo. App. 1983).

The assessment of the credibility of witnesses is within the authority of the commission in reviewing the referee's decision. Gandy v. Indus. Comm'n, 680 P.2d 1281 (Colo. App. 1983).

Applied in Andrews v. Dir., Div. of Emp., 41 Colo. App. 408, 585 P.2d 933 (1978); Matthews v. Indus. Comm'n, 44 Colo. App. 159, 609 P.2d 1127 (1980); Scotfield v. Indus. Comm'n, 697 P.2d 815 (Colo. App. 1985).

8-74-105. Reconsiderations. The deputy, hearing officer, or industrial claim appeals panel may, on his or its own motion, reconsider a decision within a twelve-month period subsequent to the date of decision when it appears that an apparent procedural or substantive error has occurred in connection therewith. Notification of a decision on reconsideration and the reasons therefor shall be promptly given to all interested parties. In the event that an appeal involving an original decision is pending as of the date on which a decision as a result of reconsideration is issued by the division, such appeal shall be considered void. Any interested party who is dissatisfied by a decision that is issued as a result of reconsideration may appeal that decision in the manner set forth in section 8-74-106.

Editor's note: This section is similar to former § 8-74-110 as it existed prior to 1976.

ANNOTATION

Affirmation of a decision by the review panel after appeal does not bar sua sponte review under this section. The doctrine of res judicata does not bar review under this section, because the statute expressly authorizes the deputy to reconsider a decision within 12 months.

Univ. of Colo. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 74 P.3d 510 (Colo. App. 2003).

Applied in Yanish v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 492, 558 P.2d 1007 (1976); City of Aurora v. Indus. Comm'n, 44 Colo. App. 132, 609 P.2d 129 (1980).

8-74-106. Appeals - time limits - procedures. (1) The following procedures and limitations shall apply to all appeals taken pursuant to this article:

(a) Any party may petition for review of a deputy's decision by filing a petition therefor with the division within twenty calendar days after the date of notification of such decision. Notification of the decision shall be by personal delivery of the decision to an interested party or by mailing a copy of the decision to the last-known address shown in the division records of an interested party and to the interested party's attorney or representative of record, if any, or by electronic means. The date of notification shall be the date of personal delivery, the date of transmission as recorded by the division, if notification is made by electronic means, or the date of mailing of a decision.

(b) Unless, within twenty calendar days after the date of notification of a deputy's decision, an interested party petitions for review of such decision, the decision shall be final. Petitions for review may be accepted out of time only for good cause shown and in accordance with rules adopted by the director of the division.

(c) The division shall give written notice to all interested parties when a petition for review is filed. Such notice shall be pursuant to regulations adopted by the director of the division.

(d) Pursuant to section 8-72-107, each interested party shall be given such reasonable access to division records concerning the claim as is necessary for proper presentation of his position concerning the claim.

(e) Any interested party to an appeal from a deputy's decision shall be entitled to a hearing before a hearing officer. All interested parties shall have the right to be present or to be represented by an attorney or other representative at the hearing, to present such testimony and evidence as may be pertinent to the claim, and to cross-examine witnesses. The division, pursuant to regulations adopted by the director of the division, shall notify all interested parties of the hearing. Such notification shall be made not less than ten calendar days prior to the hearing.

(f) (I) The manner in which disputed claims shall be presented, the reports required from interested parties, and the conduct of hearings shall be in accordance with the provisions of this article and the regulations prescribed by the director of the division, whether or not such regulations conform to common law or statutory or regulatory rules of evidence or other technical rules of procedure.

(II) Evidence and requirements of proof shall conform, to the extent practicable, with those in civil nonjury cases in the district courts of this state. However, when necessary to do so in order to ascertain facts affecting the substantial rights of the parties to the proceeding, the person conducting the hearing may receive and consider evidence not admissible under such rules, if such evidence possesses probative value commonly accepted by reasonable and prudent men in the conduct of their affairs. Objections to evidentiary offers may be made and shall be noted in the record. The person conducting a hearing shall give effect to the rules of privilege recognized by law. He may exclude incompetent and unduly repetitious evidence. Documentary evidence may be received in the form of a copy or excerpt if the original is not readily available; but, upon request, the party shall be given an opportunity to compare the copy with the original. The division may utilize its experience, technical competence, and specialized knowledge in the evaluation of the evidence presented. The provisions of the "State Administrative Procedure Act", article 4 of title 24, C.R.S., and particularly sections 24-4-105 and 24-4-106, C.R.S., shall not apply to hearings and court review under this article. However, the rule-making provisions of section 24-4-103, C.R.S., shall apply to this article.

(III) When the same or substantially similar evidence is relevant and material to the matters at issue in claims by more than one individual or in claims by a single individual with respect to two or more weeks of unemployment, the same time and place for considering each such claim may be fixed, hearings thereon may be jointly conducted, a single record of the proceedings may be made, and evidence introduced with respect to one proceeding may be considered as introduced in the others, if, in the judgment of the tribunal having jurisdiction over the proceeding, such consolidation would not be prejudicial to any interested party.

(IV) No person shall participate on behalf of the division in any case in which he has a direct or indirect interest.

(V) A full and complete record shall be kept of all proceedings in connection with a disputed claim. All testimony at any hearing upon a disputed claim shall be recorded but need not be transcribed unless the disputed claim is presented for further review. If necessary, the industrial claim appeals panel may listen to the recorded testimony of a hearing on a disputed claim prior to rendering a decision. If review is sought pursuant to section 8-74-107, the division shall transcribe the testimony pursuant to such regulations as the director of the division may prescribe.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's notes. (1) Since § 8-74-106 is similar to provisions in former §§ 8-74-102, 8-74-104, 8-74-106, and 8-74-107 as said sections existed prior to the 1976 repeal and reenactment of this article, relevant cases construing those provisions have been included in the annotations to this section.

(2) Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the enactment of 1986 Senate Bill No. 12, which abolished said commission and transferred its powers, duties, and functions under this section to the industrial claim appeals panel.

This section requires receipt by the division, not depositing in the mail, as the determinative factor as to whether a petition is filed timely under subsection (1). Andrews v. Dir., Div. of Emp., 41 Colo. App. 408, 585 P.2d 933 (1978); Fink v. Indus. Comm'n, 689 P.2d 708 (Colo. App. 1984).

Notice lacking. Where there is neither evidence nor presumption that would support the finding that the notice was mailed, and since the only evidence in the record indicates that the employer did not receive notice of the claim, the employer was not given notice and was improperly denied its right to a hearing and determination on the merits of the claim. Allred v. Squirrell, 37 Colo. App. 84, 543 P.2d 110 (1975).

Attorney's negligent failure to timely file appeal. The negligence of claimant's attorney in failing to timely file an appeal pursuant to subsection (1)(a) constitutes "good cause" for accepting the untimely appeal. Trujillo v. Indus. Comm'n, 648 P.2d 1094 (Colo. App. 1982).

Attorney's reliance on information from commission. Reliance by attorney on conversation with employee of commission during which he was told that mailing and postmarking constituted filing constitutes "good cause" for accepting the untimely appeal. Fink v. Indus. Comm'n, 689 P.2d 708 (Colo. App. 1984).

It is employer's responsibility to seek extension of time for filing appeal, and it may not rely on the absence of the general counsel as an excuse for failing to do so. Mohawk Data Sciences Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 671 P.2d 1335 (Colo. App. 1983).

Claimant's sworn statement that he did not actually receive a copy of the referee's decision until eight days before filing his appeal was sufficient to establish prima facie "good cause" for filing a late appeal and to require an evidentiary hearing on claimant's credibility. The mere fact that an envelope bears a correct address and sufficient postage is not a guarantee that it was properly and timely delivered. While a presumption of such delivery may arise from those facts, it is a rebuttable one. Trujillo v. Indus. Comm'n, 735 P.2d 211 (Colo. App. 1987).

A hearing officer's initial decision should have been reinstated in an unemployment compensation case where it was not appealed from or reconsidered pursuant to applicable statutory provisions. Landers v. Indus. Comm'n, 721 P.2d 1227 (Colo. App. 1986).

On allegation of improper notice, commission (now hearing officer) must conduct hearing. When claimant alleges in a request for review that the division's decision was not sent to his "last-known address" because the commission was informed that claimant was not located at that address, the commission (now hearing officer) must conduct a hearing to determine if claimant's allegation is true, and if true whether the request for review was made within 15 days after a copy of the decision was actually delivered. Henderson v. Indus. Comm'n, 35 Colo. App. 124, 529 P.2d 651 (1974).

When claimant admitted that she received notice of withdrawal of her appeal for failure to appear before the referee, and such notice gave claimant the opportunity for a hearing on the issue of good cause for such failure, but she had not appealed it because she had misunderstood the deputy's decision and believed she would receive full benefits, such reason was not good cause for failing to take advantage of the opportunity. Kreigel v. Indus. Comm'n, 702 P.2d 290 (Colo. App. 1985).

Notice must be given to parties and attorneys of record. Due-process requirements qualify statutory enactment, which must be interpreted, if possible, so as to conform to constitutional standards. The court interprets the statutory requirements that the parties be given notice of the decision to necessarily require that a like notice be given to their attorneys of record. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Dept. of Labor & Emp., 184 Colo. 334, 520 P.2d 586 (1974).

Employer representative's late arrival for hearing caused by delays not entirely within her control constituted good cause for failure to appear at the scheduled hearing. Albertsons, Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 735 P.2d 220 (Colo. App. 1987).

This section allows but does not require representation by counsel at hearing and decision to grant continuance based upon request for counsel lies within discretion of hearing officer. Voisin v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 757 P.2d 171 (Colo. App. 1988).

Representation by an attorney. Although the unemployment act allows a party to be represented by an attorney at the hearing, it does not require counsel for parties to be present, nor does it automatically mandate a continuance if a party appears without an attorney and fails to request a continuance in order to have one present. Larsen-Oldaker v. Indus. Comm'n, 735 P.2d 209 (Colo. App. 1987).

Representation by non-attorneys allowed. Persons entitled to a hearing regarding the appeal of a deputy's decision may be represented by a non-lawyer, even though such representation constitutes practicing law. Unauthorized Prac. of Law v. Employers Unity, 716 P.2d 460 (Colo. 1986).

Interrogatories not permitted. The commission has adopted no regulations permitting the use of interrogatories at hearings, and to extend by judicial fiat the tool of interrogatories to employers in unemployment compensation hearings could well lead to intimidation and harassment of claimants, and a stifling of their pursuit of otherwise valid claims. Denver Symphony Ass'n v. Indus. Comm'n, 34 Colo. App. 343, 526 P.2d 685 (1974).

Which is not denial of due process. Not allowing an employer to have answers to written interrogatories served on each of the employees in an unemployment compensation hearing violated no common-law or statutory right, nor was the employer thereby denied due process of law. Denver Symphony Ass'n v. Indus. Comm'n, 34 Colo. App. 343, 526 P.2d 685 (1974).

Hearing officer has discretion to determine the order and manner of presentation of witnesses and evidence. Ward v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 916 P.2d 605 (Colo. App. 1995).

Neither the statutes nor the regulations require parties to exchange documents prior to a hearing that will be conducted in person. QFD v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 873 P.2d 32 (Colo. App. 1993).

Cross-examination in unemployment compensation hearings may be restricted, and only where the restriction is severe enough to constitute a denial of the right will limitation of cross-examination be overturned as an abuse of discretion. Denver Symphony Ass'n v. Indus. Comm'n, 34 Colo. App. 343, 526 P.2d 685 (1974).

May not deny benefits where only evidence hearsay. Where the only evidence supporting the commission's decision is an affidavit which is clearly hearsay, this evidence alone cannot serve as the basis for the commission's ruling denying unemployment compensation benefits. Olivas v. Indus. Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 78, 515 P.2d 110 (1973).

However, the commission erred in failing to consider new evidence in the form of a letter because the letter, combined with claimant's statement, had probative value and should have been considered in determining whether the employer had met his burden. Perez v. Indus. Comm'n, 711 P.2d 1283 (Colo. App. 1985) (decided prior to 1986 abolishment of industrial commission).

It is improper for the industrial commission to arrive at a decision in an unemployment compensation case which may have been based partly on hearsay documents not presented at the hearing conducted by the referee. Wilson v. Colo. Indus. Comm'n, 30 Colo. App. 154, 490 P.2d 91 (1971).

And claimant's letter rebutting hearsay is not waiver as to its consideration. Although claimant is aware that hearsay documents have been filed with the commission and attempts by letter to rebut their effect, his actions do not constitute a waiver as to the consideration of these documents. Wison v. Colo. Indus. Comm'n, 30 Colo. App. 154, 490 P.2d 91 (1971).

Hearsay testimony found unreliable. Hearsay testimony, pursuant to subsection (1)(f)(II), found not so reliable that "reasonable and prudent men" would necessarily assign it probative value. Sante Fe Energy Co. v. Baca, 673 P.2d 374 (Colo. App. 1983).

Weight of hearsay evidence. Hearsay evidence alone may be basis of determination in an unemployment compensation proceeding but only if such evidence is reliable and trustworthy and possesses probative value commonly accepted by reasonable and prudent persons in the conduct of their affairs. Flower Stop Marketing Corp. v. Kilgore, 762 P.2d 747 (Colo. App. 1988), aff'd in part and rev'd in part on other grounds, 782 P.2d 13 (Colo. 1989) (applying Kirke v. State Dept. of Rev., 724 P.2d 77 (Colo. 1986) and overruling the "residuum rule" holding in Sims v. Indus. Comm'n, 627 P.2d 1107 (Colo. 1981) and subsequent cases which applied such rule).

Factors useful in determining whether hearsay evidence is reliable, trustworthy, and of some probative value. Indus. Claims Appeals Office v. Flower Stop Marketing Corp., 782 P.2d 13 (Colo. 1989); Tilley v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 924 P.2d 1173 (Colo. App. 1996).

The rules of evidence are somewhat relaxed in unemployment compensation hearings. QFD v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 873 P.2d 32 (Colo. App. 1993); Tilley v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 924 P.2d 1173 (Colo. App. 1996).

Industrial commission files are business records. Industrial commission file used in good cause determination of untimely requests for review of referees decision, pursuant to commission regulations enacted under an express grant of legislative authority, is admissible as a business records exception to the hearsay rule. Kriegel v. Indus. Comm'n, 702 P.2d 290 (Colo. App. 1985).

Hearing officer in unemployment compensation case did not abuse discretion or deny employer fair hearing by admitting into evidence claimant's personal diary containing entries concerning incidents of alleged harassment by employer, despite employer's argument that claimant should have disclosed it prior to hearing. When employer objected to claimant's testimony about contents of the diary, hearing officer provided employer with opportunity to review it, and at no time did employer request a continuance or adjournment of hearing to allow it further time to prepare for cross-examination or rebuttal on the exhibit. QFD v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 873 P.2d 32 (Colo. App. 1993).

Action beyond jurisdiction of the commission. In an unemployment compensation hearing, the industrial commission has not competency to set aside solemn pronouncement of district court in divorce proceedings pertaining to a property division agreement in which claimant voluntarily resigned her position as secretary and bookkeeper of corporation of which her husband was president in exchange for cash, property, and stock; this was beyond commission's jurisdiction. Indus. Comm'n v. Lyle Adjustment Co., 160 Colo. 241, 417 P.2d 5 (1966).

Section contains no provision which would authorize an appeal absent a transcript, even for questions of law. Movitz v. Division of Emp. and Training, 820 P.2d 1153 (Colo. App. 1991).

The time for filing of appeal can only be waived for good cause shown. There was no good cause shown where the claimant failed to keep the division informed of his mailing address and therefore did not receive the decision in time to file an appeal. Sproule v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 830 P.2d 1152 (Colo. App. 1992).

Applied in Yanish v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 492, 558 P.2d 1007 (1976); Sanchez v. Straight Creek Constructors, 41 Colo. App. 19, 580 P.2d 827 (1978); Anders v. Indus.

Comm'n, 649 P.2d 732 (Colo. App. 1982); FlaHavhan v. Hewlett Packard Co., 675 P.2d 19 (Colo. App. 1983); Sproule v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 830 P.2d 1152 (Colo. App. 1992).

8-74-107. Court review. (1) No action, proceeding, or suit to set aside an industrial claim appeals panel's decision or to enjoin the enforcement thereof shall be brought unless the petitioning party has first complied with the review provisions of sections 8-74-104 and 8-74-106.

(2) Actions, proceedings, or suits to set aside, vacate, or amend any final decision of the industrial claim appeals panel or to enjoin the enforcement thereof may be commenced in the court of appeals by any interested party, including the division. Such actions, proceedings, or suits shall be commenced by filing a notice of appeal in the court of appeals within twenty days of the mailing of the industrial claim appeals panel's decision, together with a certificate of service showing service of a copy of said notice of appeal on the division, the industrial claim appeals office, and all other parties who appeared in the administrative proceedings. The industrial claim appeals office, within twenty days after the service of the notice, shall make return to said court of all documents and papers on file in the matter, of all testimony taken therein, and of certified copies of all findings, orders, and awards, which return shall be deemed its answer to said petition. Such return of the industrial claim appeals office shall constitute the judgment roll in any such action, proceeding, or suit, and it shall not be necessary to settle a bill of exceptions in order to make such return part of the record of such court in such action, proceeding, or suit.

(3) The industrial claim appeals panel may certify to the court of appeals questions of law involved in any of its decisions.

(4) In judicial proceedings under this article, administrative findings as to the facts, if supported by substantial evidence and in the absence of fraud, shall be conclusive.

(5) Actions, proceedings, and suits to review any final decision of the industrial claim appeals panel or questions certified to the court of appeals by such panel shall be heard in an expedited manner and shall be given precedence over all other civil cases, except cases arising under the "Workers' Compensation Act of Colorado", articles 40 to 47 of this title.

(6) The industrial claim appeals panel's decision may be set aside only upon the following grounds:

- (a) That the industrial claim appeals panel acted without or in excess of its powers;
- (b) That the decision was procured by fraud;
- (c) That the findings of fact do not support the decision;
- (d) That the decision is erroneous as a matter of law.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's notes. (1) Since § 8-74-107 is similar to provisions in former § 8-74-109 as it existed prior to the 1976 repeal and reenactment of this article, relevant cases construing that provisions have been included with the annotations to this section.

(2) Cases included in the annotations to this section which refer to the industrial commission were decided prior to the enactment of 1986 Senate Bill No. 12, which abolished said commission and transferred its powers, duties, and functions under this section to the industrial claim appeals panel.

Appellate review not inherent right. Appellate review of an industrial commission order is not an inherent right. Appellate jurisdiction is derived from the statutory and constitutional provisions by which the right of appeal is created and can be acquired and exercised only in the manner prescribed therein. Colo. Div. of Emp. & Training v. Indus. Comm'n, 665 P.2d 631 (Colo. App. 1983).

In construing the employment security act, the court should apply a liberal construction favoring claimants. Adams v. Indus. Comm'n, 31 Colo. App. 340, 501 P.2d 1334 (1972); Allen v. Indus. Comm'n, 36 Colo. App. 330, 540 P.2d 358 (1975).

But one seeking to exercise a statutory right of review or appeal must follow and comply with the procedure prescribed. Washburn v. Indus. Comm'n, 153 Colo. 500, 386 P.2d 975 (1963).

Statute contains no provision that allows a court to engraft the principles or provisions of C.R.C.P. 60(b), either directly or indirectly, into the court's review proceedings. Huddy v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 894 P.2d 60 (Colo. App. 1995).

Proper parties must be aggrieved by commission's decision. Absent allegation or evidence that department of labor and employment was aggrieved by decision of industrial commission, division of employment and department of labor and employment were not proper parties to bring the appeal from decision of industrial commission denying an award of unemployment compensation. Division of Emp. ex rel. Scachez v. Colo. Indus. Comm'n, 31 Colo. App. 259, 500 P.2d 1192 (1972).

Commission's factual determinations conclusive where supported by substantial evidence. The commission's factual determinations concerning the reasons for an employer's failure timely to file an appeal are conclusive if supported by substantial evidence. Mohawk Data Sciences Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 671 P.2d 1335 (Colo. App. 1983).

Judicial review by the court of appeals is limited to a review of the commission's findings and decision. McGinn v. Indus. Comm'n, 31 Colo. 6, 496 P.2d 1080 (1972).

And if the evidence would support the findings made by the industrial commission, the court of appeals must affirm. Bryant v. Hayden Coal Co., 111 Colo. 93, 137 P.2d 417 (1943); Indus. Comm'n v. Brady, 128 Colo. 490, 263 P.2d 578 (1953); Indus. Comm'n v. Wilbanks, 130 Colo. 36, 274 P.2d 99 (1954); Burak v. Am. Smelting & Ref. Co., 134 Colo. 255, 302 P.2d 182 (1956); Morrison Rd. Bar. Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 138 Colo. 16, 328 P.2d 1076 (1958); Sayers v. Am. Janitorial Serv., Inc., 162 Colo. 292, 425 P.2d 693 (1967); Ruby v. Yellow Cab, Inc., 163 Colo. 297, 430 P.2d 463 (1967); Stensvad v. Indus. Comm'n, 167 Colo. 140, 445 P.2d 898 (1968); Gatewood v. Russell, 29 Colo. App. 11, 478 P.2d 679 (1970); Tague v. Coors Porcelain Co., 30 Colo. App. 158, 490 P.2d 96 (1971); Radis v. Indus. Comm'n, 31 Colo. App. 355, 502 P.2d 977 (1972).

Where the resolution of a factual issue was within the province of the commission and where there is substantial evidence to support the finding, an appellate court will not disturb it on review. Wade v. Hurley, 33 Colo. App. 30, 515 P.2d 491 (1973).

If there is substantial evidence in the record to support the factual determinations of the commission, a court should not substitute its judgment for that of the commission. Denver Symphony Ass'n v. Indus. Comm'n, 34 Colo. App. 343, 526 P.2d 685 (1974).

On judicial review of unemployment proceedings, the findings of the commission as to the facts, if supported by the evidence, shall be conclusive. Allen v. Indus. Comm'n, 36 Colo. App. 330, 540 P.2d 358 (1975).

Resolution of conflicts in the evidence is a matter properly left to the commission. Where there is evidence supporting the commission's conclusion on an issue, the commission's decision may not be disturbed on appeal. In re Krantz v. Kelran Constructors, Inc., 669 P.2d 1049 (Colo. App. 1983).

A decision of the panel may not be set aside where there are findings of fact supported by substantial evidence. Colo. Div. of Emp. & Train. v. Hewlett, 777 P.2d 704 (Colo. 1989).

And will not be set aside where based upon conflicting evidence. Findings of fact by the industrial commission should not be set aside by reviewing court where such findings are the result of a resolution on conflicting evidence. Bryant v. Hayden Coal Co., 111 Colo. 93, 137 P.2d 417 (1943); McGinn v. Indus. Comm'n, 31 Colo. 6, 496 P.2d 1080 (1972).

Where evidence is conflicting and susceptible to conflicting inferences, the commission's decision will not be disturbed. Olivas v. Indus. Comm'n, 33 Colo. App. 273, 518 P.2d 304 (1974).

But court not bound by commission's findings where no conflict in evidence. Where there is not material conflict in the evidence before the industrial commission acting as the unemployment compensation commission, the courts may reach their own conclusions and are not bound by the findings of fact of the commission. Indus. Comm'n v. Emerson W. Co., 149 Colo. 529, 369 P.2d 791 (1962); Denver Post Corp. v. Indus. Comm'n, 677 P.2d 436 (Colo. App. 1984).

The commission's order may be set aside if there is not substantial evidence to support it. Stern v. Indus. Comm'n, 667 P.2d 244 (Colo. App. 1983).

Commission decisions must be set aside if erroneous. Ward v. Indus. Comm'n, 44 Colo. App. 301, 612 P.2d 1164 (1980).

Denial of benefits by referee was ambiguous and reversible error when it did not clearly set out the effect of the disqualification on claimant's future benefits and failed to advise claimant of the amount of benefits the claimant was eligible to receive. Davis v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 982 P.2d 330 (Colo. App. 1999).

Finding that claimant was unemployed through no fault of his own supported by substantial evidence. See Sante Fe Energy Co. v. Baca, 673 P.2d 374 (Colo. App. 1983).

A determination as to whether a claimant is responsible or "at fault" for separation from employment is a legal conclusion based on established findings of evidentiary fact, rather than a question of evidentiary fact. Accordingly, ruling based on lack of fault must be set aside if established findings of evidentiary fact do not support conclusion that claimant was at fault. Bd. of Water Comm'rs v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 881 P.2d 476 (Colo. App. 1994).

Substantial evidence is evidence which is probative, credible, and competent and which would warrant a reasonable belief in the existence of facts supporting finding. Kalkbrenner v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 801 P.2d 545 (Colo. App. 1990).

Perfection of appeal includes correct joinder of indispensable parties within the original 20-day period. Sakal v. Indus. Comm'n, 620 P.2d 65 (Colo. App. 1980); E.E.O.C. v. Indus. Comm'n, 680 P.2d 855 (Colo. App. 1984).

Failure to join a former employer who is considered an indispensable party will deprive the court of jurisdiction. Johnson v. Indus. Comm'n, 652 P.2d 1109 (Colo. App. 1982).

But employer who is not indispensable party need not be joined. An employer who has no direct involvement in the issue on appeal is not an indispensable or necessary party, and need not be joined. Asche v. Indus. Comm'n, 654 P.2d 813 (Colo. 1982).

Employer's status as indispensable party determined on facts. An employer's status as an indispensable party in unemployment compensation appeals is not automatic but must be determined on the facts of each case. Asche v. Indus. Comm'n, 654 P.2d 813 (Colo. 1982).

Former employer deemed indispensable party. In an appeal of an unemployment compensation claim, a former employer has an interest which could be adversely affected by the outcome and is, therefore, an indispensable party. Sakal v. Indus. Comm'n, 620 P.2d 65 (Colo. App. 1980).

Filing petition in court of appeals commences appellate process. Filing a petition for review directly in the court of appeals within the statutory 20-day period sufficiently commenced the appellate process for purposes of this section, even though petitioner did not effect service of process on the commission until after the expiration of that period. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Indus. Comm'n, 664 P.2d 256 (Colo. App. 1983) (decided prior to 1984 amendment to subsection (2)).

In an unemployment compensation case, an appeal is perfected by filing a petition for review of a final decision of the industrial commission with the court of appeals within 20 days after notification of the final decision. In re Lowery v. Indus. Comm'n, 666 P.2d 562 (Colo. 1983) (decided prior to 1984 amendment to subsection (2)).

Twenty-day period for filing notice of appeal of final orders of commission commences to run when the commission mails its final order. Lutheran Hosp. & Homes Soc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 710 P.2d 496 (Colo. App. 1985).

Notice sufficient where notice to commission was timely mailed to an address other than that specified in the commission's final order and the commission was clearly set up to accept service of some matters at that address. Haynes v. Interior Investments, 725 P.2d 100 (Colo. App. 1986) (decided prior to 1986 abolishment of industrial commission).

Where the notice of final order failed to state the requirements of this section, as changed by the 1984 amendment, the order is misleading and lack of service on the commission will not be fatal to the petition for review. Scofield v. Indus. Comm'n, 697 P.2d 815 (Colo. App. 1985).

A final order is one which completely determines the rights of the parties without further action by the tribunal. A finding by the industrial claim appeals office that claimant showed good cause for her late appeal allows further action on the merits of claimant's appeal, and is therefore not a final decision subject to appeal. Agren, Blando & Assocs., Inc. v. Oleston, 746 P.2d 68 (Colo. App. 1987).

Petition for review in court of appeals does not need to state grounds. Following the 1976 revision of the Employment Security Act, there is no longer a requirement of a specification of the grounds for appeal in a separate petition for review in the court of appeals. Stern v. Indus. Comm'n, 653 P.2d 742 (Colo. 1982).

Inadequacy of findings. Where the only finding made by the industrial commission upon reversal is that claimant became separated from his employment under conditions contemplated in § 8-73-108 (6)(i), the finding of the commission is inadequate. Subsection (6)(i) covers a number of causative factors and from such a finding the court of appeals is unable to determine the evidentiary and ultimate facts upon which the commission based its conclusion. Wilson v. Indus. Comm'n, 30 Colo. App. 154, 490 P.2d 91 (1971).

Where there is no substantial supportive evidence of the facts found by the commission, the commission's determination must be set aside. Allen v. Indus. Comm'n, 36 Colo. App. 330, 540 P.2d 358 (1975).

But where there are no material factual errors in the findings of the commission, the commission's order will not be set aside. Gandy

v. Indus. Comm'n, 680 P.2d 1281 (Colo. App. 1983).

Hearing officer has jurisdiction to remand a matter for further proceedings when it appears the claimant has become separated from employment after the filing of the initial claim, but before the hearing date. Debalco v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 32 P.3d 621 (Colo. App. 2001).

Test for fraud is the same as that for setting aside a judgment. Cisneros v. Cisneros, 163 Colo. 245, 430 P.2d 86 (1967); Cordova v. Indus. Comm'n, 706 P.2d 810 (Colo. App. 1985).

Statute as basis for jurisdiction. See In re Interrogatories by Indus. Comm'n, 30 Colo. App. 599, 496 P.2d 1064 (1972); Schenk v. Indus. Comm'n, 40 Colo. App. 350, 579 P.2d 1171 (1978).

Applied in Pierce v. Indus. Comm'n, 195 Colo. 10, 576 P.2d 1012 (1978); Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 637 P.2d 401 (Colo. App. 1981); Marlin Oil Co. v. Indus. Comm'n, 641 P.2d 312 (Colo. App. 1982); Nielson v. AMI Indus., Inc., 759 P.2d 834 (Colo. App. 1988); Cole v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 964 P.2d 617 (Colo. App. 1998).

8-74-108. Conclusiveness of determinations and decisions. Any right, fact, or matter in issue directly passed upon or necessarily involved in a decision of a deputy, a hearing officer, the industrial claim appeals office, or the court of appeals which has become a final decision under this article, after appeal procedures, if initiated, have been completed or otherwise terminated, shall be conclusive for all the purposes of articles 70 to 82 of this title as between all interested parties. No finding of fact or law, judgment, conclusion, or final order made with respect to a determination made under articles 70 to 82 of this title may be conclusive or binding or used as evidence in any separate or subsequent action or proceeding in another forum, except proceedings under articles 70 to 82 of this title, regardless of whether the prior action was between the same or related parties or involved the same facts. No findings of fact or law, judgment, conclusion, or final order made by any other agency, administrative body, or forum that are not made pursuant to articles 70 to 82 of this title shall be binding on the division for the purposes of articles 70 to 82 of this title.

8-74-109. Payment of benefits. (1) Notwithstanding any other provisions of this article, if a decision grants benefits to a claimant, such benefits shall be promptly paid in accordance with and upon issuance of the decision. If further benefits are granted by a subsequent decision, all accrued and unpaid benefits shall be promptly paid. If a subsequent decision denies or reduces benefits, subsequent benefits shall be denied or reduced pursuant to and upon issuance of the decision. If the final decision denies benefits, no employer's rating account shall be charged with benefits paid.

(2) If by reason of fraud, mistake, or clerical error a claimant receives moneys in excess of benefits to which he is entitled or if a claimant receives benefits to which he is subsequently determined to be not entitled as a result of a final decision in the appeals process, the division shall recoup such moneys in accordance with section 8-79-102 and such regulations as may be prescribed by the director of the division.

ANNOTATION

The essence of the act is its provision for the prompt payment of benefits to those unemployed. Any substantial delay would defeat this purpose and would bring back the evil sought to be avoided. Withholding benefits for long periods through the slow process of appeal to the court is not harmony with the beneficent and remedial purposes of the act. Bayly Mfg. Co. v. Dept. of Emp., 155 Colo. 433, 395 P.2d 216 (1964) (decided under former § 8-74-102).

PART 1

EXTENDED BENEFITS

8-75-101. Definitions. As used in this part 1, unless the context otherwise requires:

(1) "Eligibility period" of an individual means the period consisting of the weeks in his benefit year which begin in an extended benefit period and, if his benefit year ends within such extended benefit period, any weeks thereafter which begin in such period.

(2) (a) "Exhaustee" means an individual who, with respect to any week of unemployment in his or her eligibility period:

(I) Has received, prior to such week, all of the regular benefits that were payable to him under articles 70 to 82 of this title or any other state law (including dependents' allowances and regular benefits payable to federal civilian employees and ex-servicemen under 5 U.S.C., chapter 85) for his benefit year that includes such week;

(II) Has received, prior to such week, all of the regular benefits that were available to him under articles 70 to 82 of this title or any other state law (including dependents' allowances and regular benefits available to federal civilian employees and ex-servicemen under 5 U.S.C., chapter 85) in his benefit year that includes such week, after the cancellation of some or all of his wage credits or the total or partial reduction of his right to regular benefits. For the purposes of this subparagraph (II) and subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (a), an individual shall be deemed to have received in his applicable benefit year all of the regular benefits that were payable to him or available to him, as the case may be, even though:

(A) As a result of a pending appeal with respect to wages or employment, or both, that was not included in the original monetary determination with respect to such benefit year, he may subsequently be determined to be entitled to more regular benefits; or

(B) By reason of the seasonal provisions of another state law, he is not entitled to regular benefits with respect to such week of unemployment (although he may be entitled to regular benefits with respect to future weeks of unemployment in the next season or off-season, as the case may be, in such benefit year), and he is otherwise an exhaustee within the meaning of this subsection (2) with respect to his right to regular benefits under such other state law's seasonal provisions during the season or off-season in which that week of unemployment occurs; or

(C) Having established a benefit year, no regular benefits are payable to him during such year because his wage credits were cancelled or his right to regular benefits was totally reduced as a result of the application of a disqualification;

(III) His benefit year having ended prior to such week, has insufficient wages or employment, or both, on the basis of which he could establish in any state a new benefit year that would include such week or, having established a new benefit year that includes such week, he is precluded from receiving regular benefits by reason of the provisions of section 8-73-107 (2) which meet the requirements of section 3304 (a) (7) of the "Federal Unemployment Tax Act" or a similar provision in any other state law;

(IV) Has no right for such week to unemployment benefits or allowances, as the case may be, under the "Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act", the "Trade Expansion Act of 1962", and such other federal laws as are specified in regulations issued by the United States secretary of labor;

(V) Has not received and is not seeking for such week unemployment benefits under an unemployment compensation law of Canada, unless the appropriate agency finally determines that he is not entitled to unemployment benefits under such law for such week; or

(VI) Has received all of the unemployment compensation benefits pursuant to part 2 of this article and regular unemployment compensation benefits available in a benefit year.

(b) "Applicable benefit year", as used in this subsection (2), means, with respect to an individual, his current benefit year if at the time he files a claim for extended benefits he has an unexpired benefit year only in the state in which he files such claim or, in any other case, his most recent benefit year. For the purpose of this paragraph (b), his "most recent benefit year", if he has unexpired benefit years in more than one state when he files a claim for extended benefits, is the benefit year with the latest ending date or, if such benefit years have the same ending date, the benefit year in which his latest continued claim for regular benefits was filed.

(3) (a) "Extended benefit period" means a period which:

- (I) Begins with the third week after a week for which there is an "on" indicator; and
- (II) Ends with either of the following weeks, whichever occurs later:
  - (A) The third week after the first week for which there is an "off" indicator; or
  - (B) The thirteenth consecutive week of such period.

(b) But no extended benefit period may begin by reason of an "on" indicator before the fourteenth week following the end of a prior extended benefit period which was in effect with respect to this state.

(4) "Extended benefits" means benefits as defined in section 8-70-110 (1) (b).

(4.5) "High unemployment period" means a period in which the seasonally adjusted total unemployment rate, as determined by the United States secretary of labor, for the most recent three months for which data for all states is published, equals or exceeds eight percent.

(5) and (6) Repealed.

(7) "Rate of insured unemployment", for the purposes of subsection (11) of this section, means the percentage derived by dividing: The average weekly number of individuals filing claims for regular compensation in this state for weeks of unemployment with respect to the most recent consecutive thirteen-week period as determined by the division on the basis of its reports to the United States secretary of labor, by the average monthly employment covered under articles 70 to 82 of this title for the first four of the six most recently completed calendar quarters ending before the end of such thirteen-week period.

(8) "Regular benefits" means benefits as defined in section 8-70-110 (1) (a).

(9) "State law" means the unemployment insurance law of any state, approved by the United States secretary of labor under section 3304 of the federal "Internal Revenue Code of 1986", as amended.

(9.5) "Total unemployment rate" or "TUR" means the percentage derived by dividing the number of all unemployed persons in the civilian labor force by the number of individuals comprising the total labor force, including both employed and unemployed individuals, and then multiplying that number by one hundred.

(10) There is an "off" indicator for a week if, for the period consisting of such week and the immediately preceding twelve weeks, either:

(a) Sub-subparagraph (A) or (C) of subparagraph (I) of paragraph (a) of subsection (11) of this section was not satisfied, and subparagraph (II) of paragraph (a) of subsection (11) of this section was not satisfied; or

(b) Sub-subparagraph (B) or (C) of subparagraph (I) of paragraph (a) of subsection (11) of this section was not satisfied, and subparagraph (II) of paragraph (a) of subsection (11) of this section was not satisfied.

(11) (a) There is an "on" indicator for a week if the rate of insured unemployment under articles 70 to 82 of this title for the period consisting of such week and the immediately preceding twelve weeks:

(I) (A) Equaled or exceeded one hundred twenty percent of the average of such rates for the corresponding thirteen-week period ending in each of the preceding two calendar years; or

(B) Equaled or exceeded one hundred twenty percent of the average of such rates for the corresponding thirteen-week period ending in each of the preceding three calendar years with respect to weeks beginning on or after December 17, 2010, and ending December 31, 2011, or while Pub.L. 111-312 and any amendments thereto are in effect; and

(C) Equaled or exceeded five percent; or

(II) Equaled or exceeded six percent.

(b) Repealed.

8-75-102. Effect of state law provisions relating to regular benefits on claims for, and payment of, extended benefits. Except when the result would be inconsistent with the other provisions of this section as provided in the regulations of the division, the provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title which apply to claims for, or the payment of, regular benefits shall apply to claims for, and the payment of, extended benefits.

8-75-103. Eligibility requirements for extended benefits. (1) An individual shall be eligible to receive extended benefits with respect to any week of unemployment in his eligibility period only if the division finds that with respect to such week:

- (a) He is an exhaustee;
- (b) He has satisfied the requirements of articles 70 to 82 of this title for the receipt of regular benefits that are applicable to individuals claiming extended benefits, including not being subject to a disqualification for the receipt of benefits; and
- (c) He files his interstate claim from a state in which there is an extended benefits state "on" indicator. If he files his interstate claim from a state in which there is an extended benefits state "off" indicator, he shall be paid for not more than the first two weeks in which extended benefits are payable in an interstate claim.

8-75-103.5. Additional extended benefit requirements. (1) An individual shall be ineligible for payment of extended benefits for any week of unemployment in his eligibility period if the division finds that during such period:

- (a) He failed to accept any offer of suitable work as defined under subsection (3) of this section or failed to apply for any suitable work to which he was referred by the division; or
  - (b) He failed to actively engage in seeking work which is prescribed as suitable work under subsection (5) of this section.
- (2) Any individual who has been found ineligible for extended benefits by reason of the provisions of subsection (1) of this section shall also be denied benefits beginning with the first day of the week following the week in which such failure occurred and until he has been employed in each of four subsequent weeks, whether or not consecutive, and has earned remuneration equal to not less than four times the extended weekly benefit amount.
- (3) For the purposes of this section, "suitable work" means, with respect to any individual, any work which is within such individual's capabilities. The gross average weekly remuneration payable for such work shall:

(a) Exceed the sum of the individual's extended weekly benefit amount as determined under sections 8-73-102 and 8-75-104 plus the amount, if any, of supplemental unemployment benefits, as defined in section 501 (c) (17) (D) of the federal "Internal Revenue Code of 1986", as amended, payable to such individual for such week;

(b) Not be less than the higher of the minimum wage provided by section 206 (a) (1) of the "Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938", as amended, without regard to any exemption, or the applicable state or local minimum wage.

(4) No individual shall be denied extended benefits for failure to accept an offer of or apply for any job which meets the definition of suitability, provided in subsection (3) of this section, if:

(a) The position was not offered to such individual in writing or was not listed with the state employment service;

(b) Such failure could not result in a denial of benefits under the definition of suitable work for regular benefit claimants in section 8-73-108 (5) (b) to the extent that the criteria of suitability in that section are not consistent with the provisions of subsection (3) of this section;

(c) The individual furnishes satisfactory evidence to the division that his prospects for obtaining work in his customary occupation within a reasonably short period are good. If such evidence is deemed satisfactory for this purpose, the determination of whether any work is suitable with respect to such individual shall be made in accordance with the definition of suitable work for regular benefit claimants in section 8-73-108 without regard to the definition specified by subsection (3) of this section.

(5) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (b) of subsection (3) of this section to the contrary, no work shall be deemed suitable work for an individual which does not accord with the labor standards provisions required by section 3304 (a) (5) of the federal "Internal Revenue Code of 1986", as amended, and set forth under section 8-73-108 (5) (b).

(6) For the purposes of paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of this section, an individual shall be treated as actively engaged in seeking work during any week if:

(a) The individual has engaged in a systematic and sustained effort to obtain work during such week;

(b) The individual furnishes tangible evidence that he has engaged in such effort during such week.

(7) The state employment service shall refer any claimant entitled to extended benefits under the "Colorado Employment Security Act", articles 70 to 82 of this title, to any suitable work which meets the criteria prescribed in subsection (3) of this section.

(8) An individual shall not be eligible to receive extended benefits with respect to any week of unemployment in his eligibility period if such individual has been disqualified for regular benefits under the "Colorado Employment Security Act", articles 70 to 82 of this title, because he voluntarily left work, was discharged for misconduct, or failed to accept an offer of or apply for suitable work unless the disqualification imposed for such reasons has been terminated in accordance with specific conditions established under said act, requiring the individual to perform service for remuneration subsequent to the date of such disqualification.

(9) Repealed.

8-75-104. Weekly extended benefit amount. The weekly extended benefit amount payable to an individual for a week of total unemployment in his eligibility period shall be an amount equal to the weekly benefit amount payable to him during his applicable benefit year; except that, for any week during a period in which federal payments to states under section 204 of the "Federal-State Extended Unemployment Compensation Act of 1970" and amendments thereto are reduced under section 252 of the "Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985" and amendments thereto, the weekly extended benefit amount payable to an individual for a week of total unemployment in his eligibility period shall be reduced by a percentage equivalent to the percentage of the reduction in the federal payment. Such reduced weekly extended benefit amount, if not an even dollar amount, shall be rounded to the next lower full dollar amount.

8-75-105. Total extended benefit amount. (1) The total extended benefit amount payable to any eligible individual with respect to his applicable benefit year shall be the least of the following amounts:

(a) Fifty percent of the total amount of regular benefits which were payable to him under articles 70 to 82 of this title in his applicable benefit year; or

(b) Thirteen times his weekly benefit amount which was payable to him under articles 70 to 82 of this title for a week of total unemployment in the applicable benefit year.

(2) Notwithstanding any other provisions of this part 1, if the benefit year of any individual ends within an extended benefit period, the remaining balance of extended benefits that such individual would, but for this subsection (2), be entitled to receive in that extended benefit period, with respect to weeks of unemployment beginning after the end of the benefit year, shall be reduced (but not below zero) by an amount equal to the product of the number of weeks for which the individual received any amounts as trade readjustment allowances within that benefit year multiplied by the individual's weekly benefit amount for extended benefits.

(3) Notwithstanding any other provision of this part 1, during any fiscal year in which federal payments to states under section 204 of the "Federal-State Extended Unemployment Compensation Act of 1970" and amendments thereto are reduced under section 252 of the "Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985" and amendments thereto, the total extended benefit amount payable to an individual with respect to his or her applicable benefit year shall be reduced by an amount equal to the aggregate of the reductions in the weekly amounts paid to the individual under section 8-75-104.

Work share program - work share plan - eligibility of employer - approval - denial - repeal. (1) (a) (I) The director shall establish a voluntary work share program for the purpose of allowing the payment of unemployment compensation benefits to employees whose wages and hours have been reduced. In order to participate in the work share program, an employer shall submit a work share plan in writing to the director for approval. If the employer is subject to a collective bargaining agreement, the collective bargaining unit must agree in writing to the work share plan prior to implementation. An employer that is a negative excess employer pursuant to section 8-76-103 (3) (b) is not eligible to participate in the work share program.

(II) This paragraph (a) is repealed, effective December 31 of the calendar year in which the revisor of statutes receives the written report pursuant to section 8-76-102.5 (1) indicating that the fund balance of the unemployment compensation fund on any June 30 is equal to or greater than zero dollars and all advances in accordance with the conditions specified in Title XII of the federal "Social Security Act", as amended, have been repaid.

(b) (I) The director shall establish a voluntary work share program for the purpose of allowing the payment of unemployment compensation benefits to employees whose wages and hours have been reduced. (c) The plan reduces the normal work for an employee in the affected unit by at least ten percent and not more than forty percent;

(3) The director shall not approve a work share plan unless the employer:

(a) Agrees that for the duration of the employer's participation in the work share program, the employer shall not eliminate or diminish health insurance, retirement benefits received under a pension plan, paid vacation and holidays, sick leave, or any other similar employee benefit provided by the employer immediately prior to submitting the work share plan to the division, if the employer provides benefits to his or her employees;

(b) Certifies that the collective bargaining agent for the employees, if applicable, has agreed to the work share plan;

(c) Certifies that the implementation of a shared work plan and the resulting reduction in work hours is in lieu of temporary layoffs that would affect at least ten percent of the employees in the affected unit and that would result in an equivalent reduction in work hours;

(d) Certifies that the employer will not employ additional employees in the affected unit while participating in the work share program;

(e) Agrees that no employee participating in the work share program shall receive, in the aggregate, more than eighteen weeks of benefits; and

(f) Agrees to submit reports concerning the operation of the work share plan to the division upon request of the director.

(b) The employer shall report the change in writing to the division; and

(c) The director shall approve the modified plan.

(3) The director shall approve or deny a modified work share plan using the same standards and requirements that are used for the original work share plan in accordance with section 8-75-203.

8-76-102. Rate of premiums - surcharge - repeal. (1) Each employer shall pay premiums equal to two and seven-tenths percent of chargeable wages paid by the employer during each calendar year, except as may be otherwise prescribed in section 8-76-103. As used in this section, "chargeable wages paid" shall include chargeable wages constructively paid as well as chargeable wages actually paid.

(3) (a) A political subdivision or its instrumentality that has elected to become a premium-paying employer shall have its account charged with the full amount of all regular and extended benefits that are attributable to service in its employ.

(b) (I) The premium rate for political subdivisions or their instrumentalities shall be examined annually in conjunction with the employers' benefit experience and may be adjusted on a year-by-year basis as prescribed by section 8-76-103 (3) (b) (I).

(4) (a) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2009, (HB 09-1363 and SB 09-076), chs. 363, 409, pp. 1883, 2251, §§ 12, 1, effective July 1, 2009.)

(b) Effective July 1, 1999, and until such time as employers' federal unemployment taxes are returned to the state by the federal government at levels sufficient to permit the effective administration of articles 70 to 82 of this title, the premium surcharge established by this subsection (4) shall be segregated and deposited in the employment support fund created in section 8-77-109.

(c) Effective January 1, 1998, the premium surcharge established by this subsection (4) shall not be assessed against any employer whose benefit-charge account balance for the last three fiscal years immediately preceding the computation date is less than one hundred dollars.

(d) Effective calendar year 2009, the annual premium surcharge rate shall be established at 0.22 percent, with thirty percent of the premium surcharge allocated to the unemployment compensation fund created in section 8-77-101, fifty percent of the premium surcharge allocated to the employment support fund created under section 8-77-109, and twenty percent of the premium surcharge allocated to the employment and training technology fund created in section 8-77-109 (2) (a.9). Effective January 1, 2017, fifty percent of the premium surcharge shall be allocated to the unemployment compensation fund and fifty percent of the premium surcharge shall be allocated to the employment support fund. The premium surcharge rate shall then be added to the employer's standard or computed premium rate. The premium surcharge rate added to the employer premium rate shall also be identified separately on the employer premium rate notice as the premium surcharge for benefits not effectively charged. The combined rate shall be the employer's premium rate for the ensuing calendar year. The premium surcharge established by this subsection (4) shall not be assessed against any employer whose benefit-charge account balance is zero; except that, if the employer is still being rated under the provisions of section 8-76-103 (3) (a), such employer is subject to the premium surcharge rate.

The solvency surcharge shall be assessed on all ratable employers beginning with the next calendar year, and the solvency surcharge shall then be added to the employer's standard or computed premium rate. The solvency surcharge rate added to the employer's premium rate shall also be identified separately on the employer's premium rate notice as the solvency surcharge. The solvency surcharge shall be initially assessed and then increased in the yearly increments established by paragraph (b) of this subsection (5) until the June 30 fund balance is greater than the fund level established by this subsection (5) but in no case shall exceed the rate schedule in effect January 1, 1990.

ANNOTATION

Tax liability issues must be decided, in the first instance, by the division of employment and training. Claim of Woloson, 796 P.2d 1 (Colo. App. 1989).

8-76-102.5. Rates effective upon fund solvency - repeal of prior rates - solvency surcharge - definitions. (1) On each August 31, the executive director shall file a written report with the general assembly, the governor, and the legislative audit committee indicating the balance in the unemployment compensation fund. When the written report indicates that the fund balance on any June 30 is equal to or greater than zero dollars and all advances in accordance with the conditions specified in Title XII of the federal "Social Security Act", as amended, have been repaid, the executive director shall also report these facts in writing to the revisor of statutes. Upon receipt by the revisor of statutes of the written report, the following provisions are repealed, effective December 31 of the calendar year of the written report to the revisor of statutes, and thereafter this section governs the payment of premiums:

(a) Section 8-76-102; and

(b) Section 8-76-103.

(2) Effective January 1 of the calendar year after the calendar year of the repeal of the provisions under subsection (1) of this section, each employer shall pay premiums in the manner prescribed by this section.

(3) (a) (I) Each employer's rate for the twelve months commencing January 1 of any calendar year is determined on the basis of the employer's record prior to the computation date for the year. The computation date for any calendar year is July 1 of the year preceding the calendar year for which the rate is computed.

(II) The total of all of an employer's premiums paid on his or her own behalf on or before thirty-one days immediately after the computation date and the total benefits that were chargeable to the employer's account and were paid before the computation date, with respect to weeks, or any established payroll period of unemployment, beginning before the computation date, is used to compute his or her premium rate for the ensuing calendar year; except that the maximum rate for negative excess employers that is credited to the unemployment compensation fund must be at least 0.0613 assessed as part of each employer's premium under this paragraph (a), and for these employers the maximum combined premium rate must be at least 0.0628 but not greater than 0.1039. "Percent of excess" means the percentage resulting from dividing the excess of premiums paid over benefits charged by the average chargeable payroll, computed to the nearest one percent. The word "to" in the column headings, which make reference to fund balances (resources available for benefits), means "not including". "Reserve ratio" means the fund balance on any June 30 as a proportion of total wages reported by experience-rated employers.

(b) Only those wages paid for covered employment that occurred before the computation date and were reported to the division on or before thirty-one days immediately following the computation date will be used to determine the experience rate effective for the next calendar year.

(c) Whenever an employer subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title acquires, before the computation date and pursuant to section 8-76-104, all or a segregable portion of the organization, trade, and business or substantially all of the assets of an employer who was subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title at the time of the acquisition, and the successor submitted in writing that the successor met the conditions set forth in section 8-76-104, a total or partial transfer of the experience rating record of the predecessor employer shall be made as provided in section 8-76-104. No merger of the accounts for experience rating purposes will be made for the rate effective the next calendar year unless the information is submitted to the division on or before sixty days following the computation date.

(d) Notwithstanding any provision to the contrary, an employer, at any time before March 15 of any year, may pay voluntary premiums in addition to the premiums and surcharges provided under articles 70 to 82 of this title. Voluntary premiums shall allow for a reduction of the employer's experience rate and shall be credited to the employer's account and be used in determining the employer's rate for the current calendar year and subsequent calendar years; except that, if an employer is delinquent in the payment of any premiums or surcharges due, the voluntary premium payments shall be reduced by the total amount of delinquent premiums and surcharges before such computation is made. No voluntary premiums paid pursuant to this paragraph (d) shall be refunded or applied to future premium liability.

(e) As used in sections 8-76-101 to 8-76-104, for the purpose of computing the premium rate of any employer, the term "annual payroll" means the total amount of wages for employment paid by an employer during the twelve-month period ending on June 30. The term "average chargeable payroll" means the average of the chargeable payrolls for the last three fiscal years ending on June 30. For any employer who has not reported payrolls to the division for thirty-six consecutive months ending on June 30, the division shall compute the average chargeable payroll by dividing the total chargeable payrolls of the employer during the three fiscal years ending on June 30 by the total months during which such wages were paid and multiplying the amount so determined by twelve.

(f) An employer shall have sixty calendar days after the mailing date or the transmission date as recorded by the division of a quarterly statement of benefits charged to the employer's account in which to file a written application for a review and determination of benefit charges. The application must specify in detail the grounds upon which the employer relies and may be filed in person, by mail, or by electronic means in accordance with such rules as the director of the division may promulgate. The division shall investigate the matters specified and shall give the employer notice of its redetermination by mail or by electronic means. If the employer fails to act within the prescribed time, benefits charged to the account shall be deemed correct and final. Appeal from the redetermination decision may be made pursuant to section 8-76-113 (2).

(g) By December 1 of each year, or as soon as practicable, the division shall notify each employer of the employer's premium rate as determined for the next calendar year pursuant to sections 8-76-101 to 8-76-104. The notification shall include the amount determined as the employer's average annual payroll, the total of all the employer's premiums paid on his or her own behalf and credited to his or her account for all past years, and the total benefits charged to the employer's account for all such years.

(h) No later than January 1, 2013, the division shall develop an on-line computer application that allows employers to review and manage account information. The on-line computer application shall include at least the following:

- (I) A method for employers to file premium reports and make premium payments;
- (II) A method for employers to review account balances, charging history, premium rates, and account status;
- (III) A method for employers to change the physical address of an account, reinstate an account, and close an account; and
- (IV) A method for employers to receive and return division forms and correspondence.

(i) Whenever there has been a period of five consecutive calendar years during which there were no chargeable wages paid for services considered employment under articles 70 to 82 of this title, any balance shown in the employer's account will not be transferred nor be used for premium rating purposes if the employer again becomes liable under articles 70 to 82 of this title.

(4) (a) The division shall determine employer premium rates for employers newly subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title each year as of the computation date in accordance with subsection (3) of this section. New employers pay the same premiums as unrated employers as prescribed in subsection (3) of this section or at the computed rate, whichever is higher, unless there have been twelve consecutive calendar months immediately preceding the computation date during which an employer's account has been chargeable with benefit payments.

(b) An employer that elects reimbursement under sections 8-76-108 to 8-76-110 is exempt from this section.

(c) An "employer newly subject", as used in this article, means an employer who has never, at any time, been an employer under any provision of articles 70 to 82 of this title, an employer who has lost his or her prior experience under subsection (3) of this section, or an employer who, under section 8-76-110 (2) (e), terminates his or her election to make payments in lieu of premiums or whose election to make payments in lieu of premiums has been terminated by the division under the authority of section 8-76-110 (4) (e) or (4) (f).

(5) (a) Those employers newly subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title and assigned the three-digit North American industry classification code 236, 237, or 238 for the construction industry must pay the same premiums as unrated employers as prescribed in subsection (3) of this section, at the actual experience rate, at a rate equal to the average actual experience rate, or at a rate equal to the average industry premium rate as determined by the division, whichever is greater, unless there have been thirty-six consecutive calendar months immediately preceding the computation date.

(b) For purposes of this subsection (5), assignment by the division of employment and training of industrial classifications to employers pursuant to this subsection (5) must be in accordance with procedures and guidelines of the bureau of labor statistics of the United States department of labor and be the appropriate three-digit subsector level found in the North American industry classification system manual issued by the office of management and budget.

(c) For purposes of this subsection (5), "average industry premium rate" means the average premium rate of all employers assigned the same three-digit North American industry classification code pursuant to this subsection (5). The rate is computed annually by the division using the latest data as of the computation date.

(6) (a) A political subdivision or its instrumentality that has elected to become a premium-paying employer will have its account charged with the full amount of all regular and extended benefits that are attributable to service in its employ.

(b) (I) The premium rate for political subdivisions or their instrumentalities will be examined annually in conjunction with the employer's benefit experience and may be adjusted on a year-by-year basis as prescribed by subparagraph (I) of paragraph (a) of subsection (3) of this section.

(II) The division must notify all political subdivisions or their instrumentalities, as defined in paragraph (a) of this subsection (6), of the premium rate no later than January 1 of the year for which the rate applies.

(7) (a) A solvency surcharge will be assessed when the fund balance of the unemployment compensation fund on any June 30 is equal to or less than 0.005 multiplied by the total wages reported by experience-rated employers for the previous calendar year, or for the most recent available four consecutive quarters before the last computation date. The solvency surcharge will be assessed on all experience-rated employers beginning with the next calendar year, and the solvency surcharge is added to the employer's premium rate. The solvency surcharge rate added to the employer's premium rate will also be identified separately on the employer's premium rate notice as the solvency surcharge. The solvency surcharge remains in effect until the June 30 fund balance in the unemployment compensation fund is equal to or greater than 0.007 multiplied by the total wages reported by experience-rated employers for the calendar year, or for the most recent available four consecutive quarters:

(b) The solvency surcharge shall not be assessed against:

- (I) The covered employers of state and local governments;
- (II) Nonprofit organizations that are reimbursing employers; or
- (III) Political subdivisions electing the special rate.

(8) (a) Subject to the conditions stated in paragraph (b) of this subsection (8), an employer is eligible for a premium credit, as determined by the division, of a proportionate amount of the excess of the amount specified in subparagraph (IV) of paragraph (b) of this subsection (8). Each employer that qualifies for the premium credit receives a share of the total available premium credit equal to his or her proportionate share of the total chargeable wages paid by qualifying employers.

(b) An employer does not receive premium credit under this subsection (8) unless all of the following conditions are met:

(I) As of the most recent computation date, the employer has filed all required reports and paid all premiums and surcharges due under articles 70 to 82 of this title;

(II) The employer is not a negative excess employer under the table in subsection (3) of this section;

(III) The employer has not elected to make reimbursement payments in lieu of premiums; and

(IV) As of the computation date immediately preceding the calendar year for which the premium credit is to be taken, the unexpended and unencumbered surplus balance in the unemployment compensation fund created in section 8-77-101 (1) exceeded one and six-tenths percent of total wages reported by experience-rated employers. Amounts in excess of one and six-tenths percent of total covered wages are considered available for disbursement as part of the premium credit.

(9) Any premium credit remaining to an employer after the first year in which the premium credit is applied is available to the employer in subsequent calendar years.

(10) As used in subsections (8) and (9) of this section, "premium credit" means the dollar amount discount available to eligible employers under the conditions set forth in paragraph (b) of subsection (8) of this section to be applied against premiums due in any given calendar year. For purposes of computing an employer's future rate, any premium credit claimed by an employer under subsection (8) of this section is disregarded, and the premium that would otherwise be due is deemed paid.

(11) (a) The division shall maintain a separate account for each employer and shall credit the employer's account with all premiums and surcharges paid on the employer's behalf. Nothing in articles 70 to 82 of this title shall be construed to grant any employer or individuals in the employer's service prior claims or rights to the amounts paid by the employer into the fund, either on the employer's behalf or on behalf of such individuals. Benefits paid to an eligible individual shall be charged, in the amount provided in this section, against the accounts of his or her employers in the base period in the inverse chronological order in which the employment of the individual occurred. Benefits paid to a seasonal worker during the normal seasonal periods shall be charged against the account of his or her most recent seasonal employers in the corresponding normal seasonal period of his or her base period in the inverse chronological order in which the seasonal employment of the individual occurred and prior to the charging of benefits based on nonseasonal employment.

(b) The maximum amount charged against the experience rating account of any employer pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (11) may not exceed one-third of the wages paid to an individual by the employer for insured work during the individual's base period, but not more per completed calendar quarter or portion thereof than one-third of the maximum wage credits as computed in section 8-73-104. Nothing in sections 8-76-101 to 8-76-104 shall be construed to limit benefits payable pursuant to sections 8-73-101 to 8-73-106. Notwithstanding section 8-73-108 or any administrative practice that results in fund charging, a reimbursing employer shall bear the cost of all benefits paid to its former employees, with the exception of benefit overpayments. The director of the division, by general rules, shall prescribe the manner in which benefits shall be charged against the accounts of several employers for whom an individual performed employment at the same time.

(c) If, by reason of fraud, mistake, or clerical error, an individual receives benefits in excess of those to which he or she is entitled and the employer's account is charged, the employer's account shall be credited an amount equal to the benefits erroneously charged to the account.

8-76-103. Future rates based on benefit experience - definitions - repeal.

(1) (a) The division shall maintain a separate account for each employer and shall credit the employer's account with all premiums and surcharges paid on his or her own behalf. Nothing in articles 70 to 82 of this title shall be construed to grant any employer or individuals in his or her service prior claims or rights to the amounts paid by the employer into the fund either on his or her own behalf or on behalf of such individuals. Benefits paid to an eligible individual shall be charged, in the amount provided in this section, against the accounts of his or her employers in the base period in the inverse chronological order in which the employment of such individual occurred. Benefits paid to a seasonal worker during the normal seasonal periods shall be charged against the account of his or her most recent seasonal employers in the corresponding normal seasonal period of his or her base period in the inverse chronological order in which the seasonal employment of the individual occurred and prior to the charging of benefits based on nonseasonal employment.

(b) The maximum amount so charged against the experience rating account of any employer shall not exceed one-third of the wages paid to such individual by each such employer for insured work during such individual's base period, but not more per completed calendar quarter or portion thereof than one-third of the maximum wage credits as computed in section 8-73-104. Nothing in sections 8-76-101 to 8-76-104 shall be construed to limit benefits payable pursuant to sections 8-73-101 to 8-73-106. Notwithstanding the provisions of section 8-73-108 and administrative practices which result in fund charging, a reimbursing employer shall bear the cost of all benefits paid to its former employees, with the exception of benefit overpayments. The director of the division, by general rules, shall prescribe the manner in which benefits shall be charged against the accounts of several employers for whom an individual performed employment at the same time.

(c) This subsection (1) shall become effective July 1, 1963, and the provisions hereof respecting determination of weekly benefit amounts and duration of benefits shall apply only to benefit years commencing on or after July 1, 1963. Benefits for individuals whose current benefit year has not expired on July 1, 1963, shall be completed in accordance with the provisions in effect at the time said benefit year began.

(d) If, by reason of fraud, mistake, or clerical error, an individual receives benefits in excess of those to which he or she is entitled and the employer's account is charged, the employer's account shall be credited an amount equal to the benefits erroneously charged to the account.

Employer premium rates for employers newly subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title on or after July 1, 1997, shall be determined each year as of the computation date in accordance with the provisions of subparagraph (II) of paragraph (b) of this subsection (3). Such new employers shall pay premiums at the standard rate or at the computed rate, whichever is higher, unless and until there have been twelve consecutive calendar months immediately preceding the computation date during which an employer's account has been chargeable with benefit payments.

(II) An employer who elects reimbursement under sections 8-76-108 to 8-76-110 is exempt from this section.

(III) (A) to (D) Repealed.

(F) On and after January 1, 2002, for purposes of this subsection (3), the division shall assign industrial classifications to employers pursuant to sub-subparagraph (E) of this subparagraph (III) in accordance with procedures and guidelines of the bureau of labor statistics of the United States department of labor and to the appropriate three-digit subsector level found in the North American industry classification system manual issued by the office of management and budget.

(G) On and after January 1, 2002, for purposes of this subsection (3), "average industry premium rate" means the average premium rate of all employers assigned the same three-digit North American industry classification code pursuant to sub-subparagraph (E) of this subparagraph (III). The rate shall be computed annually by the division using the latest available data as of the computation date.

(III) Only those wages paid for covered employment that occurred prior to the computation date and reported to the division on or before thirty-one days immediately following the computation date will be used to determine the experience rate effective for the next calendar year.

(IV) Whenever an employer subject to the provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title acquires, prior to the computation date and pursuant to section 8-76-104, all or a segregable portion of the organization, trade, and business or substantially all of the assets of an employer who was subject to the provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title at the time of such acquisition, and such successor submitted in writing that he met the conditions set forth in section 8-76-104, a total or partial transfer of the experience rating record of the predecessor employer shall be made as provided in section 8-76-104. No merger of such accounts for experience rating purposes will be made for the rate effective the next calendar year unless such information is submitted to the division on or before sixty days following the computation date.

(V) When the fund level on July 1 of any year reaches one and six-tenths percent of the total wages, the director of the division shall recommend to legislative council a proposed premium rate decrease.

(c) If the federal unemployment tax rate is reduced below three percent, the maximum rate listed in the table shall not exceed ninety percent of the reduced federal unemployment tax rate.

(d) Notwithstanding any provisions to the contrary, any employer, at any time prior to March 15 of any year, may pay voluntary premiums in addition to the premiums and surcharges provided under articles 70 to 82 of this title. Voluntary premiums shall be credited to the employer's account and be used in determining the employer's rate for the current calendar year and subsequent calendar years; except that, if an employer is delinquent in the payment of any premiums or surcharges due, the voluntary premium payments shall be reduced by the total amount of delinquent premiums and surcharges before such computation is made. No voluntary premiums paid pursuant to this paragraph (d) shall be refunded or applied to future premium liability.

(e) As used in this section, for the purpose of computing the premium rate of any employer, "annual payroll" means the total amount of wages for employment paid by an employer during the twelve-month period ending June 30. "Average chargeable payroll" means the average of the chargeable payrolls for the last three fiscal years ending June 30. For any employer who has not reported payrolls to the division for thirty-six consecutive months ending June 30, the division shall compute the average chargeable payroll by dividing the total chargeable payrolls of the employer during the three fiscal years ending

June 30 by the total months during which such wages were paid and multiplying the amount so determined by twelve.

(4) An employer shall have sixty calendar days from the mailing date or the transmission date as recorded by the division of a quarterly statement of benefits charged to the employer's account in which to file a written protest or application requesting a review and determination of benefit charges. Such application shall specify in detail the grounds upon which such employer relies and may be filed in person, by mail, or by electronic means in accordance with such rules as the director of the division may promulgate. The division shall investigate the matters specified and give such employer notice of its redetermination by mail or by electronic means. If the employer fails to act within the prescribed time, benefits charged to such account shall be deemed correct and final. Appeal from the redetermination decision may be made pursuant to section 8-76-113 (2).

(5) The division shall notify each employer, as nearly as possible prior to the date upon which any premiums for each calendar year become due, of the employer's premium rate as determined for such calendar year pursuant to sections 8-76-101 to 8-76-104. The notification shall include the amount determined as the employer's average annual payroll, the total of all the employer's premiums paid on his or her own behalf and credited to his or her account for all past years, and the total benefits charged to the employer's account for all such years.

(6) Whenever there has been a period of five consecutive calendar years during which there were no chargeable wages paid for services considered employment under the provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title, any balance shown in the employer's account will not be transferred nor be used for premium rating purposes if the employer again becomes liable under articles 70 to 82 of this title.

(7) (a) Subject to the conditions stated in paragraph (b) of this subsection (7), an employer shall be eligible for a credit of twenty percent against premiums otherwise due under section 8-76-102 (3) and subsection (3) of this section. For purposes of computing an employer's future rates, any credit claimed by the employer under this subsection (7) shall be disregarded, and the premiums that would otherwise have been due shall be deemed paid.

(b) An employer shall not receive credits under this subsection (7) unless all of the following conditions are met:

(I) As of the most recent computation date, the employer has filed all required reports and paid all premiums and surcharges due under articles 70 to 82 of this title;

(II) The employer is not a negative excess employer assigned the maximum premium rate under sub-subparagraph (C) of subparagraph (II) of paragraph (b) of subsection (3) of this section;

(III) The employer has not elected to make reimbursement payments in lieu of premiums; and

(IV) As of the computation date immediately preceding the calendar year for which the credit is to be taken, the unexpended and unencumbered balance in the unemployment compensation fund, created in section 8-77-101 (1), equaled or exceeded one and one-tenth percent of the total amount of insured wages paid in Colorado during the calendar year immediately preceding the computation date.

(8) This section is repealed, effective December 31 of the calendar year in which the revisor of statutes receives the written report pursuant to section 8-76-102.5 (1) indicating that the fund balance of the unemployment compensation fund on any June 30 is equal to or greater than zero dollars and all advances in accordance with the conditions specified in Title XII of the federal "Social Security Act", as amended, have been repaid.

ANNOTATION

This section requires that the administrative agency maintain a separate account for each employer and credit his account with all contributions paid on his own behalf. After a fixed period of "contributions" to the fund on the part of an employer, the amount thereof depends upon his benefit experience; that is to say, if his turnover of employees is large and numerous claims for compensation are made by his one-time employees, his contribution, or tax, is higher. If no claims are shown by his benefit experience or if they are few, he may conceivably be relieved of further contributions to the fund, so long as required reserves in this account are available. Cottrell Clothing Co. v. Teets, 139 Colo. 558, 342 P.2d 1016 (1959).

The division of employment and training is required to maintain a separate tax account for each entity that meets the definition of an "employer" under § 8-70-113, even if the entities in question fall under common ownership and control. Accord Human Res., Inc. v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, __ P.3d __ (Colo. App. 2010).

8-76-103.5. Transitional provisions - combined premium rate for 2012 - repeal.

(1) For calendar year 2012, the incremental increase in the solvency surcharge established in section 8-76-102 will be applied, and an amount equal to the amount of the increase in the surcharge will be subtracted from the computation on the experience-rated employer's rate for the calendar year 2012.

(2) This section is repealed, effective January 1, 2014.

8-76-104. Transfer of experience - assignment of rates - definitions - repeal.

(1) (a) An employing unit, as defined in section 8-70-113 (1) (f), that becomes an employer because it acquires all of the organization, trade, or business or substantially all of the assets of one or more employers subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title shall succeed to the entire experience rating record of the predecessor employer, and the entire separate account, including the actual premiums, benefits, and payroll experience of the predecessor employer, shall pass to the successor for the purpose of determining the premium rate for the successor.

(b) If the successor was not an employer prior to the date of acquisition, the successor's rate shall be the rate applicable to the predecessor employer in the period immediately preceding the date of acquisition if there was only one predecessor or if there were multiple predecessors with identical rates. If there were multiple predecessor employers with rates that were not identical, the successor's rate shall be the highest rate applicable to any of the predecessor employers in the period immediately preceding the date of acquisition.

(c) (I) (A) If, at the time of transfer, a person who is not an employer under this section acquires the trade or business of an employer and the division finds that the successor acquired the trade or business solely or primarily for the purpose of obtaining a lower rate of contributions, the unemployment experience of the predecessor employer shall not be transferred to the successor and the division shall assign the successor the applicable new employer rate determined pursuant to section 8-76-103 (3).

(B) This subparagraph (I) is repealed, effective December 31 of the calendar year in which the revisor of statutes receives the written report pursuant to section 8-76-102.5 (1) indicating that the fund balance of the unemployment compensation fund on any June 30 is equal to or greater than zero dollars and all advances in accordance with the conditions specified in Title XII of the federal "Social Security Act", as amended, have been repaid.

(II) (A) If, at the time of transfer, a person who is not an employer under this section acquires the trade or business of an employer and the division finds that the successor acquired the trade or business solely or primarily for the purpose of obtaining a lower rate of contributions, the unemployment experience of the predecessor employer shall not be transferred to the successor and the division shall assign the successor the applicable new employer rate determined pursuant to section 8-76-102.5 (4).

(B) This subparagraph (II) is effective on and after the repeal of subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (c).

(2) (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of sections 8-76-101 to 8-76-104, if the successor employer was an employer subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title prior to the date of acquisition and, at the time of the transfer, there is no substantial common ownership, management, or control of the two employers, the successor's premium rate for the remainder of the calendar year shall be the same as the successor's rate in the period immediately preceding the date of acquisition.

(b) If an employer transfers all or a portion of its trade or business to another employer and, at the time of the transfer, there is substantially common ownership, management, or control of the two employers, the unemployment experience attributable to the predecessor employer shall be transferred to the successor employer. The rates of both employers shall be recalculated and made effective immediately upon the date of the transfer of the trade or business. If, following a transfer experience, the division determines that the purpose of the transfer of the trade or business was solely or primarily to obtain a reduced liability for contributions, the division shall combine the experience rating accounts of the employers into a single account and shall assign a single rate to the account.

(c) If an employer transfers all or a portion of its trade or business to another employer and the division finds that the successor acquired the trade or business solely or primarily for the purpose of obtaining a lower rate of contributions, the experience and reserve account attributable to the predecessor employer shall not be transferred to the successor employer and shall revert to the predecessor employer.

(3) (a) Whenever an employer in any manner transfers a clearly segregable unit of the employer's business for which the predecessor employer has maintained, in such form as to be separable, continuous records of wages, premiums, and benefits paid on account of the segregable unit, the predecessor employer and successor employer may jointly request that the division transfer a proportionate share of premium, benefit, and payroll experience attributable to the unit based on the ratio of the chargeable payrolls paid during the twelve calendar quarters immediately preceding the computation date of the segregable unit to the total employer account prior to the notice to the division of the transfer. A transfer of experience may not be made under this subsection (3) unless the segregable unit has fourteen consecutive quarters of payroll immediately preceding the computation date. If, at the time of the transfer, there is substantially common ownership, management, or control of the two employers, the unemployment experience attributable to the predecessor employer shall be transferred to the successor employer. The rates of both employers shall be recalculated and made effective immediately upon the date of the transfer of the trade or business.

(b) The division may transfer the experience and perform all other acts required by this subsection (3). The proportionate share of the predecessor employer's reserve account attributable to the transferred unit shall pass to the successor employer.

(c) The experience rate established for the predecessor employer for all units of the business shall continue in effect for the remainder of the calendar year in which the transfer is made, and, for succeeding calendar years, it shall be computed on the experience of those units retained.

(d) If the successor was an employer prior to the effective date of the transfer, the experience rate for the calendar year in which the transfer is made shall be the same as that previously established without reference to the acquired segregable unit, and, for succeeding calendar years, it shall be computed on the combined experience of all units of the successor's business.

(e) If the successor was not an employer prior to the effective date of transfer and two or more segregable units are simultaneously transferred to the successor by a single employer, the successor's premium rate shall be computed from the combined premium, benefit, and payroll experience of the units.

(f) If the successor was not an employer prior to the effective date of transfer and two or more segregable units are simultaneously transferred to the successor by different employers, the successor's premium rate shall be the highest rate applicable to any of the units unless the rates with respect to the transferred units are identical.

(g) The transfer of experience with respect to a segregable unit shall be of no force and effect unless an application for the transfer, signed by both the predecessor employer and the successor employer, is filed with the division in the form and manner prescribed by the director by rule. The application shall be filed within sixty days after the notice of employer liability from the division is mailed or transmitted by electronic means to the successor employer. The notice shall contain information pertaining to segregable unit transfers.

(h) Whenever a predecessor employer and a successor employer jointly request that the division transfer the proportionate share of premium, benefit, and payroll experience attributable to a clearly segregable unit to the successor employer, the predecessor employer shall furnish to the division any information requested by the division for such purpose.

(4) (a) In determining whether the trade or business was acquired solely or primarily for the purpose of obtaining a lower rate of contributions, the division shall use objective factors that may include, without limitation, the cost of acquiring the trade or business, whether and for how long the successor continued the business enterprise of the acquired trade or business, and whether a substantial number of new employees were hired for performance of duties unrelated to the business activity conducted prior to the acquisition.

(b) The division may void a rate determination if it finds that a successor has no business existence separate and apart from the predecessor and should not have been established as a separate employer for unemployment compensation purposes. Under the circumstances described in this paragraph (b), the experience and reserve account attributable to the predecessor employer shall not be transferred to the successor employer and shall revert to the predecessor employer.

(5) When determining whether one or more employers have common ownership, management, or control, the division may consider factors such as stock ownership, officers, employees, payroll systems, and common business interests.

(6) The division shall establish procedures to identify the transfer or acquisition of a business or trade for purposes of this section.

(7) Notwithstanding any provision of section 8-70-113 to the contrary, any subject employer whose entire reserve account has been transferred to a successor employer, as provided in subsection (1) of this section, shall immediately cease to be a subject employer and shall thereafter become a subject employer only upon any future employment experience.

(8) A transfer of experience shall not occur when a work-site employer's account is made inactive as a result of entering into a contract with an employee leasing company, as defined in section 8-70-114 (2) (a) (V), or when a contract between a work-site employer and an employee leasing company is terminated unless there is substantial common ownership, management, and control of the work-site employer and the employee leasing company. The existence of an employee leasing arrangement, without other evidence of common control, shall not constitute substantial common ownership, management, and control.

(9) When any part of the predecessor employer's trade or business utilizes the services of ninety percent or more of the total number of employees in covered employment on the payroll for each of the four pay periods immediately preceding the transfer to a successor employer, the entire separate account, including the actual premium, benefit, and payroll experience of the predecessor employer, shall pass to the successor employer for the purpose of the rate of computation of the successor.

(10) (a) If a person knowingly violates or attempts to violate any provision of this section in order to obtain a lower contribution rate, the person shall pay all owed premiums with applicable penalties and interest and may be subject to the penalties set forth in paragraph (c) of this subsection (10).

(b) If a person knowingly advises another person in a way that results in a violation of paragraph (a) of this subsection (10), the person may be subject to the penalties set forth in paragraph (c) of this subsection (10).

(c) If the person who violates this section as described in paragraph (a) or (b) of this subsection (10) is an employer, the division may assign the employer the highest contribution rate assignable under this article for the rate year during which the violation or attempted violation occurred and the next three years. If, during the rate year in which a violation occurs, the subject employer was assigned the highest contribution rate, or the amount of the rate increase would be less than two and seven-tenths percent for the rate year, the division may impose a penalty contribution rate of two and seven-tenths percent of chargeable wages for that rate year and the next three years. If the person is not an employer, the person may be subject to a civil fine of not more than five thousand dollars, which shall be deposited in the unemployment revenue fund created in section 8-77-106.

(d) In addition to any penalty imposed pursuant to paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) of this subsection (10), any violation of this section may be prosecuted as a class 1 misdemeanor pursuant to section 18-1.3-501, C.R.S.

(11) As used in this section, unless the context otherwise requires:

(a) "Knowingly" or "willfully" means being aware that one's conduct is practically certain to cause the result or having reckless disregard for the prohibition involved.

(b) "Person" means any individual, trust, estate, partnership, association, company, corporation, joint venture, limited liability company, or other legal or commercial entity.

(c) "Trade" or "business" includes an employer's work force.

(d) "Violates or attempts to violate" includes, but is not limited to, intent to evade, misrepresentation, or willful nondisclosure.

ANNOTATION

Annotator's note. The following annotations include cases decided under this section as it existed prior to its 2005 repeal and reenactment.

This section does not deny due process of law. Statute governing unemployment tax rate for a successor business does not deny due process of law because persons in the same situation are not treated differently. Manpower, Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 677 P.2d 346 (Colo. App. 1983).

And is not unconstitutionally vague. Provisions delineate two-pronged requirement for successor tax rate. The test is clearly stated in the statute and does not leave persons of ordinary intelligence guessing as to its meaning or differing as to its application. Manpower, Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 677 P.2d 346 (Colo. App. 1983).

8-76-105. Period of employer's coverage. (1) Any employing unit which is or becomes an employer subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title within any calendar year shall be deemed to be an employer during the whole of such calendar year.

(2) No employing unit shall be deemed to be an employer liable under articles 70 to 82 of this title for any period prior to five calendar years immediately preceding the calendar year in which the division determines the employing unit to be an employer as defined in section 8-70-103.

8-76-108. Coverage by political subdivisions. (1) (a) Political subdivisions are covered employers if employees employed by such political subdivisions perform services in employment as defined by section 8-70-119. Such political subdivisions may elect to pay premiums in lieu of reimbursements. Any political subdivision that makes reimbursement shall not be liable to make such payments with respect to the benefits paid to any individual whose base period wages include wages for previously uncovered services as defined in section 8-70-141 (1) (d) to the extent that the unemployment compensation fund is reimbursed for such benefits pursuant to section 121 of Public Law 94-566.

Payments in lieu of premiums by state hospitals and state institutions of higher education. State hospitals and state institutions of higher education as defined in section 8-70-103 (14) and (15) may elect to make reimbursements in lieu of premiums as provided for nonprofit organizations in section 8-76-110 (1) to (3) and (5).

8-76-110. Financing benefits paid to employees of nonprofit organizations. (1) Benefits paid to employees of nonprofit organizations shall be financed in accordance with the provisions of this section. For the purpose of this section, a nonprofit organization is an organization or group of organizations described in section 501 (c) (3) of the federal "Internal Revenue Code of 1986", as amended, which are exempt from income tax under section 501 (a) of such code.

(2) Liability for premiums and election of reimbursement. (a) Any nonprofit organization that, pursuant to section 8-70-113 (1) (c), is or becomes subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title shall pay premiums under the provisions of section 8-76-101, unless it elects, in accordance with this subsection (2), to pay to the division for the unemployment compensation fund an amount equal to the amount of regular benefits and one-half of the extended benefits paid, that is attributable to service in the employ of such nonprofit organization, to individuals for weeks of unemployment that begin during the effective period of such election.

(b) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2009, (HB 09-1363), ch. 363, p. 1897, § 18, effective July 1, 2009.)

(c) Any nonprofit organization that becomes subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title may elect to become liable for payments in lieu of premiums for a period of not less than the calendar year within which such subjection begins by filing a written notice of its election with the division not later than thirty days immediately following the date of the determination of such subjection. Any nonprofit organization that elects to make payments in lieu of premiums into the unemployment compensation fund as provided in this paragraph (c) shall not be liable to make such payments with respect to the benefits paid to any individual whose base period wages include wages for previously uncovered services as defined in section 8-70-141 (1) (d) to the extent that the unemployment compensation fund is reimbursed for such benefits pursuant to section 121 of Public Law 94-566.

(d) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2009, (HB 09-1363), ch. 363, p.1897, § 18, effective July 1, 2009.)

(e) Any nonprofit organization that makes an election in accordance with paragraph (c) of this subsection (2) will continue to be liable for payments in lieu of premiums until it files with the division a written notice terminating its election not later than thirty days prior to the beginning of the calendar year for which such termination is first effective.

(f) Any nonprofit organization that pays premiums under articles 70 to 82 of this title may change to a reimbursing basis by filing with the division not later than thirty days prior to the beginning of any calendar year a written notice of election to become liable for payments in lieu of premiums. Such election shall not be terminable by the organization for that and the next year. Any organization making such an election remains liable for the payment of all charges to its account and all premiums and surcharges due the division, and past due premiums and surcharges are subject to all interest and penalties as provided in articles 70 to 82 of this title.

(g) The division may for good cause extend the period within which a notice of election, or a notice of termination, must be filed and may permit an election to be retroactive.

(h) The division, in accordance with such rules as it may prescribe, shall notify each nonprofit organization of any determination that it may make of the status of the organization as an employer and of the effective date of any election and of any termination of such election.

(i) Notwithstanding any other provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title, any nonprofit organization that, prior to January 1, 1969, paid premiums required by articles 70 to 82 of this title and that elects, pursuant to paragraph (d) of this subsection (2) as it existed prior to its repeal in 2009, to make payments in lieu of premiums shall not be required to make any such payment on account of any regular or extended benefits paid and attributable to wages paid for service performed in its employ for weeks of unemployment that begin on or after the effective date of such election until the total amount of such benefits equals the amount by which the premiums paid by such organization with respect to a period before such election exceed benefits paid for the same period and charged to the experience rating account of such organization, as of the effective date of such election.

(3) Reimbursement payments. (a) Payments in lieu of premiums shall be made in accordance with the provisions of this subsection (3).

(b) At the end of each calendar quarter, the division shall bill each nonprofit organization, or group of such organizations, that has elected to make payments in lieu of premiums for an amount equal to the full amount of regular benefits plus one-half of the amount of extended benefits paid during such quarter or other prescribed period that is attributable to service in the employ of such organization.

(c) Payment of any bill rendered under paragraph (b) of this subsection (3) shall be made not later than thirty days after such bill was mailed to the last-known address of the nonprofit organization or was otherwise delivered to it, unless there has been an application for review and redetermination in accordance with paragraph (e) of this subsection (3).

(d) Payments made by any nonprofit organization under the provisions of this subsection (3) shall not be deducted or deductible, in whole or in part, from the remuneration of individuals in the employ of the organization.

(e) The amount due specified in any bill from the division shall be conclusive on the organization unless, not later than fifteen days after the bill was mailed to its last-known address or otherwise delivered to it, the organization files an application for redetermination by the division setting forth the grounds for such application. The division shall promptly review and reconsider the items specified and shall thereafter issue a redetermination in any case in which such application for redetermination has been filed. The amount due on the specified items in such redetermination shall become due and payable not later than thirty days following the date of mailing of the redetermination. All other charges specified on the original bill are due and payable within thirty days as provided by paragraph (c) of this subsection (3).

(f) Past-due payments of amounts in lieu of premiums shall be subject to the same interest and penalties that, pursuant to sections 8-79-101 and 8-79-104, apply to past-due premiums and surcharges.

(4) Provision of bond or other security. (a) In the discretion of the division, any nonprofit organization that elects to become liable for payments in lieu of premiums shall be required, within fifteen days after the effective date of its election, to execute and file with the division a surety bond approved by the division, or it may elect instead to deposit with the division money or securities. The amount of such bond or deposit shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of this subsection (4).

(b) The amount of bond or deposit required by this subsection (4) shall be equal to three times the sum of the amount of regular benefits plus one-half the extended benefits paid, if any, that are attributable to service in the employ of the nonprofit organization during the previous calendar year or the sum of said payments during the three previous calendar years, whichever is greater, but shall not exceed three and six-tenths percent nor be less than one-tenth of one percent of the total covered payroll of such organization for the preceding calendar year. If the employer has not been subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title for a sufficient period of time to acquire three calendar years' experience, then the bond shall be an amount computed by multiplying the total covered payroll for the previous calendar year, or the equivalent thereof, by two and seven-tenths percent. Any organization that, under the provisions of paragraph (i) of subsection (2) of this section, is not required to make payments in lieu of premiums will not be required to file a surety bond or make a surety deposit with the division as provided in this paragraph (b) until such time as said organization is required to make payments in lieu of premiums.

(c) Any bond deposited under this subsection (4) shall be in force for a period of not less than two calendar years and shall be renewed with the approval of the division, at such times as the division may prescribe, but not less frequently than at two-year intervals as long as the organization continues to be liable for payments in lieu of premiums. The division shall require such adjustments to be made in a previously filed bond as it deems appropriate. If the bond is to be increased, the adjusted bond shall be filed by the organization within fifteen days after the date notice of the required adjustment was mailed or otherwise delivered to it. Failure by any organization covered by such bond to pay the full amount of payments in lieu of premiums when due, together with any applicable interest and penalties provided for in paragraph (f) of subsection (3) of this section, shall render the surety liable on said bond to the extent of the bond, as though the surety were such organization.

(d) Any deposit of money or securities in accordance with this subsection (4) shall be retained by the division in an escrow account until liability under the election is terminated, at which time it shall be returned to the organization, less any deductions as provided in this subsection (4). The division may deduct from the money deposited under this paragraph (d) by a nonprofit organization or sell the securities a nonprofit organization has so deposited to the extent necessary to satisfy any due and unpaid payments in lieu of premiums and any applicable interest and penalties provided for in paragraph (f) of subsection (3) of this section. The division shall require the organization, within fifteen days following any deduction from a money deposit or sale of deposited securities under the provisions of this paragraph (d), to deposit sufficient additional money or securities to make whole the organization's deposit at the prior level. Any cash remaining from the sale of such securities shall be a part of the organization's escrow account. The division may, at any time, review the adequacy of the deposit made by any organization. If, as a result of such review, the division determines that an adjustment is necessary, it shall require the organization to make an additional deposit within fifteen days after written notice of its determination or shall return to it such portion of the deposit as it no longer considers necessary, whichever action is appropriate. Disposition of income from securities held in escrow shall be governed by the applicable provisions of state law.

(e) If any nonprofit organization fails to file a bond or make a deposit, or to file a bond in an increased amount or to increase or make whole the amount of a previously made deposit, as provided under this subsection (4), the division may terminate the organization's election to make payments in lieu of premiums, and the termination shall continue for not less than the four-consecutive-calendar-quarter period beginning with the quarter in which the termination becomes effective, but the division may, for good cause, extend the applicable filing, deposit, or adjustment period by not more than fifteen days.

(f) If any nonprofit organization is delinquent in making payments in lieu of premiums as required under subsection (2) of this section, the division may terminate the organization's election to make payments in lieu of premiums as of the beginning of the next calendar year, and the termination shall be effective for that and the next calendar year.

(5) Allocation of benefit costs. (a) A political subdivision that is liable for payments in lieu of premiums shall pay to the division for the unemployment compensation fund the full amount of all regular and extended benefits paid that are attributable to service in the employ of such employer. A nonprofit organization liable for payments in lieu of premiums shall pay to the division for the unemployment compensation fund the amount of regular benefits plus the amount of one-half of extended benefits paid that are attributable to service in the employ of such employer. If benefits paid to an individual are based on wages paid by more than one employer and one or more of such employers are liable for payments in lieu of premiums, the amount payable to the fund by each employer that is liable for such payments shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (b) or (c) of this subsection (5).

(b) If benefits paid to an individual are based on wages paid by one or more employers that are liable for payments in lieu of premiums and on wages paid by one or more employers that are liable for premiums, the amount of benefits payable by each employer that is liable for payments in lieu of premiums shall be an amount that bears the same ratio to the total benefits paid to the individual as the total base period wages paid to the individual by such employer bear to the total base period wages paid to the individual by all of his or her base period employers.

(c) If benefits paid to an individual are based on wages paid by two or more employers that are liable for payments in lieu of premiums, the amount of benefits payable by each such employer shall be an amount that bears the same ratio to the total benefits paid to the individual as the total base period wages paid to the individual by such employer bear to the total base period wages paid to the individual by all of his or her base period employers.

(6) Group accounts. Two or more employers that are liable for payments in lieu of premiums, in accordance with the provisions of subsection (2) of this section and sections 8-76-108 and 8-76-109, may file a joint application with the division for the establishment of a group account for the purpose of sharing the cost of benefits paid that are attributable to service in the employ of such employers. Each application shall identify and authorize a group representative to act as the group's agent for the purposes of this subsection (6). Upon its approval of the application, the division shall establish a group account for the employers effective as of the beginning of the calendar quarter in which it receives the application and shall notify the group's representative of the effective date of the account. The account shall remain in effect for not less than two years and thereafter until terminated at the discretion of the division or upon application by the group. Upon establishment of the account, each member of the group shall be liable for payments in lieu of premiums with respect to each calendar quarter in the amount that bears the same ratio to the total benefits paid in that quarter that are attributable to service performed in the employ of all members of the group as the total wages paid for service in employment by the member in that quarter bear to the total wages paid during that quarter for service performed in the employ of all members of the group. The division shall prescribe rules as necessary with respect to applications for establishment, maintenance, and termination of group accounts that are authorized by this subsection (6); for addition of new members to, and withdrawal of active members from, such accounts; and for the determination of the amounts that are payable under this subsection (6) by members of the group and the time and manner of such payments.

(8) For the purposes of this section, applications, filings, and notices of election shall be filed in such form and manner as the director of the division may prescribe by rule, including in person, by mail, by telephone, or by electronic means.

8-76-115. Coverage of Indian tribes. (1) Indian tribes or tribal units, including all subdivisions or subsidiaries of, and business enterprises wholly owned by, such Indian tribes, subject to the provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title shall pay premiums and surcharges under the same terms and conditions under sections 8-76-101 to 8-76-103 as apply to other premium-paying employers unless an election is made, in the same manner provided in section 8-76-108 (1) (d), to make payments in lieu of premiums into the unemployment compensation fund in amounts equal to the amount of benefits attributable to service in the employ of the Indian tribe.

(2) Indian tribes shall determine if payments in lieu of premiums will be elected by the tribe as a whole, by individual tribal units, or by combinations of individual tribal units. Two or more individual tribal units may apply with the division for the establishment of a group account in the same manner and subject to the same terms as set forth in section 8-76-110 (6).

(3) Indian tribes or tribal units electing to make payments in lieu of premiums shall be billed for the full amount of benefits attributable to service in the employ of said Indian tribes or tribal units, and payment shall be made with respect to said billings in the manner provided in section 8-76-108 (1) (c).

(4) The division may require any Indian tribe or tribal unit that elects to become liable for payments in lieu of premiums to execute and file with the division a surety bond or to deposit money or securities in the manner provided in section 8-76-110 (4).

(5) (a) Failure of the Indian tribe or tribal unit to make required payments pursuant to subsection (3) of this section, to pay premiums pursuant to sections 8-76-101 to 8-76-103, to pay assessments of interest and penalties pursuant to sections 8-79-101 and 8-79-104, or to execute and file a surety bond or deposit money or other security pursuant to section 8-76-110 (4) within ninety days after receipt of a delinquency notice by the division shall cause the Indian tribe to lose the option to make payments in lieu of premiums effective with the beginning of the following calendar year unless a division-approved payment plan is established or payment in full is received within the ninety-day period.

(b) The division shall notify the United States internal revenue service and the United States department of labor of failures by the Indian tribe or tribal unit to comply with this subsection (5).

(6) Any Indian tribe that loses the option to make payments in lieu of premiums due to late payment or nonpayment, as described in subsection (5) of this section, shall have such option reinstated effective with the beginning of the following calendar year if, by March 1 of said year, all contributions have been timely made and no premiums or surcharges, payments in lieu of premiums for benefits paid, penalties, or interest remain outstanding.

(7) (a) Failure of the Indian tribe or any tribal unit thereof to make any payment required by subsection (5) of this section, after all collection activities deemed necessary by the division have been exhausted, shall cause services performed for such tribe to not be treated as "employment" for purposes of section 8-70-125.5.

(b) The division may determine that any Indian tribe that loses coverage under the provisions of this subsection (7) may have services performed for such tribe again included as "employment" for purposes of section 8-70-125.5 if all premiums and surcharges, payments in lieu of premiums, penalties and interest, or surety bond or payment of other money or security have been paid.

(8) Notices of payment and reporting delinquency to Indian tribes or their tribal units shall include information stating that failure to make full payment within the prescribed time period:

(a) Shall cause the Indian tribe to be liable for taxes under the "Federal Unemployment Tax Act", 26 U.S.C. sec. 3301 et seq.;

(b) Shall cause the Indian tribe to lose the option to make payments in lieu of premiums; and

(c) May cause the Indian tribe to be excepted from the definition of "employer" as provided in section 8-70-113 (1) (k) and may cause services in the employ of the Indian tribe, as provided in section 8-70-125.5, to be excepted from "employment".

(9) Extended benefits paid that are attributable to service in the employ of an Indian tribe and not reimbursed by the federal government shall be financed in their entirety by such Indian tribe in the manner provided in section 8-76-108 (1) (e).

8-77-103. Advances from federal unemployment trust fund. (1) The division may apply for advances to the state of Colorado from its account in the federal unemployment trust fund and accept responsibility for repayment of advances in accordance with the conditions specified in Title XII of the "Social Security Act", as amended, in order to secure to this state the advantages available under the federal act.

(2) (a) Advances from the federal unemployment trust fund which are interest-bearing shall have such interest cost together with all associated administrative costs assessed against each employer subject to experience rating. This interest assessment shall not apply to the covered employers of state and local government nor to those nonprofit organizations that are reimbursable. This interest assessment shall not apply to the political subdivisions electing the special rate.

(a.1) The interest cost assessment provided for in paragraph (a) of this subsection (2) shall not apply to any employer whose benefit-charge account balance is zero or to any employer with a positive excess of plus seven percent or more.

After the division's costs have been deducted from the bond repayment account, moneys in the fund shall be paid to the account or accounts maintained by the Colorado housing and finance authority under section 29-4-710.7, C.R.S., or by the division with respect to bonds issued under section 8-71-103.

8-77-104. Benefit account - requisitions - payment of benefits. (1) The benefit account shall consist of moneys requisitioned by the division from the account of the state of Colorado in the federal unemployment trust fund. Expenditures from the benefit account shall be made by the division solely for payment of benefits provided in articles 70 to 82 of this title, in accordance with regulations prescribed by the director of the division. Such expenditures shall not be subject to any provisions of law requiring specific appropriations for payment thereof.

(2) From time to time the division shall requisition from such account such amounts as it deems necessary to provide for payment of benefits for a reasonable future period of time. Upon receipt of such requisitioned amounts, the state treasurer shall cause the same to be deposited in an account in the name of the division in some state or national bank doing business in this state.

(3) The division is authorized to make all lawful benefit payments by checks drawn against said bank account. The state treasurer shall have no responsibility whatsoever with respect to such benefit payments, nor shall he be responsible for any amounts requisitioned as provided in subsection (2) of this section other than to deposit the same in said bank account.

(4) Any unexpended balance remaining in the benefit account after the expiration of the period of time for which amounts were requisitioned may be used by the division for payment of benefits during a subsequent period of time, or deducted from the amount of a subsequent requisition, or, at the discretion of the division, redeposited with the secretary of the treasury of the United States for credit to the account of the state of Colorado in the federal unemployment trust fund.

(5) Benefits shall be deemed to be due and payable under the provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title, only to the extent provided for in said articles, and only to the extent that moneys are available in the unemployment compensation fund, and neither the state nor the division shall be liable for payments in excess of the amount of such available moneys.

fund, from which no other state is permitted to make withdrawals. If such unemployment trust fund ceases to exist, or such separate book account is no longer maintained, all moneys, properties, or securities therein belonging to the unemployment compensation fund of this state shall be transferred to the treasurer of the unemployment compensation fund, who shall hold, invest, transfer, sell, deposit, and release such moneys, properties, or securities in a manner approved by the director of the division in accordance with provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title. Such moneys shall be invested in readily marketable classes of securities as now provided by law with respect to public moneys of the state. 8-77-109. Employment support fund - employment and training technology fund - created - uses - repeal. (1) (a) (I) There is hereby established the employment support fund which shall be credited with fifty percent of the premium surcharge established by section 8-76-102 (4) (d) beginning July 1, 1999. The employment support fund shall not be included in or administered by the enterprise established pursuant to section 8-71-103 (2).

(II) This paragraph (a) is repealed, effective December 31 of the calendar year in which the revisor of statutes receives the written report pursuant to section 8-76-102.5 (1) indicating that the fund balance of the unemployment compensation fund on any June 30 is equal to or greater than zero dollars and all advances in accordance with the conditions specified in Title XII of the federal "Social Security Act", as amended, have been repaid.

(b) (I) There is hereby established the employment support fund. This fund consists of the first 0.0011 assessed as part of each employer's premium under section 8-76-102.5 (3) (a) or the amount expended from the employment support fund in the year prior to July 1, 2011, adjusted by the same percentage change prescribed in section 8-70-103 (6.5), whichever is less. The division must transfer to the unemployment compensation fund amounts in excess of the amount expended from the employment support fund in the year prior to July 1, 2011, adjusted each year by the same percentage change prescribed in section 8-70-103 (6.5). In addition, revenues to pay nonprincipal-related bond costs for bonds issued under section 29-4-710.7, C.R.S., or section 8-71-103 (2) (d) may be added to amounts assessed under this section. The division may transfer any moneys in the employment support fund to the unemployment bond repayment account created in section 8-77-103.5 to pay nonprincipal-related bond costs for bonds issued under section 29-4-710.7, C.R.S., or section 8-71-103 (2) (d). The employment support fund is not included in or administered by the enterprise established pursuant to section 8-71-103 (2).

(II) This paragraph (b) is effective on and after the repeal of paragraph (a) of this subsection (1).

(2) (a) The state treasurer shall credit the moneys collected pursuant to this section to the employment support fund created in subsection (1) of this section. The general assembly shall appropriate the moneys in the employment support fund annually to the department of labor and employment:

(I) To be used to offset funding deficits for program administration, including information technology initiatives, under the provisions of articles 70 to 83 of this title and to further support programs to strengthen unemployment fund solvency; and

(II) (A) To fund labor standards, labor relations, and the Colorado works grievance procedure under the provisions of articles 1 to 6, 9, 10, 12, and 13 of this title and section 26-2-716 (3) (b), C.R.S.

(B) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2003, p. 2181, § 1, effective June 3, 2003.)

(a.7) Notwithstanding any provision of this subsection (2) to the contrary, on March 5, 2003, the state treasurer shall deduct five million four hundred thousand dollars from the employment support fund and transfer such sum to the general fund.

(a.8) Notwithstanding any provision of this subsection (2) to the contrary, on April 20, 2009, the state treasurer shall deduct five million dollars from the employment support fund and transfer such sum to the general fund.

(a.9) (I) (A) Notwithstanding any provision of this subsection (2) to the contrary, beginning July 1, 2009, through December 31, 2016, twenty percent of the premium surcharge established by section 8-76-102 (4) shall be credited to the employment and training technology fund, which is hereby created in the state treasury. Moneys in the employment and training technology fund shall be used for employment and training automation initiatives established by the director of the division. Moneys in the employment and training technology fund are subject to annual appropriation by the general assembly for the implementation of this paragraph (a.9) and shall not revert to the general fund or any other fund at the end of any fiscal year. The moneys in the employment and training technology fund are exempt from section 24-75-402, C.R.S. If the balance of the unemployment compensation fund created in section 8-77-101 falls below twenty-five million dollars, the moneys in the employment and training technology fund shall be allocated to the unemployment compensation fund. At any other time, the moneys in the employment and training technology fund may be allocated to the unemployment compensation fund at the discretion of the executive director of the department of labor and employment.

(B) This subparagraph (I) is repealed, effective December 31 of the calendar year in which the revisor of statutes receives the written report pursuant to section 8-76-102.5 (1) indicating that the fund balance of the unemployment compensation fund on any June 30 is equal to or greater than zero dollars and all advances in accordance with the conditions specified in Title XII of the federal "Social Security Act", as amended, have been repaid.

(II) (A) Notwithstanding any provision of this subsection (2) to the contrary, on and after July 1, 2011, 0.0004 assessed against each employer's premium under section 8-76-102.5 (3) (a) or ten million dollars of all revenue collected annually under section 8-76-102.5 (3) (a), whichever is less, shall be credited to the employment and training technology fund, also referred to in this paragraph (a.9) as the "fund", which is hereby created in the state treasury. Any amount collected in excess of ten million dollars under this subparagraph (II) shall be credited to the unemployment compensation fund. Moneys in the fund shall be used for employment and training automation initiatives established by the director of the division. Moneys in the fund are subject to annual appropriation by the general assembly for the purposes of this paragraph (a.9) and shall not revert to the general fund or any other fund at the end of any fiscal year. The moneys in the fund are exempt from section 24-75-402, C.R.S. If the balance of the unemployment compensation fund created in section 8-77-101 falls below one hundred million dollars, the moneys in the employment and training technology fund shall be allocated to the unemployment compensation fund. Once cumulative revenue to the employment and training technology fund equals one hundred million dollars, less any moneys transferred to the unemployment compensation fund, no additional moneys shall be credited to the employment and training technology fund but instead shall be allocated to the unemployment compensation fund. At any other time, the moneys in the employment and training technology fund may be allocated to the unemployment compensation fund at the discretion of the executive director of the department of labor and employment.

(B) This subparagraph (II) is effective on and after the repeal of subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (a.9).

(b) The unexpended and unobligated moneys in the employment support fund shall not revert to the general fund at the end of any fiscal year, and any unobligated amounts remaining in the fund at the end of any fiscal year shall be retained in the employment support fund for purposes of this subsection (2).

(c) On and after July 1, 2001, moneys from the statewide indirect cost allocation agreement with the federal government may be used to supplement moneys in the employment support fund, in a manner that is consistent with the provisions of this subsection (2).

8-79-102. Collection of premiums and surcharges, benefit overpayments, penalties, and interest. (1) The division shall institute such practices and procedures as it deems necessary to collect any money due the division in the form of delinquent premiums, surcharges, or overpaid benefits, including all penalties and interest thereon. In the case of overpaid benefits, the division may, in addition to instituting collection procedures, withhold subsequent benefit payments to which the claimant is or becomes entitled and apply the amount withheld as an offset against the overpayment. However, any amount withheld shall not exceed twenty-five percent of a claimant's benefit payments except in those cases where overpayments have occurred on an established current claim or as a result of false representation or willful failure to disclose a material fact.

(2) The division, in its role as guardian of unemployment insurance trust fund dollars, is exempt from the provisions of section 24-30-202.4, C.R.S. If the division determines an account to be uncollectible, such account may be referred to the controller for collection. Reasonable fees for collection, as determined by the director of the division and the controller, shall be added to the amount of debt. The debtor shall be liable for repayment of the total of the amount outstanding plus the collection fee. All money collected by the controller shall be returned to the division for credit to the fund; except that, all fees collected shall be retained by the controller. If less than the full amount is collected, the controller shall retain only a proportionate share of the collection fee.

(3) If, after due notice, any employer or claimant defaults in any payment of premiums or surcharges, the repayment of overpaid benefits, or the payment of any interest or penalties thereon, the amount due may be collected by civil action, which shall include the right of attachment in the name of the division. Court costs shall not be charged to the division, but any employer or claimant against whom judgment is taken shall be charged with all costs of such action. All costs collected by the division shall be paid into the registry of the court.

(4) The collection efforts of the division shall be in accordance with subsections (1) and (2) of this section; except that, in instances involving willful violation of any provision of articles 70 to 82 of this title, or if deemed appropriate by the director of the division, the division may seek relief under subsection (3) of this section.

ANNOTATION

The amount that may be assessed against a person by this section is a collection fee and thus dischargeable in bankruptcy. In re O'Brien, 110 Bankr. 27 (Bankr. D. Colo. 1990).

Once the department of labor and employment determined that it had overpaid benefits and that the bankruptcy debtor had obtained those overpayments by false representation and/or willful failure to disclose material facts, subsection (1) allowed it to withhold subsequent benefit payments to which the claimant became entitled and apply the amount withheld as an offset against the overpayment in addition to instituting collection procedures. In re Adamic, 291 B.R. 175 (Bankr. D. Colo. 2003).

The department's determination that the debtor had received overpayments circum-scribed, or limited, any future claims for benefits, permitting outright denial of benefits and a recoupment of the amount of the overpayments. In re Adamic, 291 B.R. 175 (Bankr. D. Colo. 2003).

The department is entitled to recoup earlier overpayments from debtor's current claim for benefits without violating an automatic stay. In re Adamic, 291 B.R. 175 (Bankr. D. Colo. 2003).

8-79-103. Premiums, surcharges, and assessments a lien on property. (1) The premiums and surcharges imposed by sections 8-76-101 to 8-76-104 and any assessments imposed pursuant to section 29-4-710.7, C.R.S., shall be a first and prior lien upon the real and personal property of any employer subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title, except as to the lien of general property taxes and except as to valid liens existing at the time of the filing of the notice provided for in section 8-79-105, and shall take precedence over all other liens or claims of whatsoever kind or nature. Any employer that sells, assigns, transfers, conveys, loses by foreclosure of a subsequent lien, or otherwise disposes of its business, or any part thereof, shall file with the division such reports as the director of the division, by rule, may prescribe within ten days after the date of any such transaction. The employer's successor shall be required to withhold from the purchase money an amount of money sufficient to cover the amount of premiums or surcharges and assessments due and unpaid until such time as the former owner produces a receipt from the division showing that the premiums, surcharges, or assessments have been paid or a certificate that no premiums, surcharges, or assessments are due. Any successor that fails to comply with this subsection (1) shall be personally liable for the payment of any premiums, surcharges, or assessments due and unpaid.

(2) When the business or property of any employer is placed in receivership, seized under distraint for property taxes, or assigned for the benefit of creditors, all premiums, surcharges, assessments, penalties, and interest imposed by articles 70 to 82 of this title and section 29-4-710.7, C.R.S., shall be a prior and preferred claim against all of the property of said employer, except as to the lien of general property taxes, and as to valid liens existing at the time of the filing of the notice provided for in section 8-79-105, and as to claims for wages of not more than two hundred fifty dollars to each claimant earned within six months after the commencement of the proceeding. No sheriff, receiver, assignee, or other officer shall sell the property of any employer under process or order of court in such cases without first ascertaining from the division the amount of any premiums, surcharges, or assessments due and payable under articles 70 to 82 of this title and section 29-4-710.7, C.R.S. If any premiums, surcharges, or assessments are due, owing, and unpaid, it is the duty of such sheriff, receiver, assignee, or other officer to first pay the outstanding amount of premiums, surcharges, or assessments out of the proceeds of the sale before making payment of any moneys to any judgment creditor or other claims of whatsoever kind or nature, except the costs of the proceedings. In the event of an employer's being subject to an order for relief, judicially confirmed extension proposal, or composition under the federal bankruptcy code of 1978, title 11 of the United States Code, premiums, surcharges, or assessments then or thereafter due shall be entitled to such priority as is provided in section 507 of that code for taxes due the state of Colorado.

ANNOTATION

Lessor not liable for lessee's unpaid employment contributions. Where a lessee abandons the business premises without notice, and the lessor operates the business until arrangements are made for a new lessee to take over, the lessor is not liable for the lessee's unpaid unemployment contributions. Only when a successor pays for the business and fails to withhold from the purchase price enough money to satisfy unpaid unemployment contributions is that successor personally liable for the contributions.

8-79-104. Failure to file true report - penalty - repeal. (1) (a) (I) (A) It is the responsibility of each employer subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title to file true and accurate reports whether or not premiums or surcharges are due and to pay all premiums and surcharges when due. Whenever an employer fails to furnish premium reports required by the division by the due date, the employer shall be assessed a penalty of fifty dollars for each occurrence; except that an "employer newly subject" as defined by section 8-76-103 (3) (a) (IV) shall be assessed a penalty of ten dollars for each such occurrence during the first four quarters of coverage. Each subsequent quarter in which the employer continues the failure to file the reports is considered a separate occurrence. Penalties collected by the division pursuant to this paragraph (a) shall be paid into the unemployment revenue fund.

(B) This subparagraph (I) is repealed, effective December 31 of the calendar year in which the revisor of statutes receives the written report pursuant to section 8-76-102.5 (1) indicating that the fund balance of the unemployment compensation fund on any June 30 is equal to or greater than zero dollars and all advances in accordance with the conditions specified in Title XII of the federal "Social Security Act", as amended, have been repaid.

(II) (A) It is the responsibility of each employer subject to articles 70 to 82 of this title to file true and accurate reports, whether or not premiums or surcharges are due, and to pay all premiums and surcharges when due. Whenever an employer fails to furnish premium reports required by the division by the due date, the division shall assess against the employer a penalty of fifty dollars for each occurrence; except that an "employer newly subject" as defined by section 8-76-102.5 (4) shall be assessed a penalty of ten dollars for each occurrence during the first four quarters of coverage. Each subsequent quarter in which the employer continues the failure to file the reports shall be considered a separate occurrence. Penalties collected by the division pursuant to this sub-subparagraph (A) shall be paid into the unemployment revenue fund.

(B) This subparagraph (II) is effective on and after the repeal of subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (a).

(b) If any employer fails or neglects to make and file such reports, as required by articles 70 to 82 of this title or by the rules of the division pursuant thereto, or willfully makes a false or fraudulent report, the division may make an assessment of the premiums or surcharges due from its own knowledge and from such information as it can obtain through testimony or otherwise.

(c) An employer who is delinquent in paying premiums or surcharges on the computation date shall have a penalty assessed by the division. The amount of the penalty shall be the amount of delinquent premiums or surcharges; except that the penalty shall not exceed an amount equal to one percent of the employer's chargeable wages paid that were subject to unemployment insurance in the preceding calendar year. The amount of the penalty for an employer that was not subject to the provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title in the preceding calendar year shall be the amount of delinquent premiums or surcharges. Such penalty shall be in addition to any payments and interest due under articles 70 to 82 of this title. The penalty shall be payable in four quarterly installments during the current calendar year and shall be remitted to the division with the employer's quarterly report. Penalties collected by the division pursuant to this paragraph (c) shall be paid into the unemployment revenue fund.

(d) Any penalty imposed pursuant to this subsection (1) shall be waived if good cause is shown for failing to pay the premiums or surcharges or to make premium reports, as prescribed by rule of the division. Penalties under this subsection (1) that are unpaid on the date on which they are due shall bear interest at the same rate and in the same manner as unpaid premiums and surcharges under articles 70 to 82 of this title. The provisions of section 13-80-108 (9), C.R.S., shall be used for determining when an offense is committed for the purposes of this subsection (1).

(2) Any assessment so made and certified by the division shall be prima facie good and sufficient for all legal purposes. Notice and demand for premiums or surcharges plus any interest and penalties imposed by articles 70 to 82 of this title shall be made upon forms as prescribed by the division, and the notice and demand shall become final fourteen calendar days after the date of delivery of the notice and demand to the employer in person or after the date of the transmittal by electronic means or by registered mail to the employer's last-known address or place of business. The employer may file a request for review or modification of the assessment with the division within the fourteen days in the manner and form prescribed by the division. The division, on the basis of evidence submitted by the employer disclosing the correct amount of premiums or surcharges, may amend or otherwise modify its previous assessments.

8-79-105. Levy on property - sale. (1) If any premiums, surcharges, penalties, or interest imposed by articles 70 to 82 of this title, as shown by reports filed by the employer or as shown by assessment duly made as provided in section 8-79-104 or 8-79-107, are not paid within five days after they are due and demand is made therefor, the division may issue a notice setting forth the name of the employer, the amount of the premiums, surcharges, penalties, and interest, the date of the accrual thereof, and a statement that the division claims a first and prior lien therefor, except as provided in this article. Such notice shall be on forms prepared by the division and shall be verified by any duly qualified representative of the division and may be filed or recorded in the office of the county clerk and recorder of any county in the state in which the employer owns property. After such notice has been filed or recorded, the division may issue a warrant under its official seal directed to the sheriff of any county of the state or any duly authorized agent of the division commanding him or her to levy upon, seize, and sell such of the real and personal property of the employer found within his or her county necessary for the payment of the amount due, together with interest and penalties, as provided by law.

(2) It is the duty of any county clerk and recorder to whom such notices are sent to file or record the same without cost. Upon the payment of all premiums, surcharges, penalties, and interest, a lien for such premiums, surcharges, penalties, and interest, as shown upon the records of the county clerk and recorder, shall be released by the division in the same manner as judgments are released.

(3) The sheriff, or any duly authorized agent of the division, shall forthwith levy upon the property of the employer, and personal property so levied upon shall be sold in all respects with like effect and in the same manner as prescribed by law with respect to executions of distraint warrants issued by a county treasurer for the collection of taxes levied upon personal property. Real property shall be levied upon and sold in the same manner as prescribed by law with respect to executions against property upon judgment of a court of record. The sheriff shall be entitled to such fees for executing such warrants as are allowed by law for similar services.

8-79-106. No indemnity bond required. In any action of whatever nature brought under articles 70 to 82 of this title, no bond shall be required of the division, nor shall any sheriff or agent of the division require from said division an indemnifying bond for executing the writs of attachment and warrants provided for in this article. No sheriff or agent of the division shall be liable in damages to any person when acting in accordance with such writs and warrants.

8-79-107. Immediate assessment - when. If the division believes that the collection of any premiums, surcharges, penalties, or interest under the provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title will be jeopardized by delay, whether or not the time otherwise prescribed by articles 70 to 82 of this title or any rules issued pursuant thereto for making reports and paying such premiums or surcharges has expired, it may immediately assess such premiums and surcharges, together with all penalties and interest, the assessment of which is provided for by articles 70 to 82 of this title. Such premiums, surcharges, penalties, and interest shall thereupon become immediately due and payable, and immediate notice and demand shall be made by the division for the payment thereof.

8-79-108. Refunds. (1) An employing unit may file an application for the refund of money paid erroneously in such form and manner as the director of the division may prescribe by rule, including in person, by mail, by telephone, or by electronic means. If the division determines that such payment, or any portion thereof, was paid erroneously, the division shall either issue to the employing unit a credit memo therefor, or make a refund thereof, in either event without interest thereon. Where no application is received, and the division determines that premiums or surcharges have been paid erroneously, the division may, at its option, correct any erroneous payments. Any such correction, if it involves less than one hundred dollars, may be by credit memo. In no event may an employing unit recover money paid erroneously, or otherwise, that has been paid prior to January 1 of the first year of the five calendar years immediately preceding the date of the filing of the application for refund. If such application for refund is refused, or if no final action is taken thereon within six months, an employing unit may commence an action in the district court for the city and county of Denver for the collection thereof. In the event of court action, no recovery of any money paid prior to January 1 of the first year of the five calendar years immediately preceding the date of the filing of the application shall be allowed. For like cause and for the same period, a recovery, as above indicated, may be allowed on the division's own initiative.

(2) Repealed.

(3) Refunds of interest that was paid into the unemployment compensation fund shall be paid from the unemployment compensation fund, and refunds of interest that was paid into the unemployment revenue fund shall be paid from the unemployment revenue fund. All refunds of premiums and surcharges shall be made from the unemployment compensation fund.

8-80-101. Waiver of rights void. Any agreement by an individual to waive, release, or commute his or her rights to benefits or any other rights under articles 70 to 82 of this title shall be void. Any agreement by any individual in the employ of any person or concern to pay all or any portion of an employer's premiums or surcharges required under articles 70 to 82 of this title from the employer shall be void. No employer shall directly or indirectly make, require, or accept any deduction from wages to finance the employer's premiums or surcharges required from him or her or require or accept any waiver of any rights under articles 70 to 82 of this title by any individual in his or her employ. Any employer or officer or agent of any employer who violates this section is guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, for each offense, shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

ANNOTATION

Requirements for waiver. Waiver in the strict legal sense requires a showing of intent and knowledge of material facts on the part of one surrendering his rights. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Dept. of Labor & Emp., 38 Colo. App. 298, 559 P.2d 252 (1976).

Agreement contrary to public policy. An agreement having the effect of a waiver or which would permit the employer and employee to construe the terms of the unemployment compensation statute is contrary to public policy. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Dept. of Labor & Emp., 38 Colo. App. 298, 559 P.2d 252 (1976).

A leave of absence agreement which did not contain any explicit relinquishment of claimant's rights to unemployment benefits did not by its terms contravene the prohibition of this section since there was no evidence that claimant intended to forego unemployment benefits, or that she knew her "leave of absence" status would preclude such a claim. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Dept. of Labor & Emp., 38 Colo. App. 298, 559 P.2d 252 (1976).

The fact that claimant agreed and understood that his employment would end at the expiration of a fixed term is not a basis for denying him benefits under the Colorado employment security act. Intermountain Jewish News, Inc. v. Indus. Comm'n, 39 Colo. App. 258, 564 P.2d 132 (1977).

8-80-102. Limitation of fees. No individual claiming benefits shall be charged fees of any kind in any proceeding under articles 70 to 82 of this title by the division or its representatives or by any court or any officer thereof; except that the controller may charge a reasonable fee as provided in section 8-79-102 (2) for the recoupment of benefit overpayments, and any party appealing the decision of a referee shall be assessed the actual costs of preparing a transcript according to rules promulgated by the director of the division except if the appellant is successful the cost of preparing the transcript will be refunded. Any person who violates this provision is guilty of a misdemeanor. Any individual claiming benefits in any proceeding before the division or a court may be represented by counsel. Unless approved by the division, no lien shall be allowed or suit brought for attorney fees, contingent or otherwise, for services rendered for the collection of any individual's claim for benefits.

8-80-103. Assignment of benefits void - exemptions. Any assignment, pledge, or encumbrance of any right to benefits which are or may become due or payable under articles 70 to 82 of this title shall be void. Except as provided in the "Colorado Child Support Enforcement Procedures Act", article 14 of title 14, C.R.S., such rights to benefits shall be exempt from levy, execution, attachment, or any other remedy provided for the collection of debt. Benefits received by any individual, so long as they are not mingled with other funds of the recipient, shall be exempt from any remedy for the collection of all debts except debts incurred for necessities furnished to such individual, his spouse, or dependents during the time when such individual was unemployed or child support debt or arrearages as specified in article 14 of title 14, C.R.S. Any waiver of any exemption provided for in this section shall be void.

8-81-101. Penalties.

8-81-103. Representation in court.

8-81-102. Penalties in prior law continue in force.

8-81-101. Penalties. (1) (a) Any person who makes false statement or representation of a material fact knowing it to be false, or knowingly fails to disclose a material fact, with intent to defraud by obtaining or increasing any benefit under articles 70 to 82 of this title or under an employment security law of any other state, of the federal government, or of a foreign government, either for himself or for any other person, is guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

(b) Any person who, in the opinion of the division, has received a benefit to which he was not entitled by reason of his false representation or failure to disclose a material fact with intent to obtain or increase any benefit for himself or any other person and his trial by court is prevented by the inability of the court to establish its jurisdiction over said person shall be ineligible to receive any benefits under articles 70 to 82 of this title from the date of the discovery of the said act until such time as he makes himself available to the court for trial.

(c) If any employer makes or causes to be made a false statement as to the reason for a claimant's separation from employment or makes or causes to be made a false offer of work to a claimant, which statement or offer shall result in a delay in the payment of benefits to any such claimant, such employer shall be penalized by having his account charged with one and one-half times the amount of benefits due during the period of the delay and with one hundred percent of all other benefit payments paid to the claimant thereafter during his current benefit year, any other provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title to the contrary notwithstanding, and the claimant shall be compensated by being paid one and one-half times his weekly benefit amount for the period of the delay. "The period of delay" as used in this section shall be determined by the division, and such determination shall be binding upon all parties affected and shall not be subject to review. The penalty imposed by this paragraph (c) shall be in addition to and not in lieu of any other penalty, civil or criminal, provided in articles 70 to 82 of this title.

(2) Any employing unit, or any officer or agent of an employing unit, or any other person who makes a false statement or representation knowing it to be false or who knowingly fails to disclose a material fact either to cause an individual to receive benefits to which such individual is otherwise not entitled or to defraud an individual by preventing or reducing the payment of benefits to which such individual would otherwise be entitled, or to avoid becoming or remaining a subject employer, or to avoid or reduce any premium, surcharge, or other payment required from an employing unit under articles 70 to 82 of this title or under the employment security law of any other state, the federal government, or a foreign government or any such employing unit, officer or agent, or other person who willfully fails or refuses to pay any such premiums or surcharges or make any other payment, or to furnish any reports required under section 8-72-107, or to produce or permit the inspection or copying of records as required under section 8-72-107 is guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment. Each false statement or representation or failure to disclose a material fact and each day such failure or refusal continues shall constitute a separate offense.

(3) Any person who willfully violates any provision of articles 70 to 82 of this title or any rule or regulation thereunder, the violation of which is made unlawful or the observance of which is required under the terms of articles 70 to 82 of this title and for which a penalty is neither prescribed in this article nor provided by any other applicable statute, is guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than sixty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. Each day such violation continues shall be deemed a separate offense.

(4) (a) (I) Any person who has received any sum as benefits under articles 70 to 82 of this title to which he was not entitled shall be required to repay such amount to the division for the fund. Such sum shall be collected in the manner provided in section 8-79-102; except that the division may waive the repayment of an overpayment if the division determines such repayment to be inequitable.

(II) If any person receives any such overpayment because of his or her false representation or willful failure to disclose a material fact, inequity shall not be a consideration in any civil, administrative, or criminal action, and the person shall be required to pay the total amount of the overpayment, which shall be paid into the unemployment trust fund, plus a penalty of fifty percent of such overpayment, which shall be paid into the unemployment revenue fund. In addition, such person may be denied benefits, when otherwise eligible, for a four-week period for each one-week period in which such person filed claims for or received benefits to which he or she was not entitled. The provisions of section 13-80-108 (9), C.R.S., shall be used for determining when an offense is committed for the purposes of this subparagraph (II).

(III) All investigative costs awarded by the court and collected by the division in connection with the conviction, in any criminal action, of a person who has received any overpayment because of his or her false representation or willful failure to disclose a material fact shall be paid into the unemployment revenue fund.

(IV) The penalties associated with an overpayment pursuant to subparagraph (II) of this paragraph (a) shall be made known to individuals upon filing an unemployment claim as defined in section 8-70-112.

(b) Pursuant to rules and regulations promulgated by the director of the division, the division may write off all or a part of the amount of any overpayment which it finds to be uncollectible or the recovery of which it finds to be administratively impracticable. Amounts which remain uncollected for more than five years, or seven years for overpayments due to false representation or willful failure to disclose a material fact, may be written off as uncollectible.

(c) Any person aggrieved by a determination of the division made under this subsection (4) may appeal that determination and obtain a hearing before a hearing officer with the right to further appeal as provided by article 74 of this title. The initial appeal must be received within twenty calendar days after the date of notification of such determination by the division; otherwise, the determination shall be final.

(d) Upon final determination pursuant to paragraph (c) of this subsection (4), repayment of an overpayment that is a result of the individual's false representation or willful failure to disclose a material fact pursuant to subparagraph (II) of paragraph (a) of this subsection (4) shall be made within thirty days.

Indus. Comm'n*, 199 Colo. 95, 606 P.2d 437 (1980).

A state statutory scheme conditioning receipt of current benefits on recovery of prior overpayments is expressly authorized by Congress, as is denial of claims for benefits where state eligibility requirements have not been met. In re Adamic, 291 B.R. 175 (Bankr. D. Colo. 2003).

Knowledge of section presumed of claimant. A claimant who has requested benefits pursuant to the unemployment compensation statutes must be presumed to have knowledge of § 8-74-109 and this section, which specifically provide for recovery of benefits paid in error. Paul v. Indus. Comm'n, 632 P.2d 638 (Colo. App. 1981).

Culpable mental state that must be established by state to prove unlawful receipt of benefits is "knowingly" under subsection (4)(a)(II). Div. of Emp. & Training v. Indus. Comm'n, 706 P.2d 433 (Colo. App. 1985).

Before an employee who is discharged for falsifying his employment application may be denied unemployment compensation benefits, the false statements on the employment application must be found to be material to the employee's ability to perform properly the duties for which he was employed. Casias v. Indus. Comm'n, 38 Colo. App. 261, 554 P.2d 1357 (1976).

Representations as to material fact. Inquiry regarding any circumstance, including school attendance, which has a bearing upon eligibility conditions is not only proper, but is required in the efficient administration of the act. The answers and representations made by the claimant as to school attendance are representations of material facts. Indus. Comm'n v. Bennett, 166 Colo. 101, 441 P.2d 648 (1968).

Admission based upon material false information declared void ab initio. Where the evidence supported the referee's finding that claimant supplied materially false information upon which his employer and its insurer relied in filing an admission of liability, the referee was justified in declaring the admission void ab initio. Vargo v. Colo. Indus. Comm'n, 626 P.2d 1164 (Colo. App. 1981).

Because the conduct prohibited by subsection (1)(a) of this section is distinct from the conduct prohibited by § 18-4-401, prosecution under one such statute as opposed to the other does not violate a defendant's constitutional rights. People v. Chesnick, 709 P.2d 66 (Colo. App. 1985).

This section is not intended to penalize an employer where the grounds assigned for discharge are ample if believed by the employer, even though given a contrary construction by others. Indus. Comm'n v. Emerson W. Co., 149 Colo. 529, 369 P.2d 791 (1962).

And it is immaterial that an employer does not choose to elaborate on the reasons for discharge or support them with additional testimony at the hearing, and such lack of elaboration is not proof that what had been reported was not the reason for the discharge. Indus. Comm'n v. Emerson W. Co., 149 Colo. 529, 369 P.2d 791 (1962).

Where the statements furnished by an employer are not willfully or deliberately false, they are not such as come within the penal terms of this section. Indus. Comm'n v. Emerson W. Co., 149 Colo. 529, 369 P.2d 791 (1962).

And without intent to falsify being shown, an employer cannot be held liable for making a false statement. Indus. Comm'n v. Emerson W. Co., 149 Colo. 529, 369 P.2d 791 (1962).

By virtue of subsection (4)(a), the division has authority to demand repayment of benefits mistakenly paid, or may have such overpayments credited to any future benefits to which the claimant may be entitled, if equity and good conscience so require. The division may also waive collection if it deems collection to be administratively impracticable. Gatewood v. Russell, 29 Colo. App. 11, 478 P.2d 679 (1964).

The monetary penalty under subsection (4)(a)(II) from overpayment is mandatory when the claimant knowingly fails to disclose earnings from employment, regardless of financial hardship. Woollems v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 43 P.3d 725 (Colo. App. 2001).

The Colorado Employment Security Act authorizes the imposition of a "four-for-one" penalty for each week that a person received benefits to which he or she was not entitled. The statute requires recovery of the overpayments and imposition of a 50 percent monetary penalty. The repayment and monetary penalty provisions are mandatory. The provisions concerning recovery of past overpayments by withholding current benefits are permissive. In re Adamic, 291 B.R. 175 (Bankr. D. Colo. 2003).

The public policy behind the 40-week penalty is to protect the integrity of the unemployment insurance system by deterring the filing of false or misleading claims for unemployment benefits. In re Adamic, 291 B.R. 175 (Bankr. D. Colo. 2003).

The amount that may be assessed against a person by this section is a penalty and thus not dischargeable in bankruptcy. In re O'Brien, 110 Bankr. 27 (Bankr. D. Colo. 1990).

A governmental unit may satisfy a debtor's pre-petition obligation for receiving overpay- ments of unemployment benefits by offsetting or applying post-petition benefits to the outstanding debt. An automatic stay in a voluntary Chapter 13 bankruptcy proceeding does not preclude the governmental entity from recouping unemployment benefit overpayments made prior to debtor's bankruptcy filing. In re Adamic, 291 B.R. 175 (Bankr. D. Colo. 2003).

Because the debtor is not entitled to receive unemployment compensation under state law as a result of his prior fraud and/or failure to disclose a material fact, he never "acquired" the post-petition payments and those payments do not constitute "earnings for services performed". Accordingly, weekly unemployment payments to which the debtor is not entitled under the Colorado Employment Security Act cannot be property of the estate; and the department's exercise of its right to withhold the post-petition benefits is not an act to collect, assess, or recover a pre-petition claim against the debtor. In re Adamic, 291 B.R. 175 (Bankr. D. Colo. 2003).

The phrase "against equity and good conscience", as used in subsection (4)(a), means that adjustment or recovery of an incorrect payment will be considered inequitable if an individual, because of a notice such payment would be made or by reason of the incorrect payment, relinquished a valuable right or changed his position for the worse. Duenas-Rodriguez v. Indus. Comm'n, 199 Colo. 95, 606 P.2d 437 (1980).

And this definition remains applicable, even through the phase has been amended from "against equity and good conscience" to "not inequitable", because there is no substantial difference between the meaning of the phases. Mugrauer v. Indus. Comm'n, 709 P.2d 47 (Colo. App. 1985).

Regarding the phrase "against equity and good conscience", to the extent that Mugrauer v. Indus. Comm'n, is construed as having interpreted Duenas-Rodriguez v. Indus. Comm'n to require that this statute carry the same meaning as a similar provision in the federal Social Security Act, that construction is rejected and it is held that the federal act is not the sole means by which inequity is measured under this section. Hesson v. Indus. Comm'n, 740 P.2d 526 (Colo. App. 1987).

Waiver of right of recovery of overpayment. The commission is not required to determine that recovery of an overpayment is impossible or impractical in order to waive its right to recovery of that overpayment. Schmidt v. Indus. Comm'n, 42 Colo. App. 253, 600 P.2d 76 (1979).

Setoffs applied to benefits of illegal alien. Where an illegal alien, not legally entitled to work in this country at the time he was receiving benefits to compensate him for being unemployed, presented no evidence that he relinquished any valuable right or changed his position for the worse because he received such benefits, no equitable reason was found for allowing him to avoid setoffs from future benefits to which he may become entitled. Duenas-Rodriguez v. Indus. Comm'n, 199 Colo. 95, 606 P.2d 437 (1980).

Failure to consider financial condition of claimant requesting waiver of overpayment of benefits pursuant to subsection (4) (a) constituted error. Kalkbrenner v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office, 801 P.2d 545 (Colo. 1990).

Failure to address issue of claimant's having spent the overpaid funds on basic necessities or her impoverished status at the time of the repayment hearing constitutes error. Munoz-Navarette v. Indus. Claim App. Off., 833 P.2d 827 (Colo. App. 1992).

Applied in Bullers v. Indus. Comm'n, 37 Colo. App. 412, 547 P.2d 945 (1976); Nesbit v. Indus. Comm'n, 43 Colo. App. 398, 607 P.2d 1024 (1979); Johnson v. Indus. Comm'n, 652 P.2d 1109 (Colo. App. 1982); Zadel v. Indus. Comm'n, 701 P.2d 1270 (Colo. App. 1985); City and County of Denver v. Indus. Comm'n, 707 P.2d 1008 (Colo. App. 1985).

8-81-102. Penalties in prior law continue in force. Any penalty, forfeiture, or liability, either civil or criminal, which has been incurred in former statutes relating to unemployment compensation shall be held as remaining in force for the purpose of sustaining any and all proper actions, suits, proceedings, and prosecutions for the enforcement of such penalty, forfeiture, or liability which are now pending, or which may hereafter be commenced within the time provided by law for the commencement of such actions, suits, proceedings, and prosecutions, as well as for the purpose of sustaining any judgment, decree, or order which has been or which may be entered or made in such actions, suits, proceedings, or prosecutions.

8-81-103. Representation in court. (1) In any civil action to enforce the provisions of articles 70 to 82 of this title, the division and the state shall be represented by the attorney general. Such assistant attorneys general shall be appointed as are necessary for this purpose.

(2) All criminal actions for violation of any provision of articles 70 to 82 of this title, or of any rules or regulations issued pursuant thereto, shall be prosecuted by the attorney general of the state or, at his request and under his direction, by the district attorney of the judicial district in which the employer has a place of business or the violator resides.

(a) Passage of the federal "Workforce Investment Act of 1998", 29 U.S.C. sec. 2801 et seq., gives the state a unique opportunity to develop a work force program and

9-1.5-101. Legislative declaration. The purpose of this article is to prevent injury to persons and damage to property from accidents resulting from damage to underground facilities by excavation. This purpose shall be facilitated through the creation of a single statewide notification system to be administered by an association of the owners and operators of underground facilities. Through the association, excavators shall be able to obtain crucial information regarding the location of underground facilities prior to excavating and shall thereby be able to greatly reduce the likelihood of damage to any such underground facility or injury to any person working at an excavation site.

ANNOTATION

This article does not create an implied waiver of sovereign immunity. This result is dictated by the lack of language in this article evincing an intent to waive the defense of sovereign immunity, combined with the clear intent of the Governmental Immunity Act to limit the circumstances in which the state or public entities will be liable for tort damages and the court's history of narrowly construing waivers of sovereign immunity. Dept. of Hwys. v. Mountain States Tel., 869 P.2d 1289 (Colo. 1994) (decided under law in effect prior to repeal of § 9-1.5-104).

9-1.5-102. Definitions. As used in this article, unless the context otherwise requires:

(1) "Damage" includes the penetration or destruction of any protective coating, housing, or other protective device of an underground facility, the partial or complete severance of an underground facility, or the rendering of any underground facility inaccessible.

(2) "Emergency situations" includes ruptures and leakage of pipelines, explosions, fires, and similar instances where immediate action is necessary to prevent loss of life or significant damage to property, including, without limitation, underground facilities, and advance notice of proposed excavation is impracticable under the circumstances.

(3) "Excavation" means any operation in which earth is moved or removed by means of any tools, equipment, or explosives and includes augering, backfilling, boring, ditching, drilling, grading, plowing-in, pulling-in, ripping, scraping, trenching, and tunneling. "Excavation" shall not include routine maintenance on existing planted landscapes.

(4) "Notification association" or "association" means the statewide notification association of owners and operators of underground facilities created in section 9-1.5-105.

(5) (a) "Operator" or "owner" means any person, including public utilities, municipal corporations, political subdivisions, or other persons having the right to bury underground facilities in or near a public road, street, alley, right-of-way, or utility easement.

(b) "Operator" or "owner" does not include any railroad.

(6) "Person" means any individual acting on his or her own behalf, sole proprietor, partnership, association, corporation, or joint venture; the state, any political subdivision of the state, or any instrumentality or agency of either; or the legal representative of any of them.

(6.5) "Routine maintenance" means a regular activity that happens at least once per year on an existing planted landscape if earth is not disturbed at a depth of more than twelve inches by nonmechanical means or four inches by mechanical means and if the activities are not intended to permanently lessen the ground cover or lower the existing ground contours. Mechanical equipment used for routine maintenance tasks shall be defined as aerators, hand-held rototillers, soil injection needles, lawn edgers, overseeders, and hand tools.

(7) "Underground facility" means any item of personal property which is buried or placed below ground for use in connection with the storage or conveyance of water or sewage, electronic, telephonic, or telegraphic communications or cable television, electric energy, or oil, gas, or other substances. "Item of personal property", as used in this subsection (7), includes, but is not limited to, pipes, sewers, conduits, cables, valves, lines, wires, manholes, and attachments thereto.

(2) Architects, engineers, or other persons designing excavation shall obtain general information as to the description, nature, and location of underground facilities in the area of such proposed excavation and include such general information in the plans or specifications to inform an excavation contractor of the existence of such facilities and of the need to obtain information thereon pursuant to subsection (3) of this section.

(3) (a) Except in emergency situations and except as to an employee with respect to the employer's underground facilities or as otherwise provided in an agreement with an owner or operator, no person shall make or begin excavation without first notifying the notification association and, if necessary, the tier two members having underground facilities in the area of such excavation. Notice may be given in person, by telephone, or in writing if delivered.

(b) Notice of the commencement, extent, and duration of the excavation work shall be given at least two business days prior thereto not including the day of actual notice.

(c) Any notice given pursuant to paragraph (b) of this subsection (3) shall include the following:

(I) The name and telephone number of the person who is giving the notice;

(II) The name and telephone number of the excavator; and

(III) The specific location, starting date, and description of the intended excavation activity.

(d) An excavator may request a written record of any information from an owner or operator of an underground facility regarding the location of specific underground facilities.

(4) (a) Any owner or operator receiving notice pursuant to subsection (3) of this section shall, at no cost to the excavator, use reasonable care to advise the excavator of the location and size of any underground facilities in the proposed excavation area by marking the location of the facilities with clearly identifiable markings within eighteen inches horizontally from the exterior sides of any such facilities. Such markings shall include the depth, if known, and shall be made pursuant to the uniform color code as approved by the utility location and coordinating council of the American public works association. In the event any person is involved in excavating across a preexisting underground facility, the owner of such facility shall, upon a predetermined agreement at the request of the excavator or the owner, provide on-site assistance. Any owner or operator receiving notice concerning an excavator's intent to excavate shall use reasonable care to advise the excavator of the absence of any underground facilities in the proposed excavation area by communicating directly with the excavator and providing documentation thereof, if requested, or by clearly marking that no underground facilities exist in the proposed excavation area. Owners and operators shall, within the time limits specified in subsection (6) of this section, provide to the excavator evidence, if any, of facilities abandoned after January 1, 2001, known to the owner or operator to be in the proposed excavation area.

(b) The marking of underground facilities shall be considered valid so long as the markings are clearly visible but not for more than thirty calendar days. If an excavation has not been completed within the thirty-day period, the excavator shall notify the affected owner or operator and the notification association at least two business days, not including the day of actual notice, before the end of such thirty-day period.

(b.5) Any person who willfully or maliciously removes a marking used by an owner or operator to mark the location of any underground facility, except in the ordinary course of excavation, is guilty of a class 2 misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, in addition to any order for restitution, shall be punished by a fine of not more than five thousand dollars for each offense, by imprisonment for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

(c) (I) When a person excavates within eighteen inches horizontally from the exterior sides of any underground facility, such person shall exercise such reasonable care as necessary to protect any underground facility in or near the excavation area. It shall be the responsibility of the excavator to maintain adequate and accurate documentation, including but not limited to photographs, video, or sketches, at the excavation site on the location and identification of any underground facility throughout the excavation period.

(II) (A) If the documentation maintained pursuant to subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (c) becomes lost or invalid, the excavator shall notify the notification association or the affected owner or operator and request an immediate reverification of the location of any underground facility. Upon receipt of such notification, such affected owner or operator shall respond as quickly as is practicable. The excavator shall cease excavation activities at the affected location until the location of any underground facilities has been reverified.

(B) If the documentation maintained pursuant to subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (c) is determined to be inaccurate, the excavator shall immediately notify the affected owner or operator and shall request an immediate reverification of the location of any underground facility. Upon receipt of such notification, such affected owner or operator shall respond as quickly as practicable. The excavator may continue excavation activity if such excavator exercises due caution and care to prevent damaging any underground facility.

(III) If a person performing routine maintenance discovers an underground facility in the area where the routine maintenance is being performed, the person shall notify the notification association and the affected owner or operator as quickly as practicable and request an immediate verification of the location of any underground facility. Upon receiving notification, the affected owner or operator shall respond as quickly as practicable. The person shall cease routine maintenance activities in the immediate area, as determined by exercising due caution and care, until the location of any underground facilities has been verified.

(5) In emergency situations, excavators shall take such precautions as are reasonable under the circumstances to avoid damage to underground facilities and notify affected owners or operators and the notification association as soon as possible of such emergency excavations. In the event of damage to any underground facility, the excavator shall immediately notify the affected owner or operator and the notification association of the location and extent of such damage.

(6) If documentation requested and needed by an excavator pursuant to subsection (4) of this section is not provided by the owner or operator pursuant thereto within two business days, not including the day of actual notice, or such later time as agreed upon by the excavator and the owner or operator or if the documentation provided fails to identify the location of the underground facilities, the excavator shall immediately give notice to the notification association or the owner or operator and may proceed and shall not be liable for such damage except upon proof of such excavator's lack of reasonable care.

(7) (a) In the event of damage to an underground facility, the excavator, owner, and operator shall cooperate to mitigate damages to the extent reasonably possible, including the provision of in-kind work by the excavator where technical or specialty skills are not required by the nature of the underground facility. Such in-kind work may be under the supervision and pursuant to the specifications of the owner or operator.

(b) If damage to an underground facility meets or exceeds the reporting threshold as established by the notification association pursuant to paragraph (c) of this subsection (7), the owner or operator of the damaged underground facility shall provide the information listed in subparagraphs (I) to (VII) of paragraph (c) of this subsection (7) to the notification association within ninety days after service has been restored.

(c) The notification association shall create and publicize to its members a reporting process, including the availability of electronic reporting and a threshold at which reporting is required, to compile the following information:

- (I) The type of underground facility that was damaged;
- (II) Whether notice of the intention to excavate was provided to the notification association;
- (III) Whether the underground facility had been validly marked prior to being damaged;
- (IV) The type of service that was interrupted;
- (V) The number of persons whose service may have been interrupted;
- (VI) The duration of the interruption; and
- (VII) The location of the area where the underground facility was damaged.

(d) The notification association shall include a statistical summary of the information provided to it under this subsection (7) in the annual report required under section 9-1.5-105 (2.6).

(8) A person who performs maintenance shall take reasonable care when disturbing the soil.

The alternative dispute resolution program shall include mediation, arbitration, or other appropriate processes of dispute resolution. (c) (I) If any underground facility located in the service area of an owner or operator is damaged as a result of such owner or operator's failure to comply with paragraph (a) of this subsection (1), the court shall impose upon such owner or operator a civil penalty in the amount of five thousand dollars for the first offense and up to twenty-five thousand dollars for each subsequent offense within a twelve-month period after the first offense. (II) Any injury or damage to persons or property resulting from the damage to the underground facility. Any such owner or operator shall also indemnify and defend the affected excavator against any and all claims or actions, if any, for personal injury, death, property damage, or service interruption resulting from the damage to the underground facility.

(2) (a) Any person who intends to excavate shall notify the notification association pursuant to section 9-1.5-103 prior to commencing any excavation activity. Upon a first offense, such person shall be required to complete an excavation safety training program with the notification association.

(II) If any person fails to comply with paragraph (a) of this subsection (2) on more than three separate occasions within a twelve-month period from the date of the first failure to comply with paragraph (a) of this subsection (2), then the civil penalty shall be up to seventy-five thousand dollars.

9-1.5-105. Notification association - structure and funding requirements - duties of owners and operators - report. (1) There is hereby created a nonprofit corporation in the state of Colorado, referred to in this article as the "notification association", which shall consist of all owners or operators of underground facilities. All such owners and operators shall join the notification association and shall participate in a statewide program which utilizes a single toll-free telephone number which excavators can use to notify the notification association of pending excavation plans. Upon its organization and incorporation, the association shall file a letter to such effect with the public utilities commission so that the commission may refer inquiries arising under this article to an appropriate person.

(2) All underground facility owners and operators except the Colorado department of transportation shall be members of the notification association which shall be organized as follows:

(a) "Tier one" members who shall be full members of the notification association and shall receive full service benefits as part of such membership as specified in this article. Any owner or operator required to be a member of the association who was a member on February 1, 1993, shall be designated a tier one member without further action by such member.

(b) (I) "Tier two" members who shall be limited members and shall receive limited services as a part of such membership as specified in this article. Tier two members shall pay a one-time membership fee of twenty-five dollars to the notification association to partially defray the costs incurred by the association in organizing pursuant to this article. The notification association shall not assess any charges, costs, or fees to any tier two member other than the one-time membership fee.

A tier two member shall also provide geographical information concerning underground facilities it owns or operates which are not located within the designated service area to the notification association.

(III) Not later than January 1, 1994, the notification association shall provide any person who contacts the association regarding information concerning underground facilities owned or operated by a tier two member with the name of the person specified in subparagraph (II) of this paragraph (b).

(IV) The following owners or operators of underground facilities who are not designated as tier one members pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (2) shall be designated as tier two members:

- (A) Electric cooperative associations;
- (B) Special districts organized under title 32, C.R.S.;
- (C) Cable television operators;

- (E) Telecommunications local exchange providers with fewer than fifty thousand access lines.

(2.3) Any association member may alter the status of its membership and move from tier one to tier two or from tier two to tier one at any time that such member chooses; except that every tier one member shall remain a tier one member for at least two years after becoming a tier one member.

(2.5) The notification association may accept any organization, person, or entity which has an interest in the purposes and functions of the association as a member whether specifically enumerated in this article or not. Any such member shall comply with the bylaws of the association.

(2.6) (a) The notification association shall prepare annual reports on its activities, as follows:

(I) A statistical summary of the information reported to it pursuant to section 9-1.5-103 (7) (b); and

(II) An annual, independent financial audit of its operations.

(b) The notification association shall provide a copy of both reports created under paragraph (a) of this subsection (2.6) to its members and shall provide the report created under subparagraph (I) of paragraph (a) of this subsection (2.6) to the public utilities commission of the state of Colorado.

(3) Except as provided in subsection (2) of this section, each member of the notification association shall provide all of the locations of any underground facilities which such member owns or operates to the notification association, and the association shall maintain such information on file for use by excavators.

(4) The notification association shall be governed by a board of directors which is representative of the membership of the association and shall have at least one director that is a tier two member. The board of directors shall be elected by the membership of the association pursuant to the bylaws of the association.

(5) The notification association shall be incorporated and operated as a nonprofit corporation pursuant to the "Colorado Revised Nonprofit Corporation Act", articles 121 to 137 of title 7, C.R.S.

(6) This section shall not apply to any owner or occupant of real property under which underground facilities are buried if such facilities are used solely to furnish service or commodities to such real property and no part of such facilities is located in a public street, county road, alley, or right-of-way dedicated to public use.

9-2.5-103. Activity in close proximity to lines - clearance arrangements - procedure - payment - notice. (1) If any person or business entity desires to temporarily carry on any function, activity, work, or operation in closer proximity to any high voltage overhead line than that which is permitted by this article, the person or business entity responsible for performing the work shall promptly notify the public utility operating the high voltage overhead line. The person or business entity may perform the work only after satisfactory mutual arrangements, including coordination of work and construction schedules, have been made between the public utility operating the lines and the person or business entity responsible for performing the work. In cases where the person or business entity responsible for doing the work is doing so under contract or agreement with a governmental entity, and the governmental entity and the public utility operating the lines have already made satisfactory mutual arrangements, further arrangements for that particular activity are not required. Arrangements may include placement of temporary mechanical barriers to separate and prevent contact between material, equipment, or persons and the high voltage overhead lines or temporary deenergization and grounding or temporary relocation or raising of the high voltage overhead lines. The public utility operating the line shall promptly provide to the person or entity responsible for doing the work or having the work done an estimate of the amount to be charged for providing temporary clearances.

(2) (a) The person or business entity responsible for performing the work in the vicinity of the high voltage overhead lines shall pay any actual expenses of the public utility operating high voltage overhead lines in providing arrangements for clearances, except when prior arrangements for payment have been made between a governmental entity for whom the work is to be done and the public utility operating the lines and except in instances where the public utility operating high voltage overhead lines has installed lines within fifteen feet of an existing fixture or structure after the fixture or structure has been in place at a permanent location. The public utility is not required to provide the arrangements for clearances until an agreement for payment has been made; except that, if there is a dispute over the amount to be charged by the utility for providing arrangements for clearance, the utility shall commence with providing temporary clearance as if agreement had then been reached. If agreement for payment has not been reached within fourteen days after completion of temporary clearance, the public utility and the person or business entity responsible for doing the work shall resolve such dispute by arbitration or other legal means. Unless otherwise agreed to by the person or business entity responsible for doing the work, the public utility shall commence construction for temporary clearances within three working days after the date an agreement for payment, if required, has been reached or, if no payment is required, within five working days after the date of the request of the person responsible for the work. Once initiated, the clearance work shall continue without interruption until completed. Should the public utility fail to provide for temporary clearances or safety measures in a timely manner, the public utility shall be liable for costs or loss of production of the person or business entity requesting assistance to work in close proximity to high voltage overhead lines.

(b) A person requesting that the utility clear high voltage overhead lines shall not work near the lines until the utility notifies such person that the clearance is completed. If the location or the conditions of the planned work near a high voltage overhead line changes, the person shall notify the utility of such changes and cease all work until the utility has completed any additional clearance measures that may be necessary.

(3) In locations where identity of the public utility operating the high voltage overhead lines is not easily known, the Colorado public utilities commission shall, upon request, provide the name, address, and telephone number of such utility for notification purposes.

once may be liable for reasonable attorney fees and costs incurred in the prosecution of the violations as determined by the court.

(2) If a violation of this article results in physical or electrical contact with any high voltage overhead line, the person or business entity violating this article shall be liable to the owner or operator of the high voltage overhead line for damages to the facilities caused by the contact and for the liability incurred by the owner or operator due to the contact.

(3) Provisions of subsection (2) of this section notwithstanding, any person or business entity who has made arrangements for safety clearances and who commences any prohibited activity, work, or operation prior to such safety clearances having been made shall be liable for any damages incurred as a result of physical or electrical contact with the high voltage overhead line.

(1) It is the duty of the owner or user of boilers, except those boilers exempt from the provisions of this article under section 9-4-104, used or which are to be used in this state, to report to the section the location of newly installed or relocated boilers.

(2) Before the installers of any boiler have boilers placed in service, they shall notify the section, which, within ten days or as soon thereafter as possible from the date of receiving such notification, shall send an inspector to examine said boilers to determine that the construction, material, bracing, fuel and fluid supply systems, control apparatus, combustion air and ventilating air, electric wiring, piping, and all other parts of such boilers are such as to assure the safety of the boilers.

(3) Upon completion of installation, all boilers shall be inspected by a state boiler inspector. At the time of inspection, each boiler shall be assigned a serial number by the inspector, which serial number shall be stamped on or affixed to the boiler.

(4) The serial number and letters, whether stamped on or affixed to the boiler, shall not be less than five-sixteenths of an inch in height, and the serial number shall be preceded by the letters "Colo". The stamping shall not be concealed by lagging or paint and shall be exposed at all times. Metal tags shall be furnished by the section on which the assigned number may be stamped. The tag shall be securely affixed to the boiler in the area of the manufacturer's identification and must be used when the metal of which the boiler is made may be damaged by direct stamping.

(5) The owners or users of boilers, or engineers in charge of same, shall not allow a greater pressure in any boiler than is stated on the certificate of inspection issued by the section. No person or business entity shall use any boiler that has been condemned as unsafe by a state boiler inspector. No person or business entity shall operate a boiler without a valid certificate of inspection.

9-4-106.5. Owner to report boilers taken out of service. (1) It is the duty of the owner or user of boilers used in this state, except those boilers exempt from the provisions of this article under section 9-4-104, to report to the section the location and state serial number of boilers that have been taken out of service but not removed from the premises. For purposes of this article, a boiler is not "taken out of service" if it is temporarily shut down for routine maintenance or minor repairs.

(2) The section, under the direction of the director, shall formulate rules for the safe removal from service of boilers condemned pursuant to section 9-4-105 (3) or voluntarily taken out of service by the owner or user.

(3) A boiler that has been condemned or voluntarily taken out of service may be placed back in service, subject to any applicable requirements for satisfactory repair, imposed pursuant to section 9-4-105 (3), and subject to compliance with section 9-4-106. For purposes of section 9-4-106, such a boiler shall be treated as a new boiler.

9-4-107. Certificate. (1) If, upon inspection, a boiler is found to comply with the Colorado boiler and pressure vessel code, the owner or user thereof shall pay directly to the section such fee as is prescribed by section 9-4-109, and the division of oil and public safety shall issue to such owner or user an inspection certificate bearing the date of inspection and the date of expiration of the certificate and specifying the maximum pressure under which the boiler may be operated.

(2) An inspection certificate is valid for the period stated on the face of the certificate.

(3) The certificate of inspection or a copy of the certificate of inspection shall be posted in the room containing the boiler inspected or, in the case of a portable boiler, shall be kept in a metal container to be fastened to the boiler. Failure to properly exhibit the certificate of inspection will result in another inspection of the boiler and demand for inspection fees.

9-4-108. Violation by owner or user - penalty - enforcement. (1) If the owner of any boiler fails to report the location of such boiler to the section, the owner is guilty of a misdemeanor, and, if the owner or his agent fails to have said boiler ready for internal inspection as provided in this article, said owner shall be liable to pay fees and expenses of the inspector incurred in the inspection of any such boiler.

(2) Any owner who fails or refuses to comply with all requirements or directions of this article pertaining to notification of boiler placement, replacement, or operation; condones operation of condemned boilers; refuses a reasonable request to inspect any boiler used for heating or water supply service or any similar use; refuses to pay inspection and expenses or penalties or license fees; operates any boiler or similar device in defiance of a division of oil and public safety order or an order of the director shall, upon notice, cease to use or operate or allow the use or operation of any approved or nonapproved boiler or water-heating equipment owned by him or her until permission to resume use of such equipment is granted by the director.

(3) Actions shall be instituted by the attorney general or the district attorney, or may be instituted by the city attorney of any city, to prosecute such acts in violation of this article within his jurisdiction as may come to his knowledge or to enforce the provisions of this article independently and without specific direction of the director. Each such violation shall be a separate offense.

(4) Any person convicted of a violation of this article shall be punished by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a period of not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

9-4-108.5. Variances. Any owner or user may apply to the director for a rule or order for a variance from the standards, rules, regulations, or requirements of this article, upon providing such information as prescribed by the director. The director shall issue such rule or order if he determines that the proponent of the variance has demonstrated that the construction, installation, and operation of the boiler or pressure vessel will be as safe as if the standards, rules, regulations, or requirements were complied with. The rule or order so issued shall prescribe the construction, installation, operation, maintenance, and repair conditions that the owner or user must maintain. Such a rule or order may be modified or revoked upon application by an owner or user or by the director on his own motion at any time after six months from its issuance.

9-4-109. Fees for boiler and pressure vessel inspection certificates. (1) (a) (I) There shall be paid for the issuance of a certificate of boiler or pressure vessel inspection of each individual boiler or pressure vessel, regardless of how it is joined or connected, according to this article by the owner or user of said boiler or pressure vessel, such fees as shall be established by the director of the division of oil and public safety by rule; except that such fees shall not exceed the amount necessary to accumulate and maintain in the boiler inspection fund a reserve sufficient to defray the division's administrative expenses for a period of two months, and in no event shall the basic fee for an annual inspection exceed one hundred fifty dollars for an internal inspection or eighty-five dollars for an external inspection. The basic fee for a biennial or triennial inspection shall not exceed eighty-five dollars. The division shall not charge for an inspection other than to assess the fees established pursuant to this subsection (1). Any fees established pursuant to subparagraphs (III) to (V) of this paragraph (a) or pursuant to paragraph (b) of this subsection (1) shall be in addition to the basic fee.

(II) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2001, p. 529, § 1, effective July 1, 2001.)

(III) In addition to the basic fee established in subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (a), the division may assess a reinspection fee for any boiler condemned pursuant to section 9-4-105 (3). The reinspection fee shall be assessed and collected for each reinspection until the repairs are deemed satisfactory in accordance with section 9-4-105 (3).

(IV) In addition to the basic fee established in subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (a), the division may assess a disconnection inspection fee.

(V) In addition to the basic inspection fee established in subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (a), the division shall assess a certificate of boiler operation issuance fee not to exceed twenty-five dollars per certificate.

(b) There shall be paid, for the services provided by the national board of boiler and pressure vessel commissioned inspectors, fees as provided in the following schedule:

(I) Secondhand boiler or equipment at the request of the owner for certificate

..... $30.00 plus expenses

(II) National board shop inspection or A.S.M.E. quality control survey

..... $100.00 1/2 day,
$200.00 full day plus travel and subsistence expense (1/2 day minimum).

(2) The section may prorate the boiler inspection fees. Twenty-five percent of the inspection fee shall be charged for a period up to and including twenty-five percent of the certificate term. Fifty percent of the inspection fee shall be charged for periods up to and including fifty percent of the certificate term. Seventy-five percent of the inspection fee shall be charged for periods up to and including seventy-five percent of the certificate term. The full fee shall be charged for periods exceeding seventy-five percent of the certificate term.

(2.5) Repealed.

(3) All boiler or pressure vessel inspection certificate fees shall be paid within thirty days from the date of inspection to the department of labor and employment. Upon failure to pay the department of labor and employment, the chief boiler inspector shall issue an order to the owner or user to cease and desist the use or operation or allowing the use or operation of the boiler or pressure vessel until permission to resume use of such equipment is granted by the director.

(4) All fees collected by the department of labor and employment under the provisions of this article shall be used to defray the salaries and operating expenses incurred in the administration of this article and shall be appropriated for such purposes by the general assembly. Such moneys shall be transferred to the state treasurer, who shall deposit the same to the credit of the boiler inspection fund, which fund is hereby created.

(5) If any person who is required to pay a fee pursuant to subsection (1) of this section fails or refuses to remit such fee, the department of labor and employment shall proceed at once to collect the fee by employing such legal processes as may be necessary for that purpose.

(6) The state treasurer shall invest any portion of the boiler inspection fund which is not needed for immediate use. All interest earned upon such invested portion shall be credited to the fund and used for the same purposes and in the same manner as other moneys in the fund. Such moneys may be invested in the types of investments authorized in sections 24-36-109, 24-36-112, and 24-36-113, C.R.S.

9-4-110. Special inspectors. (1) In addition to the boiler inspectors authorized by this article, the section shall, upon request of any company authorized to insure against loss from explosion of boilers in this state, issue to any boiler inspectors of said company commissions as special boiler inspectors. Each such inspector, before receiving a commission, shall satisfy the division of oil and public safety that such inspector is properly qualified to perform such inspections. Possession of a valid commission as inspector issued by the national board of boiler and pressure vessel inspectors shall be considered to be proper qualification.

(2) Such special boiler inspectors shall receive no salary from, nor shall any of their expenses be paid by, the state, and continuance of a special boiler inspector's commission shall be conditioned upon such special boiler inspector's continuing in the employ of the boiler insurance company duly authorized as aforesaid and upon the maintenance of the standards imposed by the division of oil and public safety. Such special boiler inspectors shall perform their functions in accordance with the instructions for special boiler inspectors formulated by the section.

(3) Such special boiler inspectors shall inspect all boilers insured by their respective companies and, when so inspected, the owners or users of such insured boilers shall pay Colorado boiler inspection fees for the issuance of a certificate of inspection.

(4) Each company employing such special boiler inspectors, within thirty days following each boiler inspection made by such inspectors, shall file a report of such inspection with the section upon appropriate forms promulgated by the division of oil and public safety.

(5) If the division of oil and public safety has reason to believe that a special boiler inspector is no longer qualified to hold an appointment or commission, the division of oil and public safety or its selected agent, upon not less than ten days' written notice to the inspector and the inspector's employer, shall hold a hearing at which such inspector and the inspector's employer shall have an opportunity to be heard. If, as a result of such hearing, the division of oil and public safety or its selected agent finds that such inspector is no longer qualified to hold an appointment or commission, the division of oil and public safety, or upon recommendation of its selected agent, shall revoke or suspend such appointment or commission.

(6) A person whose appointment or commission has been suspended shall be entitled to apply, after ninety days from the date of such suspension, for reinstatement of such appointment or commission.

9-4-110.5. Owner-user inspection organizations - registration. (1) A person, firm, partnership, or corporation operating boilers or pressure vessels may seek approval and registration as an owner-user inspection organization by filing an application with the director on prescribed forms.

(2) The applicant shall show the name of the organization and its principal address and the name and address of the person or persons having supervision over inspections made by the organization on the application and registration. The applicant shall report changes in supervisory personnel to the director within thirty days after the change.

(3) Each owner-user inspection organization shall:

(a) Conduct inspection of its nonexempt boilers and pressure vessels, utilizing only qualified inspection personnel;

(b) Retain on file at the location where equipment is inspected a true record or copy of the report of each inspection signed by the owner-user inspector who made the inspection;

(c) Promptly notify the director of any boiler or pressure vessel that does not meet requirements for safe operation;

(d) Maintain inspection records that include a list of nonexempt boilers and pressure vessels, showing the serial number and the abbreviated description as may be necessary for identification, the date of the last inspection of each unit, the approximate date of the next inspection, and documentation of all repairs. Such inspection records shall be readily available for examination by the director, the chief boiler inspector, or their designee during business hours.

(e) Transmit a statement annually to the director, on a date mutually agreed upon. The individual having supervision over the inspections made during the period covered shall sign the statement and shall include the number of vessels inspected during the year and shall certify that each inspection was conducted in accordance with the inspection requirements in the Colorado boiler and pressure vessel rules.

(4) A state-issued certificate of inspection is required for boilers and pressure vessels inspected by an owner-user inspection organization when all of the requirements in this section are met.

(5) An individual or organization performing an inspection pursuant to this section shall have liability insurance appropriate for the size and scope of the relevant inspection.

9-4-111. Penalty - inspector fails to perform duty. An inspector of boilers for every failure to perform his duties is guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a period of not less than two months nor more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

9-4-112. Regulations common to all types and services of boilers. (1) Each boiler shall be supported by masonry or structural supports of sufficient strength and rigidity to safely support the boiler. There shall be no excessive vibration in either the boiler or its connecting piping.

(2) All boilers shall be so located that adequate space on each side will be provided for proper operation of the boiler and its appurtenances, for the inspection of all surfaces, tubes, water walls, piping, valves, and other equipment, and for their necessary maintenance and repair.

(3) Inflammable or volatile materials shall not be stored in boiler rooms. Gas meters shall not be installed in boiler rooms.

(4) There shall be provided to all boiler installations sufficient air to assure adequate combustion of fuel. There shall be ventilating air provided to prevent undue overheating in the boiler room. Nationally accepted standards such as the publications of the national fire protection association shall be followed in determining the adequacy of combustion and ventilating air.

(5) Safety or safety relief valves, or both, shall be of adequate capacity to prevent accumulation of excess pressure with fixed settings not in excess of the maximum allowable working pressure of the boiler to which they are attached. All new safety relief valves shall bear stamping which indicates that they have been capacity-rated according to national board standards and that they have been constructed according to A.S.M.E. standards.

(6) The use of weighted-lever safety valves shall be prohibited, and these valves shall be replaced by direct spring-loaded safety or safety relief valves that conform to the requirements of the A.S.M.E. boiler and pressure vessel code.

(7) Safety valves having either a seat or disc of cast-iron construction are prohibited.

(8) The safety or safety relief valve shall be connected directly to the hottest part of the boiler, independent of any other connection, without a shutoff valve of any description between the safety or safety relief valve and the boiler.

(9) Each automatically fired boiler shall be equipped with a flame failure safeguard device which will positively discontinue flow of fuel to the firing chamber in event of absence of flame. Discontinuation must occur in time to prevent an explosive accumulation of fuel in the firing chamber and connecting passages.

(10) Every safety or safety relief valve shall be connected to the boiler in an upright position with spindle vertical and shall be equipped with a try lever to test opening of the valve.

(11) When a discharge pipe is attached to a safety or safety relief valve, it shall not be reduced less than the valve outlet and shall be as short and straight as possible and arranged to avoid undue stresses on the valve. There shall be no shutoff valve in such discharge pipe.

(12) The discharge opening of safety or safety relief valves shall be so located that the released fluids and vapors cannot come into harmful contact with attendants or other persons. All safety or safety relief valve discharges shall be located or piped to clear running boards or platforms. Ample provision for gravity drain shall be made in the discharge pipe at or near each safety valve and where condensation may collect. Any discharge pipe extending above the safety or safety relief valve shall be equipped with a drain hole which will prevent accumulation of fluid above the valve disc.

(13) All electric wiring to boilers and to electrically operated automatic devices and control mechanisms shall be of a high temperature resistant insulation, and wiring shall be in conduit or other approved covering.

(14) All fuel and fluid piping valves and appliances shall be of materials listed in nationally approved standards, installed in a workmanlike manner, with such support as is necessary to prevent vibration. They shall be maintained so as to be free of leakage.

(15) Repairs shall be made in accordance with the regulations set forth in the national board inspection code. Major repairs shall be reported to the section before being performed. The major repair procedure and the shop performing the repair must be approved by the section or the authorized insurer and an inspection made by a state or special boiler inspector before the boiler is used.

(16) All boilers, unless exempt by this article, are subject to regular inspections as provided for in section 9-4-103 (4). Each boiler shall be prepared by the owner or user for inspections or hydrostatic test whenever necessary when notified by the inspector or the section. The owner or user shall prepare each boiler for internal inspection, when so requested by a state boiler inspector, in the manner prescribed in the national board inspection code.

(17) If the boiler is jacketed so that longitudinal seams of shells, drums, or domes cannot be seen, enough of the jacketing, setting, wall, or other form of casing or housing shall be removed to permit the inspection of the size of the rivets, pitch of the rivets, and other data necessary to determine the safety of the boiler if such information cannot be determined by other means.

(18) No person shall remove or tamper with any safety appliances prescribed by this article except for the purpose of making repairs.

(19) All insurance companies insuring boilers operated in this state shall notify the section within thirty days after any insurance policy insuring a boiler has been written, canceled, not renewed, or suspended because of unsafe conditions.

(20) If upon an external inspection there is evidence of a leak or crack, enough of the covering of the boiler shall be removed to permit a boiler inspector to determine the safety of the boiler; or, if the covering cannot be removed immediately, he may order the operation of the boiler stopped until such time as the covering can be removed and proper examination made.

9-4-113. New power boiler installations. (1) No power boiler, except those exempt by this article, shall be installed in this state unless it has been constructed, inspected, and stamped in conformity with the rules for construction of power boilers of the A.S.M.E. boiler and pressure vessel code and is registered with the national board of boiler and pressure vessel inspectors, and inspected in accordance with the requirements of this article and the rules and regulations of the section.

(2) A power boiler having the standard stamping of another state that has adopted a standard of construction equivalent to the standard provided in this article may be accepted by the director; however, the person or firm desiring to install the boiler shall make application for the installation and shall file with this application the manufacturer's data report covering the construction of the boiler in question.

(3) All new power boiler installations and reinstalled boilers shall be installed in accordance with the requirements of the A.S.M.E. boiler and pressure vessel code and, in addition, in accordance with the requirements of this section.

(4) All power boilers heated with gas, oil, or mechanical firing, except forced flow steam generators designed to operate without a fixed water level and stoker- or hand-fired coal-burning units which are constantly attended, shall be provided with an automatic low-water fuel cutout and with an automatic fuel-regulating control, controlled by boiler pressure or temperature, or both.

(5) All new power boiler rooms shall be constructed to have at least two means of exit. Each exit shall be remotely located from the other. Each elevation shall have at least two means of egress, each remotely located from the other.

9-4-114. Existing power boiler installations. (1) The maximum allowable working pressure of standard boilers shall be determined by the applicable sections of the codes under which they were constructed and stamped. The maximum allowable working pressure on the shell of a nonstandard boiler or drum shell shall be determined by the strength of the weakest section of the structure computed in accordance with formulas provided by the national board of boiler and pressure vessel inspectors or any other nationally recognized engineering authority.

(2) Each power boiler having not more than five hundred square feet of water-heating surface shall have at least one approved safety valve. Each boiler having more than five hundred square feet of water-heating surface shall have two or more approved safety valves.

(3) The safety valve capacity of each power boiler shall be that which will discharge all the steam that can be generated by the boiler without allowing the pressure to rise more than six percent above the highest pressure any valve is set, and in no case to more than six percent above the maximum allowable working pressure.

(4) Power boilers equipped with one safety valve shall have the safety valve set at or below the maximum allowable working pressure. If additional valves are used, the highest pressure setting on additional valves shall not exceed the maximum allowable working pressure by more than three percent.

(5) When two or more power boilers operating at different pressures and safety valve settings are interconnected, the lower pressure boilers or interconnected piping shall be equipped with safety valves of sufficient capacity to prevent overpressure, considering the generating capacity of the boiler with the lowest allowable pressure.

(6) All power boilers shall have a water-feed supply which will permit the boilers being fed at any time while under pressure.

(7) Power boilers that are fired with solid fuel not in suspension and having more than five hundred square feet of water-heating surface shall have at least two means of feeding water. Each source of feeding shall be capable of supplying water to the boiler at a pressure of six percent higher than the highest setting of any safety valve on the boiler, and one such source of feeding shall be steam-operated.

(8) Power boilers fired by gaseous, liquid, or solid fuel in suspension and having less than five hundred square feet of water-heating surface may be equipped with a single source of feeding water if:

(a) Means are provided for immediate shutoff of heat release:

(b) The boiler furnace and fuel system do not retain sufficient stored heat to cause damage to the boiler if the water-feed supply is interrupted.

(9) Power boilers that have a water-heating surface of not more than one hundred square feet shall not have water-feed piping and connection to the boiler smaller than one-half inch pipe size. For boilers having a water-heating surface of more than one hundred square feet, the water-feed piping and connection to the boiler shall not be less than three-fourths inch pipe size. The feed water shall be introduced into a boiler in such a manner that the water will not be discharged directly against surface-exposed gases of high temperature or to direct radiation from the fire or near any riveted joints of the furnace sheets or shell. The water-feed pipe shall be provided with a check valve near the boiler and a valve or cock between the check valve and the boiler. When two or more boilers are fed from a common source, there shall be a regulating valve on the branch to each boiler between the check valve and the source of supply. In all cases where returns are fed back to the boiler by gravity, a check valve and stop valve shall be on each return line, the stop valve placed between the boiler and the check valve, and both shall be located as close to the boiler as practicable.

(10) Fire-actuated plugs, if used, shall conform to the requirements of the A.S.M.E. boiler and pressure vessel code for power boilers.

(11) No outlet connections, except for damper regulator, feed-water regulator, low-water fuel cutout, drains, or steam gauges, shall be placed on the piping that connects the water column or gauge glass to the boiler. The water column shall be provided with a drain valve of at least three-fourths of an inch pipe size.

(12) Each power boiler, except forced flow steam generators designed to operate without a fixed water level, shall have at least one water-gauge glass; except that boilers operated at pressures over four hundred PSI shall be provided with two water-gauge glasses which may be connected to a single water column or connected directly to the drum, in which case they shall conform to A.S.M.E. requirements. The gauge-glass connections and pipe connections shall not be less than one-half inch pipe size. Each water-gauge glass will be fitted with a drain cock or valve. When the boiler operating pressure exceeds one hundred PSI, the glass will be fitted with a globe or gate-valved drain.

(13) The lowest visible part of the water-gauge glass shall be at least two inches above the lowest permissible water level, which level shall be that at which there will be no danger of overheating any part of the boiler when in operation at that level. This subsection (13) does not apply to forced flow steam generators which are designed to operate without a fixed water level.

(14) Each power boiler shall have a steam gauge, with dial range not less than one and one-half times the maximum allowable working pressure, connected to the steam space or to the steam connection to the water column. The steam gauge shall be connected to a siphon or equivalent device of sufficient capacity to keep the gauge tube filled with water and so arranged that the gauge cannot be shut off from the boiler except by a cock placed near the gauge and provided with a tee or lever handle arranged to be parallel to the pipe in which it is located when the cock is open.

(15) Each power boiler shall be provided with a one-fourth inch nipple and globe valve connected to a steam space for the exclusive purpose of attaching a test gauge when the boiler is in service so the accuracy of the gauge may be ascertained.

(16) Steam-gauge connections shall be suitable for the maximum allowable working pressure and steam temperature; if the temperature exceeds four hundred degrees Fahrenheit, brass or copper pipe or tubing shall not be used.

(17) When a steam-gauge connection longer than eight feet becomes necessary, a shutoff valve may be used near the boiler if the valve is of the outside-screw-and-yoke type and is locked open when the boiler is in operation. The line shall be of ample size with provisions for free blowing.

(18) Each steam-discharge outlet, except a safety valve, shall be fitted with a stop valve located as close as practicable to the boiler. When such outlets are over two-inch pipe size, the valve used on the connection shall be the outside-screw-and-yoke rising spindle type to indicate, at a distance, the position of its spindle, whether it is closed or open. The wheel may be carried either on the yoke or attached to the spindle.

(19) When power boilers provided with manholes are connected to a common steam main, the steam connection from each boiler shall be fitted with two stop valves having ample free-blow drain between them. The discharge of this drain shall be visible to the operator while manipulating the valves and shall be piped clear of the boiler setting. The stop valve shall consist preferably of one automatic nonreturn valve set next to the boiler and a second valve of the outside-screw-and-yoke type; or two valves of the outside-screw-and-yoke type may be used.

(20) Each power boiler shall have a blow-off pipe fitted with a valve or cock. All fittings and pipe shall conform to the applicable section of the A.S.M.E. boiler and pressure vessel code.

(21) Provisions shall be made for the expansion and contraction of steam mains connected to power boilers by providing substantial anchorage at suitable points so undue strain shall not be transmitted to the boiler. Steam reservoirs shall be used on steam mains when heavy pulsations of the steam currents cause vibration of the boiler shell plates.

(22) All power boilers heated with gas, oil, or mechanical firing, except stoker- or hand-fired coal-burning units which are constantly attended, shall be provided with an automatic low-water fuel cutout and with an automatic fuel-regulating control, controlled by boiler pressure.

(23) All cases not specifically covered by this article shall be treated as new installations or may be referred to the director for instructions concerning the requirements.

(4) Each miniature boiler shall be equipped with a spring-load, pop-type safety valve not less than one-half inch pipe size connected directly to the boiler.

(5) The safety valve shall have sufficient capacity to discharge all the steam that can be generated by the boiler without allowing the pressure to rise more than six percent above the maximum allowable working pressure.

(6) In cases where the miniature boiler is supplied with feed water directly from a pressure main or system without the use of a mechanical feeding device, the safety valve shall be set to release at a pressure not in excess of ninety-four percent of the lowest pressure obtained in the supply main or system feeding the boiler. Return traps shall not be considered mechanical feeding devices.

(7) Each miniature boiler designed for operation with a definite water level shall be equipped with a glass water-gauge for determining the water level.

(8) Miniature boilers operated in a closed system where there is insufficient space for the usual glass water-gauge may use water-level indicators of the glass bull's-eye type.

(9) Every miniature boiler shall be provided with at least one water-feed pump or other water-feeding device, except where it is connected to a water main carrying sufficient pressure to feed the boiler or where it is operated with no extraction of steam, such system being commonly known as a closed system.

(10) The water-feed pipe shall be provided with a check valve and a stop valve no less in size than that of the pipe.

(11) Feed water shall not be introduced through the water column or gauge-glass connection while the boiler is under pressure.

(12) Pressure of a feed water system greater than the maximum allowable working pressure of the boiler shall be fitted with a pressure-reducing valve before feed water is introduced into the boiler.

(13) Each miniature boiler shall be provided with a blow-off connection, not less than one-half inch iron pipe size, connected directly to the lowest water space.

(14) Blow-off piping shall not be galvanized and shall be provided with a valve or cock.

(15) Each miniature boiler shall be equipped with a steam-gauge having its dial graduated to not less than one and one-half times the maximum allowable working pressure. The gauge shall be connected to the steam space or to a steam connection to the water column. The gauge or connection shall contain a siphon or equivalent device which will develop and maintain a water seal that will prevent steam from entering the gauge tube. The minimum size of a siphon, if used, shall be one-fourth inch inside diameter.

(16) The steam piping from a miniature boiler shall be provided with a stop valve located as close to the boiler shell or drum as is practicable, except where the boiler and steam receiver are operated as a closed system.

(17) For miniature boiler installations which are gas-fired, the burners shall conform to the requirements of the American gas association and the A.S.M.E. boiler and pressure vessel code.

(18) The heating element for electrically heated steam boilers, closed system, shall be so constructed that the temperature will not exceed one thousand two hundred degrees Fahrenheit.

(19) All miniature boilers heated with gas, oil, or electrical energy shall be provided with an automatic low-water fuel cutout and with an automatic fuel-regulating control, controlled by boiler pressure.

(20) All cases not specifically covered by this article shall be treated as new installations or may be referred to the director for instructions concerning the requirement.

9-4-117. New heating boilers and hot-water supply boilers installations. No heating boiler or hot-water supply boiler, except those exempt by this article, shall be installed in this state unless it has been constructed, inspected, and stamped in conformity with the rules for construction of low-pressure heating boilers of the A.S.M.E. boiler and pressure vessel code and is approved, registered, and inspected in accordance with the requirements of this article.

9-4-118. Existing heating boilers and hot-water supply boilers installations.

(1) The maximum allowable working pressure of a boiler built in accordance with the A.S.M.E. boiler and pressure vessel code shall in no case exceed the pressure indicated by the manufacturer's identification stamped or cast on the boiler or a plate secured to it.

(2) The maximum allowable working pressure on the shell of a nonstandard, riveted heating boiler shall be determined in accordance with section 9-4-114 (1) covering existing power boiler installations. In no case shall the maximum allowable working pressure of a steam-heating boiler exceed fifteen pounds per square inch gauge, or a hot-water boiler exceed one hundred sixty pounds per square inch gauge, at a temperature not exceeding two hundred fifty degrees Fahrenheit.

(3) The maximum allowable working pressure of a nonstandard steel or wrought-iron heating boiler of welded construction shall not exceed fifteen pounds per square inch gauge. For other than steam service, the maximum allowable working pressure shall be calculated in accordance with the rules for construction of low-pressure heating boilers of the A.S.M.E. boiler and pressure vessel code.

(4) The maximum allowable working pressure of a nonstandard boiler composed principally of cast iron shall not exceed fifteen pounds per square inch gauge for steam service or thirty pounds per square inch gauge for hot-water service.

(5) The maximum allowable working pressure of a nonstandard boiler having cast-iron shell or heads and steel wrought-iron tubes shall not exceed fifteen pounds per square inch gauge for steam service or thirty pounds per square inch gauge for water service.

(6) A radiator in which steam pressure is generated at a pressure of fifteen pounds per square inch gauge or less is a low-pressure boiler.

(7) Each steam-heating boiler shall have one or more officially rated valves of the spring pop-type adjusted to discharge at a pressure not to exceed fifteen PSI. The safety valves shall be arranged so that they cannot be reset to relieve at a higher pressure than the maximum allowable working pressure of the boiler.

(8) No safety valve for a steam-heating boiler shall be smaller than three-fourths of an inch except in case the boiler and radiating surfaces are a self-contained unit.

(9) The safety valve capacity for each steam-heating boiler shall be such that with the fuel-burning equipment installed the pressure cannot rise more than five pounds above the maximum allowable working pressure.

(10) Each hot-water boiler shall have not less than one officially rated pressure relief valve set to relieve at or below the maximum allowable working pressure of the boiler. Each hot-water supply boiler shall have not less than one officially rated relief valve or not less than one officially rated pressure-temperature relief valve of the automatic-reseating type set to relieve at or below the maximum allowable working pressure of the boiler. Relief valves shall be so constructed that they cannot be reset to relieve at a higher pressure than the maximum permitted pressure.

(11) Seats and discs of safety relief valves shall be of material suitable to resist corrosion. No materials subject to deterioration or vulcanization when subjected to saturated steam temperature corresponding to capacity test pressure shall be used in any safety relief valve.

(12) No safety relief valve shall be smaller than three-fourths of an inch nor larger than four and one-half inches pipe size.

(13) When the size of the boiler requires a safety relief valve larger than four and one-half inches in diameter, two or more valves having the required combined capacity shall be used.

(14) Each steam-heating boiler shall have a steam gauge connected to its steam space, or to its water column, or to its steam connection. The gauge or connection shall have a siphon or equivalent device which will develop and maintain a water seal that will prevent steam from entering the gauge tube. The connection shall be so arranged that the gauge cannot be shut off from the boiler except by a cock placed in the pipe at the gauge and provided with a tee or lever handle arranged to be parallel to the pipe in which it is located when the cock is open.

(15) Each hot-water heating boiler or hot-water supply boiler shall have a pressure or altitude gauge connected to it or to its flow connection in such a manner that it cannot be shut off from the boiler except by a cock with tee or lever handle placed on the pipe near the gauge. The handle of the cock, when the cock is open, shall be parallel to the pipe in which it is located.

(16) The scale on the dial of the pressure or altitude gauge for a hot-water heating boiler shall be graduated to not less than one and one-half nor more than three times the maximum allowable working pressure.

(17) The scale on the dial of a steam-heating boiler gauge shall be graduated to not less than thirty PSIG nor more than sixty PSIG, and travel of the pointer from zero to thirty PSIG pressure shall be at least three inches.

(18) In addition to the mandatory requirements for a pressure relief device, each hot-water heating or hot-water supply boiler shall be fitted with a temperature-actuated control, which will control the rate of combustion to prevent the temperature of the water from rising above two hundred fifty degrees Fahrenheit at or near the boiler outlet. The control shall be constructed so that it cannot be set or reset to permit operation of the firing equipment when the temperature of the water is higher than two hundred degrees Fahrenheit.

(19) When a pressure-actuated control is used on a steam-heating boiler, it shall operate to prevent the steam pressure from rising above fifteen PSIG.

(20) Each automatically fired steam or vapor-system heating boiler shall be equipped with an automatic low-water fuel cutoff, so located as to automatically cut off fuel supply when the surface of the water falls to the lowest safe water line.

(21) Each steam-heating boiler shall have one or more water-gauge glasses attached to the water column or boiler by means of valved fittings with the lower fitting provided with a drain valve of the straightway type with opening not less than one-fourth inch diameter to facilitate cleaning. Gauge-glass replacement shall be possible under pressure.

(22) If, in the judgment of an inspector, a steam-heating or hot-water supply boiler is unsafe for operation at the pressure previously approved, the pressure shall be reduced, proper repair made, or the boiler retired from service.

(7) "Property" means the site, parcels of land, plats, lots, tracts, individual dwelling units, existing and proposed structures, and the built environment.

(8) "Residential dwelling unit" means any portion of a building that contains living facilities, including a room or rooms in a facility that have shared cooking, bathing, toilet, or laundry facilities such as dormitories, shelters, assisted living facilities, and boarding homes. "Residential dwelling unit" also means facilities that include provisions for sleeping, cooking, bathing, and toilet facilities for one or more persons and are used for extended stays, such as time-shares and extended-stay motels. "Residential dwelling unit" does not mean a guest room in a motel or hotel.

(9) "Technically infeasible", in reference to a proposed alteration to a building or facility, means that the proposed alteration is not implemented because:

(a) An existing structural condition or conditions make such alteration labor- or cost-prohibitive;

(b) The building or facility is in strict compliance with minimum accessibility requirements for new construction and, due to existing physical or site constraints, such alteration would negatively impact such compliance.

(10) "Type A dwelling unit" means a dwelling unit designed in accordance with the provisions of ANSI A117.1-1998, section 1002.

(11) "Type A multistory dwelling unit" means a multiple story dwelling unit with a ground story level designed in accordance with the provisions of ANSI A117.1-1998, section 1002, and, if provided, accessible laundry facilities on the ground story level.

(15) "Undue hardship" means a substantial and unusual hardship that is the direct result of unique physical site conditions such as topography or geology, or that is the direct result of other unique or special conditions encountered on a property, but that are not typically encountered in the jurisdiction in which such property is located. Constraints, complications, or difficulties that may arise by complying with these statutory standards for accessibility but that do not constitute an undue hardship shall not serve to justify the granting of an exception or variance.

9-5-102. Disabilities covered - purpose. (1) This article is intended to provide accessibility standards for residential projects designed to serve persons with nonambulatory disabilities, semiambulatory disabilities, sight disabilities, hearing disabilities, disabilities of incoordination, and aging.

(2) Design criteria. Design criteria shall comply with the 1998 version of the "American National Standard for Buildings and Facilities Providing Accessibility and Usability for Physically Handicapped People", promulgated by the American national standard institute, commonly cited as "ANSI A117.1-1998".

9-5-103. Applicability of standards - enforcement. (1) The standards and specifications set forth in this article shall apply to all buildings and facilities used for housing that are constructed in whole or in part by the use of state, county, or municipal funds or the funds of any political subdivision of the state or that are constructed with private funds. All such buildings and facilities to be constructed from plans on which architectural drawings are started after July 1, 1975, from any one of these funds or any combination thereof shall conform to each of the standards and specifications prescribed in this article. The governmental unit responsible for the enforcement of this article shall grant exceptions to or modify any particular standard or specification when it is determined that it is impractical and would create an undue hardship. Any such exception or modification of the provisions of this article shall be made in writing as a matter of public record. These standards and specifications shall be adhered to in those buildings and facilities that are constructed or proposed on or after April 29, 2003. This article shall apply to permanent buildings.

(2) The jurisdiction with responsibility for enforcement of this article pursuant to section 9-5-104 shall designate a board of appeals to hear and resolve appeals of orders, decisions, or determinations made by the enforcing agency regarding the application and interpretation of this article.

(3) Any building or facility that would have been subject to the provisions of this article but was under construction prior to July 1, 1976, shall comply with the following:

(a) If the walls or defining boundaries of an element or space are altered, then the altered element or space shall comply with the applicable provisions of section 9-5-105, unless such alteration is technically infeasible. If full compliance with this article is technically infeasible, compliance shall be implemented up to the point of technical infeasibility. No alteration shall be undertaken that negatively impacts accessibility of a building or facility pursuant to ANSI A117.1-1998. This paragraph (a) shall not be construed to require the moving of any existing walls not otherwise planned to be moved.

(b) Any additions to a building or facility shall be treated as new construction for the purposes of enforcement of this article.

(4) The general assembly finds and declares that the standards and specifications set forth in this article are of statewide concern. Nothing in this article shall prohibit any municipality or other governmental subdivision from making and enforcing standards and specifications that are more stringent, and thus provide greater accessibility, than those set forth in this article.

Fireworks subject to article 28 of title 12, C.R.S., shall not be subject to regulation under this article.

- (4) “Incendiary device” means any flammable material or container containing a flammable liquid or material whose ignition by fire, friction, concussion, detonation, or other method produces destructive effects primarily through combustion rather than explosion.

(2) Permits issued under this article shall not be transferable, and shall be readily available for inspection by representatives of the division and law enforcement officials.

(3) The division may place such restrictions and limitations on permits as it deems necessary.

(4) Nothing in this article shall authorize the issuance of a permit for an explosive or incendiary device commonly known as a molotov cocktail, and no permit may be issued for the manufacture, sale, storage, transportation, or use of such device.

(5) No permit shall be required for the occasional purchase of explosives by a person for normal agricultural purposes, if such person is personally known by the seller of such explosives, and a record is kept of such transaction by the seller, including the specific purpose for which such explosives will be used, the location of the proposed use, the signature of the purchaser, and the certification of the seller as to his personal knowledge of the purchaser. (2) Prior to the issuance of a permit pursuant to this article, each applicant for a permit shall submit his or her set of fingerprints to the department. The department shall conduct a criminal history record check of each applicant. If, as a result of such check, the department finds that further investigation is necessary, the department shall forward the fingerprints to the Colorado bureau of investigation for the purpose of conducting a state and national fingerprint-based criminal history record check utilizing the records of the Colorado bureau of investigation and the federal bureau of investigation. The costs associated with the fingerprint-based criminal history record check shall be paid by the applicant to the Colorado bureau of investigation.
